City Clerk, Anne Haggerty, Dies Suddenly

Stricken with a heart attack while shopping in the downtown district on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Anne Haggerty, 147 Victoria Ave., City Clerk, died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital shortly after being taken to the institution by ambulance. She was in apparent excellent health before the attack.

MRS. ANNE HAGGERTY

Mrs. Haggerty had been a resident of this city for the past 12 years coming from New Toronto to accept a position with an industrial firm. In 1951 she accepted a position in the clerk's office under the late Harold D. Bateman and when the Clerk-Comptroller died suddenly in 1955, she was appointed acting city clerk and held that position until her permanent appointment in June of 1956.

She was born in Madoc township, 68 years ago, being the daughter of the late Charles and Ada McCoy. She received her public and high school education in her native township and Madoc village, later attending Ontario Business College in this city and graduating from the Harper Methodist Training Centre of Rochester, N.Y. She then entered the business life and continued in that capacity through the years.

Since coming to the city hall, Mrs. Haggerty had endeared herself to members of the council and civic officials. She was energetic, efficient and most obliging in her daily duties with the public.

In her social life, Mrs. Church was also considerate and helpful in all worthwhile projects. She gave freely of her time and her talents and enjoyed a wide circle of friends.

She was a member of Bridge St. United Church and was most active in the work of the Sunday School. She was a teacher in the school for many years and being an accomplished pianist was organist for years for the musical portion of the services. In the work of the church she was always ready and willing to assist.

Surviving are two sons, Ted L. and Garth M. Haggerty, both at home; two sisters, Mrs. Bernice Baker of this city, Mrs. George (Freda) Fox of Madoc, and two brothers, Derwood A. McCoy of Madoc township and Rayburn McCoy of Madoc village.

New Bond Issue Is Announced By Federal Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government today announced immediate offering of a new $200,000,000 short-term government bond issue and a high price-tag to help finance repayment of a $500,000,000 issue maturing July 1.

Finance Minister Fleming said the new offering, split into two maturities, is designed to help in financing operation for the $500,000,000 repayment. The financing operation, he said, will be completed in July.

The new bond issue consists of:

1. Bonds of 2¾ per cent due April 1, 1960, offered at 96.50 per cent, yielding about 3.50 per cent.

2. Bonds of 1¼ months, at 3 per cent due Aug. 15, 1960, offered at 98.30 per cent and yielding 5.68 per cent.

The government's decision to continue short - term borrowing will mean a heavy job of refinancing in 1960 for it already has $385,000,000 worth of 3¾ per cent bonds due next April 1 and $315,000,000 of three per cent bonds due Dec. 15, 1960. These are in addition to the new $200,000,000 treasury bill issue due June 30 next year.

In other words, it would appear the government's refinancing operations next year may be on a similar scale, with in addition to the regular run of treasury bill operations.

The new short-term bonds are offered immediately to investors through investment dealers and chartered banks.

$200,000 offering will provide sufficient work, said the premier declined to be photographed and, instead wrote out his second statement of criticism.

Mr. Frost's Saturday statement criticized the accommodations and studies of the CBC, comparing them unfavorably with those of private stations "At Peterborough, Barrie, North Bay, Fort William and other places I could name."

How staff can work under such conditions is beyond me. It is all indicative of the inability which is costing the people huge sums of money. The government's part in TV and broadcasting ought to be regulatory. It should not be in the business. Far better results would be obtained from stations . . ."

NOTHING FAVORABLE

The statement charged the CBC "arranged for private commentators who were unfavorable to the government's point of view — of course nothing favorable was included."

In this, the premier said, "I do not include Bruce Marsh and Gordon Sinclair, who, I hope, do not. Nor do I complain of the CBC technical facilities which always have treated me well and with understanding."

Mr. Frost co-ordinated the Thursday night broadcast and Mr. Drew followed with analysis of the announcing of election returns.

"My complaint about the CBC is first of all the principle and secondly how that principle is carried out by the management," the premier's statement said.

PUFFY REPLY

Mr. Duffy, in replying to Mr. Frost's charges, said in part:

"Mr. Frost's charge that our broadcast was biased and distorted picture of the election surprised us since we felt certain we had given a fair-minded report, not only of government's position but also of the gains that were made by the opposition parties . . .

"From the start, CBC reports pointed to a Progressive Conservative trend and at no time did they indicate that the over-all result was in any doubt . . .

"With the aid of an electronic computer we said at 9:02 p.m. that Mr. Diefenbaker would soon be returned with 71 seats. That was at a time when only one Progressive conservative had actually been declared elected. The figure of 71 was right on the mark and was confirmed about later by the final official result."

Final Returns Give Wren Seat By Four Votes

KENORA (CP)—Reports from all 144 polls in the Kenora riding in last Tuesday's federal election showed Liberal Albert Wren with a margin of four votes over Progressive Conservative Gordon Keffer.

The final count for the Kenora riding, completed Sunday night, showed Wren with 6,511 votes, Mr. Keffer with 6,507 and W. Gr'Sterman of the CCF with 5,296. Wren held the seat since 1951.

It will be considered in the final result of the election is the vote of Kenora district residents in the armed services. Four in the Ontario election, 10 military personnel voted for Mr. Wren and four for his Conservative opponent.

The reported figures are based on telephoned and telegraphed returns from returning officers.

Returning officer Joe O'Flaherty is to open the ballot boxes here for an official check of the count on June 25.

Aside from the Kenora seat, Premier Frost's Progressive Conservatives elected 11 members in the 265-seat Commons.

Or perhaps lily bulbs and caruncopers broiled in butter?

On display are exotic snacks from all over the world — hams soaked in whisky, rattlesnake, caviar, cheeses, pink beer, and, of course, grasshoppers.

drafting new instructions for Gromyko. One diplomatic source predicted the Geneva conference would end in an agreement providing the Berlin "status quo" with five sawers on both sides."

The Western foreign ministers apparently were in their determination to break off negotiations if Gromyko does not modify his position. Secretary of State Herwyn Lloyd of Britain was reported to be far more interested in continuing negotiations than are U.S. State Secretary Christian A. Herter and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

LLOYD HOPEFUL

Lloyd returned from a weekend in London, apparently with instructions from Prime Minister Macmillan to stick to a strategy of firmness and patience. Macmillan said in London Saturday night that he still hopes for some concessions.

The Western powers in return would be expected to agree to from the size of their 10,000-man garrison in West Berlin, to curtail propaganda and spy activities from there against the Communist bloc, and to agree to a ban on nuclear weapons in Berlin.

Quinte S.S. Book Printed Using Offset

Quintessence 1959, the current yearbook of Quinte Secondary School is just off the presses. The yearbook, which is dedicated to the graduating class of 1958-59 — the first to complete the full five-year course at Quinte Secondary School, has been published in an 8½ by 11 inch size, which allows for the use of the offset printing method. By utilizing this method of the students of the commercial department of the school were able to type the copy for each page, facilitating ease of composition, thus reducing printing time and cost involved considerably.

NEWS FROM LONG AGO

One of the results of the heavy post-war immigration into Canada has been a noteworthy increase in foreign-language presses in the larger Canadian cities. Canadians may not be aware of the fact that, seventy years ago, they had their own "foreign-language press" in one of the largest cities of the United States.

This fact was revealed recently when the Tatham Construction Co. Ltd. of Belleville wrecked a building in Brockville. In it was discovered a copy of "The Canadian American," a weekly published at Chicago and Minneapolis. The copy bore the date Friday, April 5, 1889.

The front page bore such headlines as "Happenings in Fair Canada," "Tecumseh, the Indian Chief" and "Ad to a Double Allegiance."

The inside pages carried news from the provinces, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island, in that order, and more detailed news under the general heading, "Canadian Cities," with reports from Toronto, Kingston, Brantford, St. Catharines, Guelph, Winnipeg, London, Belleville, Stratford, Hamilton, Montreal, St. Thomas and Ottawa, in that order, on one page and another column, "Canadian Towns," including reference to Brockville, Cornwall, Perth, Prescott, Woodstock, Galt and Berlin (now Kitchener) on another page.

The Belleville news read as follows:

"Mr. R. Stead, formerly of Belleville, was fatally injured on the Grand Trunk at Lansdowne on Saturday.

"It having been rumored that the Grand Trunk workshops at this point, which now give employment to 400 men, are to be moved to Kingston, a public meeting was held last week and it was decided to do everything possible to block such a step by offering the Grand Trunk Company a bonus to stay here and increase the capacity of their works.

"At a meeting of the Joint Committee of the Belleville City Council and Board of Trade it was resolved to recommend to Council to grant a free site and exemption from taxation for ten years to all new industries which operate continually for ten years, ten months of the year; also to grant a bonus, graduated in proportion to the number of persons employed, and payable in seven equal annual installments, without interest, to every new industry employing not less than 10 to 25 hands. Existing industries which are enlarged will receive the same consideration as new ones, except as to a site."

Who said anything about the new problems created by our modern civilization? Worrying about the possibility of railroaders leaving the city and striving to attract new industries - - fame sounds familiar. Of course, some of the methods used seventy years ago to induce industries to locate here would not be acceptable today. Many towns found out from bitter experience that they did not always get good value for the money expended in bonuses to industries and tax exemptions.

ADENAUER CAN'T WIN

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the West German Republic and Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard are said to have composed their differences at a private meeting.

Maybe. But from this distance it would appear that this is one battle which Adenauer is unlikely to win.

His decision to remain as chancellor, instead of stepping upstairs" to the presidency, is said to have resulted from his inability to dictate his choice of a successor and his conviction that Erhard, if appointed to that post, would not follow policies of which Adenauer approves.

If Erhard decides to fight, the very best that Adenauer can hope for is retention of the post of chancellor with the head of a party weakened by dissension.

If, on the other hand, it is true that Erhard has made his peace with this chief it would seem to us to provide infallible evidence that he places the best interests of the country ahead of his own personal ambitions - - and would thereby strengthen his chances of being selected to succeed Adenauer when he steps down. Since Adenauer is now 83, his departure, whether by choice or necessity, can hardly be long delayed.

Time, as well as many of the members of the Christian Democratic party, are on Erhard's side.

Go Work Somewhere Else

...Ottawa Journal.

As we read the evidence of discussions in the Commons Estimates Committee on the working of the Civil Service the idea comes over us that certain fundamental principles are being over-turned. This over-turn of fundamentals in the committee is but a reflection of a kind of overturn in the public mind.

The Committee enquiring into the method of appealing promotions and appointments says it has been agreed to earn that last year in nearly 3,000 appointments and promotions, only some 600 appeals were made and of these 250 or 300 were sustained by the Civil Service Commission.

It appears that the popular idea (and the committee's idea) of sure evidence that a government interference was being well run would be if the Commission could report that of 3,000 appointments 1,650 were appealed and 4,500 were cancelled or amended by the appeal body. This only would we see that the under-dog was getting his due. But the august body of deputy ministers or commissioners was determining who was to get what in the civil service.

What kind of catering to second-rate thinking can this be?

This newspaper believes that the government service, just as a private concern, is not to suit by those at the head, and by their principal officers. If the Commission discovers evidence or find evidence to prove that some of these officers are ineffective then they should be replaced. It is of course also in order for the Civil Service Commission to examine the method of administration and appointments with a view to efficiency and freedom from red tape or political interference.

But surely the parliamentary committee, putting itself catering to popular votes and thus being "political" while proclaiming to be non-political, politics — surely the committee ought not to encourage the mass body of civil servants into the conception that from now on they should themselves choose, or have chosen, their superiors which doesn't suit their personal desires?

Anyone with any experience in running a business knows a garden party to an army, from a department store to the head of industry — knows that probably in 75 per cent of management's decisions somebody or some group would like to make an appeal. Appeals from decisions are the processes of appeal like those of arbitration and still that they tend to weaken discipline and respect for authority. They build in delay and perhaps sometimes an appeal would improve a decision, but the very fact remains that the over-all result of a vast and common custom of appeal would be a most unhealthy harmful than the occasional single breach.

We do not say that appeals should never be granted to civil servants who feel they have had a bad deal. Nor do we suggest that if proper principles of appointment and promotion are abused this abuse should be unnoticed and unchecked. But if the present government is to encourage the parliamentary committee to influence the Civil Service Commission to make of the latter a body exercising a kind of fire-for-all for complaint, protest and half-a-mandate, then the end is certain of the high reputation our Canadian Civil Service has among the best services in the world. And in saying this we are not concerned with any criticism in body of the Civil Service itself, and for their good.

If Parliament is not careful it will have hardened to the minority of cases where there is real trouble and submitted the great majority of the service to a kind of Tower of Babel administration wherein authority and responsibility are confused and politicians are obliged to yield to the uninspired misdirection and unloading influences of "the average", or probably lower than average.

Whatever happens to the good old maxim that probably was one of the foundations of this country's growth and development? To wit: "If you don't like it here, go work somewhere else".

The Journal suggests to Parliament that it examine the quality of the leaders of the Civil Service, and if it is satisfied with their quality, that it tells them to go back to their departments and dust off that old maxim and have it ready for use when the circumstances warrant.

He added that the new synthetic fuels would include the "so-called 'exotic' fuels envisioned for rocket or vapor engines of the future."

Dr. Kuchner said that new fuels will be the result of research to emerge from inquisitive new being conducted well include drilling, although material will combine structural reliability with resistance to wear use in automobile roofs and steels—with more than twice the strength of present steels on which can be economically produced for stronger and lighter frames and body panels.

Time Study In the Home

Sherbrooke Record

An English time-and-motion expert — the man in the picture who tells workers how long they should take to do a job and how much they will get paid for it — says the average housewife wastes a great deal of time on unnecessary household chores.

Mr. Gilbreth, a pioneer organization and planning of factories, any married woman living in a thirty-room house should be able to save the equivalent of at least a day a week in time.

No rushing involved, he insists, just a matter of simple efficiency.

In a week, the professional clock-watcher says, a housewife should spend no more than the following hours on various chores:

Preparation of food, cooking and clearing away, 18 hours.

Basic housework, cleaning, etc., seven hours.

Washing and ironing, three hours.

Shopping, two hours.

Mending, sewing, two hours.

This adds up to only 30 hours.

Mr. Gilbreth is a prominent member of the 30-hour week for the harried housewife is a remarkable development, but others will remain unimpressed.

While a three-day work week has been suggested for hubbies, no one, not even the English expert, has suggested a housewife can ever get by with anything less than the full seven days, no matter how few hours it all adds up.

Strength for The Day

SALUTE TO A LONG FRIENDSHIP

Some time ago in the home of a friend I saw a family group portrait which, because of my lifelong friendship with the head of the family, I felt I could request. A few days ago the picture arrived. My good friend and his wife are seated in the centre of a group of children. It is made up of children, in-laws, grandchildren, and one or two great-grandchildren. The little tykes strung along on either side of Grandpa and Grandma look as if they are fairly bursting to get into some sort of mischief. The sons and daughters, parents of these children, are smiling pleasantly.

"What a group!" I cried out as I opened the package and again saw the picture. How precious it is! With what satisfaction I will have it framed and hang it on my study! For here, of course, is just about the nearest thing we can get to heaven on earth. Here are a man and woman who in something like fifty years of married have had the pleasure of seeing this vital, joyful group of human beings come into the world and grow up about them. Here are a man and woman who made any human institution. The family is above every human institution. Our relationship with God is a family relationship, — "Our Father, who art in heaven." "We look for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 15, 1918

Seven hundred and twenty-four years ago today at Runnymede, forced by his barons, King John signed the great charter of British Liberty. Freedom in many countries has been won by the people, but the first blow in England for liberty was struck by the barons — surely a happy omen of the course of British history. The barons knew the power of liberty and laid down the foundations on which has been built a democratic constitution for over seven and a quarter centuries.

Miss Frances Lasher has left by motor on an extended holiday in California.

Among those receiving degrees from the Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore, Maryland, on June sixth was C. C. Lill, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lill, 200 Church Street, Belleville. Mr. Lill received his Bachelor of Engineering degree and has accepted an invitation from the Corning Corporation of Philadelphia, Pa., to join that organization.

Miss Louise Effie VanLuven of Napanee, was one of the seven who received diplomas at the graduation exercises of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

Mrs. Alex Calhoun of Calgary, Alberta, and Miss Vivian Moyney, is visiting at the home of her uncle, Mr. George Dulmage, Hillside Street. Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun will leave shortly for England for an extended holiday. Mr. Calhoun is now in Ottawa visiting his mother.

30 YEARS AGO

JUNE 15, 1928

Mrs. George Ashley has returned home from Albany, N.Y., where she attended the graduation of her daughter Miss. Viola Ashley, at the Albany General Hospital.

"The Lamplighter" in his column "Sidelights" has the following to say: "Some of our well-known and popular citizens: 'Jimmy Bankier has returned to the city for posterity in several songs recorded for the phonograph. Now when Jimmy gets old and grey and his voice no longer lends charm to the sweet cadence of old, he can crank up the old phonograph and put on his own records just to prove to the new generation that singing in those days was singing and not the kind of a caterwauling which it may have degenerated into by that time. Where is that 'I Were Young Magpie' would be an appropriate selection. Charlie's record is on sale here now, and going like proverbial hot cakes."

JUNE 15, 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Reid, Moira Street West, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding yesterday. The members of the family, grandchildren and friends were present to extend congratulations and to express good wishes for their future happiness and prosperity. They received many useful and valuable presents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. E. Mason have returned home after having spent a week with friends in Toronto and Woodstock.

Mr. Herbert H. Webb of Toronto spent yesterday here with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Cameron-of Brandon, Man., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. K. McCargar in this city. Mr. Cameron has not been in Belleville for many years and he is much pleased to note the great improvement in the city.

At a special meeting of the officer and teachers of Holloway Street Methodist Church Sunday School which was held last evening, Mr. F. F. Canniff was elected superintendent of the school for the ensuing year, and Mr. George Dulmage was elected secretary for the same term. A very cordial expression of thanks was extended to the retiring superintendent, Mr. George Wallace. The very efficient manner in which the affairs of the school has been brought to its present high state of efficiency.

CANSO, NOVA SCOTIA

Some authorities say this word was derived from the name of the French navigator Canse, and can well be. Others say it was French spelling "Campseau" suggests that the harbor was so-called because it was a common rendezvous for vessels. Haliburton says that it is derived from the Spanish CANSO, a goose, a name given to the numerous immense flocks of geese seen there. Dr. Sand says it is from the Indian "Komsack," meaning "opposite the lofty cliffs." This would appear to be the proper derivation as the Indians called White Head nearby "Kamuskoos," meaning the cliffs place opposite the lofty cliffs."

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

IF YOU INTEND TO TRAVEL ABROAD, HERE ARE SOME SUGGESTIONS

Maybe today's column is inspired in part because I like to travel. It is also inspired by questions that have come to me. Mainly I read to increase my travel. There are problems when you get into a good many parts of the world and the health factors are generally understimated.

At home we've become accustomed to scrupulous cleanliness in our kitchens. We protect and purify water supplies, and have stringent requirements concerning food handlers.

This isn't true everywhere. Indeed, in some impoverished countries, soap is a luxury because it takes fat to make soap and some areas just don't have enough fat to eat, let alone to use in soap.

Further, a different climate may be particularly kind to a variety of bugs and some bugs can cause discomfort to travelers.

I don't mean to throw a wet blanket on travel; I do say that there are a few precautions that can prevent days of misery later.

Of course the United States government requires certain vaccinations, and the principle one is for small pox. You can get out of the country without it, but small pox vaccination, last you'll have trouble coming back into the U.S. unless you can show a certificate of vaccination within three years.

Federal immunization requirements vary with different countries. For any area, however, I recommend combined typhoid-paratyphoid shots. Many of the distressing cases of diarrhea in travel can be traced to the paratyphoid organisms. In addition, it's not a bad idea to take along some anti-diarrhoeal medicine in the order of paregoric-and-bismuth, and your doctor can recommend whatever he thinks best for you. Taken along with you, however antibiotic is optional; again, talk to your doctor.

MOST HOTELS ARE SAFE

Once overseas, you will find that food and drink are reasonably safe in most hotels, especially those in which cater to foreigners — I suppose we had the great American tendency that we are foreigners when we are by somebody else's country although I've had occasion to be ashamed of some of my countrymen in this regard, too.

But when you are off in the quaint byways, of questionable source. If in doubt, boil the water. This is just as effective. If you are using water of doubtful source, don't use unpasteurized milk. Boil it, too. If in doubt, remember that pasteurized milk, mixed with boiled water, will be safe.

Fruit juices, freshly squeezed are safe. But if the skin of the fruit has been broken, be wary. And also learn to be suspicious of food which isn't served hot in places of doubtful sanitation. The heat of cooking will destroy bacteria but it won't keep the food from acquiring more later.

Two more things, for those who are going to appropriate areas: One, it's a very good idea to watch out for mosquitoes in some places. Shake out your shoes before you put them on in the morning. Too, for appropriate places, take along an anti-malaria drug.

This isn't a complete list by any means but if you start with these basic warnings, and remember that it's better to be safe than sick, you'll automatically be alert for other special health requirements in the area the public health service or other agencies recommend. They do it for a reason, not to be officious.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I had a psychiatrist examine me and the doctor pronounced me a schizoid personality and/or a manic or low depressive. Should a person take, or is he advised to take any treatment for same?" — E.C.S."

Ans.: Go back to the doctor and tell him he's addicted.

Mrs. E. D.: Yes, operations for hernia are done on youngsters of 5 years. The only time a hernia scene seems to be of fair size. It should be checked soon, before the boy has more trouble with it.

TCA 'Made' Viscounts

Windsor Star

The Vickers-Armstrong (Aircraft) Company in England has delivered its 460th Viscount airliner.

Which can thank Canada for the success of this plane.

The company was making slow progress on the project until Trans-Canada Air Lines said it would buy the Vickers machine, adding a wide variety of modification were made to bring it into harmony with American standards and practices.

Trans-Canada then put them on a regular schedule, Toronto and New York in 1955. They were an immediate success and were added to other routes, including the one into Windsor.

Then Canada broke into the American market when Capital Airlines ordered 60 Viscounts. There are now 41 airliner in 33 countries using the Viscounts.

The Viscount was the greatest success of British civil aviation in both value and numbers, and it is making way for faster and larger turbo-prop jets, the Vickers Vanguard and VC-10 particularly.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HOW TO BE INTERESTING

Nothing is more inspiring than to be interesting. An interesting person never lacks for friends, or other interesting people. One of the surest ways to become interesting is to have a wide range of things. Writers, travellers, inventors, artists and poets make an undying purpose are those whom it is a joy to meet. Men who have succeeded in other people, other people will be interested in you. A retired soldier mine was asked to write a sketch about the most interesting person he knew — and he wrote a piece about himself! Well, why wasn't that the thing to have done, for who knows anyone so well as we know ourselves?

On the other hand, my idea of an interesting person is one who has read and learns. A man who has been born, but also learn to be suspicious of food which isn't served hot in places of doubtful sanitation. The heat of cooking will destroy bacteria but it won't keep the food from acquiring more later.

Two more things, for those who are going to appropriate areas: One, it's a very good idea to watch out for mosquitoes in some places. Shake out your shoes before you put them on in the morning. Too, for appropriate places, take along an anti-malaria drug.

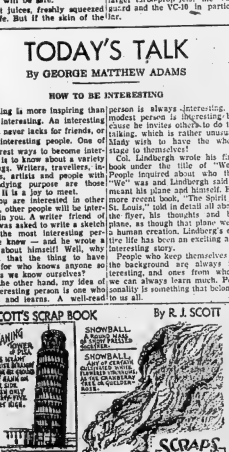
THE PACKSAPK

By GREGORY CLARK

At a highway service station last week I ran into a fellow I had not seen since the war. He used to be one of the gloomiest, grouchiest of men.



If he had no troubles of his own, he was always ready to take on the world's troubles. He was not exactly a pessimist. He was an ogre.

But here, waiting in the service station while the boys replaced the burnt bearing in his car, was my old acquaintance as cheery and genial as the chairman of a membership committee. So friendly was our meeting that I went in my car down the highway a piece for lunch together. And naturally I commented on his changed disposition.

"Well sir," he said, "I dieted." "I always figured you had eating troubles. I'm disagreed with you," I confessed.

"I don't mean that—kind of diet," he replied. "I dieted my mind. I've been watching my women folk dieting for years. If their clothes get tight on them, they diet a few days, and everything eases up. So one day I got to thinking about my person could get fat in the head. Maybe my thoughts were thoughts were getting too tight for me. So I went on a diet. A mental diet. I quit thinking my usual thoughts and reading the usual books and magazines. I began thinking and my reading as particularly as I saw the women folk choosing their calories. I read a number of books I didn't want to read, and by the time I got to things they didn't want to eat. By golly, I worked wonders. Now, when ever I get down in the dumps, I go on a mental diet. Try it, fellow."

It sounds salubrious.

A SPRING DIAGNOSIS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I'n't exactly say that I
Am in tip-top shape today;
Couldn't, 'cept I told a lie,
Tell an ache I've got or say
That my stomach's out of whack;
Legs ain't full of rheumatis,
Lumbago in my back,
Don't know what the matter is.
I know is that somehow
Every task begins to irk,
The way I'm feelin' now,
I'm not strong enough to work.

Appetite is up to snuff,
Got no spots before my eyes;
My digestion's good enough
To take care of apple pies.
There's no doctor in the land
Who could find a thing with me
His attention to command,
Calling for a remedy.
Yet, I'm sittin' here today
With a feeble sort o' smirk
Wishin' I could sneak away—
I'm not strong enough to work.

Queen's Visit to Canada, U.S. to Be Free From Usual Pomp, Circumstance, Tedium

LONDON (Reuters)—A shy but friendly woman of 33 flies to Canada this week on a trip that is very near and dear to her heart.

She is Queen Elizabeth II, a brown-haired, attractive wife and mother who has overcome a slight, natural timidity in becoming one of Britain's most successful sovereigns.

Though the Queen goes expertly through the formal paces of public appearances, she still prefers the simple pleasures of home life to the pomp - filled round of parades, speeches and monument - unveilings. When she travels, she would rather meet people than undergo endless formalities.

ESCAPE FORMALITY

Certainly, there will be speeches, parades and inspections aplenty after the Queen and her husband, Prince Philip, arrive at St. John's, Nfld., Thursday to start a six - week, coast-to-coast tour of Canada. The trip, their third to North America, will be highlighted—officially — by her opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

She will also touch U.S. soil briefly, spending July 6 in Chicago while cruising the Great Lakes aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

But, in accordance with the Queen's wishes, the visit will be as free as possible of the usual pomp, circumstance and tedium.

Typically, the Queen wants to get away from formality so she can meet and mingle easily with Canadians and get a closeup view of their way of life.

As a result, this trip—the longest ever made outside the United Kingdom by a ruling British monarch—is expected to be one of her most successful.

Because of her shyness and a slight-developed sense of duty and responsibility, the Queen sometimes has tended to look too serious in her public appearances.

LIKES TO LAUGH

The London Sunday Observer remarked on this as long ago as 1951—the year before she became queen—and said: "anyone with the princess' temperament is affected by a formal program in much the same way as most people assume a look of exceptional gravity when they sit in the photographer's chair."

But when events deviate a little from the strictly program, she smiles. One day during her first trip to Canada and the United States in 1951, her Canadian train suddenly started puffing off without her. Officials were a little horrified: Elizabeth laughed heartily, and everybody loved her for it.

She showed her quiet, unruffled sense of humor often on the tour.

Six years later, when she made her second visit to Canada and the United States, the Queen was more poised and practised in the formalities than she had been before.

But she had lost none of her enjoyment of informal meetings. An American newspaper columnist dubbed her "the folkiest British monarch of modern times."

GREAT FUN

She became increasingly "folksy" as the tour went on. She happily added dozens of unrehearsed gestures and informal touches to the program and climaxed it by dropping in at a Washington super-market on her way back to the White House from a football game.

No look of annoyance clouded Elizabeth's fair complexion as unrestrained American photographers called out "smile, your majesty" and "this way, your majesty."

She didn't seem a bit worried when excited, curious shoppers became wedged between her and members of the royal household.

"How'd you like the football game," a housewife asked the Queen breezily. "It was great fun," the Queen answered, with equal easiness of manner.

While a winning combination of shyness, friendliness and charm is an important part of the Queen's personality, she also is a sincere, religious person with a firm sense of dedication to both her family and her "job."

She has a genuine love of and interest in children, partly the result of her own happy childhood as the daughter of the late King George VI. One of her first acts during her accession year of 1953 was to provide funds for the treatment and maintenance of a girl who had been discharged from a Nigerian leper colony. The girl was the second child "adopted" by the Queen.

ORDINARY LIFE

When she became president of Britain's National Association for Maternity and Child Welfare, she declared: "The need of every child to be surrounded by love and security is now accepted by all."

The Queen was brought up as much like an "ordinary" child as her position would permit. She attempts to do the same for her own two youngsters, Prince Charles, 10, and Princess Anne, 8.

They have been strictly — but not overly-controlled and get every possible opportunity for normal play. Charles, the Prince of Wales, is learning the rough-and - tumble of boarding school at Cheam School while the princess has just joined a brownie pack.

The Queen is happiest in the company of her children and her husband but she never lets her personal feelings stand in the way of her duties.

The need to visit Commonwealth countries often separates the Queen from her children for long periods. On her 21st birthday, broadcasting to the youth of the Commonwealth from South Africa, Elizabeth made it clear Britain's "family of peoples" would not play second fiddle to her own personal clan.

"I declare before you all that my whole life, whether it be long or short," she said, "shall be devoted to your service and to the service of our great imperial family to which we all belong."

TRAVELLING MORE

The second "family" covers one-fifth of the earth's surface and includes a quarter of the world's population. Only about 15,000,000 of the Queen's 600,000,000 subjects are white and Moslems outnumber the Christians.

It is a changing Commonwealth and the Queen travels far more than her predecessors. At home, she is in step with the times.

Quietly but surely, she is humanizing her court, bringing it closer to the people. Her son's attendance at Cheam School is a case in point.

The annual debutante presentations at Buckingham Palace have been dropped in favor of garden parties at which the Queen can meet more people.

The Queen and her husband have also established the custom of holding informal, weekly luncheons for guests as varied as labor leaders, industrialists, actors and educators.

The people of Britain have applauded these moves as warmly as they yell for victory by one of the Queen's many fine horses as it romps down the stretch at Epsom or Ascot. Her devotion to racing is one more trait that endears her—as a person—to this nation of sports fans.

Elizabeth is a wife and Elizabeth the woman run neck-and-neck in the affections of her subjects.

Hydro Worker Lost in Bush For 24 Hours

Norman McIntyre, 22, of Beamsville, was none the worse Sunday afternoon after being lost in the woods near Wesleykoon Lake for nearly 24 hours.

The young hydro worker was on a fishing trip when he wandered away from other members of the party and spent Saturday night in the woods.

A large provincial police from Bancroft and Kaladar were called in to assist in the search and the missing fisherman was located about four o'clock in the afternoon. Police assisting in the search were Constables John Hawkins of Bancroft and W. J. Fitzsimmons from Kaladar.

"An Evening With Astaire" Will Make a Fortune Along With Movie, Autobiography

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Embarrassed and bewildered is the way to describe Fred Astaire these days.

If you saw him pick up those Emmys, you know the phrasing is correct.

I never dreamed the TV show would go that way," he says. He won nine awards from the Television Academy. No show ever got so many. No star ever was so pleased—or so chagrined. He even offered to return one Emmy.

This, Fred's 60th year, will be his greatest. A TV show that's sure to make a fortune, his first dramatic role in a movie, his autobiography.

Astaire seems shy, despite a half-century of success. However, he knows his worth and won't settle for a cent less. He has as much ego as any actor, but on him it doesn't show. Three of the Emmys decorate his bar. But he refused to have his picture taken with them. "That'd look like I was blowing my horn," he told an astonished photographer.

He lives in a comfortable home, which he built, in the shadow of Pickfair. It is furnished in quiet taste. He likes to spend money ("It's meant to be spent, not kept in a bank"), but he doesn't splurge per himself. He dresses expensively, but casually. His coats are too short and his pants are too tight (the English tailors' influence), but he thinks other men are too loose.

Being a widower, witty and wealthy, he often is asked as a fourth at bridge or as an eighth at dinner. Beautiful, unattached women certainly inspire some of these invitations. He turns many down and charms with charming plausible excuses.

He just doesn't want to get involved, because he knows there's be publicity, and as he often has remarked, "I hate the romance thing."

Rumors link him romantically with Barrie Chase, the 23-year-old blonde who dances with him on that award-winning TV show An Evening With Fred Astair. But his friends believe he will not marry her — or anybody else.

He'll paid him $250,000 for the Evening. He spent $195,000 putting it on. A nice profit on the first showing, but the first reran paid him a $150,000. Future reruns and foreign sales could boost his take-home to $500,000.

Three years ago Astaire decided to write his life story. He started to tell it to a professional writer, but the words "got onto paper" "weren't mine." At last he sat down and wrote the story himself. It bombed.

Fred gets a little hot in the first few pages of Steps In Time (a title suggested by Noel Coward because "the press makes such a habit of blasting out my age every time they review a job of mine").

The durable Astaire has retired several times. But he always has been lured back by talk about retiring any more, but:

"Work is my only real happiness. I try to think that the good old days are today and tomorrow—not all the yesterdays."

COMMUNIST RULE

tely church bells began sounding an alarm. A crowd of about 2,000 gathered, the government said, and police opened fire when some of the crowd pushed inside the jail.

The government said five persons were killed and 23 wounded. The Congress party said six were killed and 32 wounded.

The Roman Catholics were arrested Sunday night by armed state police as they camped in the school grounds to greet the opening today.

Christian and leaders of a Hindu caste called the Nair community say they will try to keep their cool even with charming plausible excuses.

He just doesn't want to get involved, because he knows there's be publicity, and as he often has remarked, "I hate the romance thing."

Thirty Editors From States Enjoy Beauties of County

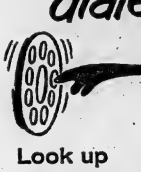
PICTON — Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce and Quinte Isle Tourist Association had as weekend guests, thirty editors from United States newspapers who are touring Ontario under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity.

The weekend was designed as a break in the 2000 - mile tour which began last Monday at Sault Ste. Marie and ends next Saturday at Windsor.

When the bus carrying the visitors arrived at Glenora ferry Saturday night after a visit to Ottawa and the Seaway, it was met by local groups who tendered a reception at Lake-on-the-Mountain resort. This was an informal affair and provided an opportunity for the editors to see this mysterious lake which has no visible inlet or outlet. Accommodation had been reserved at Picton Manor Court and Merland Park on the Bay shore.

Sunday, the visitors were given an opportunity to do anything they liked. Cars were provided for tours of scenic spots in Prince Edward, boats and guides were available for fishing, others enjoyed golf on the local course, many saw the county from May-or H. J. McFarland's private plane, cars took all who wished, to the church of their choice.

In the afternoon, Mayor and Mrs. McFarland opened their lovely home on the bay shore for an informal reception where a chief topic of conversation was comparing civic government and problems with representatives of local municipalities. Many of the editors were from towns.



DELECTABLE BANQUET

The only event at which there were speeches was at a delectable smorgasbord at the Royal Hotel Sunday evening where the traditional banquet fare could be changed if desired and thus a variety of a dozen different foods was offered. Except for the vote of thanks to the local people, speeches did not exceed two minutes. J. Donald Baxter, past president of the Chamber of Commerce was toastmaster. Those who briefly extended welcome to the editors were Harold Cleave, President Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce; Mayor H. J. McFarland for the town; Ern Ward, Warden of Prince Edward County; C. A. Milligan, M. P.; Norris Whitney, MPP; Ken Campbell, Quinte Isle Tourist Association; Jack Letson, in charge of local arrangements.

Responding for the visitors was Bob Reed, editor of the Daily Item, Wakefield, Mass., who said their reception had greatly exceeded the word hospitality. On behalf of the Department, Tom McDonald, director of photography expressed thanks to local groups and all concerned who had so ably and generously carried out arrangements to make the visit here a most successful and enjoyable one.

Christ Church P.G. Enjoys Supper

Memories were shared and friendships renewed on Tuesday last when Christ Church Parish Guild had as their guests at their closing luncheon many former members who have been inactive or absent for some time.

A cordial welcome from the president, Mrs. R. H. Dawson, and a pretty corsage was ready for each guest as she arrived.

The luncheon tables were most attractive and everyone enjoyed the delicious "potluck" dishes. Grace was said by the Reverend Everett Smith and Archdeacon J. B. Creegan chose as a theme for his devotional message "Lessons in Practical Living From Our Faith."

The Reverend Hubert Massiah, the new curate for Christ Church, was introduced and expressed his pleasure at getting to know the members of the different organizations, and his wish to be of service.

Special tribute and a corsage were given to Mrs. Earl Hickey, long-time member, and several times president of the Parish Guild, also to Mrs. Williams, of Melbourne, Ontario who was president for several years.

TRIBUTE OF SILENCE

A moment of silence was observed in honor the memory of departed members and special mention was made of Miss Leslie Warham, a faithful Guild workers for many years.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by the president. Convener of the recent "Blossom Tea," Mrs. A. Jordan, gave a full report, showing that the venture had been a most successful one. Grateful thanks were expressed to all those who had helped, particularly co-convener Mrs. Diment, Mrs. H. Wright, Mrs. Bay and many others.

Remembrance member, Mrs. Back reported that 100 cards had been sent to members of the congregation since the beginning of the year.

The Guild will be catering for several wedding receptions during June and July, also for a dinner and an open house.

It was decided that a cheque be sent towards the ...ilt of the diocesan camp ...ites.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Herrington for coming to help with the program.

Mrs. Elmer Wood, Mrs. Howard Cronin, Mrs. Rod Hazzard and Mrs. James MacMillan served refreshments and a social hall hour was enjoyed.

Return of Feminine Look To Spark Many Weddings

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, (CP) — A fashion expert predicts that the return of the feminine look in new dress stylings will spark an increase in the number of weddings this year in Canada.

Charles M. Holliday of Toronto, market co-ordinator of the Canadian Salesmen Ontario Market, said that ever before with the return of the feminine look to the fashion scene."

THE SACK DID IT

It took the chemise and the sack to stimulate business interest Mr. Holliday feels the extreme fashions of the last two or three years are to blame for keeping women out of her fashion complacency.

"Now there is terrific interest partially sparked by a new era of fabrics and also the casual suburban way of life."

More than 2,100 buyers from Canada recently selected theis fall supply of women's and children's wear from 25,000 garments on display here.

The classic look has returned. Simple, elegant lines were the feature of the women's clothes. Now sweater styles are more refined. Many of them are dyed to match accent tartans of woven shirts. Shaggy sweaters have been added to the popular bulky types.

INTEREST IN COATS

The big news is in coats. Gone the chemise, the draping and the bows. In their place are the poor, the Hollywood wrap, the Chesterfield and the little boy coat. The backs are straight and the fronts are often double-breasted. Wide - notched collars and frequently accented with fur.

The solid colors include brown, a favorite shade for fall this year. Two - tone muscle coats range from sombre shades to a gay combination of stained glass blue and red.

Slim skirts topped with long belted jackets are among the most popular version of the fall suit. Tunics, strollers, semi-fitted and bouffant-type jackets are all included and they're all longer than last year. Tailored, set-in sleeves are noticeable among the collection. Coat sleeves are also plain and straight.

In contrast, dress sleeves are often frivolous. Sometimes the sleeves flare from the shoulders in tiers. The unbelted sheath dress appears to be as popular as the banded or belted dresser.

Sportswear is a mish and mash of colors and fabrics. Vests and tailored shirts often look out from under a blazer. Plaids and prints are blended with solid colors with red a favorite.

Women's Activities

EASTMINSTER W. F.

The Women's Federation of Eastminster United Church held its June meeting Monday night in the church. After the singing of "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult," the president extended a welcome to all and followed with prayer.

The business meeting followed with the secretary and treasurer reading their reports.

Mesdames Glover and Kline were in charge of the devotional period with Mesdames Helm and Dier assisting. The theme for this period dealt with the North American Indians and a film entitled "No Longer Vanishing," was shown. This film depicted the early Indians and how they lived and then showed the present Indians and how they are being accepted into today's professions and industry. It was interesting to note the great change over the past few years in the field of education.

Mrs. Glover also spoke on the work the church is doing for the Indians and mentioned that there is still much work done for them.

Mrs. E. Tyroop, Christian citizenship secretary, read an article entitled "Citizens." This article pointed out how life like a garden must be tended with care if one is to grow as God would have one grow.

After the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" the meeting adjourned to the downstairs auditorium for refreshments.

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

MADOC — The June meeting of St. Peter's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Russel Beals with Mrs. Dailey presiding.

Bible reading was read by Mrs. C. Weeks. Mrs. Johnston provided music for the program.

The topic for the lesson was "Missions and the Church in Canada today". Mrs. Johnston spoke on several subjects. "Times are changing, the church is expanding but not sufficiently to meet the needs of the growing population.

Mrs. Alvey and Mrs. Lewis sang a beautiful duet which was much appreciated.

Mrs. Dailey gave an interesting and informative talk on "Time Lively". The great scarcity of ministers and man power is keenly felt all over Canada today.

Mrs. Johnston concluded the lesson with a resume of the names mentioned in the Bible study especially their influence on mankind.

A business period followed. It was decided to hold a bake sale on June 27th in Trotter's Hardware to raise money for the executive fund. The table is to be sent later on.

The hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. R. McKay and Mrs. Sharpe. A very pleasant and sociable meeting to a close.

Secretary Boss When Head of Firm Away

WINNIPEG (CP) — Who's boss when the boss is away? It's the boss's secretary, says Ruth Hazzard of New London, Conn. She's a member of the training division of the American Bureau of Business Practice.

Miss Harris, who travels in the United States and Canada telling secretaries how better they can become their employer's right hand girl, gave a lecture series here recently.

"Some of us are the boss even when he is around, but we haven't told him about it," she said.

Such skills account for only about 15 per cent in an employer's appraisal of girls applying for the top secretarial positions. The other 85 per cent is personality."

Business girls should consider their jobs as hobbies which they are being paid to pursue, she urged.

"If you wake up on Wednesday morning and groan because you have three more working days to go through, look for another job," she advised.

Another mark of a good secretary, she said, is her ability to develop a "world curiosity," as well as "at least a listening knowledge of many topics."

Career as Criminal Lawyer Highly Demanding, Satisfying

MONTREAL, (CP) — Pearl Charnetsky finds her career as a criminal lawyer is highly demanding, but also highly satisfying.

Her work keeps her constantly on the move, she said in an interview, "but there's nothing I enjoy more than pleading a case in criminal court."

"There's a big human element involved. And when you get a client acquitted you get a great sense of satisfaction."

She is one of the women who have successfully combined marriage and a career. She says she often gets a good-natured teasing on her work from her husband, Hyman Berger, a physical education supervisor at Neighborhood House, a mid - town recreation centre for children.

"He works with the kids and he keeps telling me he is working to keep them from becoming my clients," said the attractive, dark-haired lawyer.

She set up her own practice after her marriage last year. A graduate of McGill University, she passed her bar examinations and then joined a firm in general legal practice.

"But I was exposed to criminal law there, and occasionally took criminal cases," she explained. "That was my start."

Her office, like any other legal office, is stocked with books and records, but there is a feminine touch in the wall plaques and gaily-patterned drapes.

In court, she has no apprehensions about facing judge and juries, she said.

When in court, I'm not a person-former. I'm there to see that justice is achieved. My interest is in my client, not the audience."

Her working hours often stretch far into the night, but she said it doesn't interfere too much with her home life. Her husband also has to work late evenings on his quest occasions.

"Of course, if you have an accused who wants to get out on bail and it's the middle of the night, you can't think about the hour. You have to think about your client."

No one in her family was a member of the legal profession, excepted. I've never regretted it."

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their first meeting of June in the Moose Hall on Victoria Avenue with Senior Regent Gladys Ritch, presiding.

One new member was initiated into the lodge. Officers for the coming year are as follows: Senior Regent, Nellie Shandraw; chaplain, Mildred Prindle; Junior Regent, Bernice Prindle; recorder, Nellie Scrymgeour; treasurer, Clara Seames.

The door prizes were won by I. Phillips and B. Brooks and were donated by Mary Peoples.

Refreshments were served by Mary Peoples' committee.

and when Miss Charnetsky entered university she planned on a career in social work.

But her father died, and she found herself handling many legal matters. The lawyer handling her father's estate asked her if she had ever thought of going in for law.

"I hadn't," she said. "But I immediately got in an application for the law school and was accepted. I've never regretted it."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S HINT . . . ABOUT SAYING "YES"

The word is "yes." Not "yeah" or "yup" or "yep" or "ya" or "um-hm." The word is "yes," and it should be pronounced "yes."

WIDOW CONTINUES TO "WEAR" HUSBAND'S NAME AND RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I had been married for 20 happy years when he died very suddenly with a heart attack. I loved him very dearly, and have been utterly shocked by his death. I have taken it for granted that I was to continue to use my husband's name (for example, Mrs. John Smith), and was to continue to wear my wedding ring. Now I am completely confused and distressed by being told by several friends that today these customs have changed, and that a widow uses the name-form "Mrs. Mary Smith", and either discontinues wearing her wedding ring or wears it on her right hand. Are these friends right about what they tell me, or am I so wrong?

— A widow-confused

It is the advice of these friends which is so wrong. I have never been able to figure out why so many women, when a friend or relative is widowed, think they should begin at once to address letters to her "Mrs. Mary Smith", ridiculously take it for granted that the widow will at once change the form of her name to "Mrs. Mary Smith." Why in the world should she? In the first place the form "Mrs. Mary Smith" is never correct in any social contact. . . It may be used in business, but even in business it is not considered really correct. And a widow shows respect for her husband by continuing to use the name he gave her . . . Mrs. John Smith. This is the correct name for her to use as a married woman and to continue to use as a widow, unless or until she remarries.

And of course you should continue to wear the wedding ring your husband gave you . . . and on the third finger of your left hand. Wearing that sacred ring, and wearing it where it should be worn will bring you the deep comfort you need these difficult days of readjustment.

As for that fantastic advice about changing your wedding ring to your right hand . . . pay no attention to this grotesque idea. This idea that if a widow takes her wedding ring from her left hand and wears it on her right hand this indicates to one and all that she is interested in finding another husband. What a low trick to play on her wedding ring, the ring supposed to be lovingly dedicated to her husband. Could you imagine a woman with even the smallest grain of good taste stooping to this weird procedure?

WRITE THANK-YOU NOTE FOR WEDDING GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I work in a medium-size office and I am to be married next month. I have already received a very beautiful wedding present from my boss and his wife. (Both names were on the enclosed card.) Since I have never met his wife, to whom should I write my thank-you note?

— Bride-to-be

You should send your thank-you note to the wife of your boss, even though you have never met her. And in you note you express your thanks to both.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. J. F. — Eunice's friend is a bad influence.

Eunice F. — She's different — I want experience.

Mrs. J. F. — My husband and I are very worried about our 21-year-old daughter, Eunice.

For the past year she has been going around with a girl about whom there has been unpleasant talk in the community. This girl is said to have been involved in some sort of scandal in her home community. She came here last year to stay with her aunt and uncle. Our daughter met her at a secretarial school and they've been fast friends ever since.

Since she has met this girl, Eunice has gone out with all kinds of men who are not like those she used to know through school or our family friends or church. I'm not saying anything against these men but after all, many of them are not of our faith and I can't see why Eunice should want to spend time with them. She says she intends to marry in our faith.

Eunice F. — My parents are so narrow and small town in their outlook. I hope I'll never become like that. I don't consider myself irreligious or immoral just because I want to get to know different kinds of people.

This girl, Nora, is different from any of the girls I've ever known. I certainly don't think she is immoral, but she says she wants more out of life than to just settle down to an everyday routine with a batch of kids. She wants to be an actress and she is crazy about her life in being in New York or Hollywood.

My mother just can't wait for me to marry and settle down and be like everyone else here. I want to marry, but I want a little experience of life first. My point with this is all because I'm not the influence of "this, and it's" but that's not so.

The Council: It is easy for parents to blame some undesired attitude in their young on an over-possessive influence — usually a companion. They overlook the fact that their youngster sought out just that companion from many different possibilities and that there were real reasons for this choice.

In this case, Eunice is an child, but it seems that her parents regard her as such and she is childlike in many of her attitudes. She apparently feels as much under her mother's thumb as she did when she was a little girl. She is filled with timid longings and daydreams, but she does not assert herself by reaching out for something real with which to enlarge her life. Instead she romanticizes through Nora and encourages the girl in what are probably some very idle illusions.

Nora, too, is apparently childlike and pretty much of a dreamer. It is one thing for a 32-year-old girl to talk of being an actress and quite a different thing for a girl of 21. At that age Nora should have a pretty good idea of how she is going to go about this difficult business. She should be well launched in her training and have had a few minor jobs in the field. A girl of 21 who talks of running off to New York or Hollywood and just becoming an actress is a menace to nobody so much as herself. Eunice is probably the harmful influence by encouraging her in these fantasies.

The J. F.'s ought to try to get over some of their fears about what the big outside world might do to harm their little girl, but Eunice should try to help the process by doing some growing up. She can and should get "a little experience of life," but this doesn't necessarily mean going out with men of different faiths or having big, vague ambitions. It means throwing herself wholeheartedly into work, relationships with others and the many interesting activities that are open to her — even in a small community.

Melt In Your Mouth Hot Rolls

by Mary Moore

The thing I know about Jenny White is that she can make rolls that melt in your mouth.

She may be an expert in all other cooking departments too but our roll recipe I know and have made up. In fact one of the little imp rolls is sitting on a plate on my desk in front of me tempting me to pause for sustenance.

I just did. Golly it was good.

Ready for the recipe?

JENNIE'S DOWNY ROLLS

¼ cup shortening, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon mace, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons white sugar, ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons hot water,

Measure above ingredients into a bowl (keeping out 1 teaspoon of sugar for yeast) add hot water and stir until sugar is melted.

½ cup lukewarm water, 1 package dry yeast; 1 egg, well beaten; 2 cups sifted, all-purpose flour.

Sprinkle yeast over lukewarm water (to which 1 teaspoon sugar has been added). Let stand for 10 minutes. Add to the first mixture and beat. Add egg and flour, little by little, mixing well. Scrape down bowl. Cover and place in refrigerator. Batter will rise in 3 to 4 hours. Cut down dough with spoon, pushing dough into buttered muffin tin tins filling them no more than half full. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with sesame or poppy seeds if desired. Cover and let rise in warm place until light. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, and remove from pans at once.

The batter may be left in the refrigerator over night and be equally good.

Note: If desired to make Pecan Rolls, 1½ teaspoons each butter and brown sugar may be put in muffin tins first, then three , or four whole pecans. Batter is then spooned over them and allowed to rise, 2) If you fancy Cheese Rolls, add ½ cup dry, grated, old cheese to first mixture.

COCOANUT SYRUPY BUNS (Variation of Jennie's Downy Rolls)

In a saucepan mix together over low heat, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, ½ cup shredded cocoanut and 1/3 cup crushed pineapple, until butter is just barely melted. Spoon equal portions of this mixture into buttered muffin tins, before spooning batter to muffin pans. Let rise until light and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes. Take from oven and invert on cake rack leaving muffin pan over buns for 4 to 5 minutes to allow all of the cocoanut syrup to run over buns.

Billy Casper Wins US Open, Wind, Weather Slows Field

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP)— Almost anybody could have won the 1959 U.S. open golf championship if he could have shot a reasonably good round in the wind and cold at Winged Foot Sunday.

Billy Casper won it with his first three rounds and a putter that stayed red hot through the fourth. His 72-hole score was 282, which could have been Ben Hogan, who won the British Open in even worse weather conditions. It could have been Bob Rosburg or Mike Souchak, who were very much in the running up to the last few holes.

It could have been Sammy Snead if the weather had permitted two rounds on Saturday when he shot the best round of the tournament.

LIMITED EXPERIENCE

Instead it was Casper, a raunchy, pleasant 27-year - old who has been a professional only about five years and who isn't regarded as an outstanding player from tee to green.

The weather was a tremendous factor. Within a week it ranged from searing heat to pleasantly cool, and drenching thunderstorms Saturday that forced the first postponement of a round in the history of the tournament. Finally it turned up a day of strong, variable winds and low temperatures.

It didn't make much difference on the putting greens and that's where Casper won the $12,000 top prize — and where bespectacled Bob Rosburg took second place and $6,000.

Casper at 27 is the youngest and least experienced player to win the open in recent years.

TERRIFIC PUTTING

During the four rounds, Casper used 115 putts in putting together rounds of 71-68-73-72—282. Regulation, on the basis of two to a green, is 144.

Scrambling out of traps and rough in the face of wintry gusts, Casper shot a one-under 74, four over par, which barely withstood the late challenges of Rosburg and Souchak.

Hogan, whose quest of a fifth open title faded with a 76 on the first round, and Snead, who has yet to win in 19 attempts, wound up tied with 297 totals, A stroke ahead of them were three others who couldn't produce the stiff low score they needed on the last day —Doug Ford, Ernie Vossler and Arnold Palmer.

Souchak and Claude Harmon got $3,650 each for a third-place tie.

Al Balding of Markham, Ont., tied for 31st position at 299 with two others and got $350. Balding shot 77-74-75-73.

Peter Jones Wins N.E. Golf Tourney

Carding a low gross of 76, Peter Jones won the J. C. R. Pen-hard Trophy from a field of 150 at the annual spring golf tournament of the Northern Electric Co. Ltd.

The tournament was played on Saturday over the fine course of the Cobourg Golf and Country Club.

Mike Acquafredde was two strokes over Jones for second low gross with Val Smith third with 80 and Davy Jones next with an 81.

Alex Ross won the low net honors with a 61 and won the St. E. Chris' Beach Trophy. Following Ross were Don Barclay (63), Bud Phipps (63) and Ray Nolan (63). Helen Marsh took the ladies division low gross carding a 88. In order came M. Garrow, L. Gadsden and Davy Jones next with a 91.

A door prize was won by Real Benoit.

A post-tournament smorgasbord dinner was enjoyed by the field with presentations made to the various winners.

G. L. Ross was appointed chairman of the 1959-60 committee and will be assisted by F. Fisher and Peter Jones. L. Gladney and M. Garrow will look after the ladies division.

Lorne Fitzpatrick and Ken McLaren hurried for the Bobcats, to-gged for ten hits while fanning three and walking five between them. Jim McLeod batted but left in favor of Dave Feeney in the sixth for Chris' They were tagged for 14 hits, whiffing four and passing eight.

Sword Dancer Wins Belmont Arcaro Injured, Mount Dead

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Gritty little Sword Dancer, who won a thrill-packed $145,500 Belmont Stakes that left jockey Eddie Arcaro in hospital and his mount dead, is going to have a vacation.

"Before the race we decided to rest him up some hell or high water," said Elliott Burch, the young trainer who trains Sword Dancer for the Brookmeade Stable of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane of Virginia and New York.

"He's had a hard campaign, since the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park, the rough Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Metropolitan Handicap, and now the Belmont. He is temporarily on the shelf. He's alright, but these hard races have to take their toll."

Burch expressed sorrow for the accident which left the King Ranch's Black Hills and Arcaro in the bend approaching the turn for home in the mile-and-a-half race. The colt broke a leg, throwing Arcaro into the mud unconscious. Lake Erie, another horse in the race, fell over them but jockey Walter Blum was unhurt.

Arcaro still was in a hospital today, recovering from a concussion, sprained neck muscles, contusions of the left shoulder and numerous bruises.

Arcaro said he didn't figure to be in the hospital more than a few days.

"There's nothing broken. I'm still a bit dizzy but as soon as that goes away, I'll be ready to ride again."

Arcaro still is unable to explain what happened.

"Something must have been hurting him because he was trying to lug in all the way. He had plenty of rein but he wasn't running free. All the time I was moving up in the back stretch I was fighting to keep him from lugging in. Then, when Bagdad went out a bit from the rail and Manassa Mauler was tiring, there was a spot between them. I set him down and headed for the hole. That's when it happened. He took a couple of stumbling steps and went down."

Bagdad took the lead on the turn but was eventually the runner-up by three quarters of a length. Royal Orbit was third.

Trainer Joe Dunn said Bagdad would start in the $100,000 Hollywood Derby June 27 against Sword Dancer out in the Kentucky Derby, and Silver Spoon, who has been beat Tomy Lee in Saturday's Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Face Claims He's Lucky

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Elroy Face, the only major league pitcher to win 18 games this season, says he has had lots of help from his Pittsburgh Pirate teammates and plenty of luck.

The 31-year-old righthander, a relief pitcher for the Pirates, hasn't lost a game since May 24, 1958. Since then he has been given credit for 15 victories and 22 saves.

Hey Face says up his 10th victory of the season Sunday when he came on in the eighth inning to stop Los Angeles Dodgers. The Pirates won 6-2.

Face hasn't started a game since 1957.

"I'm well satisfied to stay a relief pitcher," he said. He has pitched 99 1-3 innings in relief this year. He has fanned 36 batters, issued only seven bases on balls and allowed but two home runs. He has a 1.13 earned run average.

What's his formula for winning games?

"I really don't know what it is. All I know is I pitch to win. My control has been pretty good and I've been lucky."

District Soccer Leagues Results

Batawa scored a 3-0 victory over the RCAF on the latter's field Saturday afternoon in one of two Eastern Ontario Football League fixtures played over the weekend.

In another game at Kingston the Kingston City squad defeated the Dynamos 3-0.

Batawa took a 2-0 lead at half time in their win in a game that was hampered by winds too high to make for good soccer. Two players, Kovacs of Batawa and Jackson of RCAF, were ejected from the game for rough play. They will be unable to play again until their case is brought before the league.

Vajda and Kusters had a goal each for Batawa. Monks, defenceman for RCAF, put the third goal into his own net by accident.

Champions Set Torrid Pace

CLARKSON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Mathew Stewart Streit of Toronto and Henry Martell of Edmonton set a torrid pace for duffers who competed in National Golf Week which wound up Sunday.

Mrs. Streit toured Royal and Ancient course in St. Andrew's, Scotland, to post a 75 for women golfers to shoot at.

Martell put together a 34 and a 31 for a sensational six-under-par 65 at Highland golf course for the male shot-smiths to match.

The totals were announced by C. E. (Bobbie) Robinson of the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

Golfers, with the advantage of their handicaps, were to try to match or beat Marlene's and Martell's scores on their home courses across the country.

Proceeds of National Golf Week go to the development of junior golfers.

Hockey Leafs Buy Control Of Rochester

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League have purchased control of an American Hockey League club from Montreal Canadiens.

Stafford Smythe, chairman of the Leafs' hockey committee, said Sunday night the board of directors of Maple Leaf Gardens have reached agreement with Canadiens for control of 55 per cent of the stock in Rochester Americans.

Smythe declined to disclose financial terms but said Canadiens will continue to help stock the Rochester team.

Leafs and Canadiens had been partners in providing players for the Rochester team for the last few years and each organization owned 22½ per cent of the stock. Club operations, however, were handled by Montreal and Canadiens' recruits were given priority in the development program. Rochester citizens own the remaining stock.

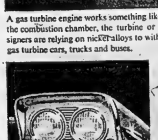
Imagine driving a gas turbine car like this!



In the not too distant future, you may be seeing gas turbine cars, trucks and buses. They're under development . . . and Inco Nickel is helping make them a reality.

Your car of the future will have smooth power to spare—yet the engine will be smaller and lighter. It will run on lower grade fuels like kerosene. But the engine will be hot—jet hot! That's where Inco Nickel comes in. At temperatures in the 1600°F. range, ordinary metals aren't good enough. Special heat-resisting nickel alloys are needed to take this blistering punishment . . . to withstand stress, corrosion and fatigue at high temperatures. And Inco research is helping develop just such alloys.

Nickel, of course, is also used for the heavy protective plating on bumpers, grilles and trim, and nickel-containing stainless steel for wheel covers. It goes into the strong, durable alloy steels that make the gears and shafts of cars and trucks equal to gruelling wear on the road. In your present car and your car of the future—you can rely on quality Inco Nickel to give you dependable service.

A gas turbine engine works something like a windmill. Spun by hot gases from the combustion chamber, the turbine or "windmill" powers the turbocar. Designers are relying on nickel alloys to withstand the high temperatures of future gas turbine cars, trucks and buses.

Bright, durable nickel-chromium plating provides a protective coating that gives lasting beauty in depth to new car trim.

Nickel imparts strength and toughness to steel. Nickel alloy steels used for car and truck parts withstand severe use and abuse.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Belleville bludgeons, both softball and baseball, were weaker than New Year resolutions, on faraway pastures and home diamonds on Saturday night.

Coboury's personality pitcher, "Sleepy" Dawe had a field day before a large crowd of hometown fans. The mop-topped flinger tossed a no-hitter against a crew of Point Anne's Full Letters who looked as impotent as a couple of shy mosquiton attacking a bald elephant.

Up at the CNRA Park, Cuffer Noakes' beardless baseball youngsters couldn't do much with the slants of a couple of Foxboro hurlers, and took their first defeat of the season by a 6-4 score.

In Cobourg, "Sleepy", who never lets victory or defeat ruffle consistently prone hackles, served the impotency of the Ox Point attack after the first inning or two. He figured if they couldn't hit straight ones, they couldn't connect with teasers, so why waste the muscles of his eating arm. So he banged the most of 'em down the groove, whiffing an even ten and issuing nary a walk.

The Ox Pointers, not to be outdone by any hometown courtesy, went out to prove they could be gentlemen in defeat as well as victory. They were versatile, too. They proved this, to the delight of the hometown fans and the secret glee of "Sleepy" and his Cobourgers, by juggling the ball at least seven times, thereby giving the scorer writer's cramp, the umpires headaches, and the home-team a few extra numerals on the scoreboard.

But all this was not any bromide for big Al Carkner. The Cobourg war clubs gave him a big welcome, blasting out nine hits while he struck out six. However, Al has feelings his mates, the Ox Point nine, were feeling lonely, and believing a little fraternizing with the enemy now and then is good for the common cause, sent five of them down to first base by merely throwing four balls wide of the plate.

However, not taking any credit from Dawe's "dozer" ball-heaving, the Ox Pointers looked painfully inept all-round. But like any other team, they're entitled to get one bad one off their chest in the course of a season. They'd better round into something like their old championship form by Saturday, for that is the day Marse Ray Judd and his Juddiboys from Lakefield are to return exhibition visit to Point Anne. The Pointers will need their support sabres sharp when Pat Maracle and the Judd wizard cross rapiers in another of the mound duels for which thingsy of Judd crackers are known.

While "Sleepy" and his Cobourg cohorts were giving the Pointers their come-uppance in Cobourg, Cuffer Noakes' crack little crew of baseball juniors were getting their first lumps of the season at the hands of the veteran South Hastings Leaguers from Foxboro.

Noakey's juniors, who have been playing more or less sensational ball all season, went into action with a record of four wins and one tie, by virtue of good pitching, stout hitting and fine fielding.

But Saturday night they loosened their tent pegs just enough for the Foxboro crew to score all their six runs in one inning, enough to win the ball game. Four hits, two walks and an error told the story. After that the kids went back into their baseball shell and held the village crew hitless and scoreless over the rest of the route.

But while they were perfect defensively, their offensive play was not up to par. They failed to fathom the slants of Jack Stewart for eight innings, getting only two singles for one run up to that point. Then one of those strategic quirks of baseball popped up.

Stewart walked the first two batters, then retired the next pair. Moe Hunter slashed out a three-run homer, and the Foxboro board of stratgy called a meeting. They decided to relieve Stewart with another hurlery and he promptly filled the sacks with walks. The board met again, and Stewart was recalled. He struck out the next batter to put out the fire and win the ball game.

The defeat won't hurt Noakes' nippers one iota. A setback now and then puts the best teams in the world back on edge. A long string of consecutive victories are prone to give any club, especially in the minor brackets, the mistaken idea they are invincible. Not that the juniors have been suffering from such a virus, far from it. They appear to be one of the best junior squads tacked together in this baseball village in some time and their victories to date have been well earned without a touch of flukiness or accident. They should go quite a distance in the OBA playdowns.

But they can be beaten and probably will be beaten again. It won't hurt them. The Cuffer will agree with that. Win or lose they are getting valuable—experience in the South Hastings Baseball League against clubs that are improving with each time out. They may not win the league championship, but in the losing they will have gained something just as important — the know-how and experience that will fit them for the tough grind down the playground trail.

Tigers' Maxwell Yankee Nemesis; Face Top Hurler

Detroit Whips Champs Twice To Move Into Third Place; Bucs' Reliefer Has 10-0 Mark

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

The woods are full of Yankee-killers these days. Men like Tito Francona, Gene Woodling, Frank Lary, Don Mossi . . . But the greatest of them all is Charley Maxwell of Detroit Tigers.

Maxwell has hit 14 home runs this year, seven against the Yankees. Against the rest of the league he is hitting .209. Against New York he is batting .390. Putting them together you have a man batting .250 with 45 hits and 42 runs batted in, 18 of them against New York.

"We keep this man working," moans Casey Stengel.

THREE-RUN HOMER

Maxwell did it again Sunday. Whitey Ford was rolling along with a four-hit shutout. He had a 2-0 lead with two out in the eighth. Two singles in a row and then boom . . . Maxwell hit a drive into the first row of the third deck in right field. That did it. 3-2. Just to rub it in, the winner was Frank Lary who had just left the game for a pinch hitter.

It was Maxwell's ground-rule double that drove in the first run of the second game when the Tigers knocked out Duke Maas in a four-run first inning. They went on to sweep the double-header 5-2, their 10th win in place.

Chicago clung to the American League lead by a half game. The White Sox came from behind twice to beat Baltimore 9-6 and 3-2 in 10 innings, dropping the Orioles into fourth place. Cleveland got right on Chicago's heels by beating Washington twice, 4-2 and 12-6 with Minnie Minoso driving in nine runs. Boston's Jerry Casale and Kansas City's Joe Nuxhall each won their first victory. Their second game was a 5-4 victory for Casale and Nuxhall gave up a run in the ninth inning for his second save in four outs for St. Louis in a 7-0 romp over Cincinnati. Pittsburgh downed Los Angeles 5-2 on Don Hoak's two-run single with the bases loaded in the eighth. Saturday night, a seventh-inning pinch-hit sacrifice fly by Willie Mays gave San Francisco a 2-1 victory over Philadelphia.

LARIVE LOSES

Pittsburgh hung a defeat on Los Angeles relief man Clem Labine in Sunday's opener, breaking through for three runs in the eighth. Stuart's two-run homer in the first started the veteran Erskine on the way to an early shower in the finale.

Giant errors by Ed Bressoud in the first and Daryl Spencer in the second, plus Freese's clouting, helped Humberto Robinson and Elroy Face subdue the Phils. Roberts struck out 10 men.

Drott, a 15-game winning rookie in 1957, showed his old form for

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last-place Toronto Maple Leafs have shaken their weekslong slump in the International League, thanks to the Wilsons—Archie and Bob.

Columbus Jets and Rochester Red Wings split a twin bill, Columbus taking the nightcap 3-2 after losing 13-5. Montreal Royals took a pair from Miami Marlins 7-2 and 2-1.

Or. Saturday the Marlins overpowered the Royals 10-2, Richmond beat Buffalo 5-3, Columbus defeated Rochester 8-2 and Havana beat Toronto 9-4.

Bob had a double and three singles as Mike Cuellar lost his fourth in eight decisions, dropping to 7-6.

Archie had 4-for-4 in the nightcap including a home run and four runs batted in. George Susce got his first triple in the eighth and Pete Carrillo (6-5) lost.

11 HOMERS IN DAY

Fourteen home runs were hit in Buffalo's park and Richmond's trio in the first game set a club record. The Virginians' total of nine equalled the most by either club except at Buffalo.

The Vero Beach Johnson had three for the afternoon, two in the first game as Buffalo came from a 6-0 deficit with a three-run sixth and seventh inning to give Vern Johnson his first victory. Johnny James (3-3) lost.

Hellever Glen Cox (2-0) won the second game for Richmond with a three-run homer in the final inning while Warren Hacker (4-4) lost in relief. Cox also had a pinchhit homer in the opener.

HOME RUN ASSAULT

Wally Shannon, Chuck Essegian, Gene Green and George Wilson homered in the first game for Rochester as the Red Wings built up a 13-0 lead. Carl Braun-ing (8-3) won and Jim Heddon (9-4) lost. Dick Lines (5-3) took the second for Columbus, with Ken Hamlin's two-run homer the difference. Howie Nunn (0-1) lost.

Four - hitters by Ed Bakowski (5-5) and Tom LaSorda (7-2) did the job on Miami. Mickey Mc-Dermott (4-4) and Vito Valentinetti (1-2) were the losers.

Cobourg Whips Listless Pointers, 'Sleepy' Dawe Flips 9-1 No-Hitter

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Jim "Sleepy" Dawe pitched a no-hitter for Cobourg Saturday third and Point Anne Cementnen came up with one of their finest performances in years as the Merchants tightened their grip on first place in the Bay-Rid 2 softball league with a 9-1 drubbing of the Cementmen.

The Merchants scored a lead in the first and Point Anne scored their unearned marker in the third to make it close for a while. Then the Cementmen, who played a listless game of ball from the start, fell apart completely and the Merchants scored freely to make it 9-1.

Dawe not only came up with the loop's first no-hitter of the year but also led his club at bat with three hits and a walk in five attempts. He had the league's only no-hit game last season over the Bobcats.

The strong-armed right-hander faced only 28 men, in the nine-inning affair. He struck out eight, walked three and did not strikeout victims and did not walk a man.

The Cementmen scored their lone run in the third when they had their only two base runners, both on errors. O'Brien muffed Elliott's ground ball to third with one man out. Carkner dropped a bunt in front of the plate and was safe on Elliott's throwing error as Jim Hart dropped the throw to first base. Carkner trotted to second on the next pitch and was thrown out with Elliott racing home on the play.

Carkner was credited with a hit on his bunt at first when it appeared that umpire Neil Cane had called him safe before Hart dropped the ball. But the decision was changed to an error later when Cane stated that Carkner would have been called out had Hart handled the throw cleanly. The Cementmen had nothing else even close to that as Doug Hull's fly to left in the seventh was the lone ball hit out of the infield.

Toe Merchants gathered nine hits off Al Carbert's slants but only three earned runs as the Cementmen committed seven errors to allow the last six mark-

Bowling Notes

It was cold and windy but the elements did not detract from the excellent bowling that was witnessed on Saturday at the local greens when the annual Hyde trophy for mixed doubles was played. There were 32 rinks on hand and which included Trenton, Kingston, Madoc, Campbellford and Belleville.

The greens were in excellent condition, the bowling was exceptionally keen and the hospitality all that could be desired. The prizes, and they were beautiful, were provided by the sponsors of the tournament, C. L. Hyde and Sons. They were all the electrical variety and included vacuums, lights of all description, door bells and toasters.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fuller of Trenton had the high three-game score of 61 and took home the trophy. Mr. Fuller scored the floor sweeper, while Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Watkins of the Belleville rinks were a close second with 54 and a plus five. In third place were Miss Margaret Fairbairn and William Hazzard with 53 points and fourth was Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McQuerquodale of Kingston with 52 plus one.

Walter Cable and Mrs. Mary Edney of Kingston won the two-game event with 49 plus a count of two. The no-game high was won by Harold Mathieson and Mrs. H. Scott of Campbellford.

The next district tournament will be in Stirling on Wednesday when the mixed triples will be played, while on Saturday the Canada Packers' trophy for men's doubles will be played at Campbellford. Anyone wishing to enter this tourney should get in touch with Burt Taylor at Campbellford, for this tourney always draws a record entry.

The women enjoyed an excellent afternoon of bowling on Thursday last. Mrs. C. L. Hyde and Mrs. Myrle Smith won the high score for the afternoon while Mrs. H. Putnam, Mrs. M. Bryan and Mrs. C. Argue as skip were second. Mrs. Grace Clapp and Miss Hilnes Smith was third while Mrs. B. Hunter, Mrs. M. Trudeau and Mrs. Gordon Vince were fourth.

The bridge winners were Mrs. George A. Lee and Mrs. Timmerman. The tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. J. B. Doyle, Mrs. Bram Humphreys, Mrs. Joe Legault and Mrs. Reta Lloyd.

USED CAR FACTS

"OIL CAN BE DANGEROUS"

Grease and oil are absolutely essential for the proper functioning of the automobile . . . provided they are confined to where they are needed.

Take the rear axle for example. By removing the hub cap and examining the axle shaft nut you will easily spot any leaking oil. Sooner or later this oil will find its way to the brake lining — which is a dangerous condition. It's inexpensive to repair if corrected in time before a brake relining job is needed as well.

You can trus ta car from KEN PINDER LTD., 14 9Front St. for we are more interested in earning a customer's confidence than of merely gaining his dollars. We will never sacrifice our integrity and reputation for the sake of a sale. Dial WO 2-8408.

At the Belle

"Killmanjaro" on sale, one of Two Action Feaures now on exhibition.

With Gregory Peck, Susan Hayward, Academy Award winner as the Year's Best actress and Ava Gardner in the starring roles, Twentieth Century-Fox's acclaimed production of Ernest Hemingway's "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", begins today at the Belle Theatre.

Filmed in brilliant color by Technicolor amidst European and African locales, the Darryl F. Zanuck production narrates the story of a brilliant novelist and big game hunter who reviews his life and loves while awaiting death in a remote corner of civilization.

Directed by Henry King, the film features Hildegarde Neff, Leo G. Carroll, Torin Thatcher and Helen Stanley. This feature shown at 3.00 and 9.10 p.m.

Warner Stevens is the companion in the Action Feature Today at the Belle Theatre. Produced at the same studio where Twentieth-Fox's "The Inn of the Sixth Happiness" was filmed.

The story tells of an attempt against the life of Lom, who plays a Latin American dictator, patient at a Canadian hospital where he undergoes a delicate brain operation. Lom's would-be assassin involves both Todd and Miss Drake, staff doctors in the plot.

The fast-paced picture comes to a gripping climax following a thrilling gunfight in the hospital, a climax as unexpected and unusual that it takes audiences by complete surprise. This feature runs from 1.20 and 7.30 p.m.

The two feature programs "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", and "Intent to Kill" begin today at the Belle Theatre. Matinee performances begin at 1.30. One complete show will be presented in the evening beginning at 7.30.

Foxboro Clusters 6 Runs in Third To Hand Belleville First Defeat

Scoring all their runs in one inning, Foxboro clipped the Belleville Juniors' unbeaten string on Saturday night, defeating them 6-4 in a South Hastings Baseball League game at the C.O.R.A. Park.

A double, three singles, an error and three walks in the third inning accounted for Foxboro's six runs and the Juniors' downfall. The youngsters' record now stands at four wins, one tie and one defeat.

Cuffer Noaker' kids scored one run in the fourth and tagged a belated rally in the eighth when Moe Hunter's three-ply four-bagger was accounted for the rest of the runs. The youngsters benefiting by three straight walks, had the bases loaded with two out and the score 6-4 in the last inning but Jack Stewart struck Barry Mavety out to retire the side and win the ball game.

Billy Latchford started on the mound for the Juniors but was relieved in the disastrous third after allowing two hits and three runs. Larry Soden took over and was nicked for a brace and three more runs to end the parade. He pitched scoreless no-hit baseball over the rest of the route.

Stewart tossed two-hit baseball until the eighth when the Juniors started their rally. He allowed one hit, Hunter's three-run homer. Ralph Plane came in and filled the bases with walks. Stewart was recalled and put out the fire.

The Juniors scored their single run in the fourth when Hunter walked, stole second and galloped home on Glen Clarke's single to centre.

"Moe" Molina's double and single, circles by Glen Clarke, Cooper, three walks and a bobble sent six Foxboro runs across the plate in the third.

Glen Clarke with two and "Moe" Hunter's homer were the Belleville hitters. Molina's double and single and singles by Jerry Mann, "Moe" Chumbley and Ian Cooper were the Foxboro clouts.

The teams: Foxboro — Mann, Chumbley, Robinson, Reynolds, Keelly, Bolander, Stewart, Molina, Cooper, Plane.

Belleville—Lloyd, Follwell, St. Louis, Hunter, Moxam, Clarke, Soden, Kerruish. Mavety, Latchford, Stewart.

Ellington Plays Jazz Score For 'Anatomy of a Murder'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Here's something new in movie scores —one composed by Duke Ellington and played by his famous band.

Background music has featured ballads (High Noon), choruses (Lady in the Lake), jazz (I Want to Live) and zithers (The Third Man). Always searching for something new, producer-director Otto Preminger assigned the Duke to compose and play a jazz score for Anatomy of a Murder.

It was a swift job. The film was completed on location in Michigan a month ago. It is being previewed this week. Ellington and his band recorded the score in three days, while normal films require weeks.

I caught up with the jazz great on his final day here and found him stimulated by the experience.

"It's a real thrill to explore another facet of a career," he said. "I had never done anything like this.

"I read the script in January and ideas started coming to me. Then I visited the company in Michigan for three weeks and that's when I began to get the feel of it. I even acted the role of a roadhouse operator and jazz man and James Stewart and I played a duet on the piano.

"The score runs the gamut, from Dixieland on up the scale—yes, even some progressive. I used only my band for the recording."

The Duke is 60, but he appears unchanged from the days when he was bringing sophistication to jazz. His secret seems to be strenuous life as in the early days of his band.

"I pay rent on an apartment in New York, but I seldom see it," he said. "We're working 32 weeks a year.

"I like it that way. Supposing I worked only six months a year. Then I'd have to reorganize the band, I'd have new players and I wouldn't know their capabilities. The way it is now, I know what each man can do."

The Quinte Reports

News of Your Local Sea Cadet Corps

The Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte" has now settled down into its summer schedule. Regular Tuesday and Thursday evening parades have been suspended until September with the exception of regular rifle practice and competition shooting on Tuesday evenings at the Armouries. Saturday afternoons have also been set aside for target practice for those cadets who wish to attend.

Several of the "Quinte's" marksmen have already started shooting their targets for the Dominion Marksmen awards, and it is expected that more of the qualified cadets will be encouraged in shooting for those awards in the very near future. Special practice sessions for Lee Enfield rifles are being arranged for shooting the Inter-national Sea Cadet Marksman Competition which also be starting shortly. The prize for the top team in the Commonwealth will be the Duke of Edinborough's Bell trophy.

The Sea Cadet barracks will be open each Sunday afternoon from 2.00 o'clock until around 4.00 o'clock for sailing and boating.

Repairs are also to be made to the power result there have been and it is hoped that vessel will shortly be ready for launching.

Several inter-corps meets and church parades will be evening up during the summer months. Arrangements for convenient dates are presently being made with the Trenton and the Port Hope corps for round-robin church parades. It is also expected that arrangements will be made with the Picton corps there for some engagements. In August a large inter-corps event, to include all Sea Cadet corps within the area, is being planned for Belleville.

NAVY LEAGUE CADETS

Friday evening last, Lt. Jack Donovan, commanding officer of the RCSCC "Quinte" inspected the Navy Cadet Corps "Quinte" on the occasion of their first annual Inspection since their re-organization.

This corps has been organized for the training of boys between the ages of 12 and 14 years in seamanship and such subjects pertinent to naval matters. It provides an excellent chance for younger boys to obtain useful experience and know — how before entering the Sea Cadets. Indicative of the excellent instruction which these cadets are receiving from their officers is the record of one who recently entered the Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte", wrote his examination for Able Cadet rating and passed at the head of a group of almost 20 other cadets who were also writing.

It is expected that there will be more such graduates from the Navy League Cadets in the near future. These boys meet on Friday evenings in the Sea Cadet barracks on South Front Street at about 7.15 p.m.

SEA CADET DANCE

The Women's Auxiliary will be sponsoring a dance for the Sea Cadets of the Quinte on July 3rd at the Armouries. Featured there will be Ted Curl and his Curlmen of CKWS-TV Dance Party fame. It is expected that there will be a large turn - out for this event.

Fraser Family Holds First Reunion at Park

TWEED — The first reunion of the Fraser family, held Sunday in Tweed Memorial Park, was a success. Approximately 170 attended the dinner served by the Tweed Rebekah Lodge.

Those having birthdays on Sunday were Mr. Bert Noonan of Oakville and Mr. Ollie Cronwell of Toronto. Mrs. Ingwald Reid of Ruby Lake, Ont., and Steven of Minneapolis, Minnesota, were from the farthest distance. Other visitors were from Ottawa, Thomas, Fort Erie, Alexandria, Oakville, Port Credit, Mimico, Toronto, Lindsay, Belleville, Madoc and Tweed.

During the dinner hour Mrs. Edith Noonan of Port Erie and Mrs. Maude Jones of Belleville were presented with beautiful leather purses on behalf of the visitors by a niece, Mrs. Margaret (Peter) Hewlett of Toronto. Mr. Gordon Hewlett presented Mrs. Russell Sexsmith of Tweed with a straw tote bag for her efforts in organizing this reunion.

Mr. Raymond Polley, of St. Thomas, expressed thanks on behalf of the visitors, to Mrs. Ruth Jardine, convener of the dinner, and her staff which included Grace Watters, Ethel Bateman, Myrtle Cumming, Minnie Eaton, Dorothy Fisher and Hazel Thompson.

During the afternoon about 20 first cousins of Mrs. Norman and Mrs. Jones arrived and complete a wonderful day reminiscing while the children enjoyed the water and playground facilities.

For many of the visitors it was the first time they had been in Tweed and were taken with the park and the village that it was decided to hold the next reunion at the same place with a more complete program.

Some Conclusions

Change in U.S. Policy Urged

By Walter L. Gordon

(Chairman of the Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects)

(Article II)

In concluding this series of articles I propose to review some simple facts and impressions and then to draw some conclusions from them. To begin with, it will be wise for Westerners to remember that China has always had an authoritarian form of government. Democracy as we understand it is unknown in China. She has only just emerged from feudalism. Family ties in China have always been extraordinarily close and strong, too strong perhaps. Prior to the revolution other loyalties and responsibilities, national or otherwise, (except that of the Mandarins to the Emperor) had little meaning.

The leaders of the present Government have fought long and hard for their principles. They seem to believe completely that Communism as evolved and practised by the Chinese is the only way to raise the living standards of the masses. They and the 30 million members of the party seem dedicated, hard-working, austere, puritan and completely orthodox. There is no place for non-conformism.

The Communist leaders have been very astute in their policies, more so than the Russians were after their revolution. And most people seem to agree that the present regime is not at all likely to be overthrown. It is doing things, its propaganda is effective, and its members are incorruptible. True, it is trying to change the way of Chinese life radically and very quickly after thousands of years of sameness. But it seems to be succeeding. Many older people and people who had property or privilege before the revolution cannot hope to like what is happening. But the younger people are being brought up differently. They will know no other way of life. And almost certainly they will support the government. Quite apart from this, all Chinese are proud of their country's re-emergence as a world power, be they communists or otherwise.

Communism is a creed and way of life that is anathema to most people who are fortunate to live in Canada and other countries of the West where individual rights and freedoms are accepted principle and a fundamental part of our existence. There is no place in our countries for Communism with its emphasis and belief in the collective good and with its disregard for individual personality. But Communism is now the accepted way of life for a large proportion of the people of the world. Its leaders in China, at any rate, believe in this system as religious leaders in Europe during the Middle Ages believed in their interpretation of Christianity. We are not likely to convert them to our way of thinking — any more for that matter than they have anything for us.

CHINESE SELF-CENTRED

Communism, as practised by the Chinese, can be compared, as I have intimated, only with an all-embracing religious faith that is absolute and accepts no doubts or questions. Perhaps it could develop into a fighting, proselytizing faith some day when the rehabilitation of the country has been advanced considerably. Who knows?

However, China and the Chinese are extraordinarily self-centred. Historically they have had no real interest in the world at large. China is "the world" to most Chinese or so it seems. At present they express their gratitude to the Soviet Union on every possible occasion, and well they might. But when they become self-sufficient, as assuredly they will do, it will not be too surprising if their policies become increasingly self-centred, increasingly concerned with the Chinese points of view of things without too much regard for those of others, even perhaps for those of the Soviet's.

There are some people who question whether China will be able to overcome her difficulties in the future, the most important of which may well be the problem of feeding an ever-growing population. Conceivably the peasants may become disenchanted with the communist system. It is possible that conflicts will develop within the party, between the so-called theoreticians and the so-called practical or administrative wing as some people say happened late in 1956. But I doubt if any Westerner's opinion in these matters is worth much. Certainly it would be foolish to bank on any such developments. It would be equally foolish for the West to overestimate the strength and power of China at the present time. Nevertheless as industrialization progresses, it seems probable to me that China will emerge as one of the great and powerful nations of the world. And this might happen somewhat sooner than some of us may care to think.

Five years ago I returned from a two months' visit to the Far East with the firm conviction that United States policy regarding Communist China was wrong and hopeless:: I still think so. It is true the U.S. is more committed to this policy now than she was in 1954. But it is true also that China is much stronger and more confident than she then was.

POLICY COULD CAUSE TROUBLE

One knows the arguments, so eloquently expressed on occasion by the late John Foster Dulles, the U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs about the effect in other Asian countries if the U.S. were to modify her support of Chiang-Kai shek and recognize Red China. There is considerable validity to this point of view. But 650 million people cannot be kept beyond the pale forever. Sooner or later it is to be hoped in the present policy of the U.S. will be defeated or the U.S. will have to go to war in order to preserve it.

It may be that rather than make any compromise, some Americans and some Canadians, for that matter, would prefer a "holy war" between the righteous West and the evil powers of Communism even if in this nuclear age this meant the end of all we stand for and have accomplished. If so, I am not one of them.

People ask what, in these circumstances, should Canada's policy be? Should we recognize Red China? This question is not an easy one to answer. In the first place recognition by itself would be meaningless unless we were prepared to break off all connections with Taiwan; to work for the acceptance of Red China in the United Nations; and perhaps of most importance to trade with her on a full scale basis.

From time to time China has expressed a wish to purchase such things as nickel, aluminum, copper, Ford trucks and Chrysler engines from Canada. Except for a small quantity of nickel, we have not thus far found it convenient to export such materials to her. This is not quite so surprising as it may appear to be upon the surface. A large part of the business of the companies producing the materials referred to is made up of exports to the United States. This business might be seriously jeopardized with consequent effects upon employment in this country if the companies in question were to start exporting to Red China. And in nearly every case these companies are either controlled by U.S. parent companies or have U.S. citizens among their directors. It would be difficult if not impossible for such companies or such directors to permit exports to Red China without contravening U.S. laws.

This sort of thing may irritate Canadians. But in the past we have shown no real disposition to interfere with such arrangements. But as I have suggested the consequences of so doing could be serious for a relatively small nation with a population of only 17 million people.

LIMITED TRADE

Furthermore, if we were able to establish a worthwhile export business with Red China on any kind of a continuing basis which is at least problematical, we would have to be prepared to accept payment in the form of imports from that country. What has China got to offer on any scale that is of interest to Canadians? She has certain food products like tea, nuts and the prawns that have attracted so much attention lately, a few consumer goods like radios and some textile lines. But these items would not add up to a great deal in total even if we were prepared to remove the present threat of dumping duties being applied to any importer of Chinese goods. In the long run any export trade we might be able to develop with Red China would be limited by the amount of our imports from that country.

Such important commercial considerations must of necessity have an important bearing upon Canada's policy in regard to recognition. However, in my opinion, those considerations need not inhibit us from urging and continuing to urge the United States to modify and eventually to change her present policy in the Far East. There may be one billion Chinese in existence by 1960. Sooner or later the West will have to acknowledge their existence.

This concludes the eleven articles by Mr. Gordon.

35 Structures Burn At Lanark, $2,000,000 Loss

150 Persons Homeless, May Not Rebuild Town

LANARK (CP) — Fire burned the heart out of this large village Monday.

Close-swept close skeletons of buildings are all that remain along Lanark's main business street. Thirty-five structures were destroyed. There were no major injuries. Some 150 persons were homeless.

Reeve Bob Dowdall, who operates Campbell Sash and Door factory where the fire started in a pile of shavings from unestablished cause, said the village may never recover from the $2,000,000 loss.

DONATIONS FLOW IN

Ontario government officials flew in today to discuss reestablishment. Reeve Dowdall said financial help is expected from the province, but he did not know how much. Donations from individuals and firms were flowing in rapidly and—a disaster fund is being set up.

Lanark was a neat little community of 900 on the Clyde River 35 miles southwest of Ottawa.

While gusting to 55 miles an hour swept flames from the sash and door factory at the north end of George Street, the main artery downward on both sides of the street.

Lanark volunteer fire brigade's pumper was ineffective as flames swept within two hours to the end of the business district, burning their hoses in the street.

Volunteers and weeping women in aprons were forced to stand back helplessly until fire apparatus arrived from eight area communities as far away as Ottawa began to arrive.

Flames were brought in check after 4½ hours as 16 pump trucks drew water from the Clyde River.

An emergency meeting Monday night was called by Lanark civil defence officials on the scene organized provision of food and accommodation for the homeless and police protection of the affected area to prevent looting and to keep ruins intact for

Constable, Shot 3 Times, Breaks Up Robbery

MONTREAL (CP) — A police constable was shot three times Monday as he broke up an attempted bank robbery in the west end.

Two suspects were wounded in a gun battle in which the would-be robbers fired seven shots to 37 by police. Another policeman was grazed in the ankle by a bullet, but didn't notice it until he returned to his station.

A briefcase containing $30,000 cash, a .25-calibre revolver and a sawed-off .22-calibre rifle, capable of firing 10 shots from an attached clip, were recovered.

Constable Paul Jodoin, 30, was shot near the heart, in the abdomen and in the thigh. None of the bullets hit vital organs. Following an operation he was reported doing "very well."

HOLD FRENCHMEN

Police said they are holding two natives of France in connection with the robbery attempt, if they are Pierre Robin, 30, originally from Paris, who took a bullet in the thigh, and Ernest Gillet, 30, who got a bullet in the wrist, after he was shot through the abdomen.

Police said they are holding the two suspects on counts from Gillet.

Sergeant Cornelius Broden was slightly wounded in this exchange but didn't realize it until later.

Jodoin's partner Constable Denis Letrancois fired six shots at the men as they fled the bank by the front door. He was joined by two other crew cars who captured the men after an exchange of fire.

Sergeant Cornelius Broden was slightly wounded in this exchange but didn't realize it until later.

EXCHANGE SHOTS

Waiting until the by-standers were got of the way, Jodoin opened fire. The two men fired back and Jodoin fell.

Jodoin's partner Constable Denis Letrancois fired six shots at the men as they fled the bank by the front door. He was joined by two other crew cars who captured the men after an exchange of fire.

The bank was held up by two armed men who escaped with $30,000 in cash.

Long Returned To Mental Clinic

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Governor John Bell Williams of Louisiana was ordered back to his mental clinic for three week today—one night. He drove away from the Galveston courthouse yelling, "I'm still in jail, still in jail."

District Judge L. D. Godard ordered the week delay to allow time to study evidence through which the governor hopes to free himself and through which the Long family hopes to force hospital treatment on the 53-year-old governor.

"I believe in all fairness a little time in which to reflect and study this case is in order," said Judge Godard.

Judge Godard also postponed for one week a sanity hearing he was to have begun Wednesday. Probate Judge Hugh Gibson concurred after a conference.

CLOSE CALL

BRANTFORD (CP)—Two sisters in nearby Paris had a lucky escape Monday night when lightning struck their kitchen a few feet from where they were sitting. Miss Marion Marsh and her sister Mrs. S. M. McLay said they were stunned and unable to move from the table for several minutes.

THE WEATHER

SEAWAY PILOTS PLAN WALKOUT LATER IN WEEK

No Progress Made At Ottawa Meet

MONTREAL (CP)—A walkout by the pilots' union guide slipping through the St. Lawrence Seaway has been scheduled for later this week.

The pilots say their demands were unsympathetically received Monday at a meeting with representatives of the transport department and the Shipping Federation of Canada.

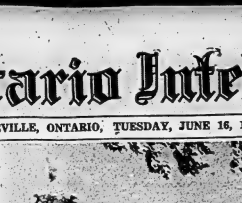
After that session, directors of the St. Lawrence - Kingston - Ottawa Pilots Corporation and the Montreal Harbor Pilots Association decided that a general pilots' meeting would be called Friday if some progress is not made before then to meet demands.

As Crown employees, the pilots have no legal right to strike. But all pilots must leave their ships if they quit, or their certificates would last indefinitely.

Such a walkout could disrupt navigation in the Great Lakes Australia through the seaway after the waterway is officially opened June 26.

NO PROGRESS MADE

Jacques Gauthier, secretary of both pilots' groups, said "absolutely nothing" was accomplished toward settlement of the dispute.



Mr. Saucier said the two federal representatives indicated some minor concessions might be made on the Cape Breton pilotage district, but they had given "the impression it would be very hard to give a decision right away."

Mr. Saucier said the dozen ship owners who attended the meeting had balked at paying overtime to pilots while the locks are being opened to shipping in April.

The pilots, paid a basic rate based on tonnage, have received $5 an hour for, time worked in excess of a 176 hour month. The owners decided at the meeting to give overtime only after 30 hours had been worked, Mr. Saucier said.

The pilots want to pay 10 apprentices from their own pockets to ease the work load, Mr. Saucier said. The department felt ten or three apprentices should be paid from public funds.

Other demands involved transportation costs when pilots travel to meet ships, separate fees for some harbors and ports, and establishment of a tariff for pilotage on the seaway.

FIRE DISASTER — Fire yesterday all but wiped out the business district of Lanark, Ont., about 35 miles southwest of Ottawa. Damage in the fire amounted to about $2,000,000.

Council Stops Payment of School Funds

COOKSVILLE, (CP) — Toronto Township Council Monday stopped payment of funds to South Peel Board of Education in a dispute over the use of the week-old bottle over the board's $1,000,000 debenture issue.

The council's action followed the board's request for a $400,000 advance on its 1959 budget by June 22. The money was to cover expenses between the present June 22-28 inclusive, the vessels' movements will be spaced out so that there is a minimum delay of by July 1.

It had been announced in the Commons that this agreement had been negotiated with the Soviet Union, but it is evident the worker-bound flotillas might cause disruption of communication with the other originally-proposed basin.

The new arrangement is that two vessels will be put through the locks daily on June 22, 23 and 24 and no more thereafter until July 1. Originally, they were to move through at a rate of up to six a day.

Should the locks not be required for commercial ships, the Soviet navy move would be accelerated accordingly.

Navy Squadron Not to Interfere With Traffic

OTTAWA (CP) — Passage of a Soviet flotilla of warships through the St. Lawrence Seaway will be slowed up to accommodate commercial traffic, External Affairs Minister Green said Monday.

Instead of going through the crowded Welland Canal between June 22-28 inclusive, the vessels' movements will be spaced out so that there is a minimum delay of by July 1.

Berserk Gunman Frees Half-Sister Held as Hostage and Surrenders

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — A mentally ill man held his pretty half-sister hostage while a posse of policemen ringed his house for 6½ hours with arms and walked out without gunfire today.

Adkins, 22, also released the half-sister, Mrs. Myra Irene Kennedy, 24, about hours.

The end of the tense vigil around the white frame house came after Mervin Bell, a lawyer, talked with Adkins for about 10 minutes explaining his surrender.

It came also as the force of officers were loading up for a blast with tear gas. Earlier the authorities say they felt Adkins was giving them a run-around and might keep the comunity in turmoil for hours.

Adkins demanded that Charleston Police Capt. Logan Carter be brought to the home, saying he would kill him and then shoot himself. But after talking again to Bell, Adkins changed his mind and called for police to come and get him.

Adkins kins up for assault and disorderly conduct.

At various times Monday night police and clergymen ventured to the door to speak to the gunman and try to reason with him. One cried softly that the "Lord will help you in your troubles."

"Maybe so," replied Adkins. But he didn't surrender.

Starving Man Held Captive For 10 Days by Two Gunmen

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (AP)—More than 300 heavily-armed police today pressed their search for killers in a swampy woodland after gunfire forced the escape of a Brandon a man they had held captive and starving for 10 days.

Targets of the manhunt were John Coyle, 23, and his brother, William, 21, both of Philadelphia. They were known to be armed with five pistols and three belts of ammunition.

Police got on the brothers' trail Monday after they robbed a high-way liquor store of $112 and fired a shot into the counter. The chase ended over a dirt road, at the end of which scores of shots were exchanged before the pair fled into the woods.

At police approached the car, Trooper Sedgwick, 49, of Philadelphia stumbled out — half-paralyzed — starved and exhausted.

He stammered out the story that the two men kidnapped him near his place of employment in Philadelphia June 6 and drove him as a captive in his own car to Massachusetts.

During the 10 days, he said, he was given only two bologna sandwiches, some marshmallows and sips of a soft drink.

During most of the time, he said, he was tied and gagged on the floor of the back portion of the car.

Sedgwick was captured and robbed of about $60 two days after Philadelphia patrolman William Kane, 30, was shot to death in a gun battle there.

The policemen who came to Sedgwick's assist in the manhunt were friends of the slain patrolman.

Suggests Adding Two Years To Present H.S. Course

BIGWIN INN, Ont., (CP) — School trustees should prepare for the impending overcrowding of universities by adding one or two years to the five-year high school course, Dr. W.P. Percival, former deputy education minister of Quebec, said Monday.

He predicted high schools in the 1960s will offer grade 11 and perhaps grade 12, while more junior colleges will be established in co - operation with school boards.

Dr. Percival told the convention of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association that greater emphasis would be of different lengths and adapted to the bright, average and slow learner. The school year would be lengthened to a minimum of 200 days from the present 195.

"If these features do not appear reasonable, we will be forced to go on in the 1970s and 1980s," he said.

S.A. Watson, curriculum superintendent of the Ontario department of education, said the province's education system requires a little of the bright pupil's time and too much from the dull.

Provincial school grade 13 exams have required a painful rigidity, he said.

He said his department is developing new courses in history and geography for grades eight to 10 and is reviewing mathematics courses and all science courses from grade seven to the bottom of the school system.

C. F. L. Bartlett, president of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association, said trustees must improve their public relations with watch - dog type city councillors.

Dr. Bartlett, a Queen's University professor, referred to participatory to city councillors who attempt to interfere with the budget and level of grants of education.

"As expensive buildings become necessary, as general living costs and teachers' salaries rise, education costs must also increase," he said.

H. G. Barrett, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, discussed the association of attempting to keep down teachers' salaries.

"That, whether you like it or not—and I don't like hurting some of your feelings—is the way the general membership of the federation feels," he said.

LIBERALS RENEW FIGHT AGAINST CHANGES IN ACT

Jobless Insurance Act Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberals have renewed their opposition to their tough committee fight against changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The Opposition says that Labor Minister Starr's bill—which had an extraordinarily rough ride from the Liberals in committee stage—will gut through the House of Commons by Wednesday.

Well - informed Liberals say they will attempt to score some points on the government in connection with the insurance bill—possibly taking up a full day—and then bow to the inevitable and see it pass rather than keep talking on it interminably.

The explosive measure came back to the Commons late Monday night after long and acrid sessions of the industrial relations committee.

FIGHT IMPOST BOOST

The bill's most unacceptable provision from the standpoint of the Liberals is one to increase from by an average 25 per cent the employer - employee contributions to the depleted unemployment insurance fund.

Liberal Alexis Caron of Hull, Que., appealed to Labor Minister Starr to withdraw the legislation and have a committee set up to study its implications.

This, he said, would enable the government to get the bill more in line with the views of Labor Mr. Caron suggested some sort of "special committee" of the Commons to look into the matter.

"It's so inspractable net the helps nobody," he declared.

JOBS NEEDED

Liberal W. H. McMillan of Welland also attacked increases in contributions and said that there would be no need for higher payments if the unemployment problem in Canada were cleaned up.

Gromyko Confers With Herter In Surprise Move

Western Powers Divided Over Parley at Summit

GENEVA (AP)—Foreign Minister Gromyko and State Secretary Herter met unexpectedly today for a surprise 90-minute session to discuss the final phase of the Big Four conference on Berlin.

There was immediate speculation among Western diplomats that Gromyko might have come with new proposal either on breaking the East-West deadlock on Berlin or on how to wind up the conference here.

Gromyko Herter met with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd amid reports that the Western powers were split over the problem of summit conference following up the foreign ministers' meeting.

Britain was reported urging United States and French consideration of accepting a Summit session with Russia even if the present meeting ends in failure.

GROMYKO TO HERTER

Gromyko went to Herter's villa. In another period of conference talks last week Herter had gone to Gromyko's.

In an 11th-hour attempt to hammer out an interim Berlin accord with the Soviet Union, Western officials said m e n a w h i l e, the Three Western foreign ministers sent Gromyko in Wednesday's private session a new document setting out their proposals for a possible East-West arrangement for the divided city.

Informants indicated the West's approach would set aside temporarily both Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's plan for turning West Berlin into a free city and Western plan for restoring East and West Berlin as a united city through a free election.

In general, informants said, the proposal put forward at the opening of approach the Allies would like to use—on condition the Russians agree—as the basis for a new general summit on the Western occupation of Berlin.

Lloyd's starting point was that any new or revised arrangement must protect the right of West Britain, the United States and France to keep the right of West Berliners in case of threat.

WON'T DEGRADE

They won't cannot give up, whittle down or derogate from our rights or from our juridical position," Lloyd said. "But it is not beyond the wit of man to devise ways to implement this."

The British minister also said the Western Gromyko nor the West had said the last word on the possibility of an accord at the conference.

It might be that a very simple agreement could be reached in the near—one not mentioning rights at all but instead setting a right of access to Berlin and improvements if the unemployment problem in Canada were cleaned up.

Curtsy and Then Be Natural In Meeting Queen, Philip on Tour

LONDON. (CP) — If you're going to meet the Queen this summer and royal etiquette is on your mind, forget it.

Despite all you may have heard or to the contrary, it call"be said no good authority that there are any rules governing rules for meeting royalty.

Curtsy-thys, admittedly, died hard. It's often been said that no member of the public should curtsy to the Queen unless the queen speaks first.

This just isn't so, court officials say. Perhaps it was true in Victoria's time, but the feeling now is that it would be a considerable strain on the Queen if she had to think of an opening gambit every time.

Another story has it that nobody meeting the Queen should wear black. The truth is, officials say, that you can wear whatever you like. The only risk about black is that it might be taken as indicating mourning.

Forms of address are straightforward. The Queen is "your majesty" the first time and Prince Philip "your royal highness." In the conversation which ues, "ma'am" and "sir" are appropriate.

For women, a curtsy is the thing. It is not obligatory, but is usually done. Men ordinarily bow on Introduction.

Those meeting the Queen's expressed wish that the tour should be as natural as possible, and publicity of dress will be favored. Top hats and morning coats will not be required.

The Queen will wear elaborate dress at times because it is felt that the Canadian public will want to see her looking regal on suitable occasions.

Finally, for the tremulous those about who will have that coveted opportunity of a few words with the Queen, the advice of court planners in general is relax, avoid self-consciousness and don't be pushy.

Above all, throw away that royal rule-book.

Boys Wanted To See What Was in Diary

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The boys aren't saying. The police won't talk. And Judy just hasn't been available to report what, if anything, she wrote in her diary after two separate dates with them.

The boys, Thomas C. Wilch and John C. Showaker Jr., both 18, were arrested on burglary charges after Judy Keller's sister found them in Judy's bedroom Sunday night.

No formal charges are intended, they pleaded at a hearing Monday before Justice of the Peace George H. Bucher.

They explained they both had dates with Judy, an 18-year-old beauty contest winner, and wondered what she wrote about them in her diary.

Judy's sister, Mrs. E. G. Wilson said that when she found what happened on the boys they were reading the diary.

Burchfield held the boys on $1,000 bail each.

MiGs Attack U.S. Navy Plane Over Japan Sea

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Navy patrol plane was attacked by MIG jet fighters over international waters of the Sea of Japan today and one of the crew was severely wounded, the defence department announced.

The incident, in which two MIGs attacked the unarmed P-4M, was made the attack, occurred about 85 miles east of Wonsan, North Korea.

The first reports received here did not make clear whether the American plane returned the fire.

Neither did those reports indicate why the attacking planes were identified by navy officials as MIGs.

The MIGs are Russian - built fighter planes used by the Communist Chinese and North Koreans.

Radio reports said the jets attacked without warning, firing cannon and machine guns. The Pentagon announcement said.

SIX FIRING RUNS

Through the two in numbers they made six firing runs and damaged the P-4M to within 50 feet of the water as the patrol plane took evasive action. Gunners aboard the attacking planes were credited by the navy crew with shooting down one MIG.

"Attacking aircraft were silver MIG fighters with stars and bars of their cockpits on the fuselage," the reports said.

The attack was started at a altitude of 7,000 feet.

The defence department said the P-4M was on a routine training patrol flight when the attack came. Marine Corps air facility at the inland sea of Japan's Honshu Island.

Skilful handling by Lt. Cmdr. Donald Bacon, the pilot, brought the badly damaged plane to the ground safely, the announcement said.

Reports Given On Projects Of Rotary Club

Local Rotarians held their weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon. There was no guest speaker for the occasion and several committee reports were made instead.

Rube Freeman gave a run-down on the ladies' night preparations for next Monday evening. An excellent program has been planned by Stan Hewton and other members of the committee. Ticket sales have been a bit disappointing to date, stated Mr. Freeman. It was hoped that more members would obtain their tickets by Wednesday.

Steve Tripp presented the report on the Easter Seal campaign for this year. Although gross receipts were down from last year this year's objective was not as great. Over $4,712 was received to date. It was noted that there was a greater return from the letters sent out in comparison with 1958 than was with those of 1958. Donations amounting to $5.2 cents per letter sent out in 1959 as compared with 42.8 cents per 1958 letter, was considered quite an increase.

INTERESTING REPORT

Fred Asdell gave a very interesting review of the work of the Crippled Children's Committee during 1958. Some 30 cases were handled by the local Rotary Club. Each member of the committee takes a point of contacting the children allotted to him so that there is a more personal relationship with those to whom the club is rendering assistance. This summer there will be 13 local crippled children attending the camp at Merry wood as compared with seven in attendance last year. The report was duly received by the members present who especially enjoyed Mr. Asdell's presentation of it.

Representation from Rotary Clubs of far away also highlighted the meeting. Peter Allchurch, Canberra, was the long-distance visiting Rotarian for the day. Rotary Club banners were received from the clubs of Tokyo and of Tokyo-Seijoku. Letters were forwarded to the club by Miss Seiko Takahashi, recent speaker to the club.

Birthdays were celebrated by Bill Hurst, Dr. Harry Burns, Jerry Jarrett and Bill Gault. Steve Tripp and Bill Hurst were recognized for representing the club at the 50th International Rotary Convention held in New York City last week. Stan Reston introduced the club's guests, whilst Bill Hurst led the sing-song to the accompaniment of Eric Burnham. Fred Wilson was chairman for the meeting in the absence of Jack Yandover.

Morley F. Smith Gets Contract to Collect Garbage

Garbage collection in the city of Belleville will cost $55,000 per year for the next five years.

Monday night at what will in all probability be the last committee meeting before the summer recess, city councillors approved the tender of Morley F. Smith for the collection of garbage for the years 1960-64 inclusive at a total cost of $275,000. Mr. Smith's tender was the lowest of three bids received for garbage collection, the contract to be effective January 1st, 1960.

The two other tenders received were for $291,000 and $310,000, respectively.

The present five-year garbage contract which will end December 31st of this year was for $182,000 or just over $36,000 per year.

There was little discussion on the matter when the Smith bid was approved with one alderman asking whether the city might collect its own garbage at lower cost.

This was doubted by City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull who said if the city public works department had been asked to tender its price would have been several thousand a year more than the lowest bidder.

New Business Machine Mooted For City Office

Purchase of a new business machine to help keep records up to date at city hall will be considered by city council.

The new machine has been recommended by a representative of a business machine company and its need is agreed by Deputy Treasurer, acting city treasurer.

Council was told that the machine would enable posting of all accounts to be kept completely up to date without additional staff.

The machine would take the place of two present machines, one of which is 10 and the other 15 years old and are now claimed obsolete One of the present machines was recommended retained by the city and the other turned in on the new machine.

No action was taken by council on the matter although a committee to investigate other types of business machines.

Y'smen Meet At Camp Site

The Belleville Y.M.C.A. Y's Men's Club held their last official meeting of the season last Thursday at the "Y" Day Camp site at Oak Lake.

The camp is showing signs of preparation for the young folk who will attend camp this year. A new dock has been installed and considerable sand has been put down for a beach area. This area swimming will insure safe pleasurable swimming for the campers.

Clean up of buildings and grounds and the removal of an older building have been under way in the last few weeks as well as the mowing of a way on the camp property.

The boys' period at camp now limited in capacity with sixty boys being accommodated for the two-week period. The girls' camp, July 20-31, has still some space available for those parents wishing more information or forms should contact the Y.M.C.A.

Council Moves To Collect Business Tax

A move to assure more prompt collection of business tax and thus lessen the possibility of these getting in arrears has been suggested to city council.

Acting city treasurer Gerrard Miner told council last night in committee that if notices being sent out for business tax, a number were coming back with the notation that he person to whom they were addressed were now out of business.

It was recommended that all business taxes should be collected during the year which they were due.

Mr. Miner noted that his department was now taking into consideration who of those in arrears in their business tax might be sued with good chance of recovery. Some of those owing business tax were in arrears four or five years, he said.

Policy of the treasurer's department it is understood has been racking up to make a driver for arrears of business tax. However, council was told last night that no court action had been taken against those in arrears for "four or five years".

U.S. BUSINESS BOOMS

Close Battle For World Honors Predicted

Stirling Moss and his co-driver, Jack Fairman, driving a British Aston Martin, won the 1,000-kilometre sports car race at the famous 14-mile Nurburgring course in the Eifel mountains of Germany last Sunday. Second and third places fell to the powerful Ferrari cars driven by Phil Hill and Oliver Gendebien and by Tony Brooks and Jean Behra respectively.

The winning vehicle won the event in 7 hours, 33 minutes and 18 seconds for an average speed of 82.5 miles per hour. The second-place Hill-Gendebien car followed very closely with an average speed of 82.4 m.p.h.; the third-place auto of Brooks-Behra completing the event with an average speed of 81.9 m.p.h. All of these cars were of 3 litre capacity (approximately 180 cubic inches).

Fourth position in the event went to the 1.6-litre Porsche RSK sports-racing car driven by Hans Herrmann and the Italian Maglioli with an average speed of 81.1 m.p.h. Perhaps the greatest performance of the small (about 95 cubic inch) displacement cars in this classic was in the class wins, as disappointing as overall wins. Here the Porsche marque copped first, second and third places in the 1.5-litre class; first and second in the 1.6-litre class; and first, second and third in the 1.6-litre Gran Turismo class, (a class specially for cars designed primarily as a touring or personal vehicle as opposed to a competition machine).

This event, the third in the annual calendar for the Sports Car Championship of the World, casts an interesting three-way competition for the manufacturers' award. The first round, held in Sebring, Florida, fell to the Porsche cars from Italy. It was at this race that three Canadians swept the 1-litre class driving three Austin Healey Sprites. The second event, the Sprites. The second event, the Targa Florio in Sicily, was taken by the Porsche Carrera entries. With the third event falling to the English Aston Martins, a very close battle for the world honors may be predicted for the 1959 season.

Stirling Moss, top English driver, set a new lap record for the 1,000-kilometre winding and tough Nurburgring course with a time of 9 minutes and 30 seconds (09.1 m.p.h.)

IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Colin Adams, who passed away June 18th, 1958.
One year today, our brother was taken
To his eternal rest;
Gone where the angels sing so sweet
And taken when God knew best.
We miss him here so very much,
His presence oft seems nigh;
But we all hope to heaven to meet,
Where no one says goodbye.
—Sadly missed by Maureen and Tom.

ADAMS. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Colin Adams, who passed away June 18th, 1958.
Sad and sudden was the call
That took him from us all.
No farewell word was he allowed to say,
He left us one bright summer day.
His place with us will be filled by none beloved,
He lives with us and always will,
And will forever more.
—Sadly missed by Peter and Robbie.

ADAMS. — In loving memory of a dear son, Colin Adams, who passed away June 18th, 1958.
He bade no one his last farewell,
He said goodbye to all,
The heavenly gates were opened,
To carry home his call.
His life was full of kindness,
The things we used to say;
I wonder why God had to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Though sad at first, you're over
Still missed, loved, still mine,
Time will not dim your memory,
Until the day we join you.
—Deeply remembered by Mom and Dad.

DAVIS. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Kenneth Davis, who died June 16th, 1956.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife and daughters, Doris, Diane and Carol.

Councillors Vote 5 to One To Spend $125,000 to Build New Police and Fire Station

TRENTON — In a five-to-one vote, town council last night decided to build a new combination police and fire station at a cost not to exceed $125,000. The site for the new building will be decided at a later date.

The matter was brought up at the meeting last night by Councillor Claude Graham, the chairman of the Protection to Persons and Property Committee.

Mr. Graham asked the council for a definite answer as to what it planned to do concerning the police station and fire hall. He said he wanted to know if council was going to build a new one or renovate the old one. When he decided, then his committee could go ahead with plans according to the council's wish. Otherwise it would be a waste of time to make plans.

Councillor Graham told the meeting it would cost about $125,000 to build a combination building and he felt this was both because of the old police station was torn down then the fire hall would also have to be levelled. Once this was done the entire market square could be used for the building. He said it would be a definite asset to the downtown merchants.

He said the combined stations would be big enough for a town with the population of from 15,000 to 20,000 and sufficient land would be acquired to enable a fenced-in area to be used for the storing of impounded vehicles. Mr. Graham said if the council was agreeable to build new police station, then committee would go ahead and make the necessary plans and to look for a suitable site.

ONE MEMBER OPPOSED

The only vote against the new building came from Councillor William Bradshaw who said he favored the renovation of the old station. He wondered if the town could afford new stations at the present time. He said there is a new school to be built and the roads in town are in a deplorable condition and there is not the money available to repair them properly.

Councillor Lloyd Weese summed up the entire situation when the other members of council, who favor the building of a new station.

"We can't afford not to do it", he said. "The police have been in an improvement in their facilities and we cannot do it by repairing the old building.

"It will only be a matter of about three years, then they would liquidate themselves in revenue gained through the new parking area developed by tearing down the older buildings and properly laying out the parking facilities and metering them. This area has proven to be the biggest money spinning lot in town and it is seldom any of the meters are idle during the business part of the week.

"Without the buildings (the fire hall and police station) there the facilities could be increased by distance 40 parking spaces and would be a decided advantage to all the merchants in that area.

MORAL TAX REVENUE

"The building would therefore increase in value in this section of town and would mean more money for the town in taxes. The lot (Tilles Block) there left vacant following the fire would soon be purchased and built on, adding further to the town's assets.

"It's a must", the councillor concluded.

Councillor Lloyd Worrall, who was chairman of the Protection to Persons and Property Committee last year, said he was also in favor of a new building and that the parking space made available would, in his opinion also be a definite asset to the town merchants. He said there was some discussion on the specifications in the deed when the property was given to the town, but that he had investigated this last year and found that it could be used for any municipal service.

Councillor Howard Aziz said he was in favor of a new building provided all the council members could agree on the site when one was found.

In speaking on the matter, Mayor Ross Burtt told the council that in 1946 the town had spent about $10,000 to fix up the police station and that perhaps in another 10 years the town would be in a more favorable financial standing to make some change.

He said he felt that $20,000 now would repair both the police and fire station and make them suitable for this length of time. He suggested to the council that the matter be put up for a vote by the ratepayers of Trenton and get their opinion on it. They are the ones who will have to pay for it and a lot of them are looking at their pocket books rather than nice new building," he said, and I don't like it our mill rate will climb to 31 mills in the near future".

The mayor told the councillors they can do as they please in this matter without going to the ratepayers but that he felt sure there would be several petitions appear before the council over it.

In a polled vote Councillors Vagn Lange, Lloyd Worrall, Lloyd Weese, Howard Aziz and Claude Graham voted in favor of the new combination station and councillor William Bradshaw was against. The mayor does not vote except to break a tie.

Assessment Roll Shows Increase Of $232,685

TRENTON — Due to new business and new building since 1958 the assessment roll in town has been increased by a total of $232,685. It has been found in the recent reassessment of the town now being undertaken by the town assessor J. Allen Burt.

Mr. Smith made his first report on reassessing at the regular council meeting held in the board room of the Municipal Building Monday night with all councillors and the mayor present.

The assessor told the council the above amount has been located since January of this year and has been added to the supplement roll. He told council that he felt a conservative estimate to be found before the end of this year would be about another $100,000.

He also told the town fathers that although he had not been making regular reports to them he has kept the chairman of the committee, Councillor Lloyd Worrall, informed of all the work going on by his department.

So far completed in the reassessment, he said, is the entire east side of the town with the exception of the industries. This includes the re-valuation and the statistics taken on the properties.

As to cost of this work he informed the council that to date it has taken $1,245 to pay the field teams for their work and he expected the entire project would cost around $3,000, or "if we are lucky and no unforeseen expenses arise."

He said the commercial property on the east side of the Trent River has all been done but, as yet, none of this type has been started on the west side of the river. Four industries have also been done.

During questions by the councillors Mr. Smith said the purpose of the reassessment was to "iron out" irregularities and not to make a big increase in the assessment role. He said, though, that some homes have been found to be double in size since the last assessment in 1948.

Council Asks C of C Turn Over Assets to Town

TRENTON — Council has instructed the town solicitor, Rod Campbell, to contact the former president of the now disbanded Trenton Chamber of Commerce, Alex Wilson, asking him to call a meeting of the directors and have them turn over $500 now in the bank back to the town. This decision was made at the meeting of the town council last night.

When this transaction has been completed the town indicated it would give half the money to the Retail Merchants Association and half to the Business and Professional Men's Club. The council also indicated it would take over the information booth. The council had built to accommodate tourists as they enter town on No. 2 Highway from the west.

The issues were brought to a letter before the Business and Professional Women's Club asked the town to take over the printing costs of a brochure it had recently published. The letter told the council the Women's Club put out 2,000 copies of each of the two brochures buy that now the money allotted for this is gone and it felt there was still a demand for this type of information.

Councillor Vagn Lange told the council he did not know where it was going to get the money to do this as it was working from a very tight budget. Councillor Claude Graham suggested selling the tourist information booth and turning the money from this sale over to the Women's Club to publish more brochures.

Town clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry said that his office received about two letters every week requesting information on the town. Councillor Lloyd Worrall said he felt the town hasn't done too much in the tourist line and suggested there was "room for it."

In discussing the assets of the former Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Larry also informed the town councillors there was a desk, filing cabinet and a book case, as well as the money in the bank. He said he was of the opinion it was left in case a new chamber was started.

Reassessment May Increase Town's Revenue by $80,000

Capital Budget Is Stressed

TRENTON — The possibility that reassessment of town properties may yield approximately $80,000 more revenue, based on the current tax rate, was mentioned by clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry in a lengthy report to the town council yesterday evening. Mr. Larry said that the assessor's report, shows proven being made of the reassessment and "if the results of the first sub-division are indicative of the total, we may anticipate an assessment increase of something in excess of one million dollars, including additions."

Mr. Larry also stated the tax collector's report indicates that current tax collections are up to par but that collections of arrears are not as good as last year at the same time.

The bulk of Mr. Larry's report dealt with requested estimates of works requiring capital funds during 1960 from the various departments in which it appeared this would be necessary. They were: Public Works, Sanitation and Waste, Protection to Persons and Property, Public Utilities Commission and Board of Education. The hospital board has advised through the chairman it will need $100,000 next year.

Until such information is provided, it is impossible for us to submit the town's budget," Mr. Larry said.

FACTOR IN SEWER PLANS

There are certain contingencies which must be known to make it important. The sewer service for Sidney Street must be provided until the Municipal Board has approved the schedule of charges. It is the opinion that the capital budget will enable us to support this much more effectively. When this sewer is provided it will mean the extension of services to North Byron as well as the opening up of the entire west side of Sidney Street and south of the C.P.R. including Byron and Dundas.

As you know, those lots which are served only by septic tanks cannot be built on to be larger, and consequently fewer houses and presently serve from Murray Street. This capacity is limited. In addition, industries locating in this vicinity are concerned about housing accommodation in the district for their workers.

The debenture by-laws have been prepared as yet because we had hoped to include the new public school. We deavored to have the Ontario Municipal Board approve the sale of debentures for the issues the site, because the period of the land has not been determined. This has been done, since the Separate Education does not know what the price will be nor have they commenced we proceed with the school debentures.

There will have to be Court Revision for Local Improvement charges to be included in the debentures before a final price is re-determined.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT WORKS

I have some comments concerning the works being undertaken as local improvements.

There are nine projects which are being processed at present:

(1) sewer — Adelaide St. E.; (2) sewer — Mary St.; (3) sewer — Queen St.; (4) sewer — Dundas St. easterly; (5) curb — Byron St. northerly; (6) curb — Herman to Scott; (7) sewer — Elizabeth, the engineer's design south end; (8) sewer — Dundas St. E to Limits; (9) road—North Scott St. — resurfacing.

I cannot assure you there will be estimates being prepared for application.

These petitions require a majority of the property owners and the assessor's department is now engaged in this assignment. We are organizing a team that will create some order out of what has been chaos that there will be a definite plan to follow.

DON'T REALIZE COST

My purpose in including these comments is to point out that forcasting works this way it was a great deal more admirable to simply state that they are being accepted I would be council resolutions after adding to the debt. There are jobs which will cost from a few hundred to as many thousand dollars. It is like buying the installment plan — one doesn't realize the total until the collector comes around.

It is important to ignore improvements in a capital way.

My recommendation is:

(1) Council determines which of the petitions are urgent for local improvements during the next five years.

(2) Advertisements be placed in the newspapers in January or February of each year asking those wishing the extension of services under local improvements to make application.

(3) Have date; April 1st, for this.

If this is done it will have the effect of: (1) stabilizing the financing from year to year; (2) enabling the administrative staff to complete the processing of works, rather than having it spilling in from April to May; (3) reducing the interest cost, which result from bunching the finance these works.

I hope that these observations are of sufficient importance to council to warrant its consideration.

KNOW YOUR COUNTRY

"Much is being made of the state of the tourist industry, the decline in the income from visiting tourists, the presence of various bits of antiquated legislation, which, at times, make it difficult for the tourist to enjoy himself, and the usual deficit between the amount of money spent by the foreign tourist in Canada and the Canadian tourist abroad. This last item strikes us as being quite interesting.

It seems rather odd that Canadians should prefer to go abroad to obtain their relaxation and enjoyment of vacation-time when there is so much scenery and so many fine areas to be explored in Canada. Travel, some say, is broadening for the mind. We would suggest that for Canadians nothing could be more educational, interesting, and enjoyable than travelling about in great country of ours to see how the people in the wilder parts live, or to visit the Laurentians in Quebec and view the lives of the habitants.

There is also much to be said for travelling about our own province for a vacation. We know of people who have done this and have been very pleasantly surprised to discover that they could have a wonderful holiday not more than fifty to a hundred miles away from their front door step. They also found it to be quite economical as well.

Besides the spots offered by our own province and those to the east of us, there exist a number of provinces to the west of us which offer many new sights and experiences. Up to but a short time ago we had always thought of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta as being little more than vast tables of wheatfields. Now we see that Manitoba is offering the facilities of a vacation land and paradise with its fishing, boating and many other facilities. Many people do not realize that there are these things out there.

There are also the Rockies, and we wonder how many Canadians who do a lot of travelling have never seen the scenery provided by these mountains.

Also there exists a veritable paradise on the face of the Rockies in British Columbia . . . at least is the impression we get from various columnists in the Vancouver Sun.

Surely there is much to be "discovered" by vacation-ing Canadians about their own country if they would take a few days to tour it. Certainly there can be no better way of getting to know it.

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE

We see by a Canadian Press news item that there are a number of things which contribute greatly to the high motion of coronary attacks. These items, which are "linked in close membership in the 'Coronary Club'" as suggested by the National Heart Foundation, seem to run closely similar to some of the attributes which some large industrial firms require of their top-flight men.

These rules are:

"Your job comes first. Personal considerations are secondary.

"Accept all invitations to meetings, banquets and luncheons.

"Never say 'no' to a request -- always say 'yes.'

"Take the briefcase home on the evenings when you do not go to the office. This provides an opportunity to review completely all the troubles and worries of the day.

"Never delegate responsibility to others. Carry the load at all times.

"Do not set a restful relaxing meal -- always plan a conference for the meal hour.

"It is a poor policy to take all the vacation time which is provided to you."

Of course the above is not set out in black and white by large organizations for their executives to follow, but it is surprising how many of the "go-getters" and "promising young men" follow the above pattern fairly closely.

When you notice a fellow who is a real "ball-of-fire" at his job to the exclusion of almost everything else you can see another candidate for the "Coronary Club."

Then, perhaps, you might see the reason why some more young men are the victims of heart attacks. Is it really worth it?

It seems that in work as in the other things available to those who wish to partake of life that moderation is the best course.

Slow down and live.

THE FLEETING BLUES

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I the time that I feel blue he fellow always comes along shouts a cheery "howdy-do."

I hums a merry bit of song.

's always some one waiting near grab my hand and slap my back,

And whisper kind words in my ear,
And I forget the world is black.

With so much kindness round about
And so much real good fellowship,
It's pretty hard, when I go out,
To keep a downcast, gloomy lip.

'The Way' of Lao Tzu

By Georges Fradier in UNESCO Features.

Ever since men first gave thought to the best way of living together in a community, their ideas have inevitably turned to ways of ruling their fellow-men. Famous philosophers have discussed the most effective means of maintaining law and order and of organizing society within the State — take Plato, for example, whose fascinating "Republic" anticipates Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World". In every period scholars have carefully and worshefully efficient systems designed to ensure the largeness of citizens — generally by depriving them of their freedom; for even the most benevolent utopians envisage the use of force and the strict organization of functions, work and leisure as necessary means towards this end.

But there are also philosophers (maybe people will laugh at the word "dreamers) who believe in trusting human nature, in interfering as little as possible in men's affairs. The form of government they favour is based on love, but on gentleness and non-violence.

Among the works which advocate these ideas, one of the strangest is a little book written at the 3rd century B. C. by the legendary philosopher Lao Tzu. It is called Tao Te Chieng — "The Way and Its Power."

The author of this book shows little respect for legislators or military leaders:

"The more prohibitions there are
The poorer the people will be. . . .
The more laws are promulgated
The more thieves and bandits there will be.
"Where armies are, thorns and brambles grow.
The reaping of a great host
Is followed by a year of dearth."

These quotations are from the famous translation by Arthur Waley, whose brilliant study on "The Way and Its Power" has recently published in a pocket book edition by the Grove Press, New York, in the Evergreen Collection of Representative Works (Chinese Series).

In his remarkable introduction Dr. Waley presents The Way and its Power as the finest expression of a vast of Chinese thought, stressing the political significance of the poems which are usually regarded as primarily mystical works. Lao Tzu, he says, was writes, "an anonymous Quietist produced a small book, known from the early centuries of the Christian era as the Tao Te King. It was at once adopted by political writers. . . .

In the 4th century B.C. the Quietism of the Tao was certainly not a widespread doctrine among the educated gentlemen. The ideas of the so-called Taoist philosophers were even the order of the day. To the common people they preached obedience, to the sovereign they counselled violence. The decadence of the State, in their view, was due to its tolerating private standards of good and evil, and to its setting "labels", as they names to the things that are good and evil from the public point of view. This, the Realists maintained, lead to a disrespectful and "unnatural" and "facile" tic. realities as conceived by the Taoists. Interference in the network of Law innumerable loopholes which, in turn, led to anarchy.

Such is the doctrine which the author of the Tao Te Ching combats. This mysticist whose method is paradoxical and reasoning are very close to those of his Realistic opponents, uses a complicated structure, consisting of myriads of contradictions. He calmly replies to them, declaring that there is such a thing as "public good" and considers that the ambition of the State to mete out punishment and reward is futile. "Heaven", he knows that they cannot be given to all realities, especially to moral virtues, and unreasonable, and by the Realists, which meditation alone can overcome.

"The way (Tao) that can be told is not an unvarying way."

The names that can be named are not unvarying names."

Yet it is knowledge of these nameless facts that gives te, the true power or virtue that can dissolve the myriad contradictions and discordances of the universe. So the mystical philosopher of the Tao Te Ching is also a political writer. When he insist on the peace of the kingdom as a whole and even of the world: the nobler for the spirit of the individual, the happier the empire. Thus the attitude of the Sage as described in the Tao Te Ching may be regarded as a model of behavior for the perfect citizen and, consequently, for the perfect citizen.

In fact the advice contained in the book is meant for all men: "Heaven's bidden" poor, be as humble as possible, like the water which always flows down to lowlands. Renounce all desire. It is a doctrine of 'non-action' and it is certain that the Spirit of the Tao a French philosopher expressed it follows: "The Sage's thing when you are a cock is to pass yourself off as a hen. Never be the first in powerlessness' been carried so far."

This teaching seems very far removed from practical ethics. But before dismissing it as a theoretical curiosity, it is as well to remember that powerful movements have been founded still are, by very similar ideas. Specially in Asia such ideas have both played their part in history.

Arthur Waley reminds the reader that Taoism, by way of Buddhism, gave birth to a sect called Ch'an in China and Zen in Japan and he concludes: "Thus Zen which has played so great a part in the spiritual life of China and Japan, which is probably described to, ever been the most considerable influence on the West, is perpetually being quite unlike any the heir of 4th and 3rd century Chinese Quietism."

Railway Cuts Off 6 Trains

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The aging dining car steward shook his head and said sadly:

"I never thought they'd take off the Black Diamond".

It was the last day for six of the Lehigh Valley railroad's passenger trains. In a year, if things go long enough under the Interstate Commerce Commission may let the line abandon the rest of its passenger service, but it sought to do originally.

As the nation's railroads go, the Lehigh is not a big one. It's trackage strings across New Jersey, Sussex, and Northeastern corner of Pennsylvania and up through New York to Buffalo.

It lays some of the country's hard coal country, which now has been converted to anthracite for many years. Along its route is the sprawling plant of one of the great locomotive manufacturers. A pretty solid passenger volume has been built painfully low levels, and the road hasn't had the freight revenue to off-set the decline.

But though this is a relatively small line it is a sharp warning for the railroads. For the public troubles are the problems of the railroads, not alleviated today, big and small. It may be the first to give up all passenger service. It is not likely to be the last.

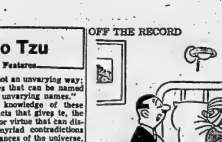
Congress has voted a program of aid to hard-pressed rail lines. Business is better this year for some roads. Yet it goes on sagging for others.

Ahead is the tough decision as to exactly what Congress may be willing to do to keep the Congress may be country's priceless rail network in healthy shape. The choice may not be too far off.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MAKE CENTRAL HINGS CENRAL



The Bible speaks of our put-ting on Christ. We are to put off the old man of sin as we put off a filthy garment. We are to put on Christ as we put on a new and glorious garment.

So many Biblical expressions and symbols tell us more what they should to the average Bible reader today. Here is a magnificent one. "Put on Christ" (Galatians 3:27). Paul also speaks of putting on the new man.

When will we get away from the superficial idea that Christian discipleship involves nothing more than believing some Jew truths and attending to a few stipulated duties? Belief a nd practice by many customs laid down by the Bible and the church are real factors in every Christian experience. But the central and essential factor is Jesus Christ himself. He is a person. This Person is described in a number of different ways. Jesus called himself the Door — "By me if any man enter in he shall be saved." He called himself the way, the truth, and the life. And St. Paul referred to Him as a garment which we put on — by which we clothe ourselves after we have taken off soiled garment.

Put off the old man, put on the new. Put off sin, put on Christ. The Christian experience means more than believing something and going through certain motions. It involves a transformation by very joyous living. Christ is the central fact of the Bible which bears His name. Loyalty to Him and oneness with Him are the central factors of our faith.

Wills Reveal Character

Windsor Star

People are intensely interested in the wills of others. That is partly due to a natural nosiness, a desire to learn how much someone left and to whom. But, apart from that, wills often contain much human interest, revealing personality and characteristics.

An example occurs in South Africa. A well-to-do man, an inveterate traveller, died. He had accustomed to relate his experiences to a nearby family and the woman, who hadn't had opportunity to travel, was much interested in them. When she died in 1946 she left them $16,000 with the stipulation she use it for travelling. The 74-year-old woman went to England, on her first trip in carrying out his wishes.

This will wasn't a mere indulgence. The man had enjoyed travel himself. He wanted his friend to share some of his experiences. Wills are often a poor way of leaving money but the will he leaves.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Sometimes newspapermen are allowed to sit among the rabobs on committees of social services or charitable drives, as advisors on publicity. In which capacity I have cheerfully won three very large calibre businessmen while the plan of campaign was outlined. The most assertive gentleman present, who seemed to get his way in the end, was always around the big table, was a man who had risen from a boy in the lower income brackets call a stuffed shirt.

But the names of several prominent citizens were read off as a special sheet received by the big donations, the stuffed shirt rose to a point of order.

"Now gentlemen," he declared, "I'm no snob. But some of those names will hardly carry the social impact we would like this appeal to convey to the public. After all, it isn't money alone that impresses the multitude. Let us substitute a few names there that have some social significance in this city. . . ."

He was voted down. When the meeting broke up, the chairman spoke two or three of us to our homes.

"The only people who worry about social standing, standards of others," he said, "are those who are insecure about their own social standing. Poor Soand-So, moaning the stuffed shirt) lives in terror that somebody will find out his grandfather delivered milk. He doesn't know that everybody knows his grandfather was a milkman. But what is more, he doesn't know that his grandfather would have hanged himself if he had discovered his grandson was going to have a grandson who Soand-So."

And incidentally, the stuffed shirt got his money by marrying

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

FOUR OUT OF FIVE DIABETICS HAVE BEEN TOO FAT TOO LONG

If I'd been writing a medical column 25 or 30 years ago, I'd have put the emphasis on avoiding smallpox, diphtheria, pneumonia and the other acute dis-eases of that time.

Today they have been brought largely under control. Instead, other diseases are becoming the dangerous ones. We don't die young from the old diseases — but unless we understand the facts of life, we are plagued at a later age by other diseases. Hence this letter:

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 38 years old. Seventeen months ago they discovered I had a blood sugar level of 150. After a month of serious dieting, without pills or insulin, I brought it down to 120, which they say is normal. The sugar doesn't show in my urine.

"Now, after 13 months w.ik out watching my diet as I did in the first month, I went for a blood sugar test and it was normal again. Would you call me a diabetic? How do I do it?"

Here's the way I'll answer this letter: I'm glad more and more people are becoming more aware of diabetes, because there are a couple of million people who either have to contend with it. That gives you an idea of the importance of this disease.

Second, what about a case of this type? Should it be called a diabetic?

Well, as I pointed out before, diabetes is a "sneaky disease". It isn't like small pox — in which you have it, and suddenly become desperate, or you don't. Diabetes often sits on you. Sometimes it whittles a child; then it is quickly perilous, and there is not a moment to waste in controlling it.

FOR ADULTS, GRADUALLY

In adults, diabetes comes on gradually, for the most part. Sometimes we find a full-blown case. Sometimes we find a borderline case, and we can't be sure, especially when the blood sugar or whether other factors are causing suspicious symptoms.

One thing we do know: Four out of five diabetics have been too fat too long. Mr. J. D. gives no information about that. I wish she had. It might give me a clue.

Many a moderate case, when it develops in an adult, is mild enough so that a prompt reduction and proper diet will control the case of diabetes.

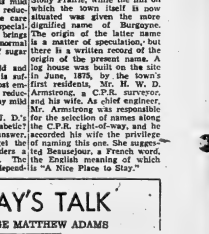
But what about Mrs. J. D.'s question? Is she a diabetic? From her letter, I can't answer, but she probably will get the answer if her doctor orders a "sugar tolerance test". The blood sugar level varies, depending on the time of day, the activity, the time that has elapsed since eating. A sugar tolerance test, on the other hand, will give a more precise answer.

Clearly, Mrs. J. D. isn't a severe diabetic, if she is one at all. But she's had a warning from nature. It's time for her to have a news exact test — and whether the answer is yes or no, it's time for her to watch her weight and take some precautions. Even if we can't prevent diabetes, we can extend our lives for years if only we will accept a hint from nature and be watchful and sensible.

Note to Mrs. S. O.: Bartholin's glands can, indeed, become infected or to cysts or abscess become painful. While this is not a common trouble, it is far from uncommon. Your doctor can clear up the trouble, that's fine. If not, you may have to resort to surgery, although it isn't anywhere that should alarm or frighten you. So keep in touch with your gynecologist.

Leg cramps and foot pains? These can be stopped! To learn how, write to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 E. Ontario Street, Chicago, requesting my pamphlet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains", enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

This week's publication: 60 miles east of Winnipeg, was originally an early resident, as Stony Prairie, while the hill on which the town itself is now situated was the more dignified name of Burgoyne. The origin of the latter name is a matter of speculation, but there is a written record of the life of one Lt. Burgoyne. A log house was built on the site of the present town's first residents, Mr. H. W. D. Armstrong, a C.P.R. surveyor, and his wife, a civil engineer. Mr. Armstrong was responsible for the selection of names along the C.P.R. right-of-way, and he accorded his wife the privilege of naming this one. She suggested Beausejour, a French word, the English meaning of which is "A Nice Place to Stay."



TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAVE A HOBBY

I attribute much of my personal happiness to the fact that most of my life I have had some sort of a hobby — the collecting of etchings, rare books, stamps, and historic letters. I have also been associated with artists and writers of my own time and place sure. You can't be alone with treasures that appeal to you and not be interested in the men who made them. I have met them when we died in the same year, $16,000 with the stipulation she use it for travelling. The 74-year-old woman went to England, on her first trip in carrying out his wishes.

This will wasn't a mere indulgence. The man had enjoyed travel himself. He wanted his friend to share some of his experiences. Wills are often a poor way of leaving money but the will he leaves.

one of these hobbies, and I have often asked my friends to share my love of the beautiful with me. It can not help but enrich all alone. They have taken me into the realm of Nature where so much is revealed to us that we take so much for granted. The people my hobbies have brought me.

President Roosevelt's hobby of stamp collecting became known to the whole world. Stamp collecting, in itself, opens up a world of information. Everyone who will take it seriously and learn from all that it can teach. You are put in contact with the world and all that it teaches, in a way it is not possible in the bank, because all stamps have a known value. One finds interest people, flowers, animals, heroic men and women, and Nations. But have a hobby — one that enriches the mind.

Tentative Approval Given For Widening of College St.

Tentative approval for the expenditure of an estimated $127,000 to provide for the widening of College Street has been given by Belleville city council.

Approval was given for a 30-foot wide gravel street and curb face from North Front Street to Sidney Street. An alternative for an asphalt topped surface was voted down by council.

Cost of the work would be paid for by issuance of debentures over a suitable term period.

Widening of College Street has been urged for several years and since the erection of Quinte Secondary School has been often before council. The present narrow road with deep ditches is claimed dangerous, especially since it is used by children attending both King George Public School and Quinte Secondary School.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull said a complete new roadbed was necessary as the present bottom was not adequate for a permanent roadway.

The tender of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company for $22,079 was approved for street resurfacing in the city this year. The McFarland tender was the lowest of four received.

Mr. Turnbull said an amount of $37,000 had been provided in the year's budget for street resurfacing this year but it had been decided to curtail the program. The work will be a continual program of sloping and oiling streets. Being done this year are:

Connecting of foundation drainage tile to the sanitary sewer on Farley Ave. is creating a flooding hazard in that area which will get worse as more houses are built.

This was told to city council last night by City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull who said that already the 10-inch Farley Ave. sanitary sewer is running 40 per cent full in dry weather, while in wet weather flooding of basements as result of the sewer backing up had already taken place.

The engineer recommended that either all surface water be eliminated from the sewer or the city disclaim all liability due to flooding.

Mayor Gerald Hyde noted that the trouble was coming from foundation tile which after city inspection were "mysteriously" connected to the sanitary sewer. This served to drain surface water into the sewer and caused flooding during wet weather.

General feeling of council was that not much could be done about foundation tile which were already connected to the sewer and in most cases it was the builders and not the present owners, who were responsible.

Mayor Hyde suggested a better method of dealing with the matter would be to have back water valves installed in basement drains and fixtures.

Sanitary Sewer Cannot Carry Surface Water

TENDER ACCEPTED

The tender of Stephens Adamson at $8.70 cwt. for castings accepted and that of J. C. Moore at $1.40 per ton for half-inch crushed stone.

Council turned down a recommendation from Alderman Leo Digby which would have given city permission for the hospital board to proceed with the construction of a two-storey educational building.

Previously council had been told by the hospital board that a four-storey combined educational building and dormitory was being proceeded with. Council, however, had given approval only for a one-storey nurses' training building.

The board told council that with extra grants and by the building in two contracting, it was expected the four-storey building would be completed without additional cost to the city.

Ald. Digby said he personally could not vote for something which showed a definite deficit before it was started. He noted that the hospital board was anticipating a $18,000 deficit on the four-storey building which was hoped to be saved by doing its own contracting.

"Until such time as they come up with an estimate showing no deficit I cannot support it," he said.

Victor Salomaa, Dept. Head In Toronto, Acting Clerk Without Cost to Municipality

Belleville city council moved promptly Monday night to name an acting city clerk thus temporarily filling the position left vacant by the sudden death Saturday afternoon of City Clerk Mrs. Anne Haggerty.

Appointed acting city clerk is Mr. Victor Salomaa, official with the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, who was one of the officials who came to the city to make the preliminary investigation following the announcement of suspending of the city's money in connection with McFarland's Hockey Team.

Mayor Gerald Hyde said the Municipal Department had offered the services of Mr. Salomaa if such were desired by Belleville. Mayor Hyde pointed out that Mr. Salomaa was not to be hired but would act without charge "until the affairs of the city are settled".

City council observed one minute's silence in honor of the late Mrs. Haggerty as the night's meeting was called to order.

Mrs. Haggerty's funeral is being held this afternoon and in tribute to the former city clerk, city hall will be closed this afternoon from one o'clock.

Alderman Claude D. Tice will represent Mayor Hyde at the funeral, the mayor having to be out of the city on municipal business.

Medical Assoc. W.A. Makes Donations

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Association met at the home of Mrs. Alex Rota with Mrs. Ken Douglas presiding.

Reports were submitted by Mrs. Jim Nelles, treasurer, on the "Spring Tea" and fashion held in May. The members felt gratified at the success of the first major project of this group, and because of this success, the Auxiliary was able to send a contribution of $100 to each of the following charities: The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatoid Society (H. and P.E. branch) the Salvation Army Camp fund for underprivileged children, and the Canadian Cancer Society. A brief discussion followed concerning alterations and improvements that might be adopted in a future similar project.

The president gave a brief report on W.A. activities at the O.M.A convention last month. She noted that Dr. Elizabeth Scott, who has been social convenor for the provincial W.A., has been elected recording secretary to the provincial executive for the coming year. Dr. Scott was the local charter president. Mrs. Douglas further reported that "Medicopy" was one of the feature topics at the convention. This is a Medical Exposition to be held in the Queen Elizabeth building on the C.N.E. grounds in October. The Medical Society in this area has undertaken to send two log grade XIII students from each high school to "Medicopy".

Dr. J. N. Hartt, as chairman, of this committee met with the W.A. executive for the purpose of explaining the project and soliciting help in the organization of same. The Auxiliary voted to support the committee in any possible way. This will be further discussed at a joint meeting to take the form of a pot-luck dinner, and to be held at the summer residence of Dr. and Mrs. Russel Bateman, at Oak Lake, on June 17th.

After the meeting adjourned, light refreshments were served by the hostess.

Aboard were the regional manager, Mrs. Armstrong, from Ottawa; the hostess from Trenton, Mrs. Leal Cory, and her assistant, Mrs. Lela Woodward, together with newcomers from England, Scotland and Wales, Canada.

The occasion for the rendezvous was a pot-luck supper run ugder the capable hands of Mrs. May Beatty for the catering and Mrs. Paddy Norvell for the entertainment, after prodigious efforts by the telephone committee under Mrs. Donna McLean. The hot night did not prevent a bumper turnout. The attractive company present under the kindly direction of the president, Mrs. Betty Bond.

The evening was the climax of a successful season of gatherings, which owed much to the conscientious and friendly work of the hostess, Mrs. Laura Hagerman.

Meetings will begin again in September and all newcomers to the district who receive a visit from the hostess, are warmly invited to attend.

Should Help Pupils Become Better Parents

VANCOUVER (CP)—Teaching psychology in schools to help students become better parents later in life is advocated by William Houston, principal of Kerrisdale elementary school.

Retiring shortly after 43 years in the city school system, Mr. Houston said in an interview that if parents knew child psychology they can deal with their children's emotional problems as they arise.

"The public could be taken up quite readily in the high schools," he pondered on ways of doing so. He said he has found that where parents know how to look after children, there will be fewer problem children."

He said children today had better physical care than ever before, but some educators were not bringing out the best in their students.

Best-trained and highest - paid teachers should be in the elementary schools, not in universities and high schools. After a child reaches the age of 12 "you can't change his foundation too much."

Chic Cotton Knit Dress

By VERA WINSTON

Cotton knits have moved up several notches in the fashion structure these last few seasons. As proof we offer this dress — smart enough for say wardrobe, at home or for travel. It is fashioned of good old cotton knit, in cherry red or black. Easily dressed up or down, because it is essentially simple, the frock has yoke and sleeves in one, a center seam down the front to slim the figure, and a matching calf belt.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP: BE A GRACIOUS GUEST

When you accept an invitation to any kind of gathering, formal or informal, large or small, you assume an obligation to co-operate as charmingly as you can to make the occasion a success. The idea is that (as the invitation either reads or implies) "The pleasure of your company is requested."

SHOULD THEY HAVE A PARENTS' TABLE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are planning to have a Bride's table at our daughter's wedding reception, and to have the guests served buffet style. Should we have a Parents' table? — T. E.

You may have a Parents' table if you wish, but it is not necessary.

"EARLY BIRDS" MAY KEEP AISLE SEATS AT WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I, both in our early twenties, went together a few days ago to the large, formal church wedding of a long-time friend of ours. Since naturally we were, particularly anxious to see her and her bridal party at close range, we made our plans to arrive early so as to get aisle seats. When other pew where we were seated, we took where we were seated, we stood to let them pass in, but we didn't move along even though, I must admit, we got some black looks. What about this, Mrs. Beeckman — should we have moved? — E. and R.

No. At a wedding it is taken for granted that the "early birds," who get the aisle seats, have the right to keep them. So do you and your sister did not need to move in front your seats for the arriving guests . . . even if you did get some black looks as a suggestion that you should move along! (However, I'm glad you both stood in your places to make it easy for the later-arrivals to pass.)

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Betty J. — Vivian won't help our mother.

Vivian S. — I can't do more than I'm doing.

Betty J. — Our problem concerns the support of our aged mother. We are three sisters — all married and moderately comfortable. Our mother has lived with me for the past four years and my sisters have contributed to her support.

Now we find it necessary to place mother in a nursing home. My sister Jean and I want to place her in the best home we can find. That will mean a larger contribution from each of us. My sister Vivian says she won't increase her contribution and pleads hardship.

Jean and I happen to know this is ridiculous. She is the best off of all of us and even bought a mink stole last year. She'll do things like that and then begrudge our mother decent conditions in her last years.

Vivian S. — Betty and Jean have always ganged up on me, believing I have more things in life than they have. The truth is that my husband makes no more than they do, but it is important for his business that we socialize a great deal. For this, I have to have clothes and keep up my home.

When they visit my home my sisters eye each other as if to say, "She must be rolling in dough. Wow, are they living it up!" Then they go home and think up ideas like this thing of the most expensive nursing home they can find. They don't mind if they have to cut a little skin off their own backs as long as they get my hide.

Maybe I'm selfish, stingy and an ungrateful daughter, but it looks to me as though the cheapest homes are good enough.

The Council: It would be almost impossible for any outsider to judge the fairness or unfairness of the two sisters' accusations. Nobody can decide for anyone else how big a sacrifice actually is or how big it ought to be.

It is possible that Vivian's mink stole is important to the future of her family. Even if it were important only to her hapless, this factor is a valid consideration. Vivian is not being accused of total neglect of her mother. She has simply set limits to what she is willing to do.

On the other hand, there might be a vast difference between the cheaper and more expensive homes and Betty and Jean may feel that their conscience won't tolerate leaving their mother in the cheaper place. They should confront Vivian with certain actualities in the situation, showing how their mother will be considerably better off in the more expensive place. They should do this in a simple, objective manner, avoiding the appearance of pressuring Vivian to make a decision.

If Vivian still feels that her own requirements are more urgent than her mother's, the two sisters must simply face the fact that they'll have to do without Vivian's additional help. If their mother's comfort is more important to them than their resentment toward Vivian, they will manage to do the right thing without Vivian's help.

Chinese Party Recipes

by Mary Moore

At an end-of-term meeting a high school Home Economics Association responded eagerly to my admonition to stop selling for hot dogs and hamburgs at their summer parties. I said "serve something new and startling."

When I suggested a Chinese party they squeaked and squealed, then settled down to asking "How?"

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

TUESDAY

Pineapple Juice; Braised Shoulder Lamb Chops; New Mint Sauce; Creamed Broccoli; Shoestring Carrots; Jennie's Downy Rolls (see Monday) with Sweet Butter; Rosy Stewed Rhubarb; Coffee.

I gave them the popular Chinese recipes that follow for a simplified Chinese meal.

CHINESE CUCUMBER SOUP

One small cucumber, 1 small onion, 1 pint (2½ cups) chicken stock (or boiling water to which you have added 2 chicken bouillon cubes), pepper and salt to taste, pinch of monosodium glutamate, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 2 teaspoons cornstarch. Peel and slice thinly the cucumber and onion. Bring the stock to boiling. Add the cucumber and onion slices and simmer gently about 5 minutes or until crisply tender. Add the seasonings and lemon juice. Mix the cornstarch smoothly with a little cold water, stir into the soup and boil for 3 minutes stirring constantly. This may be served hot or cold.

SWEET AND SOUR MEAT BALLS

One pound minced beef, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon of cornstarch, a little oil for frying about 2 tablespoons (preferably peanut).

Sweet-Sour Sauce: One green pepper, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 teaspoons soy sauce, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 3-4 cup each vinegar and consommé or boiling water to which 1 or 2 bouillon cubes have been added, 2 or 4 sweet pickles, 3 slices canned pineapple. Mix the salt with the minced beef and form into small balls the size of a walnut. Roll in cornstarch and saute in the hot oil — about 3 minutes on all sides. Remove the little meat balls to a serving dish and keep hot. To make the Sauce: Put the stock and the green pepper, cut in 6 or 8 large pieces into the pan, and simmer gently for 5 minutes or until the pepper is crisply tender. Mix the cornstarch, brown sugar, soy sauce and vinegar together smoothly and stir into stock. Cook for 3 minutes. Cut the pineapple rings and pickles in small pieces and add to the sauce. Pour over the meat balls and serve hot.

CHINESE ICE CAKES

One cup unsifted flour, ¼ cup ground rice (packaged), 3 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, pinch of salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¾ cup butter or shortening, ½ egg (see note for using remainder), 1 tablespoon water, ½ teaspoon almond flavoring, blanched almonds to decorate. Sift together flour, ground rice, cornstarch, sugar, salt and baking powder. Rub in butter until mixture resembles fine breadcrumbs, then mix to smooth dough with the ½ egg (best egg with fork to make dividing easier), water and almond flavoring. Form the dough into small balls, place on greased baking sheet. Press almond into top of each, brush with remaining egg, bake at 400 degrees for about 15 minutes.

Put Problems In One Basket Says Speaker

OTTAWA (CP)—A strong case for putting problems in one basket was presented Monday at a meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council's family and child welfare division.

"It is clearly indicated that people need consideration as a whole, not in relation to a particular problem or category," said Ernest Majury of Brampton, manager of Peel County family and children's services.

"Yet we continue to specialize in agencies for a particular segment of a person's problem," he said.

There was a need to build toward "family-centred child welfare and child - centred family welfare" in an attempt to meet community problems.

He said with "family" in the title, an agency could reach many people who may be afraid of the Children's Aid Society because of the implications of its name. The needs of a child could not be divorced from the needs of his family group.

Parties Making Big Pitch for Rural Vote

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's four major political parties are making a big pitch for the rural vote in Thursday's general election.

Forty-nine of Alberta's 65 constituencies are outside the Edmonton and Calgary metropolitan areas where more than 500,000 of the province's 1,250,000 persons live.

The rural ridings have generally assured the Social Credit government of Premier E. C. Manning its majority in past years. The administration has been in power since 1935.

In the last legislature the government elected only six of its 57 members in Calgary and Edmonton which had a total representation of 12.

Edmonton and Calgary representation was increased by three seats this year—two more in Edmonton which has nine seats and one in Calgary which now has seven.

At the same time a new rural riding, Dunvegan, was formed in the Peace River district by cutting Peace River constituency, a Social Credit stronghold, in two.

Party leaders have spent most of their time at rallies in rural areas.

Liberal leader Grant MacEwan, former dean of agriculture at two prairie universities, and lawyer W. J. C. Kirby, leader of the Progressive Conservatives, have appealed to rural voters with promises of larger loans to farmers, assistance with rural electrification and increased efforts in the marketing of farm produce.

Mr. Kirby also promised a decentralization of industry to give rural areas a economic uplift.

The CCF, under Floyd Johnson, has called for public development and distribution of electrical power.

The Social Credit party, seeking its seventh consecutive mandate, has based its appeal on the government's 24-year record and its five-year development plan which includes homes for the aged.

Standing at dissolution was: Social Credit, 37, Liberal 15, Progressive Conservative 5, CCF 1, Liberal-Conservative 1, Coalition 1, Independent 1, Independent-Social Credit 1, Total 61.

Mrs. Ceburn Adams, of Toronto, spent a few days visiting in this neighborhood.

Sorry to report Mr. Harry Peck in Belleville hospital. All wish him a speedy recovery.

Use of Private Cars Causing Traffic Jams

MURRAY BAY, Que. (CP)—Greater use of public transportation and less use of private cars is the only way to cut down on traffic jams "that threaten to destroy the usefulness of our great cities," John H. Walsh, president of the American Transit Association, said Monday.

Municipal officers are beginning to realize that civic groups "have a vital interest in the maintenance of an attractive, prosperous and accessible downtown district," he told the Canadian Transit Association's annual meeting.

Text of his address was released to the press before delivery.

He said "fast rail transit" is desirable where large numbers of people are to be moved, but "the time has passed when the construction of such facilities can be paid for wholly by the riders." This has been recognized in Toronto he said, where the metro government agreed to pay 25 per cent of the cost of a second subway.

Philip's Light-Heartedly Dedicated Service to Queen Demonstrated on Royal Tours

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

LONDON (Reuters) — Back in 1946 when rumors were flying about a romance between Princess Elizabeth and a handsome young British navy lieutenant, Prince Philip of Greece, a London newspaper man hunted up a woman who had known the prince all his life.

Asked for her verdict on the tall, blonde officer, the woman said: "Whoever marries Philip, if she's a princess or a commoner, will be a very lucky woman."

The prince married his princess the next year. Today, 11½ years after the wedding, most Britons agree the woman friend's forecast was extremely accurate.

As the British put it, the energetic, breezy - but - intelligent prince-and Duke of Edinburgh —has become Queen Elizabeth's "right hand."

Philip's light - heartedly dedicated service to his wife is most clearly demonstrated when she undergoes the exhausting rigors of a Royal Tour. On Thursday when the Queen arrives in Canada to start a six-week trip, he once more will be at her side easing the strain of her job.

QUEEN SAYS

Observers of past Royal Tours have noted that Elizabeth tends to be a little shy and stiff in public. The Prince helps her with greater skill in putting people at ease.

Not being the sovereign, he is able to bridge the long gap of formality between the people and the throne.

An example of this is reported to have cropped up at a London dance. Elizabeth was eager to dance with several of the men there—no woman wants to go on the floor with only her husband—but, because of her rank nobody approached.

Finally, Philip walked over to the stag line, seized one man by the arm and told him: "For God's sake, go and ask the Queen to dance. The poor thing's been bored stiff all evening."

On trips, the prince has helped add to the Queen's popularity. At the same time, he has built up a large overseas following himself both on Royal Tours and his own extensive globe-trotting.

His popularity results largely from four factors: Looks, position, personality and, last but not least, his active and inquiring mind.

VOTED EXCITING DATE

The looks speak for themselves. Two years ago, 50 Hollywood actresses and models ranked him third—behind actor Van Johnson and American composer Leonard Bernstein—in a list of "the most exciting dates in the world."

He was — despite having no Greek blood—a Greek prince before he became a naturalized Briton, is descended from Danish royalty and, like the distant cousin he wed, is Queen Victoria's great-great-grandchild.

His pedigree is impressive—which is exactly what makes Philip so attractive to more mature-minded people who are not impressed with fancy family trees. They say that despite all that, Philip is a real man who amounts to something in his own right.

They point to his excellent Royal Navy service, which occurred long before his name was linked with Elizabeth's; his successful streamlining of sometimes bumbling royal household management after their wedding; his help to the Queen in "modernizing" the monarchy to bring it closer to the people.

But achievement alone is not enough to win popularity. If Philip were just a competent sour-puss, he'd be widely disliked. Instead, he is affable, informal, always ready to flash a pleasing smile.

Last year, he went to a London exhibition and received wrist watches for his two children, Prince Charles, 10, and Princess Anne, 8. His pleasant thanks: "The kids will love them."

On another outing, he watched a cookery demonstration and, seeing sausage rolls being prepared, announced: "I am conducting a campaign against sausage rolls with no sausage in them."

A sausage roll was opened for him and, sure enough, it had no sausage at one end.

"There you are," said Philip.

He is, however, too intelligent and mentally vigorous for the life of just-handing. His intense interest in scient and industrial efficiency is well - known; his verbal pokes at smugness and complacency have been felt, but three times a day after meals and expecting it to be so."

Born on the Greek island of Corfu on June 10, 1921, he was the only son of the late Prince Andrew, brother of King Constantine of Greece. By descent his family belonged to the royal Danish house of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg - Glucksburg. Philip's mother, Princess Alice of Battenberg, was a great-granddaughter of Victoria.

Shortly after his birth, Philip's parents had to leave Greece as a result of political upheavals following the First World War. The little prince, then living in Paris, was said to have reassured the playground that made him different from other people.

Once, when introduced to a stranger as "Prince Philip, the grandson of a King of Greece," the four-year-old Philip became angry and shouted bluntly: "No, sir!"

At seven, he was sent to England to be educated under the supervision of his maternal grandmother, the dowager marchioness of Milford Haven. The marchioness was advised by the boy's uncle, now Earl Mountbatten of Burma, Britain's first sea lord, and then a rising young naval officer.

"I am going to be a naval officer like uncle," vowed Philip, who idolized Mountbatten.

Philip went to exclusive, 300-year - old Cheam Preparatory School—where he later sent his son, Prince Charles—and on to Scotland's Gordonstoun, a new experimental school where character - building and leadership were the main items in a rugged curriculum.

From Gordonstoun, Philip entered the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth. The school reported to the navy:

"Prince Philip is a born leader but he will need the exacting demands of a great service to do justice to himself.

"His best is outstanding. His second best is not good enough."

Fall Wheat, Hay Had Bad Winter Says Report

TORONTO (CP)—Fall wheat and hay had a bad winter, the Ontario department of agriculture says today in its monthly crop and livestock bulletin.

The department estimates about 50 per cent of the area seeded with fall wheat was killed by frost and snow. Although the acreage remaining for harvest has made good growth during May, the average yield will be below normal.

Hay crops made extremely good growth in May, particularly in southwestern Ontario. Prospects for hay production have improved greatly over a month ago, and indications are the first cutting will be heavy throughout the province.

Abundant rainfall has resulted in excellent pastures in southwestern Ontario, while pastures in other parts of the province are generally in good condition.

Spring grain seeding was completed May 31, while seeding of late crops retarded by heavy rains in southwestern Ontario is now about completed.

A severe outbreak of maggot infestation is occurring in areas in the new tobacco belt.

Canada's Economy to Grow Faster Than U.S. After 1960

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian and United States financial analysts were told Monday that Canada's economic expansion should move ahead at a faster rate than that of the U.S. after 1960.

Hardwick Stires, chairman of the Committee of Canadian Investment Companies, said this expansion would be spurred by population growth and increasing opportunities for both external and internal economic development.

Mr. Stires spoke at the convention of the National Federation of Financial Analysts Societies.

Text of his remarks was issued to the press in advance of delivery.

WILL KEEP POSITION

He expressed confidence that "as the economies of the world grow, the position of Canada in world trade will be maintained." However, foreign trade through the years "will become less important to the Canadian economy but this will result more from Canada's greater internal growth rather than from adverse external developments."

Mr. Stires is president of Seudder Fund of Canada, Ltd., first of eight publicly-held registered formed since June 14, 1954, to enable U.S. investors to participate in diversified mutual-fund investments in Canadian enterprises.

He said these eight Canadian mutual funds now have built up their Canadian portfolio investments to total net assets of approximately $410,000,000. These assets, he said, are managed in behalf of 129,000 U.S. shareholders.

ATTRACTIVE TO U.S.

Obvious attractions to U.S. investment in Canada, he said, are the opportunity for more rapid growth and the quantity and accessibility of Canada's natural resources.

"Canadian taxation offers important inducements. There is no capital gains tax in Canada and there are special inducements to non-resident - owned investment companies."

While the Minister of Agriculture's budget at Ottawa runs into millions of dollars, he has to justify his expenditures down to the last cent.

His money comes through the Minister of Finance who gets it largely in taxes from Canadians such as you. When he spends more than he takes in, he must borrow from you . . . or else create new money. The creation of new money is one factor that leads to inflation — which means your dollar buys less and less.

The government has been spending more than you have been paying in taxes. To narrow the gap between income and expenditures, new taxes have been imposed.

You can encourage the government to live within its income by asking only for those services you are willing to pay for with taxes. Tell your M.P. at Ottawa that since you are trying to save, you expect government to do the same.

You also help when you save more by means of life insurance, savings deposits, and the purchase of government bonds. Your savings help to create a SOUND dollar; and this, in turn, helps to create job security for you and more jobs for other Canadians.

JUNIOR GOLF

July 3 is the day set aside by the Ontario Golf Association as "Young Golfers' Day."

Belleville (The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club) with seven other district centres will be the converging points early in the morning of a large number of young male golfers ranging between the ages of 18 years and under.

On these courses will be held the qualifying rounds for the Ontario Junior Championships scheduled for the Islington Golf Club, Toronto, on July 10. Here the player in either the Junior or Juvenile class who returns the low gross score for 36 holes will be recognized as the Ontario Junior champion and will receive the trophy emblematic of his class and another trophy emblematic of the junior championship which will be held for one year.

Incidentally, the four low scores over the 36 hole final championships at the Islington Golf Club, July 10, will represent Ontario in the junior interprovincial team matches being held at the Kanawaki Golf Club, Montreal, on July 28.

The district centres staging the qualifying rounds are, besides Belleville, Hamilton, Kitchener, London, Owen Sound, Sarnia, Smith's Falls and Toronto.

Entries close on Wednesday, June 24, at 12 o'clock noon. Post entries will be accepted at the first tee, providing they do not interfere with the draw. Boys are allowed to play one qualifying round only. Entries must be accompanied by a fee of $1.00, and age data stating day, month and year of birth. Entrants must not have reached their 19th birthday by midnight July 31, 1959, and must present proof of age to the director in charge of the qualifying round.

Any boy within the age limits is eligible to compete whether he belongs to a golf club or not. Entries in the Bay of Quinte district should be sent to T. A. Carruthers, 216 Dundas St. West, Belleville.

The junior category is comprised of youths of 16, 17 and 18 years of age; juvenile, 14 and 15, and bantam 13 years and under.

In each qualifying round, one in every eight players in junior and juvenile classes will qualify for the final 36 holes and one in every six in the bantam class for the 18-hole final at the Islington course on July 10. No practice rounds will be permitted. Prizes will be awarded to the low scorers in each age group in each qualifying round.

During the past few years clubs of the Bay of Quinte and other parts of Eastern Ontario have been well represented at the qualifying round held on the Quinte links. Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg, Kingston, Napanee, Picton and Trenton have sent their beardiest entries and some fine golf has been carded.

It is expected some fifty or sixty youngsters in all three categories will be on hand at the country club for the qualifying round.

Whether Eastern Ontario junior golfers do not take sufficient interest in the championship, they do not participate enough, or to be frank, have not been of championship calibre, the records show that only one Eastern youngster won the Junior boys' championship since the inception of the event in 1941. He was E. H. Cutting of Peterborough, who won the title from Gordon Ball of the Thornhill Club on the latter's home course with a 146.

Over the rest of the years junior championships have gone to youngsters from Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener and Windsor golf clubs with an occasional hinterland youngster getting in on the glory.

However this has not proven a deterrent to junior golf in this part of Ontario. The majority of the district clubs take a great interest in junior work, and it is understood some fine youngsters are being developed.

At the Bay of Quinte Country Club, we are informed, some 80 teen-agers, 50 per cent of them boys, are under instruction and practice and the supervising eye of T. A. Carruthers. There is a definite upsurgence in interest on the part of the youngsters and, who knows, that with the skilled instruction available here, practice hours and mainly perseverance, there may be a future Canadian junior champion in the making in this immediate part of the country.

Arcaro Out Of Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Arcaro, 43-year-old jockey who has won more big stakes than any other rider, will be discharged from the hospital today. There was no decision when he'll ride again.

He scoffed at mention of retirement as he walked around in his hospital room Monday for the first time since his horse—Black Hills—went down in the mud and gloom Saturday during the running of the $145,000 Belmont Stakes.

Arcaro was thrown into the sloppy track, and was knocked unconscious. He was rushed to a hospital where he is recovering from a concussion, sprained neck muscles, contusion of the left shoulder and numerous bruises.

Arcaro, who was seeking a record seventh Belmont victory in the race won by Sword Dancer, said:

"I feel a little dizzy when I move my head rapidly, but I'm eating well and feeling fine."

Regain Lead After 6 in Row As Detroit Whips Wilhelm; Drysdale 4-Hits Milwaukee

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland's revived Indians, suddenly are back in the American League lead after winning six straight in a scramble to stay ahead of the fastclosing Detroit Tigers.

The Indians, counting all their runs on three homers, shot back to the top with a 31 victory at Boston Monday night for a .002 percentage point edge over Chicago's idle White Sox. But the Tigers closed within 1½ games of the lead by handing Hoyt Wilhelm his first defeat of the season in a 6-4 victory at Baltimore—their 18th in a 22game rocket ride from the cellar.

Washington ripped Kansas City 8-3, with Harmon Killebrew hammering his 22nd home run for the Senators, in the only other game scheduled in the AL.

The Indians backed up Gary Bell's threehit pitching with solo homers by Jim Baxes and Woodie Held and a clinching threerun shot by Minnie Minoso, who broke a 11 tie by taging an 0-2 pitch in the fourth inning.

SIXTH WIN FOR BELL

The homers made it a breeze for Bell, who struck out nine but walked six while claiming a 6 record.

The Tigers, who have won six of their last seven, made it three in a row after getting only two infield hits for five innings off Wilhelm (9), who had won 10 straight since last September 16. Harvey Kuenn, who was 3-for-3 and regained the AL batting lead from Al Kaline (.353 to .357), put it away with a two-run homer in the seventh.

Ray Narleski (4-6) won his third in a row for the Tigers, giving up 11 hits.

The Senators got rid of loser Bud Daley (5-5) in three innings, running up a 6-0 bulge on homers by Killebrew and Jim Lemon. John Romonosky (4-0) had a six-hit shutout until the ninth. Then Hadley's one homer set off a fiverun Au rally that brought on Chuck Stobbs in relief.

Juniors Adopt Shorter Sked

BURLEIGH FALLS, Ont. (CP) The Ontario Hockey Association's junior committee Monday adopted a 40-game schedule for 1960-61 instead of the 54 games played last year.

The season will open Oct. 29, compared to Oct. 16 last year, and close Feb. 28. The abbreviated schedule is expected to keep St. Michael's College Majors in the league.

Father David Bauer, manager of the Majors, said at a May meeting that the 54-game season interfered with players' studies and that his team would drop out of the league if it was continued.

He hinted Monday that the team would probably stay in the league now. In May he said the 1959-60 season would be the last.

Several clubs objected to the short schedule since each would lose six home games.

Bisons Whip Columbus to Retain Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons met up with their Columbus "cousins" Monday night and as a result are still on top of the International League heap.

The Bisons won their seventh straight from Columbus, 10-4, to keep a half-game ahead of onrushing Richmond, which defeated Rochester 13-4. It was Richmond's 14th victory in 17 games while Columbus lost its ninth in the last 12.

No other games were scheduled.

JETS ERRATIC

Buffalo used four Jet errors, three by third baseman Julian Javier, and sprayed 13 hits off four Columbus pitchers with George O'Donnell (2-3) getting the loss.

Don Landrum and Bobby Del-Greco each drove in three runs for the Bisons and Pancho Herrera hit his 16th homer. Dick Bunker was the winner, getting his fifth win against two defeats.

Richmond slammed out 18 hits against Dave Bob Miller (6-6) and reliever Joe McClain. Fritz Brickell homered, and added a double and a single in four at-bats for the Vees, while Deron Johnson had a triple and three singles.

Bill Short (7-1) was staked to a 6-3 lead and never was pressed. Orville James homered for the Red Wings while Luke Easter had a double, two singles and three runs batted in.

Solly Hemus Gives Up Playing Stint

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The major lost their only playing manager Monday as St. Louis skipper Solly Hemus acknowledged the full-time chores of a field boss and went on the inactive list.

"Well, I guess that's it as far as my playing days are concerned," said the 35-year-old infielder, who took over the Cardinals this season.

Solly, dubbed the Mighty Mouse for his pugnacity made his way in the big leagues on brains and hustle. He never had outstanding speed, power or a rifle arm. He was a pesky hitter who could deliver in the clutch.

"It's just my age", Solly said of his retirement, "but being a manager, I bat only 4's. That's enough to keep my legs in shape and my batting eye sharp."

Hemus had four hits in 17 times at bat this season, but he also walked eight times.

That's where Solly sparkled—getting on base, somehow.

Some said—in jest, perhaps—that Solly wore an oversize uniform blouse in order to get nicked by pitches.

That may be fiction. But it's a fact that Solly led the National League twice in being hit by pitched balls.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Australian Lew Hoad was seeded No. 1 over pro champion Pancho Gonzales Monday for the $13,000 professional tournament, starting next Saturday at the West Side Tennis Club.

Gonzales was No. 2, followed by Tony Trabert and Frank Sedgman. Promoter Jack Kramer said the seedings were based on a formula derived from previous tournament performances.

Kramer also said earlier in New York, Alex Olmedo, Peruvian star of the U.S. Davis Cup team, had "turned up his nose" at a $50,000-to-$100,000 offer to join the pro tennis troupe in the fall.

"Somebody else has Olmedo's ear and he figures he's going to sign for $150,000—but not with me," the Los Angeles tennis impresario said. "I've made my offer. He may find himself crawling back to us later on."

Kramer said he had discussed a possible professional career with the sensational young Peruvian before the latter left for England to prepare for next week's Wimbledon championships.

FEELING OUT

"I merely was feeling him out," Kramer said. "I realized he couldn't make a decision without losing his amateur status. I told him I would give him $50,000 if he never won another match this year as an amateur. I said I would up it to $60,000 if he won the Wimbledon and $100,000 if he added the U.S. title at Forest Hills and the Davis Cup.

"He wasn't impressed. He more or less indicated to me that he had a better offer from elsewhere but I don't know from whom. I only know that I don't particularly care. I was buying him mainly on his potential anyhow."

Kramer said the day was past when an amateur could demand a contract as Lew Hoad got after Wimbledon in 1957—a $125,000 deal.

"I couldn't put Olmedo against Pancho Gonzales head to head—it would be murder," the promoter added. "I think he would lose to any one of the ten active pros including, in ailing Ashley Cooper and Mal Anderson, (Whom, Alex beat in Australia).

City Commercial Softball League

By PETER CARVER

Sport Centre ran rough shod over the Texaco Chiefs last night in a Commercial Softball League tilt, thumping them under a 17-1 score.

The winners scored six runs in the initial frame, five in the fifth, four in the fourth and two in the second. Texaco's lone tally came in the fifth inning.

Hal Adams, toeing the rubber for the Sports Centre, pitched four-hit ball, walking six and fanning none.

Adam's opponent on the hill, Ken Hitch, handed out nine hits, struck out two and passed five.

Harry DeRushie led the victors at the plate, connecting for a three-run homer, a double and a single. Ab Wright and Doug Murray also had three hits, one of Murray's being a triple.

Texaco's four hits were scattered between Clare Hargreman, Dave Coates, McLean and Ray Lee.

Eric, Dick "Starry" Rick Here Friday

There is a strong possibility one of the rarest attractions in wrestling might steal the show from the main bout here come Friday night.

While Yukon Eric, perennial favorite here meets up with Dick Hutton, perennial Heinie, in the featured top spot, one Ricki Starr might glean the most of the spotlight.

Ricki meets fierce Al Korman, but that's beside the point. The "sweep-bout" presentation could well be called "Ballet Over Brawn, A Terpsichorical Tiff," choreographed by Ricki Starr and starring Starr backgrounded by the "Small Symphony without conductor."

It is Starr's first time to twinkle in Belleville. He is said to be a colorful agile balletdancer type of pachyderm who pirouettes, prances and poses but can get in some deadly work as a wrestler between stage calisthenics.

But the Ricki - Hutton brawl should be a heckle - raiser. It's a long time since "Thousand - Dollar" Dick was here, and fandom will recall his skullduggery. Eric will have his hands full. Pat Flanagan and Jack Laskin open the show.

Beer, Wit Big Help to His Racquet

ROEHAMPTON, England (AP) — American Jack Grigry brought a bottle of beer, plenty of laughs and almost nonstop chatter to the usually grim business of qualifying for the Wimbledon tennis championships Monday.

The 26-year-old player from Alhambra, Calif., defeated Martin Braund of Britain 8-7, 11-13, 6-4, 6-4 in a match that lasted 3 hours 46 minutes.

Grigry, sipping his beer between games in the fourth set occasionally served underhand. He chatted away throughout the match and after Braund took a point with a net cord he called out: "I hope you saw that film Count Your Blessings."

The qualifying matches are arranged by the All - England Lawn Tennis Club. Today Grigry will play Howard Walton of Britain to decide who goes into the Wimbledon tournament.

"Grigry will beat me," said Walton. "He's got a better game than me and a better line of talk."

City Commercial Softball League

Plane's Construction took a 9-6 decision over Corbin Lock in a City Commercial Softball league fixture last night behind the four-hit hurling of Bill Dickey.

Dickey had a two-hitter going for him until the last frame when Corbin's picked up another couple of hits and three runs. He struck out 11 along the route.

Harry Powers toed the rubber in a losing cause and gave up 11 safeties.

Corbin Lock had a first-frame 2-0 lead off a pair of hits but from then until the seventh Dickey, George Trumpour, Bill Charlton, Ralph Plane and Jack Stark getting one apiece.

Corbin hitters were Burley, Radford, Powers and Nelson.

35 STRUCTURES

an investigation that was to be made today.

Offers to billet and feed refugees poured in from the Salvation Army, Red Cross, district communities and individuals.

Only structure along George Street with anything remaining above the foundation was the village hall whose foot - thick stone walls formed a ghostly shell. The fire started there. The hall and Canadian Legion quarters inside it were destroyed.

Buildings destroyed included the 44-room Victoria Hotel, two apartment blocks of four units each, 13 business establishments some of which were combined residences, 14 private homes, and the Masonic Temple.

They represented about one-quarter of all Lanark's buildings. A grocery store, a weekly newspaper and two service stations were the only business establishments left.

SAVES RECORDS

Village Clerk J. Elmer Paul ran into the smoking interior of the village hall to save committee minutes.

Embers ignited the roof of Gleaner Knitting mill on the south side of the Clyde but firemen were able to douse it. However, the mill's combined boiler house and mill was burned.

Embers also ignited a sawdust pile at Rothwell's saw mill at the southwest side of town but this was put out by vigilant townfolk.

About 19 other small fires in the residential area south of the Clyde all were caught in time, except for what the blaze was destroyed.

FIRE CHIEF IN HOSPITAL

Fire Chief Del Storie of Lanark had to be taken to hospital at nearby Perth where he was treated for exhaustion and shock. Mrs. Storie suffered a slight stroke as she ran from her burning home with her husband and two children.

Two women—Mrs. John Deachman, 86, and a 92-year-old invalid daughter Annie—were rescued by their neighbor, Mrs. Eleanor Murphy, 55, who carried Annie out and returned to help the mother.

The office of the Lanark Era, became the centre of operations when Bell Telephone workers installed emergency lines there.

Publisher Erroll Mason, also a village councilor, said that if the Glengarry mill which employs 100 had gone, the village would have been wiped out as an economic entity.

Reeve Dowdall said the village hall and fire station would be rebuilt as soon as possible, but he doubted that many of the destroyed business concerns would be able to rebuild.

WORM PICKER — Helen Rail holds some of the hundreds of dew worms she collects in a night's work on a Toronto golf course, leased by the bait company for which she works. A light on her miner's helmet helps pinpoint the worms in the darkness. A good worm picker can collect about 12,000 a night — the record is 16,500. One Toronto bait company sets its sales this year at 100,000,000 for a total value of about $500,000. (CP Photo).

Workers Are Not After Pars Or Birdies But Dew Worms

TORONTO (CP)—Shortly after the last golfer has left the 18th hole on many of Toronto's golf courses each evening, a small army of workers move in. They're not after pars or birdies but dew worms.

One firm, Brennan Brothers Live Bait Company, sends out 350 to 400 worm-pickers on 14 courses in the Metropolitan Toronto area. Rights to gather worms on the properties are leased by the company under contracts running from one to five years.

This year the company hopes to net 100,000,000 worms for fishermen, mostly in the United States, for about $500,000.

The company's plant has a walk-in refrigerator where as many as 15,000,000 worms can be kept in a state of hibernation—at about 34 degrees — before shipment in boxes to dealers in Ontario, Quebec and the United States.

"Toronto and Hamilton have the best worm beds on the continent," said Dave Brennan, because climate and soil conditions are perfect.

Good pickers get about 12,000 worms each every night. The record is 16,500.

Skill is needed to spot the worms instantly in the beam of a headlamp and to pick them before their quick retreat. A beginner might find it hard to get as many as 200 in a night, said Bob Drouin, another partner.

The pickers — many of them part-time students — work in a boat-like lamp powered by a belt battery, and two one - gallon cans are strapped to their legs. One is filled with washed, sorted dew worms ready for sale. The other holds slippery night crawlers, and the different sizes to be collected worms.

There isn't too much difference between Canadian amateur and professional athletes, at least in the opinion of their coaches.

Oddly enough, this sort of nonsense appears to be the solid consensus of opinion of soccer, football, track and field and golf athletes.

The complainers—in all cases dating back over a period of 10 years or so—didn't have a legitimate squawk.

Last week, for instance, Torontonian Al Balding let off steam to reporters covering the U.S. open golf championship at Manhasset, Neck, N.Y. His subject: The British Open.

COMPLAINED ON RETURN

Three years ago Balding and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, returned to Canada with nothing in their bid amateur club and complaints about the alleged ill-treatment they received from British Open officials. The red carpet wasn't laid out for 1Canada's "goodwill" ambassadors and, of course, neither got very far in the tournament.

No one knows why Balding teed off on British officials while practising for the U.S. Open, but, for record, here's what he had to say: "At the British Open, you're treated like a caddy. . . I was forced to trudge through the rain to the servants' entrance with all my gear in England. Here we have hotel arrangements made for us, courtesy cars provided and the finest of treatment."

If anything, this statement conveys what people following sport, already know: that golf pros are prima donnas, in the same class with their tennis brethren.

His statement recalls the 1948 Olympic Games in London when Canada's athletes, billeted with hundreds of athletes from other countries at a converted RAF station just outside the city, griped their heels. The track and field "stars" were the chief culprits.

Wigs Rocking Tennis World, Gadgets Go to Girls' Heads

LONDON (AP) — Wigs—not rackets—rock the tennis world today.

Wigs are the latest things for girl tennis players," said Teddy Tinling, the Englishman who years ago fashioned Gussie Moran's famous lace - edged panties.

"We've devised a whole set of these wigs," Tinling told reporters Monday. "Are girl players are taking to them like a ball to a base line.

"The color of the new tennis wigs range from a weird blue to even more weird pink.

"Wigs definitely will be worn at this year's Wimbledon," said Tinling.

The annual Wimbledon lawn tennis championships get under way next Monday.

But tennis wigs won't be worn by all the girls.

"Certainly not by me" said Russia's Anna Dmitrieva. "I'll wear shorts. We take tennis seriously in the Soviet Union."

Another dissenting voice was that of Lady Crossfield, who wore a pre-World War tennis party every year on her broad London lawn.

"I think it's absolutely ridiculous — a quite preposterous idea," she said.

"When a girl has pretty hair, what does it matter if it gets a little untidy when she's playing."

Karoi Fazeros, who made fashion news with her gold lime panties, said she liked the idea of wigs.

Tinling said heat and tennis play havoc with a girl's coiffure.

"The wigs are designed to be worn over a tiny bandeau of towelling to mop up perspiration.

"They combine a new beauty aid with a practical way of keeping the face dry."

Canadians Win In Britain

LONDON (CP) — Canada produced two runners-up in the first week of a British tour by visiting teams gathered here for the Commonwealth women's golf tournament.

Of the Canadians, who finished second behind Britain in the Commonwealth Trophy event at St. Andrew's, Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto captured medalist honors with a two-under-par 71 at Newcastle, County Down, last Tuesday.

Rae Milligan of Jasper, Alta., teamed with a Dutch partner to win second low net in a two-ball foursomes event at the Royal Wales Golf Club in Llandudno on Saturday.

The Commonwealth golfers will complete their tour Saturday, when they play their final match against the Golf Society of Great Britain at Sandwich, Kent.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Compactor, owned by Joseph Tomlinson of Oakville, won the featured 1½-mile race at Greenwood Raceway Monday. Compactor led all the way to defeat Nelson Hanover by a slightly more than a length in the 1-1-16 mile run.

Other favorite, White Apache, finished third.

DURELLE IMPRESSES

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Canadian British Empire light heavyweight champ Yvon Durelle, who meets world titleholder Archie Moore in Montreal July 15, continued to impress railbirds with his left hand here Monday.

Charley Goldman, who trained former world welterweight champion Rocky Marciano, said he was "very satisfied" with Durelle's progress in training.

"I'm especially pleased with the way he's punching with that left. He can hit with the right hand, and now is developing more power in his left. That'll give Moore two hands to worry about instead of one."

At the Belle

Gregory Peck, Susan Hayard in Technicolor Production of Hemingway Classic

Ernest Hemingway has a lucid way with words; Darryl Zanuck has a keen concept of film making and between them they have achieved a superb motion picture "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", which opened last night at the Belle Theatre.

They had capable 'assistance, of course, from Director Henry King, and three of the most personable stars who ever graced the screen — Gregory Peck, Susan Hayward and Ava Gardner, and a capable cast headed by Hildegarde Neff and Leo G. Carroll.

It is so easy to get ecstatic about "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", that one hardly knows where to begin in describing the adult, haunting love story which moves from Africa, with scenes of big game hunting, to Paris and its intriguing bolites, through the French Riviera, to the Spanish Civil War and back to the African camp at the base of Mt. Kilimanjaro.

BRILLIANT CHARACTERIZATIONS

The thin-plot Hemingway story of a virile writer, and big game hunter who while awaiting possible death, reviews his life, loves, adventures and frustrations, and in a series of flashbacks, each of which unfolds a story of its own. Gregory Peck plays the story of this writer with great assurance and is most facile to a difficult characterization which requires him to express conflicting emotions in handling the women in his life.

This is actually a three-in-one love story, it also is an exciting adventure story.

SECOND FEATURE TOP MOVIE

The second new feature attraction is a Top Movie, offering a new high in Romance and suspense. Robert Todd, Beverly Tyler, Betsy Drake, Herbert Lom and Francis Sherwin, titled, "Desert Kill".

The picture is a tense drama of a U.S. combat action climax. The story tells of an attempt by Nazis to set up a Latin American dictator, a patient in a Montreal, Canada hospital, refuses to undergo a delicate brain operation, Lom's would-be assassin, Todd, Miss Tyler and Miss Drake, staff doctors, in the plot.

The fast-paced picture comes to a gripping climax following a thrilling chase in the hospital, a climax so unexpected and unusual, that it takes audiences by complete surprise.

Fred Haney May Quit As Manager

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Whether or not Milwaukee Braves win the National League pennant may be Fred Haney's last year as manager.

Haney, appointed vice-president of the Studio City Bank opening in Hampden at San Fernando Valley, is anxious to spend more of his time here among the natives and close friends. He has been 42 years in baseball, is 61 years old, and says:

"I've reached a point in life where I want to enjoy myself and that place is right here."

Haney says he doesn't like the Braves win or lose the pennant or the world series will have no effect on his decision.

"If I feel at the end of this year as I do now, this may be my last season in baseball," he said.

He said if he stayed in baseball it would be with Milwaukee.

Haney has had out discussed his status with Milwaukee officials.

Dennis Morgan to Take Over Ford Spot With TV Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I think they just gave up trying to make good movies." That's the analysis of the film industry's woes by Dennis Morgan, himself a victim of the system.

Not much has been heard from Dennis since he left Warner Brothers five years ago. Now he's back in action with a television series, 19 Beacon Street, which takes over for Tennessee Ernie Ford July 2.

Shed no tears for Morgan. He earned top money for most of the 15 years he spent at WB and has lived sensibly. And he looks great.

"I haven't made a picture in five years because the studios haven't offered me anything I thought was any good," he said. "There have been scripts, yes, but they're pretty lousy. Fortunately, I'm in a spot where I won't have to. I don't do them."

He feels it's a bad thing for an actor to be under contract to a studio where his fate is determined by the bosses upstairs, he's his way.

"I couldn't take parts in good pictures that were offered by other studios," he revealed. "I'd find to bootleg myself out to get Patty Fayle; I'd did a test for it without the studio's knowledge.

"So I stayed at Warners and did bad pictures. Why? Usually it was because they promised me better things would follow.

"I took only one suspension. That was for Cinderella Jones. They kept telling me it had all the qualities of Princess O'Rourke. But when I came where I was supposed to eat soup sandwich and have bubbles come out of my mouth. I threw the script out the window.

"The poor guy who did the part went back to New York after-wards and never returned."

Denis did musicals, comedies and dramas at Warners and he has been offered a variety of TV series, including several western. He walted until 19 Beacon Street because he thought it was different.

Olmedo Wins Over Aussie

Olmedo took an hour to defeat the 10th-ranking Australian.

The Peruvian was off form in the opening set and lost his first three services 1-5.

If your child is born today the rare mind born with you will begin very early in life to feel that the best way to get ahead or get what is desired most is by fighting for it. It becomes your duty to point out that by the gentle handling of one's fellow man, more can be gained and one's own life and personality as well. Once this is learned, this remarkable chart will close beautifully, philosophically and happily.

Citizens' Group Should Help to Improve Cities

MURRAY BAY, Que. (CP)—A Canadian industrialist suggested Monday that individuals and citi-zens' groups should take a bigger hand in improving Canadian towns and cities.

R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Com-pany of Canada, today told the annual meeting of the Canadian Transit Association that citizens' advisory councils could give a lot of help to town planners.

Text of his remarks was re-leased to the press in advance of delivery.

He said most cities have urgent problems of redevelopment. As a result, other sections now in de-cline tend to be neglected.

"While city planners struggle with the monumental task of un-tangling snarled traffic and re-developing slum areas, parallel efforts could be made by volun-teer citizens' committees towards decelerating the decline of other areas 20 providing a new sense of direction and progress."

YACHTSMEN RESCUED

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (CPC)—Three Toronto men whose yacht drifted out of control in high winds on Lake Ontario were rescued six miles west of here Saturday night by the U.S. Coast Guard. Liberace Libel Case Jury Hears Final Addresses

LONDON (Reuters)—American entertainer Liberace "appears to have been in his bonnet" about people accusing him of homosexuality, the High Court was told today.

Lawyer Gerald Gardiner made this statement in his concluding address on behalf of The Daily Mirror and its columnist, Cassandra, whose real name is William Connor.

It was the sixth day of Liberace's libel suit before a jury of 10 men and two women. The case was expected to end late today or Wednesday.

Liberace alleged Connor implied in articles when the 40-year-old pianist came to Britain in 1956 that he was a homosexual. Connor has denied making this implication. He pleaded "fair comment."

COURT PACKED

The court room was packed for the final pleas. Liberace, wearing a dark grey suit, sat in the courtroom next to his lawyers.

Gardiner appealed to the jury not to consider what the words published by Connor would mean in America but "what the ordinary, reasonable reader" of the Daily Mirror would understand them to mean.

The lawyer said Connor was stressing first of all Liberace's "sex appeal," then said nothing wrong in doing that, he said.

Gardiner declared: "I shall suggest that plaintiff appears to have a bee in his bonnet about people calling him with homosexuality."

JUDGE'S DIRECTION

Judge Cyril Salmon told the jury it must decide on the five following questions:

1. Do the words complained of in the article of Sept. 26, 1956, in the ordinary and natural meaning mean that the plaintiff is a homosexual?

2. Without this meaning are the words (a) true in so far as they are statements of fact (b) fair comment in so far as they are expressions of opinion?

3. Damages if any for the publication of Sept. 26, 1956. If the answers to questions 1 and 2 both are in favor of the plaintiff, how much of the damages are attributable to the imputation of homosexuality?

4. Were the words in defendants' publication of Oct. 18, 1956, fair comment?

5. Damages in respect of that publication.

Flood Scourge Dealing Heavy Blow to Chinese

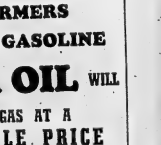
By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP)—China's age-old flood scourge is dealing a heavy blow to the Communist regime's plans to continue the "great leap forward" in 1959.

Torrential rains have been pounding south and central China for a week. Red broadcasts admit floods have inundated 900 square miles in Kwantung province alone. The mobilization of some 3,000,000 persons indicates the flooded area is much greater.

Pelping Radio said the survival of crops is going ahead normally in other sections. But weather observers in Tokyo reported that the warm-air front which brought the downpour to Kwantung has moved toward the thickly settled lower Yangtze River valley.

FURTHER TROUBLE



The weathermen said a low pressure area has developed over Hankow, Shanghai, Nanking and other east coast areas and that they are due for a drenching.

The rains also have brought death and destruction to the adjacent British colony of Hong Kong. Tropical thunderstorms have killed between 46 and 60 Chinese there and 5,000 are homeless.

The Kwangtung rains were preceded by the heaviest rainstorm in 40 years in the Wuhan area of central China June 8. The Reds reported four to six inches of rain fell in a 14-hour period.

"Shock brigades of the communes rushed rich fish stocks of the farm land to carry on drainage work around the clock," the news account said.

About 100 square miles of cotton, rice and vegetables were flooded in the outskirts of Wuhan.

When they are troubled by backache, that tired feel before or after their periods, many women turn to Dodd's Kidney Pills. These pills are discussed by excess acids and wastes in the system and Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate the kidneys and aid their normal action of removing these excess acids and wastes. Then life seems brighter, housework lighter! Why don't you, too, try Dodd's?

Canada's Present Approach To Drug Addiction Problem Leaves Much to Be Desired

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There is a growing belief in authoritative circles that Canada's present approach to the problem of drug addiction leaves much to be desired.

This belief has spread to the federal cabinet level. As a result, some changes in the approach likely will be made in the fairly near future.

Changes are certain to be toward more of a treatment approach than one stressing punitive measures. But there won't be anything like legal drug outlets for any addict who wants a "fix."

Critics of Canada's present legal attitude toward drug addiction say it results in a double standard: a tolerant, understanding one toward addicts in the medical profession and a harsher one for those in the criminal category.

ABOUT 2,200 ADDICTS

The number of addicts in Canada has remained around 2,200 for the last several years. Strict police enforcement of narcotics laws, especially by the RCMP, is given most of the credit.

But former RCMP Commissioner L. H. Nicholson has said: "We have made a serious effort to kill narcotic drug traffic by strict enforcement, but despite this effort we have not been successful. So long as the demand for illicit narcotic drugs exists there will be criminals to supply it."

About 500 of Canada's addicts are people who have a legitimate medical need for a drug, usually morphine. About 300 more are doctors, nurses and dentists. The remaining 2,500 - odd are considered criminal addicts.

One authority in Ottawa recently told a reporter there is little to distinguish the addict in the medical profession from the criminal addict.

GET DRUGS LEGALLY

"They have no medical need for drugs. The only difference is that they can get drugs legally."

Canadian drug laws, written originally in 1908 and revised occasionally since, make it an offence to possess a drug for any but medical purposes, although the actual taking of a drug is not illegal.

Drug firms are required to provide the federal health department with extensive records showing what happened to every ounce of drugs handled. From these, authorities can usually detect a doctor who has become addicted himself.

A suspect doctor is first sent a letter requesting an explanation of his heavy use of drugs. If the explanation is unsatisfactory, a department investigator visits the doctor and some program for a cure is worked out, or at least discussed, if he is found to be an addict.

There is no question of a criminal charge or a jail sentence —the inevitable fate of most other persons found in illegal possession of drugs.

DOCTORS INFORMED

Department records sometimes also show that certain persons are getting drugs from more than one doctor. In this case the department informs the doctors.

"But we don't interfere with doctors' opinions of who needs how much of a drug," one authority said.

It was not inconceivable that some addicts, leading otherwise normal lives, might manage to obtain regular dosages from doctors and thus escape a jail term, or the dangerous need to deal with illicit suppliers.

Most of Canada's criminal addicts are in Vancouver. But there are some in Toronto and Montreal.

There are differing views among experts as to the amount of physical harm done by long use of drugs. Ottawa authorities say evidence is mounting to support the thinking originally behind Canada's drug laws — that steady use of drugs eventually debilitates the body, especially the brain.

AMENDMENTS LIKELY

Eventually, the legislation seems certain to be amended to remove much of the criminal taint from the misfortune of becoming addicted to drugs, while retaining stiff penalties for those trafficking in drugs.

One strong possibility is that the person who would now come under the criminal category would be subject to an indefinite sentence and then be released under a carefully - conditioned parole as quickly as possible.

He would also be forced to accept the aid and treatment of experts on his addiction problem, an incentive some authorities consider essential to cure the average addict.

More provision likely will be made for patience and the exercise of judgment in each individual case, rather than following the rigidity of existing laws.

NEED TAPERING OFF

It has been recognized, for example, that some addicts might require a gradual tapering off to be cured; or an occasional shot during the cure period to relieve severe discomfort — It would depend entirely upon medical and psychological factors.

There likely will also be provision for the reformed addict who slips up now and again on the road to freedom from his habit.

Justice Minister Fulton, while in favor of a more humane and curative approach, is known to be opposed to any plan whereby addicts can get freely all the drugs they wanted.

In both cases much individual attention was given and they were released far from the arrest familiar to them in their addiction days.

In both cases, much individual attention was given and they were released far from the arrest familiar to them in their addiction days.

"Jest a Second"

"I'll admit she does get a little impatient sometimes."

One Man Drowns, Second Saved In Plane Crash

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was drowned and a second saved today after their small amphibious airplane crashed on takeoff from Lake of Two Mountains just west of Montreal Island.

Bruce McPhee, 35, of suburban Pointe Clair, was drowned when he tried to swim the two miles to shore.

His companion, William Lowre, 27, of suburban Dorval, was rescued after clinging to the tail of the partly submerged aircraft for almost an hour.

Lowre told police McPhee changed his mind about swimming to shore after he had gone about 200 yards, and started to return to the plane. He disappeared with 200 yards to go.

Dr. Ivan Levesque said McPhee apparently suffered a heart attack.

Pearson Brings Pallett Case Before Commons

Asks Committee Study Expropriation of Land

OTTAWA (CP)—A government land expropriation case involving John Pallett, chief government whip, was brought to public view before the Commons today by Opposition Leader Pearson.

Mr. Pearson said the findings of the Exchequer Court in the case reflect on Mr. Pallett and the implications in the case are too serious to be ignored.

A debate arose on whether Mr. Pearson's motion to send the matter to the privileges committee for examination was in order. Justice Minister Fulton contended it was out of order, suggesting an attempt was being made to smear Mr. Pallett.

The Exchequer Court said June that a real estate appraiser appointed by the government on the recommendation of Mr. Pallett, MP for the Toronto-area riding of Peel, had testified that he had been instructed by Mr. Pallett to put as generous a valuation as possible on properties expropriated by the transport department at Malton, Ont. The appraiser, J. C. Carter, was a former political campaign organizer for Mr. Pallett.

ASKED RE PRIVILEGE

Speaker Roland Michener asked Pearson whether a question of privilege was involved. The conduct of an MP must be related to the privileges of the House and this has been done as outlined in the court judgment, Pearson replied in the Commons.

Mr. Pearson said he would make a comprehensive statement if his motion were ruled in order. The Speaker, however, said he relates not only to the conduct of an MP but to the government revenue and a cabinet minister as well.

The court said Mr. Pallett had argued that Transport Minister Hees had bound himself to accept the valuations of Mr. Clare, which were higher than those of transport department land agents.

"All we are asking is that this matter be referred to a committee so it can be investigated," Mr. Pearson said. "The whole matter should be cleared up."

"LACKS FORTITUDE"

Mr. Fulton said MP. Pearson lacks the fortitude to bring a formal charge against Mr. Pallett. "He has been content to hide behind his "fiddled around" for months with this matter, thereby showing a reluctance to come to grips with it. This was a "tender, delicate, fastidious" violet" approach.

Mr. Pearson had been "mincing up and then backing away."

Replying, Mr. Fulton said Mr. Pearson to say how the case reflects on Mr. Pallett and to name the charges he wishes to bring against the member.

Mr. Fulton said the most harmful aspect of the motion was that innuendo and insinuations were made that Mr. Pallett had been in placing it on the order paper "in the most reprehensibly party manner."

Mr. Pearson said he was

Anthony Cekata Tells Kiwanians Of Asian Trip

The communists will never take over Asia because of the strong nationalistic spirit of the Asian people.

This is the view of East Asian intellectuals brought back by Mr. Anthony Cekata, director of research and industrial relations of the Bata Shoe Company, when he toured East Asia last winter.

On a 35-day business tour for the Bata Company, the Canadian-Slovalian-born naturalized Canadian visited 10 Far Eastern countries including India, Thailand, Malaya, Hong Kong and Japan.

In an address to the Belleville Kiwanis Club at the noon meeting yesterday in the Kiwanis Centre, Mr. Cekata gave fellow Kiwanians his impressions of the Far East situation today.

He stressed the upsurge of nationalism which has finally broken the bounds of centuries of foreign domination is "sweeping aside western imperialism, U.S. militarism, and human attempts at conversion to communism".

The aim of the Far Eastern nations? Mr. Cekata said, is to bring about an Arabic Renaissance. Highly critical of western civilization, the Asians are "just borrowing from the west in the fields of science and industrial technology", he stated.

Mr. Cekata was introduced by Bob Freestone, and thanked by John Denton.

The meeting was conducted by vice-president George Tripp in the absence of president Gerry Wishart, who accompanied Mrs. Wishart to attending Kiwanis Dallas, Texas, this week.

Is International convention in the club received a telegram from president Wishart stating he and his wife are enjoying the conventions and the hospitality, and that Canada is well represented at the international convention.

On display during the meeting were various souvenirs of Mr. Cekata's Far Eastern tour. Included was a hand-woven purse set, and carved ivory chessmen from India; a copper cutlery set from Thailand, and a wicked-looking dagger in wooden scabbard from Bali; also colored snapshots taken in India, Bangkok and Hong Kong.

In addition Kiwanians were treated to Indian and Japanese music during the dinner, provided by two musicians brought here from those countries. It was announced by the chairman the annual golf outing of the club will this evening at 6.30 p.m. at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. R. Roblin, Redmerrville Road.

The lots will be sold for $20.00 each subject to the town engineer's report on the flooding issue, as well as the regulations for that area under the new zoning by-law.

LEASE ROADWAY

Arnold Reaboy of 85 Water Street, asked the town to sell him a part of the roadway allowance to enable him to fence his property off from a deep creek which runs through the property. The town refused to sell the property but agreed to lease the roadway for the sum of $8 per year. Mr. Radway required the land to fence the creek to protect his children from falling over the steep banks into the water which is building a fence. He said his children have been warned away from playing too near the bank. It is believed the town owns the creek.

SEE PLAN FOR SUBDIVISION

A plan of the new subdivision to be built outside of town on Dundas Street, Mills Acres was viewed by the councillors. The plans were sent to the council chamber to enable members to become acquainted with development in the new boundaries.

BID ACCEPTED

A letter from the public works department in Bellville informing the town of Trenton that their bid of $300 for a distributor to spread material on road surfaces has been accepted but the delivery date will be delayed until Bellville's new machine has arrived. Councillor Lloyd Weese of the Trenton Public Works Committee recommended the town accept the purchase and the council agreed.

STREET SWEEPER

Trenton's town councillors also approved investigation into the possibilities of purchasing a good second-hand mechanical street sweeper. Town Engineer Ken Hall explained the uses of such a machine and said the use in Belleville and Napanee Committee had in mind would be a 1948 model which had been completely overhauled and in good shape. It would cost in the vicinity of $3,000 and it is believed it will be brought to Trenton for demonstration run.

PAYMENT ON FIRE TRUCK

Councillor Graham chairman of the Fire Protection Trenton Property Committee recommended that the town pay $20,000 to cancel the cost of the new combination aerial ladder and pumper truck. The request for the payment came from C.E. Hickey who said the town was realized that some parts of the truck were still to come. However, there will be about $30,000 dollars on the final payment until the accessories are now missing arrive.

TO ILLUMINATE TURN

Councillor approved the recommendation by the Traffic Committee that the turn off Highway 33 and onto Bell Boulevard will have some type of light-reflecting tape to make the turn easier to find after dark.

REPORT ON TAXES

Tax collector Alan Weaver is responsible compiled by the town fathers for his monthly report on the collection of taxes. Mayor Ross Burtt said it was a very good report and that he felt the collector was doing an excellent job. In his report, Mr. Weaver said: "It is not my duty to give a gloomy outlook at this time but the increase in this date a year ago is large and we only reduced the carryover at the end of 1958 by eight thousand. In the present rate of collections the carryover at the end of 1959 could be increased, and this is very undesirable.

STAMP FUND

A resolution was passed by the town council to authorize a stamp fund of $10 for use by the probation officer, Dennis Allen.

AIR POLLUTION BY-LAW

A resolution to introduce and give first reading to a by-law governing air pollution in the town was read and passed. A copy of the new by-law will be given to each of the councillors to study and they will be prepared to discuss it at the next meeting of council to suggest any changer they may think desirable.

STAGGERED TERMS

First, second and final readings were given to the by-law which provides staggered three year terms of office for councillors in the town. The new municipal elections this way approved by Trenton voters. Following the municipal elections (December, 1959), the mayor will be elected for a two-year period and the three councillors receiving the highest number of votes will sit for two years, and the three others will sit for one year. Will Not Supply Sewer Services Outside Town

TRENTON — A request from R. A. Gazley for sewer services to a subdivision to be built outside of the town's boundary was turned down by Trenton's town councillors when the matter was brought before them on Monday night.

Mayor Ross Burtt, who is also the town's representative on the Public Utilities Commission, told the council that the letter of the letter was brought up at a meeting held by the commission on Monday afternoon but the PUC had decided not to run any water lines outside of the town boundaries. But this did not mean that the PUC would not hook onto a line already built to sell the water.

Councillor Vago Lange suggested Mr. Gazley should go to the County Township council, which own the land on which the building will be constructed and ask them to supply the services requested. If Murray Council turns them down then they would be in order for them to apply for such services from the town of Trenton. This the councillor felt, may encourage the people to live outside of the town and seek annexation to the town.

Councillor William Shadlaw said he felt the town should not build sewer lines outside the town. "They are not paying taxes in town", he said, "which have the sewers put and these should be also first."

Councillor Lloyd Weese agreed with Councillor Shadlaw and Councillor Aziz had no comment.

Mayor Burtt instructed the applicant for services to seek these from the Murray township council and if they cannot supply the services then the next step would be for them to apply for annexation to the town of Trenton.

Centre Increases Bank Overdraft To Pay Bills

TRENTON — The financial position of the Community Centre came under severe discussion at Monday night's meeting of the town council following the reading of a letter from the board asking that the town grant permission to increase the bank overdraft for the Centre from the present $2,000 to $5,000.

The letter explained that the extra money was needed to pay current bills in the running of the centre. The council passed a resolution to allow the increase in the overdraft.

Following on the issue Mayor Ross Burtt told the council, — "Gentlemen we have the Community Centre in our laps and the town has a $100,000 investment in the Centre to protect. It is a good place for the children to go and for adults to gather and it certainly helps to keep them off the streets.

"It is my opinion that we now have a good manager in the Centre and we also have two members of council sitting on the board, Deputy Reeve Ian Bell and Aziz) and the rink is making some money, even if it is not paying for its current expenses.

"However, in comparison with other rinks in the province we are doing a lot better than they are. In fact we are lucky. If the town withdrew from the setup on the board I feel we should grant the request now and increase in the overdraft then it should be alright. We can't close the rink down."

Councillor Vago Lange, chairman of the Community Centre board said he felt the greatest drawback of the Centre's finances was the fact the people of Trenton were not supporting the rink by putting down and buying a ticket. He said there had been some good shows put on at the Centre but the citizens didn't seem to be interested. He also suggested that the council investigate the rink situation next November.

Will Be 2 Weeks Before City Audit Finished

Mayor Gerald Hyde today discredited a story from Toronto to the effect that Belleville citizens should know within a week how much they will have to pay in taxes to replace money taken from the city treasury to help finance the World Champion Belleville Mohawk Farlands Hockey Team.

Mayor Hyde said that according to acting city treasurer Gerrard Minner, who is also bringing city books up to date, the audit to May 9th will not be completed for at least another two weeks and possibly longer.

"I can't believe the report will be ready in a week," Mayor Hyde said. "The city books have now been posted up to date but receivables have still to be checked out and the hockey books are still far from complete.

The Mayor went on to note that bringing of the city books up to date was being slowed down by the fact that Mr. Minner is working in the dual capacity as auditor and acting city treasurer and thus has to also keep up with the routine work of

A 29-year-old Toronto woman has been remanded to Hastings county jail on a charge of having a firearm without a permit, and a Toronto man has been turned over to Peterborough police after being kept under surveillance at the Belleville General Hospital all Tuesday night.

The two persons, Mrs. Della Burns, and Earl Murray Northey, 35, suffered minor injuries yesterday when their car went out of control and rolled over on No. 401 Highway northwest of the city.

Police said that a loaded automatic pistol was found in the woman's purse and the woman and her male companion were kept under surveillance at the hospital pending investigation.

This morning Mrs. Burns was remanded to county jail and will appear in magistrate's court Thursday, while Mr. Northey was turned over to Peterborough police who are said to want him for false pretences.

Addresses of the man and woman were not learned other than the car said to belong to Mrs. Burns was registered at a Rexdale address in suburban Toronto.

Ontario Provincial Police Corporal Harry Barker and Constable Dick Ellis are investigating.

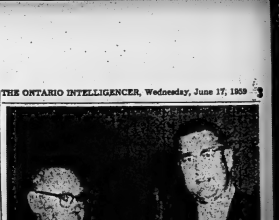
Boating Week Highlights Safety Afloat

National Boating Week has been proclaimed in Canada this year from June 21 to 27. Sponsored by the Marine Association of Canada, it has been aimed to develop a national water education program for Canadians early in the boating season.

"It is estimated that more than 750,000 Canadian families own pleasure boats", declared Robert Kelly, manager of the Marine Association of Canada. "Many thousands more go boating each year in a rented or borrowed boat. This makes Canadians the most boating conscious people on earth". Canada provides unequaled natural facilities for pleasure boating, according to Kelly. Thousands of lakes and rivers, canals and reservoirs produce ideal boating waters in all provinces.



"It is apparent, however", he continued, "that many of these wrecked skippers do not appreciate their responsibilities afloat. National Boating Week will stress such themes as the rules of the road, a check list of boating equipment required by law, and motors available to demonstrate safe boating practices to the general public. Many of these dealers are also offering free boating booklets and safety literature during this period.

"Pleasure boating is still one of the safest of outdoor recreations", said Kelly, "as long as a little common sense is applied by the weekend skipper. But because of the great number of families participating, accidents and tragedies continue to occur on Canadian waters. It is to prevent these accidents, however few, that National Boating Week was proclaimed."

CANCER-PRONE CLUE

LONDON (Reuters) — Men with thick hair appear to be more prone to cancer than those whose hair is not so thick or are bald, Dr. Cyril Eastwood, chief medical officer of health for Cambridge, said Tuesday. Writing in The Medical Press he added that those with thick gray or white hair appeared more likely still to get cancer than those with thick hair of a "normal" color.

Quinte Driving, Riding Club To Hold First Meet July 4

It took a few drops of organization fuel to fan the slow-burning flame of harness racing into what threatens to be a spreading blaze.

A few weeks ago a handful of harness men decided to form a club. They called a meeting to see what the general reaction would be.

Last night the new Quinte Driving and Riding Club had its first meeting at the Fair Grounds.

Besides President Jack Jeffrey and his executive, some 50 members (all paid up at $1.00) were on hand. There was enthusiasm plus.

Treasurer Phil Stewart said this morning "the memberships are coming in steadily. By next week we expect to have 200. We have members from Belleville, Picton, Tweed, Trenton, Napanee, Bloomfield and other district centres. The response has been wonderful."

The new club lost no time getting into action. It decided to hold its first meet at the Fair Grounds here on Saturday, July 4, starting at 1 p.m. in the evening.

There will be three class races of two heats each. Included are the 2.25 Class with a purse of $100; the 2.25 Class, purse, $125 and, the 2.20 Class with a purse of $150.

Hand-some blankets will be presented to the winners of each race. These have been donated by Jack Bush, of Belleville; Les Ehlick, Toronto, and an unnamed donor.

Cameron Bonnett and Lorne Urch will operate their new starting gate at the July 4 inaugural meet.

The next meeting of the club has been set for Thursday, June 25, at the Fair Grounds starting at seven o'clock. All harness racing lovers are invited to attend, and if they wish, become club members.

Some 14 horses are under training at the Fair Grounds. Mr. Stewart said. Indicative of their calibre is the fact that not a few of them are meeting with fine success at various tracks now in operation.

Night Operators Take Cash From Three Offices

Night operators last night forced their way into three places of business in the city and made off with small amounts of cash from each place.

Entered were the offices of Lightfoot Construction on East Moira St.; Murray Equipment Company, 19 West College St., and Bellewood Manufacturing Company Ltd. on East Dundas. Entry in each place was made through a window.

At Lightfoot's the intruders forced open a small safe containing petty cash and records. At Murray Equipment two small cash boxes were forced open and close to $50 taken, while at Bellewood Manufacturing $8 petty cash was stolen from a desk drawer. Detective Harold Reid and Constable Bill Warring are investigating.

ROYAL TOUR STARTS

Tomorrow the Queen and her husband arrive in Canada. Their third trip to North America was originally arranged to permit Her Majesty to join with President Eisenhower in opening officially the St. Lawrence Seaway, a project whose immensity bears witness to the achievements possible through the peaceful cooperation of great nations. But before she leaves these shores some 44 days later, the Queen will not only have toured much of the Great Lakes but will have visited many parts of Canada not connected with the seaway development.

It is inevitable that on a tour of this nature there should be many occasions where formality will be the keynote. We are told, though, in a despatch by Reuters, the British press agency, that the Queen prefers simple pleasures to the pomp and circumstance which traditionally surround royalty and that, in accordance with her wishes, the tour will be as informal as possible.

We do not pretend to know what the Queen prefers. It is true that most Canadians will find it easy to believe that she finds formal ceremonies tedious; this may be more an expression of the Canadian national temperament than of the Queen's own feelings and it is also easy to believe that a Queen, so devoted to duty, would request informality even if she did not prefer it, because of the evident preference of Canadians for such an atmosphere.

We do hope though, whatever may be Her Majesty's own preferences, that the tour gives her considerable opportunity to enjoy her visit and that neither the parades, speeches and monument-unveilings nor the expectation of Canadians that she will find pleasure in mingling with Canadians from many different walks of life will place too great a strain on her physical strength and her ever-good nature.

It is surely obvious, though, that no person unendowed with supernatural endurance would undertake such an itinerary for pleasure.

If the Queen and her husband really enjoy informality, let them come to Canada some time without anyiron-clad schedule to imprison them - and welcomed.

They would always be welcome - - and welcomed.

A STROKE IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

This week the Quinte Water Safety Council is making an all-out effort to bring the various aspects of water safety to the attention of local residents. Together with a number of co-operating organizations, such as the Belleville Harbor Commission, the YMCA, the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, the Public School Board, and the Red Cross - - to mention but a few of those who are sharing a part in these activities - - the Council has arranged a program designed to inform people of the proper and safe manner of conducting themselves on or in the water.

The number of deaths which occurs annually in Ontario waters through accidental . . and sometimes senseless . . . drownings rises continually as more and more people seek the beaches and waters for relaxation and recreation during the summer months. Unfortunately as the numbers of people increase so do the numbers of those who have no knowledge of safe conduct or of how to swim.

Any group which is dedicated to the purpose of educating the public, and especially its younger members, in an effort to cut down on the needless expenditure of human life certainly deserves the co-operation of all . . and the attention of those it is designed to serve. The local water safety council, under the chairmanship of Mayor Harold Graig, has put on an ambitious and worthy program to provide local citizens with the opportunity of learning the facts of water safety and to provide various of the public school students with the opportunity of learning to swim.

The local Water Safety Week, under the guidance of Jack Devine, will feature a public gathering at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, which is offering the facilities of its club house for an informative evening on Thursday. Various films and water safety persons will be present for the occasion. It would seem that a large number of people should be present.

Detecting Atomic Blasts

By Pierre de Latil in UNESCO Features

—The job of detecting atomic explosions will be one of the biggest international operations ever undertaken by mankind. It has, spread out in an immense network covering the globe would work in close co-operation on a basis of planetary scope — perhaps the most urgent of all tasks we can undertake at present — to free the world from the specter of the bomb.

The man in the street finds it extremely difficult to follow the long international conferences which has been going on for months in Geneva on the halting of nuclear tests, because he is not familiar with the document which is serving as a basis for the discussions — a long, detailed report unanimously adopted by a committee of experts who also met in Geneva a few months ago.

How can you tell if a nuclear explosion has taken place somewhere on the face of the earth? How, on a practical level, can a "dog" system be organized? The document draws up in German gives clear, scientific answers to these and many other questions.

First of all, what are natural seismographs? Can these highly sensitive instruments which are designed to detect earthquakes, also detect atomic explosions? The answer is yes. Not only that, but atomic explosions have been registered by seismographs. Yet the experts in Geneva decided not to recommend this method system-atically because it involves a certain risk of confusion.

In fact, every underground explosion, no confusion is possible, but when a bomb is exploded in the air, the case is not the seismograph's chart may not always clearly reveal if it really is a bomb or an earthquake.

A more reliable method of detection is by the sound waves which they produce. Specialists in acoustics have worked out laws governing the propagation over long distances of the sound waves caused by aerial explosions. They have studied weather conditions which may either decrease or increase the chances of detection. Despite these unfavorable conditions, the "weakest" of atomic explosions can be "heard" at a distance of 800 miles. In the sea, sound waves can be detected from a greater distance — 6,200 miles. Of course, sound waves, especially acoustic up "pressure waves" which are similar to the after-effects of bomb explosions, are affected by other ways of identifying waves are also employed.

And what about the radioactive rain or "fall-out" which has become the ultimate in a bombing test? Obviously, any bomb which is exploded under the earth's surface throws up ashes into the atmosphere. Obviously, these ashes will be all the more powerful sooner or later when the radioactivity of the bomb has been measured. But the whims of the wind may blow the ash north, south, east or west. That is why it is difficult to detect the source and area of an atmospheric explosion by this method. However, it provides useful evidence which, coupled with the sound wave system, enables scientists to detect "with a high degree of probability" an explosion amounting to the equivalent of 1,000 tons of TNT at a distance of 2,000 miles, and with a from five to twenty days after the explosion.

This method, of course, will not work if the bomb is exploded underground. Experts have explained above, the explosion can be detected up to the surface with ordinary Hertzian waves caused by the ionization process. These signals can be combined with the sound waves to give a precise location of the explosion between the energy in a stroke of lightning and in a bomb explosion. Consequently, confusion is practically impossible. (Lightning only produces a "background noise," that is, crackling sound you hear on the radio and which is caused by a large number of thunderstorms over a broad area).

When a bomb is exploded underground or under water, the radio signal is quickly absorbed and cannot be used for the purpose of detection. But in this case, the presence of the earth or the ocean indicate the source of the explosion.

But when a bomb is exploded in the air, especially at high altitude, detection by radio signals is very effective. An explosion amounting to the equivalent of 1,000 tons of TNT can be detected from a distance of 3,800 miles provided there are not too many thunderstorms in the vicinity. With a radio direction-finder, you can determine the position of an explosion with a margin of error of only 2 degrees (that is, about 120 miles) at a distance of more than six hundred miles! And the time of the explosion can be calculated to the nearest few thousandths of a second.

Taken separately, none of these methods is infallible. But if you think of detecting any atomic explosion — provided, of course, the explosion is not too sufficiently close together. An explosion which may escape detection by one station will be spotted by the others; evidence which may arouse doubts in one instrument will be confirmed by another. In short, the various methods work should not let anything slip by.

The network suggested by the Geneva experts is a distinct possible size and, consequently, it would be quite costly to operate. Here are a few figures which show the scope of the operation. Each of the 170 control stations would have to be equipped with apparatus for all methods of detection. This would mean the presence of about thirty trained technicians at each station, in addition to a maintenance staff.

From 100 to 110 stations would be set up on land, consequently, with twenty more on the big islands and forty on the mainland — in all, about 160 or 170 stations. The average distance between stations would be from 950 to 1,100 miles, but this figure might have to be reduced to 650 miles in areas where earth-quakes are frequent and could not be cured. To overcome, a dozen observatory ships would patrol the seas permanently.

The hall for such an operation would be the whole of the community of nations . . but it is doubtful whether even if it did mean freeing the world from the pestre of the bomb?

Beauty Queen Was Jilted

Windsor Star

Beauty queens seldom have difficulty finding mates in the marriage mart, unless they are burdened with attributes inimitative to men.

Beauty is not enough, however, in some parts of the world, as demonstrated by an appeal before the Divorce Court Council in England. An unfortunate Cinderella is trying to upset a judgment in his native land which allowed a man a substantial amount for breach of promise.

Miss Jeannette Boange, now 28, was beauty queen of Kegalle, Ceylon, in 1951. Arrangements were made by the respective families for marriage and she claimed that Mr. Gratz promised to wed her. But he backed out when the promised money of money and five acres of tea, made by her family, was not forthcoming. The failure may have wanted her but he seems to have wanted the rupees and the tea even more.

The moral to this story is that before marrying Miss Gratz, get a suitable spouse even the traditional rupees and 10 acres of tea!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is an old belief that when a man is drowning, his whole life flashes before his eyes. I was talking to one of the ship's officers of an ocean freighter that had come up the new St. Lawrence Seaway, during which voyage he had fallen overboard at night and was picked up, half drowned. I asked him what his thoughts were as he felt himself sinking.

"The only thought I had," he said, "was about my wife. I felt I'd let her down. I felt I'd failed her. Between nearly drowning and nearly freezing to death, I had consciousness enfolding me, was that my wife had put two pairs of fur-lined snow boots on the airline ticket for me to take up and put in the cotton mothproof bags for the summer. I had neglected to do so. What worried me was that my wife would find them when I had left them in the attic stairs.

I have talked to several dozen soldiers who got half way through the pearly gates when they suddenly remembered a few things that passed through their minds during the half dark of final realization were almost invariably crazy details. The pick of them all was that of the sergeant whose last conscious effort was quickly adding up the darkening mind the money owed him by four or five of his boys on the platoon, drawing a line, and sighing: "A hundred and ten bucks, and I'll never see a penny of it."

COMMENCEMENT

In this pleasant little village of ours. The streets were crowded. Everybody appeared to be wearing a gown or carrying one. An academic procession is indeed a striking spectacle. I recall how completely bowled over I was the first time I saw such a procession nearly fifty years ago. I attended and attended with admiration yesterday was the multitude of smiling happy parents, proud that their sons had passed an important milestone in life. They had studied and complacently as they heard education a and spiritual values cannot be Communism and greed denounced. The students appeared — as they always do — to be efficiently the problems which their elders had spent so much time trying to solve and yet had failed. Perhaps, the hope that I could see in I thought of the stunned bewilderment with which this young generation was going to discover that the problems which they inherited by having an easy solution have been baffling the best minds and notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts of quite able world leaders for some thousands of years.

But if I have any compensating hope it is interpreted in the willingness of His children and their obedience, rather than their achievement. We have to learn

Big people are always to be found where you least expect to find them. They hide behind big ideas. Their plan is to live big, become great lecturers and shine among the living. Big living but you are then like to live happily big, and that is not forthcoming. The fellow may have wanted her but he seems to have wanted the rupees and the tea even more.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

NEW DENTAL THEORY MAY BECOME PRACTICAL

"Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I read of a new type of filling for teeth which required no drilling. I think it was plastic and stopped the decay when the cavity is filled.

"Can you tell me anything about this? My little girl has very soft teeth, and I want to spare her all the discomfort I have had to go through with the dentist.—J.R."

Ans. You, my readers, know, I am not a dentist and do not pretend to be one. I do, however, have some very highly respected dental experts to whom I turn for advice. By that I mean that I respect them, and other dental people respect them. I tell you what they told me when I outlined the preceding question to them.

There is no type of permanent filling as yet. I stress the word "permanent" — which can be used without first removing the decay and cleaning out the cavity in the tooth.

Fairly recently some dentists have examined a theory to the effect that there may be a way of handling cavity in the tooth if it is deep enough to reach the dentine, which may not be as painful.

Let me repeat. It's a theory and it may work, but it may not.

You see, when you have a cavity in a tooth, there isn't much room to do drilling before you get down to the dentine layer. As a matter of fact, drilling in a dentist isn't nearly as painful now is it was some years ago. Better drills and better techniques have removed most of the dread that used to be connected with dentistry, but it takes a long time for us to overcome the ideas that we have in the backs our heads. Emotionally we still think that we are in for pain, so, yet the truth is that he hurts us very little now.

Anyway, the new theory is that when a patient (young or old) has a great many cavities, it may be possible to put in a more temporary type filling which will cause new, or secondary, dentine to form at the base of the cavity. Then, when the theory goes, it may be possible to remove the temporary filling, and do the required drilling without getting quite so far down into the sensitive layer of the tooth.

This means, of course, that two fillings will be required: — First the temporary filling, later some drilling and the permanent filling.

The theory is probably sound, but as a theory, is that perhaps the medication in the temporary filling will cause dentine to form faster than the decay progresses.

As I said, I'm not a dentist. In these things I rely on the people who know about such matters. They tell me that as yet they have found no reason to accept the new notion.

For me, that's enough. Let's get the permanent job done, and be done with the matter. Possibly some day the new idea will prove to be valid, or perhaps some added improvements may make it valid. But for now, it remains just a theory.

And, as I said earlier, the dental drill no longer is as uncomfortable as it used to be. So a cavity in the skin which, at this stage of the game, in the new idea. It may work out — but it hasn't yet, I'm told.

"Dear Dr. Molner: You recommended baby oil for a woman in her 80's who was troubled with itching. I think I have a better remedy, cold cream.—M.V."

Your remedy sounds sensible to me. In either case, the purpose is to soften the skin which no longer produces as much natural oil as it used to. I'm whichever one happens to work best for anyone.

U.E.L. to Hold Basket Picnic, Unveil Plaque

The Bay of Quinte Branch, United Empire Loyalists Association, is holding its annual picnic on Saturday, June 20, at the U.E.L. Memorial Park at Adolphustown. Registration opens at 1.30 p.m. There will be games for children starting at 2.00 p.m. A historical plaque will be unveiled at 3.30 p.m. marking the U.E.L. landing place. After the unveiling ceremony a basket lunch will be held. The public is cordially invited to attend this event.

A Loyalist Memorial Service will be held on Sunday, June 21, in the U.E.L. Memorial Church of St. Alban the Martyr, at Adolphustown, to which the public will also be welcome.

The historical plaque was erected by the Ontario Archaeological and Historic Sites Board to mark the landing place of the VanAlstine party at Adolphustown on June 16th, 1784. It will be unveiled by John D VanAlstine, the great-great-great-grandson of Major Peter VanAlstine, who led his party from New York in the fall of 1783. Firemen Will Demonstrate Equipment in Disaster Truck; To Show Films on Safety

People faced with an emergency often do different things. Some may stand frozen in their tracks and gawk at the scene; others may become highly excitable and rush about raising a hue and cry but accomplishing little else other than to create confusion; some, however, may take a quick appraisal of the situation and take adequate action. The members of the Belleville Fire Department fall into the latter classification as do the citizens, who know enough when to call them.

In the summer months drowning takes a very high toll of the deaths by accident to Ontario residents. Many of these drowning deaths can be averted by two things: people knowing how to swim, when, and where to swim; people knowing what to do when they see a swimming or boating accident. It is too much perchance to hope that there will be one person at the scene of every such accident who could personally cope with the trouble or emergency; but it should not be too much to expect that there will be someone present who will know what to do in the absence of rendering any direct action himself.

For those in the Belleville area the action to take is to inform the Belleville Fire Department as quickly as possible. Two men in the Emergency Truck (No. 5) will answer the call. These men are fully trained and able to cope with any water accident — if informed early enough about it. The truck is well equipped to meet every need which might arise.

Included amongst the equipment in the truck are: an Emerson resuscitator, a Davis inhalator, Scott Air-Paks, blankets, pillows, stretchers, a portable 1200-watt generator, three portable floodlight sets, an oxy-acetylene cutting torch, an electric drill, 200 feet of supply cord, life-lines, boat hooks, pike poles, extra tanks for resuscitator and inhalators, life jackets, first aid kits, salvage tarpaulins and equipment, steel tool box, portable public address system, propane stove, emergency rations, steel cable and metal cutters, several sets of drags and other miscellaneous items.

BOAT AND TRAILER

There is also a 14½-foot aluminum boat with a 7.5 horsepower outboard motor, all carried on a boat trailer. This can be towed either by the Emergency unit or by Fire Chief Gerald Vance's car. Both vehicles are equipped with radio communications.

The local firefighters have also been assisting the Bellville Harbor Commission in the erection of warning signs on Zwick's Island and of emergency instruction signs on the government dock, in Victoria Park and at various points along the Moira River.

Tomorrow evening the local fire department will be putting on a display and demonstration of their equipment at the public meeting of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Those who might wish to attend are cordially welcomed to view this demonstration and another put on by the RCAF Search and Rescue unit. The R.C.M.P. will also be present to advise boat owners as to the latest boating regulations, and several water safety films will also be available for viewing by the public.

Civil Defence Truck Is Sent to Lanark

The Belleville Fire Department sent the Civil Defence fire truck up to Lanark yesterday at the request of Ontario Fire Marshal W. J. Scott. The truck will remain in Lanark, manned by members of the Lanark Fire Department, until their own truck is repaired. Fire Chief Gerald Vance stated that this should be in about one week. This piece of equipment is the nearest Civil Defence truck to the fire-ravaged village of Lanark.

POWER TO FARMS

About 75 per cent of all farms in Canada had electricity supplied by 1958.

Drivers Miraculously Escape Injuries in Two Accidents

Drivers of two vehicles miraculously escaped injury last night in separate accidents in the Marysville area which saw over $4,000 in property damage and the electric lights in the village out for over two hours when a hydro pole was broken.

An auto transport driven by Douglas Miller of Toronto went out of control south of the CNR double tracks at Marysville, rolled into a 15-foot ditch and lodged between a hydro pole and a big tree. The driver escaped injury and two trucks being carried on the transport remained chained in place.

Provincial Constable Gordon Oliver quoted the driver as saying a car had passed his truck and he lost control as his vehicle went onto the shoulder.

"I don't know how he escaped injury when his truck rolled into the ditch and went between the hydro pole and tree", the officer said. "He didn't have a scratch."

Damage to the transport amounted to about $3,500.

Minutes after the transport accident, Allan Cowan of Peterborough was forced to apply his brakes as the car ahead slowed suddenly. His brakes seized and his car plowed into a hydro pole on Marysville on 502 highway, just a mile from the transport mishap.

Only the fact that he had his safety belt on saved the driver from injury.

Two Peterborough man was eastbound on No. 2 and had entered 502 highway when he was forced to suddenly apply his brakes, throwing his car out of control.

Lights in the village were off for over two hours until hydro employees repaired the damage to the pole and wires.

Mother's Helper

IF YOURE about to give in on the subject of accepting a day for your children, remember the advantages of taking on a mature pet rather than a puppy. A grown dog, used to children, will stand up better under unintentional rough affection. And you won't have to handle that bothersome training procedure.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Now that the time of the strawberry ass come again, we wonder how many remember, or have kept track of, what was called "berry picking time".

This is going back a bit, before fruit was shipped in quantities from one part of the country to the other, and before tame berries were as plentiful as now. It was also more common in unalert communities where there was no market. It was a kind of fever and took the form of large excursions into fields and meadows in the district to find and pick the small, luscious wild strawberry.

Often whole families joined in the exercise, but mostly it was the women and older children. Every fine day for about two weeks the berry pickers rose early and started off while the dew was wet. Those were the days before cars, and even "bloomers" — remember them? The clothes worn by adults were long dresses of calico or gingham sometimes covered by a large apron. After wending through long grass, the clothes were wet to the knees before the "pail" was reached, and the sun high enough to dry them out.

Then the competition began, searching for the berries with the largest object in view, first to have your pail full. There were those who objected to gain this end by surreptitiously putting leaves in the bottom of the pail.

There was much running from one spot to another, not always for folk, but the experienced picker cleaned out a spot carefully before moving on. It was not considered the thing to do to pick too closely to someone else or to encroach on a "good spot".

Spirits were usually high and there was a great deal of calling back and forth, laughter over getting stuck in a fence, uneasiness as to ascertain if the bull was with the herd in the next field, Occasionally someone got lost for a while. The one who was finished first sat down in pride and glory to wait until the others were finished.

At the end of the trek home, there was always the chore of most affected.

cleaning the pesky little berries. It takes perseverance to fill a good-sized pail with wild strawberries, but the wonderful flavor of jam and preserves was compensation enough.

Yes, berry picking was a kind of fever, it was often gruelling, but was always looked forward to. Like baseball, it was best done on a hot sunny day; a cool day did not spark the same enthusiasm.

The strawberry is called the queen of berries. There are some who prefer the lesser berries, but again, as we did last year, we quote William Butler who said: "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did."

This-is National Water Safety Week, and although it is a necessary approach to a real problem, the very title has overtones of dread and sadness. Accidents are accidents wherever and however they happen, but water accidents nearly always come in the midst of happiness and pleasure and so seem to have a peculiarly more grim. As soon as good weather comes, the toll of accidents in and on water starts to swell. The Red Cross, the St. John Ambulance and the YMCA, among other organizations, do valuable preventative work in the field of education and training. But the spirit of adventure and human being what it is, the work is slow and never-ending.

It seems that the Moira River has a long history of sadness over water accidents. Recently we picked up in a local bookshop the newly published edition of "Life in the Clearings" by Susanna Moodie. In the early pages of this book there is the story of the drowning of a small boy in the Moira in 1832 when the river was at its height and of the author's loss of her seven year-old son in the river.

From a report of St. John Ambulance, the age group of 13 to 19 is the hardest hit, while next in line is the second group

Weddings

KLOMPMAKER — SIKKEMA

White carnations adorned the sanctuary of the Christian Reformed Church of Belleville, on Saturday, June 6, at 3.00 p.m., for a pretty wedding when Jenny Sikkema, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Edward Klompmaker, of Stirling. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wieger Sikkema, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klompmaker, of Stirling. The Reverend J. J. Rumph, of Cobourg, officiated.

Mr. John DeVries, of Belleville, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied Mr. Ted Walma, of Orillia, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," and "I'll Walk Beside You."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Bernard Sikkema, the bride was lovely in a bridal gown of fine nylon with fitted lace bodice showered with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The bouffant skirt was designed in nylon lace in two tiers. She wore a finger-tip veil of illusion edged with nylon lace and caught to a satin clip headdress, and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Klompmaker are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in the Christian Reformed Church of Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Jenny Sikkema, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wieger Sikkema, of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Klompmaker of Stirling. (Photo by McCormick's Studio, Belleville.)

Miss Mashtilda Vander Meer, of Belleville, aunt of the bride, as maid of honor, gowned in blue accented by seed pearls, with matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink roses.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Lannie and Betty Klompmaker of Stirling, sisters of the bridegroom, were attired in pink, with matching headdresses, and carried bouquets of white carnations and pink roses.

Little Miss Jenny Vander Meer, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, was sweet in a blue frock, and carrying a tiny basket of summer flowers.

Mr. Stewart Klompmaker, of Stirling, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Bernard Sikkema of Belleville, and Mr. Lambert Klompmaker, Stirling, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the church parlor, where the bride's mother received the guests, dressed in blue with corsage of white carnations and pink roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a cream-colored gown with white corsage.

For a brief honeymoon to the Thousand Islands, the bride wore a pale green dress with picture hat. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Klompmaker will reside at 66 Elizabeth Street, Stirling.

Guests attended from Belleville, Stirling, Hamilton, Orillia, Bowmanville, Peterborough and Kingston.

COOKE — DANFORD

Springbrook United Church Parsonage was the setting on June 6th for the wedding of Nora Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Danford and Lorne William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cooke.

The Rev. H. E. Beare performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride chose a two-piece suit-dress of powder blue lace with navy and white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Her attendant, Miss Lenora Bateman, was dressed in orange-lace polished cotton with beige and white accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. Wesley Finch attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony the couple left for Hamilton, Niagara Falls and points west.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at the home of Mrs. Keith Vanhorne, at a linen shower, and at the home of Miss Lenora Bateman for a kitchen shower.

Strawberry Preserves Unlimited

by Mary Moore

So many requests for strawberry jam and preserves are arriving that I have dispensed with my daily chat with you and give all available space to recipes.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

Corned Beef with Horseradish Sauce; Mashed Potatoes; Asparagus; Hot Slaw; Strawberry Shortcake; Coffee.

You ask for strawberries with liquid pectin; strawberries with powdered pectin; strawberries without liquid pectin; strawberry conserve.

Yours to ask; mine to obey.

STRAWBERRY JAM WITH LIQUID PECTIN

3½ cups prepared strawberries (see below); ¼ bottle liquid pectin; ¼ cup strained lemon juice; 7 cups sugar.

To prepare fruit: Crush completely, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries. Measure 3½ cups into very large saucepan. Add lemon juice.

To make jam: Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into sterilized glasses. Paraffin at once. Makes about 10 six-ounce glasses.

STRAWBERRY JAM WITH POWDERED PECTIN

(May be frozen). 2 cups prepared fruit (about 1 quart fully ripe strawberries), 4 cups (1¼ lbs.) sugar, ¾ cup water, 1 box powdered fruit pectin.

First, prepare the fruit: Crush thoroughly about 1 quart fully ripe strawberries. Measure 2 cups into large saucepan or bowl. Then make jam: Measure sugar, add to fruit, stir, and let stand. Measure water and powdered pectin into a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add to fruit mixture, stirring well. Then stir sugar to dissolve, about 2 minutes. (There will be a few remaining crystals.) Ladle quickly into sterilized glasses or freezer containers. Cover jam immediately with tight lids or foil. Let stand 24 hours. Then store in freezer or, if jam is to be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in refrigerator. Do not store at room temperature. Use within 3 weeks.

STRAWBERRY 7-MINUTE JAM

(Without pectin). 2 pints of strawberries, 1-3 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 1-2 cups sugar.

Use only perfectly ripe, firm, fruit that it brilliant red. Wash and leave whole. Place in large saucepan. Sift 1-3 cup of sugar over fruit, add lemon juice and let stand over night. Next morning add the 2 1-3 cups sugar. Heat to boiling; then boil for 7 minutes, starting to count when boiling begins. Shake pan occasionally, during cooking. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 3 jars.

STRAWBERRY CONSERVE

4 cups prepared fruit (1 orange, 1 lemon, 1 quart ripe strawberries), 7 cups sugar, 1-2 bottle liquid fruit pectin.

First, prepare fruit: Cut medium orange and lemon into quarters. Grind, chop fine or cut into wafer thin slices crosswise. Remove seeds. Add 1-2 cup water and 1-8 teaspoon soda, bring to boil; simmer 30 minutes, covered, stirring occasionally. Crush thoroughly 1 quart strawberries. Combine fruits, measure 4 cups into large saucepan. Then make Conserve: Add sugar to fruit, stir well. Bring to full rolling boil, boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; add pectin. Skim foam with metal spoon, then stir and skim for 5 minutes. Ladle quickly into glasses and paraffin at once.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

GIFT PROBLEM FOR SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are going to give a reception to celebrate our Silver Wedding Anniversary soon. We already have all the sterling silver we can ever use, but we would like to have china. My sister has suggested that I register for china at our jeweller. In this way if anyone asks her, she will be able to suggest something we really want. I have chosen a lovely pattern in a modest price range. Please tell me if you approve of this procedure.

— Reader.

I think this is an excellent idea, proper and practical.

Today, presents of silver to the hostess who has all the silver she wants, needs, and can take care of is quite a serious problem . . . and I'm sure your relatives and friends will be delighted to have this sensible suggestion. To me it never has made sense that relatives and friends feel they must give wedding anniversary presents that are of the material that is "symbolic" of the anniversary, rather than presents that would be most welcome to the couple.

THANK-YOU NOTES FOR GIFTS A MUST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We did not have an engagement-announcement party, but I have received quite a few engagement presents. In every case I have thanked the giver either by telephone or verbally. My mother insists that this is not enough, that I should also write a thank-you note. Is this really necessary? — Dorothy

Yes, ma'am . . . this is really necessary, if you really wish to show that you are a person who has a proper sense of courtesy and appreciation. This is an important time in your life when, by every gesture you make, you reveal the kind of manners you have, good or not-good . . . regardless whether or not you are going to take every courtesy and every gift for granted, with not even a proper bow of appreciation in return. Your mother well-knows how important this is in the new way-of-life on which you are entering . . . and you will be very wise indeed to follow her sound advice. Don't be the kind of engaged girl who takes everything and every thoughtful gesture for granted . . . if you are, you may find that thoughtful presents and thoughtful gestures may stop coming your way!

GIVE ADDRESS OF CHURCH ON INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The name of the church in which we are to be married is quite similar to the name of another church in our city, and they are quite often confused. So in our invitations would it be correct to include the address of our church under the name of the church? — T. R.

Yes, entirely proper, sensible, and the address of the church is often given, even when there is no question of confusion-of-names.

WMS EVENING AUX.

WELLINGTON — The regular June meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the WMS of Wellington United Church, was held in the Sunday school room on Tuesday evening with a large number of members and visitors present. The president, Miss V. Valleau was in the chair.

Mrs. Clifford Cleave gave the devotional on the theme, "Let's check our driving".

Members were favored with a duet "Teach Me To Pray", by Mrs. Melvin Taylor and Mrs. Dingwall.

Miss Marilyn Brimley favored with a vocal solo.

Mrs. Maybee introduced the guest speaker, Miss Farley of Trenton. Mrs. Clare Campbell moved a vote of thanks to Miss Farley. Delicious refreshments were served by the group in charge. Mrs. Harry Pierson at this time on behalf of the W. A. and W. M. S., presented Mrs. Douglas Tayler with a gift as she has left and is now residing in Picton.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a nursery editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Roberta D. My sister-in-law won't respect my standards.

Leonard B. She shouldn't try to change her.

Roberta D. — My younger brother and his bride recently came to stay with me in my home until they find a place of their own and get settled in our community.

My sister-in-law is a charming girl and I am very fond of her, but I'm afraid we haven't gotten along as well as I would like. For one thing, she is very set in her ways. She is 19 and I am ten years older so I think I can teach her a few things, but at one word from me she does exactly as she pleases.

I feel that when she has her own home she can do as she likes, but I expect her to respect my standards while she is with me.

For example, she has a habit of running out of the house in the morning in her robe and slippers to buy a newspaper. This is embarrassing to me and I told her so. She has been in a huff ever since and my brother is angry with me.

Leonard B. — My wife and I appreciate Roberta's hospitality very much, but I don't think that she should try to change Sheila. It is true that Sheila is stubborn and doesn't take criticism readily, but it shouldn't concern Roberta. The neighbors aren't going to think any worse of her if her sister-in-law runs outside in a robe and slippers.

Sheila comes from a small town where the standards are very different from what they are here. Roberta should recognize that not everyone can be like her. She has made Sheila very unhappy about something that is not important.

Sheila really likes Roberta very much, but she just isn't the kind to be bossed. It is hard starting our married life in a place that isn't our own. I have wanted to get just a room elsewhere, but Roberta won't hear of it.

The Council: While much of what Leonard says is true, we can't see where Roberta has done wrong by telling her sister-in-law that she is violating standards that are important to her.

It is true that the neighbors probably won't think any worse of Roberta if her sister-in-law goes out of the house in a robe. But it is natural for Roberta to want others to think highly of her family. Roberta's pride in her family should be comforted. She holds a certain position in the community and wants her brother and sister-in-law to share in it.

Roberta shows genuine liking for Sheila when she expresses concern about her appearance and Sheila is rather childish to get into a "huff" about constructive criticism. It is her obligation as a guest to uphold the standards of the family whose hospitality she is enjoying.

Outside of this issue, we think Roberta should curb her desire to teach or criticize. All learning implies a willing or eager pupil. It is useless to try to point teachings on a reluctant pupil. Sheila will undoubtedly have to learn many things the hard way, but it would be foolish for Roberta to impair the future relations in an effort to make things easier for Sheila.

Age and Poor Output Deprive Women of Job

By PAUL GRESCOE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASAGAMING, Man. (CP) — Older women are being deprived of work because of their age and poor output, a government labor official told the National Council of Women of Canada Monday.

Miss Marion Boyce, women's bureau director of the federal labor department, told the council's meeting volunteer agencies must give counselling to the mature woman who returns to work after raising a family.

A survey by local women's councils revealed employment was given to younger women where their output was greater—such as in operating business machines.

Miss Royce said that in large businesses pension plans tended to cause discrimination against older women. However, she added, the woman returning to work after her children have grown had a chance to accept varied lines of employment requiring different educational backgrounds.

Mrs. G. B. Finlayson of Ottawa was named council president.

The council adopted a resolution urging development of peaceful use of atomic energy being made by nations co-operating through the United Nations.

Cult of 'Do-It-Yourself' Gets Man From Boredom

OTTAWA (CP) — A Toronto social worker says "the cult of do-it-yourself has rescued Canada's male of the species from obscurity and boredom."

Edgar Perretz, University of Toronto professor and consultant for the Ontario health department's mental health division, said today the cult "has captured the heart and mind of North American manhood. So many of us are wage-earners or salaried sheep."

Mr. Perretz addressed the Canadian Welfare Council's annual meeting. He discussed the effects of industrialization and urbanization on family life.

PROTECTS FROM GUILT

He said do-it-yourself work protects man from the guilt he might feel with so much leisure time. It allows him to see a job through from beginning to end and it is a "male sport" that differentiates a man's use of leisure time from that of his wife.

It restores the dignity of man as provider, house - builder, house-mender and repairman, he said.

The do-it-yourself cult also illustrates the capacity of a society to "devise or invent substitutions that satisfy individual and collective needs within a social context that has changed so radically."

FAMILY PROBLEMS

Mr. Perretz said the effects of migration, the fiercely competitive white-collar scramble and wage-earning mothers all contribute to the problems of the modern family.

He said there would be practical value and academic merit in making family life education part of the secondary school curriculum.

With the continuous movement of families from home to home within a city as parents seek to better themselves in jobs, pay and benefits, parents are abdicating their responsibilities to institutions outside the home, he said.

Don't let a spot of early spring sunshine tempt you into hanging sheets and shirts out in freezing weather to dry. Intense cold is apt to bring cotton fibres...

Aunt Lou Looks Back on Real Active Life

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—At age 95 Louise Campbell - Brown looks back on an active life as a missionary's wife in China. Mother of three, she is the widow of Colin Campbell-Brown, a Presbyterian missionary to China who died in 1924.

Affectionately known as Aunt Lou, she vividly recalls the busy years in China but says "now I am old and a little weary."

From 1893 to 1911 she and her husband were stationed at Chuan Chow Fu, near Amoy, where their children were born.

In addition to her work as a missionary's wife and mother of a growing family, Aunt Lou taught a class of Chinese boys, a venture which later resulted in the establishing of Chuan Chow Westminster College. She also adopted a Chinese daughter, now a maternity doctor in the Philippines.

She was 75 in 1930 when she regularly heeded the call of duty, rolling back to a China torn by Japanese aggression. During her 13-month stay in Amoy she taught English to boys, lived on rice, cabbage and flour and suffered through Japanese bombing raids.

On one occasion she made a long journey through bandit - infested country and reached her destination unharmed.

"Had we had a guard of soldiers it probably would have incited the bandits to attack us, but an old woman walking alone! There was nothing to attack," she said.

The first Lachine canal on the St. Lawrence was opened in 1825, seven years before the first Rideau canal.

PEACEFUL SUBMARINES

BONN (AP) — The West German defence ministry has ordered three miniature submarines for underseas experimentation. A spokesman said the submarines of 100 tons each, would have no combat role.

What Makes Babies Cry? Here Are Some Answers

"Nothing seems to shatter the peace and tranquillity of the home more than the infant who cries," says Dr. Robert Johnson of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, writing in the current issue of Health magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada.

He says that parents suffer from too much and varying advice and that the whole problem boils down to the simple fact that most parents do not know when they have done all they can for their infant.

Dr. Johnson points out that infants have only eight needs which can be satisfied through the medium of another human being. Here is his working list:

1. Protection from injury.
2. Shelter.
3. Clothing.
4. Physical comfort (wet or soiled).
5. Security.
6. Thirst.
7. Hunger.
8. Companionship.

In our society, the first three are the responsibility of the parents or persons in charge of the child, says Dr. Johnson, and they are nearly always provided in the home.

There remain five things a parent can offer the crying child:

1. Physical comfort — if the infant is wet or soiled, change him.
2. Security — pick him up and cuddle him for two minutes.
3. Thirst—offer him a drink of water.
4. Hunger — offer...the...infant a feeding.
5. Companionship — play with him if he so desires.

When the parent has tried all of these things, it is time for him or her to sit back and say, "I have done what I can for you as a fellow human being. If your troubles are beyond this I cannot help you, and must decide whether to let you settle your problems yourself or call someone more skilled to ascertain if you are ill."

Dr. Johnson emphasizes that the child should be attended to promptly, and that the parent has fulfilled the basic five steps in caring for the infant, and when the infant left alone fails to settle, then expert advice from the family physician should be sought.

With this method of constant repetition of an adequate but understood routine, the parent and child can come to a mutual understanding as to what results when the child cries, and how much the child can expect and receive from the parent when he does cry, concludes Dr. Johnson.

Women's Institute

QUINTE W. I.

The Quinte Women's Institute held the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Arnold Mitchell on June 9th, with a good attendance of members and visitors.

The president, Mrs. R. Aikins, opened the meeting, and thanked the hostess for opening her lovely home, and welcomed all members and visitors.

The secretary - treasurer, Mrs. E. Jeffery, gave the report of the "Blossom Tea" and all letters of business. A donation of $10 is to be sent to the blind. The short course is to be discontinued for this summer and those who care to go to another Institute, may do so if they wish.

The Tweedsmuir History Book was discussed and Mrs. W. Tufts asked the members to get material ready and come to her home in the near future. A picnic was also mentioned.

Mrs. D. Aikins, in the absence of Mrs. K. Vivian, district director, gave the highlights of the district annual at Empey Hill.

Mrs. C. Keers, convener for education took over the meeting and asked Mrs. A. Mitchell to give the motto, "As a Man Thinketh in His Heart is He."

Mrs. W. Clare, as guest speaker was called upon to give her demonstration on making different articles from foam rubber which was educational. They consisted of sofa pillows, mats, flowers, baby bibs, purses, corsages and other articles too numerous to mention. She gave each lady who cared to make an earring, pieces of rubber and showed them the method. A number of ladies bought some of the things and others gave her an order for some.

Mrs. J. Garnett thanked Mrs. Clare for the showing of her lovely articles.

The hostess, Mrs. A. Mitchell, presented Mrs. Clare with a pair of milk-white vases filled with peonies.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mitchell and her conveners, and a social half hour spent.

FOGGY WEATHER

Thursday morning to greet the royal party.

The Queen's itinerary has her visiting St. John's until late Friday morning when she would leave for Gander. From there she would go to the Corner Brook area by plane Friday afternoon. She would fly Saturday to Stephenville and leave that afternoon for Sept-Iles, Que.

Meanwhile, the Royal Tour yacht Britannia sailed from Sydney today for Sept-Iles. Her departure was a day ahead of schedule. Reason for the change could not be learned immediately.

Informed sources here say that if the Queen's arrival point is changed, it is likely that her provincial tour would be reversed with it ending up here.

Elaborate plans have been made for the arrival of the royal visitors here. The plane will be met by a 21-gun salute and a city decked in flags and bunting, hand to greet the Queen and her consort will be Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Governor - General Massey and Premier Joseph R. Smallwood of Newfoundland.

TO OPEN TERMINAL

Highlight of the three - day Newfoundland tour will be the official opening by the Queen of the new $1,500,000 terminal building at Gander airport. The tour of the island will take the couple across the province to Corner Brook.

They leave Newfoundland by air Saturday at 12.45 p.m. NDT for Sept-Iles, where they go aboard the Britannia for the long trip up the St. Lawrence River and later into the Great Lakes.

During the Canadian tour, the royal party will travel by yacht, aircraft, trains and cars where necessary.

The Queen and President Eisenhower, aboard the Britannia, will sail past a combined fleet of 16 Canadian and United States naval vessels June 26 while on passage through Lake St. Louis, just west of Montreal. The naval ships, anchored in a single line, will be dressed in flags and each vessel will be manned by "cheer ship" as the Britannia passes down the line.

TO ATTEND RACES

The royal visitors will meet 4-H groups in Saskatchewan, visit a modest dairy farm in Prince Edward Island, attend the famed running of the Queen's Plate in Toronto, tour industrial sites in Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury and attend the International Festival of the Arts in Vancouver.

The Queen will become the first ruling monarch to set foot in Canada's North when she visits Dawson City, Whitehorse, Mayo, Yellowknife and Uranium City.

The tour ends Aug. 7 at Halifax from where the royal party will board the Britannia for home.

Desperadoes Caught by Police Hiding in Woods

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (AP)—The desperado Coyle brothers, sought in deep woods since Monday in the slaying of a Philadelphia policeman, were captured today by a squad of state troopers.

Reports said William Coyle, 22, was wounded. His brother, John 24, was reported unharmed.

A telephone call from a house in the area where the search had been concentrated led to the climax of the biggest manhunt in Massachusetts history.

Walter Schmidt of Union City, N.J., was the man who tipped police. He and his wife were visiting at the home of Mrs. Schmidt's mother, Mrs. Victoria Canova, in South Middleboro when he saw two men prowling around outside.

Schmidt called police and half a dozen squad cars were at the Canova home in seconds. The troops beat into the woods and fired.

ONE KILLED

One brother was carried out of the woods on a stretcher. The second was stripped of his clothing as a precaution and wrapped in a trooper's raincoat.

The brothers apparently had broken into a house earlier in the hunt and obtained food and fresh clothing.

They had been reported armed with five pistols and three belts of ammunition.

They drove here from Philadelphia with a hostage, William Sedgwick, 49, whom they kidnapped in his own car. Sedgwick escaped after the brothers held up a liquor store Monday and fled into the woods.

For 10 days, Sedgwick said, he and the Coyles lived in the auto subsisting on a few sandwiches the first three days and then only on marshmallows.

in number, the disciplined hard core commanded the only well ready to move. Relatively small organized political party. It had control of virtually all mass organizations.

Premier Abdel Karim Kassem apparently still had army support, but the eager ones among the Communists seemed confident they could handle that problem.

Then the Communists' backtracked, called off an "education campaign" for participation in the government, proclaimed their loyalty to Kassem.

What caused this reversal? First, Kassem's resistance to the Communists seemed to have stiffened.

Then, it was plain he still had considerable personal following in Iraq.

For Moscow it became a choice: Take power in a country which still could blow up or retain whatever gains Soviet policy had made in the Middle East toward long range goals. Moscow picked provoking a solid Middle East anti-Communist front. Iraq, lacking a frontier with a Communist power, might not long be held firmly in the Red grip.

AID FOR DUCKS — With drought conditions attacking natural breeding grounds, wildlife officials on the Canadian prairies say man-made "duck farms" are likely to play a large role in waterfowl production this year.

Experts of Ducks Unlimited (Canada), a conservation organization, say the dry conditions cover areas where more than 65 per cent of the continent's migratory waterfowl are born and raised each year.

All told there are 494 such farms — man-made reservoirs — in the three provinces. Twelve of the largest (identified by numbers) are: 1, Hay Lakes; 2, Maeco-Minitik; 3, Oakland-Gaylen Jones; 4, Monterey-Antelope Lake; 5, Candle and Trench; 6, Illinois-Verdant; 7, Ralston; 8, Wisconsin-Kutawagan; 9, Big Grass Marsh; 10, Broad n' Wall; 11, Tom Wann-Whittemouth Lake; 12, Kanasi City-Oak and Plum Lakes. The 12 cover 71,300 acres. (CP Newsmap.)

'Duck Farms' on Prairies Will Play Vital Role in Production

WINNIPEG, (CP)—Man - made "duck farms" on the Canadian prairies are expected to play a vital role in North America's waterfowl production this year as drought conditions attack most natural breeding grounds.

Field experts of Ducks Unlimited (Canada), a waterfowl conservation organization, say dry conditions extend through most southern regions of Manitoba, Saskatchewan a nd Alberta where more than 65 per cent of the continent's migratory waterfowl are born and raised each year.

Duck breeding in southern areas has been disappointing this spring. The decline has been so set somewhat by a shift of the breeding ducks to northern regions of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The duck farms — man-made reservoirs — are formed through river diversions and irrigation system and-maintained at controlled levels by damming.

Ducks Unlimited completed 39 new "farms" last year, bringing the total to 494 — 99 in Manitoba, 203 in Saskatchewan and 192 in Alberta. The total number of DU breeding grounds represents more than 780,000 acres of marsh- land and water—including more than 4,000 miles of shoreline, a basic measurement of waterfowl production potential.

The organization has spent more than $6,500,000 on such work in Canada since its first project was established in Manitoba in 1938. This year $350,000 has been trolled for 47 new "farms" scheduled for construction through the prairies.

Most of the money comes from Ducks Unlimited's United States branches, with state and local branches donating funds for construction of reservoirs in specific areas.

Besides offering waterfowl controlled watered areas for breeding, DU also plants vegetation in the areas for food and cover. Main food plants are sago pondweed and bulrushes.

The field men report migration of birds this spring was normal but there were indications of a late start in nesting due to the lack of small ponds, farm sloughs and water - filled ditches that many of the birds normally use in that field.

However, by mid-May nesting was reported among pintails and mallards—the perennial early arrivals on Canadian marshes.

France Determined to Have Control of Nuclear Weapons

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A disturbing fact of life facing NATO is that France is determined to have nuclear weapons and the United States will do nothing to help her get them.

The French position has led Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander in Europe, to consider the withdrawal of 200 United States fighter - bombers from France to bases in either Britain or West Germany where they could quickly be armed with nuclear weapons.

The development could seriously damage France's relations with the U.S., but President de Gaulle appears unwilling to make any concessions and observers consider it just as unlikely that there will be any change in U.S. atomic policy.

This situation was seen with clarity at the recent Atlantic congress, when delegates from 14 of the 15 NATO countries were presented with studies by military authorities, who warned that lack of a solution to the nuclear problem could tear the alliance apart.

FRANCE'S STAND

Their warnings were underscored by the crisis over French refusal to allow atomic weapons within her territory unless she are share control of them.

This followed France's decision to withdraw the French Mediterranean fleet from NATO command, her refusal to join American rocket bases, and her decision to pull troops out of Europe to fight the Algerian war.

De Gaulle's stand is viewed as part of his campaign to build his atomic and diplomatic aspirations. French military thinkers see the eventual possession of nuclear retaliatory power as a prerequisite not only of grandeur but of full national sovereignty.

The final declaration of the congress avoided discussing the problems posed by nuclear weapons—calling merely for increased interdependence in the military field.

Gen. De Gaulle Starts Second Year in Power With Notable New Success, Stalls Strike

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle, president of the Fifth Republic he brought into being last fall, has started his second year in power with a notable new success.

The threat of serious labor trouble calculated to endanger the financial stabilization program of the government seems to have been warded off, following the cancellation of a threatened, eight-hour rail strike received by the unions, acting to some extent under Communist pressure, as a first trial of strength between the new political regime and the organized labor.

The success of the government in averting this strike action without making any substantial concessions is one more proof of De Gaulle's personal popularity with the French people, whatever social level they come from.

Government officials now consider the success of the currency stabilization plan assured. They now reckon that there still be no increases of wages before the end of the time when the stabilization plan itself provides for such an increase. The rail strike was called off chiefly because the union leaders found no support among the workers.

The government's success on this issue starts de Gaulle's second year of power and crowns 18 months of remarkable achievement.

De Gaulle took office June 2 with powers for six months to do practically anything he liked. He obtained those powers from a parliament which, after three weeks of silent struggle, bowed to his will and resigned itself to country and its government could no longer expect obedience from the police, civil service or army.

His first act was to abolish the Fourth Republic's constitution vesting all power, both executive and legislative, in the National Assembly. The new constitution distinguishes decisively between the powers of the government and those of parliament. It ensures the stability of government which the Fourth Republic singularly lacked.

The de Gaulle constitution represents a genuine political revolution. It was backed by 80 per cent of the people and it was carried through without incident. A year later, nobody is in prison because of the political change and the press is as free as ever. Order has taken the place of chaos in the streets and certificate of civil liberties.

The second big achievement of the new regime is to have crushed terrorism almost single-handedly for the first time since the end of the Second World War. Two months after the Algerian plan was launched, the franc stands as a strong currency, prices are stable and the prospects half way through this year are for a new leap forward in business expansion on the solid foundation of a hard currency.

Drive to Keep Americans Home Hurts Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States drive to attract foreign tourists and keep Americans at home will seriously hurt Canada's multi-million-dollar tourist business by 1960, the Senate tourist traffic committee was told Tuesday.

John Fisher, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association, said a "gigantic program" to promote the U.S. tourist industry is being organized for 1960 with the blessing of President Eisenhower.

PROPOSES PROGRAM

Mr. Fisher said the federal and provincial governments, private industry and the tourist business should take these steps to encourage visitors to Canada:

1. Low-cost federal loans to tourist operators to enable them to improve accommodation.

2. More advertising by the Canadian government travel bureau in the U.S.

3. Encouragement of Canadians to spend their holidays travelling in Canada.

4. Training Canadians and tourist operators to be more conscious of the value of the tourist industry.

5. Provision of more attractions, such as festivals and attractive eating establishments, at tourist resorts.

Hydro's Offer To Buy Land Never Followed

SARNIA (CP)—An offer by officials of Ontario Hydro to buy land on the Sarnia Indian reserve was never "followed up officially," Chief Telford Adams of the reserve said today.

Chief Adams said that he had negotiated with C. F. S. Tidy of Hydro, who said the commission needed 32 acres for a transformer station and would be willing to pay about $2,200 an acre.

He said the Indians' council Dec. 3 gave Hydro permission to survey the land and make an offer.

"Again $2,200 an acre was suggested by them, but it was never followed up officially," said the chief.

In the Ontario election campaign, CCF Leader Donald Macdonald charged that the Hydro Dimensional Investments of Toronto plans to make a 100-per - cent profit on the sale of former reserve land to Hydro this spring.

The development company purchased 3,100 acres from the Indians for $6,500,000—about $2,100 an acre—and resold 187 acres to Hydro for $1,200,000 an average price of $6,417 an acre.

"I don't know why Hydro bought 187 acres when they told us they only wanted 32 acres," the chief said.

The chief said Hydro "was trying to hide behind the backs of the chief and council of the Sarnia band and have the public believe we would not deal with them."

Hydro "could have given the $1,200,000 to the Indians rather than give it to persons already quite wealthy."

Charles and Anne Left Home To Wonder What Presents Parents Will Bring Back

LONDON (Reuters) — The world's most-publicized brother and sister are being separated from their parents once more.

They are Prince Charles, 10, and his eight - year - old sister, Princess Anne. The son and daughter of the Queen and Prince Philip frequently find their parents away from home on tours of Britain or abroad.

The latest separation comes when the Queen and her husband fly to Canada for a six-week, coast-to-coast trip.

Charles, Prince of Wales and heir to the throne, and his sister will not see their parents again until Aug. 10, when the royal yacht Britannia brings them back to Scotland from Canada.

Both youngsters have undergone longer separations.

In 1954, Elizabeth and Philip were away five months on a Commonwealth tour that touched The West Indies, Africa and Asia. Philip has made many extensive world tours in the last three years.

As in the past, Charles and Anne will spend the time in Britain wondering what presents their parents are picking up for them.

Charles will continue his studies and games at his father's old preparatory school, Cheam, at Newbury, Berkshire, about 30 miles from London. Charles began a four-year course at Cheam in September, 1957. His excitement there represented a break with Britain's royal tradition of private education.

While Cheam is exclusive and costs £300 a year, there is nothing easy or frilly about life there. Charles and his fellow pupils sleep in dorms that are none too soft, get up about 7:15 a.m. and work and play hard until 6:30 p.m. Cheam is anything but palatial. The carpets are well-worn and the furniture is completely utilitarian.

Discipline is strict—as Charles has been learning. Last year, he ran out of money for the school "tuckshop"—candy store — and auctioned off some of his possessions to raise funds for "sweets." School officials got wind of the "sale" and confiscated the diminutive royal purse.

Charles has been doing well at Cheam. Last year, he led his class of 29 boys in geography and made "excellent progress" in French.

While his grades in arithmetic were not disclosed, a school spokesman said: "I don't think he would make an accountant."

Charles' father is reported to have said: "I want my son to be a man first and a prince afterwards."

Accordingly, Philip has taken his son out yachting and shooting with him. Charles has been learning how to shoot with Old Thunderer, a lightweight rifle owned by King Edward VII and passed on down to his three male successors on the throne.

The young prince is looking forward to having more fun with his father when Philip returns home from Canada.

Princess Anne, meanwhile, continues her private schooling along with two girl companions at Buckingham Palace.

She has been called a lively, "quicksilver-like" little girl who greatly admires her sturdy older brother and shares many of his amusements. She even shared his chicken-pox recently.

Anne is branching out a bit as she gets older. She has just joined the brownies, the junior division of the girl guides. She is a lover of horses—a trait perhaps inherited from her mother—and has been taking dancing lessons.

Anne also has been getting little instruction in cooking, though it seems doubtful that she ever will put it to much use.

Says Committee Conducted Like Fraternal Order

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's legislation increasing unemployment contributions but extending benefits was again hauled with criticism in the Commons Tuesday.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said the government has evaded its responsibility by "imposing" on labor and industry increased contributions averaging 30 per cent.

Mr. Martin said Labor Minister Starr would not even defend the measure in the Commons. Mr. Starr, in the House, did not reply.

Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming), who was a member of the industrial relations committee that engaged in prolonged discussion on the insurance measure, said the committee was conducted in "a most unparliamentary manner."

RAPS CHAIRMAN

"It was being run like a fraternal order," he said, "and the chairman, having had some experience in that field, followed the procedure he learned in these other organizations and certainly did not follow parliamentary procedure."

There appeared to be a reference to the fact that committee chairman R. Hardy Small (PC—Toronto Danforth), with whom Mr. Peters clashed frequently, is a past grand master of the Loyal Orange Association of British America in Ontario.

"Some training should be given to chairmen," Mr. Peters suggested.

Mr. Small was defended by Howard Grattrey (PC — Brome-Missisquoi) who said the committee's deliberations were caused by Mr. Martin and his cohorts engaging in "diabolical political behavior" that led to chaos.

INVESTMENTS HIT

At the night sitting, William Hamilton (L—Kenora - Rainy River), Liberal financial critic, said there had been astounding statements made in the handling of the insurance fund by the investment committee headed by Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada.

4th KIWANIS GROUP

The annual father and son banquet is an event looked forward to, with generally a pleasant surprise or two. This time proved no exception. The Kiwanis ladies took a great deal of care to create an atmosphere of festivity to the hall. An assortment of appetizing casserole dishes on gaily-appointed tables proved most successful and everybody remarked on the quality and quantity of the dinner. A richly deserved standing ovation was given the ladies showing the appreciation of the boys and fathers.

The flag-break by SM Don Allan and PL Scott Jamieson, then "Oh Queen" followed by the invocation by Major V. Greenwood of the Salvation Army were the opening ceremonies, common at all Scout banquets. David Brisbin presided the toast to the fathers, replied to by Mr. D. Andrews.

Chairman W. R. White introduced the head table:

Ross Noble, CM; Betty Smith, George Tripp; SM Don Allan, ADC Alex Jamieson, DSM Bob Williamson, Major V. Greenwood, Don Foley, F. J. Lancaster, C. F. Legge.

Vice-president George Tripp of the Kiwanians, praised the committee men and leaders for the excellent work they are doing for the Cubs and Scouts.

Frank Lancaster, Local Association president, outlined the duties of the Local Association and group committees and touched briefly on their obligations.

A lively singsong was led by ACM Ron Buskard with a valuable assist by Alex Jamieson.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN OF MAGIC

Scout John Foley of the OSD, gave a brilliant display of magic acts. This young man is not only clever but highly amusing, too. He improves every time he puts his show on. A likeable boy, always willing to entertain at Scout affairs.

The flag lowering, benediction and vesper concluded another most successful banquet of the 4th Belleville camp.

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE

The Scout Troop under Scoutmaster Stan Kerr, assisted by A.S.M. Fred Furmidge and Queen's Scout Rod Plumpton, attended the United Church. Rev. R. J McKeva welcomed the Scouts and leaders. His address was most inspiring and delivered in an easy conversational manner, of particular interest to the boys and a good sermon for any congregation. He told of a personal visit to Westminster Abbey where he saw a memorial stone to the late Lord Baden-Powell. Baden-Powell used his gift of leadership to the full in the Boy Scout movement. His life was dedicated to helping boys to be better citizens. Like St. Paul he "wanted to be something" and he "wanted to do something." Both men realized that they could accomplish their purpose in life only with the help of God, and they came to know God better because of their way of life. Good Christian men who saw what was expected of them and "followed in His steps."

Mr. McCrea will be missed when he leaves Cannifton this summer. Our good wishes go with him. He is a very good friend of Scouts and will leave the Cannifton - Corbyville group much better because of the personal contact. We hope he will be happy in his new parish and be as active with the young folks as he is here. His sermon might well have included himself.

WELLINGTON — A number of neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McQuaid on Saturday evening to help Mr. McQuaid's mother, Mrs. Cora McQuaid, celebrate her 74th birthday. They all met first at the home of Mrs. Upton and later went over to the McQuaid home to surprise the honored lady.

A social time was spent chilchatting until a delicious lunch was served, including a lovely birthday cake.

Mrs. McQuaid was presented with a nice gift from her neighbors for which she thanked them most sincerely.

A niece of Mrs. McQuaid, Mrs. Wilson Clark of Picton, and Mrs. Carrie Fitzgerald of Philadelphia, were also present at the party.

North Workers Pampered, Spoiled and Over-Protected Says McGill University Expert

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Max well Dunbar, a McGill University expert on northern living, says Canada's northern workers are pampered, spoiled and over-protected.

Far from being the dedicated, happy band of pioneers they are popularly pictured, Dr. Dunbar said Tuesday, most northern communities are "unhappy, torn by petty jealousy, boredom and over-developed egos."

They are this way, he told a meeting of the National Federation of Financial Analysts Societies, because companies interested in northern development don't hire the right sort of people.

He suggested they stop "trying to attract anyone at all to live for 18 months in an air-conditioned barracks at 80 degrees Farenheit by means of high pay and airborne steaks."

These lures, he said, have attracted men "with movie and corner drugstore minds."

Dr. Dunbar said suitable men could be attracted by the "high moral standard" which used to characterize northern living; quiet, modest people with senses of humor, cynical rather than over-optimistic and without illusions about their strengths and weaknesses.

E. R. C. Carter, managing director of Falino of Canada, Ltd., specializing in financing mining ventures, said Canadians may feel happy about the future of their mining industry if they are prepared to meet competition with initiative and energy.

By 1980, he said, the industry's output should have trebled, with an annual production worth about $3,000,000,000.

ALUMINUM FORECAST

W. J. Bennett, president of Canadian British Aluminum Co. Ltd., said this country should be able to retain its 20-per - cent share of the world aluminum market because of its abundant hydro-electric power resources near Tidewater, its readily available labor and favorable investment climate.

John R. Bradfield, president of Noranda Mines Ltd., said price stability is essential to the health of the base metals industry and there are good prospects for achieving this.

Adequate capacity and stocks will mean upsurges in demand and he said.

Early Reluctance Shown by Races Is Disappearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian and non-Indian children are going to school together to an increasing degree in Canada and early resistance shown by both races is disappearing.

This was the report to the joint Senate-Commons committee on Indian affairs today by R. F. Davey, chief of the education branch in the citizenship department which administers Indian affairs.

He said about 35 per cent of the Indian children at school in British Columbia are in non-Indian schools.

The committee was told that two - member delegations from five Indian groups would appear before the committee at future hearings as follows:

Six Nations Council June 23; Six Nations Confederacy June 24; Indian Brotherhood of British Columbia June 24; Caughnawaga Indian Council early in July and the Indian Council of Alberta after July 15.

willingness to curtail production when surpluses threaten are the ingredients for price stability, he said.

his sash and door plant at the north end of George Street, where it is believed the blaze began in a pile of shavings.

Earlier Mr. Dowdall expressed doubts about the future of this village of 900. But he said Tuesday that judging by the apparent determination of residents, "we can hope now to have our business area rebuilt in time for our village centennial in 1962."

Except for the merchants, few of the homeless were also without jobs. Many are among the 200 employees of glenayr knitting mills, the main village industry.

Officials said only about 10 persons would receive unemployment insurance benefits as a result of the fire. Businessmen are not eligible to collect.

50 Passengers On Dayliner Shaken Up

TORONTO (CP) — One man was injured and 50 CPR Dayliner passengers were shaken up Tuesday night when the train was in collision with a construction vehicle on a level crossing at Cookville.

The dayliner, bound for Owen Sound, was heavily damaged and had to be pushed to a siding by a following passenger train.

Injured was Edward Aitkens, 42, of nearby Erindale, driver of a six-ton front-end loader. He was reported in good condition.

'China' Created in Arizona For Jimmy Stewart Picture

By BOB THOMAS

APACHE TRAIL, Ariz. (AP)—A pagoda perched on an Arizona peak . . . 50 Chinese trudging up the steep face of a canyon . . . a Chinese village set in a cactus-filled arroyo . . .

Those are the incongruous scenes here in the Tonto national forest. A sizeable hunk of China has been created amid the crags and canyons of Arizona for The Mountain Road, latest of the Hollywood films to seek fresh and authentic-looking backdrops.

Columbia Pictures says it is spending $2,500,000 on the film and will drop $1,000,000 of it in Phoenix, the base of operations 60 miles from the location.

The movie magicians have created an authentic version of China, says Lt.-Col. Frank Gesell, technical adviser. He's the army man whose demolition trek through China in 1944 inspired the Theodore White novel.

HOT TREK

I watched while the Chinese—from Hollywood trooped up the from Hollywoodtrooped up the mountain road in the 100-degree-plus sun. Also making the journey was James Stewart.

Jimmy shook his head and muttered:

"When I was a bachelor, I made all my pictures in the comfortable confines of studios. Oh, I think I went to Lake Tahoe for Rose Marie, but that was all.

"Then I got a wife and four wonderful children, and what happens? I start making movies all over the globe."

NOT TOO HAPPY

In the last three years, he has made only two pictures—Rear Window and Bell, Book and Candle—entirely in Hollywood. How does his wife, Gloria, like this setup?

"Not so good," he admitted. "I don't expect her to visit me on this picture. She and the kids have a house at Malibu for the summer and I don't think she'd want to leave it for this heat.

"I've promised her a trip to Spain when I'm finished, and that may help clear me with her, at least I hope so."

John Larkin Says Real Pros Are Working in Soap Operas

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—"I think there's a lot of snobbishness about daytime television—outside and inside the business," says actor John Larkin. "But if you want to see real pros working, just take a look at the soap operas."

For almost four years now Larkin has been playing the role of strong, brave, good, handsome Mike Karr, male lead in CBS' daytime serial Edge of Night. Before that he was the radio voice of Perry Mason and had leads in such popular network radio fare as Girl Alone and High Adventure.

We do a half-hour dramatic show five days a week with a minimum of a rehearsal," Larkin continues with considerable vehemence. "That we can turn them out at all is simply the result of craftsmanship and professionalism."

He adds with a touch of bitterness that, although many of the regulars acting in daytime serials are names well-known and well-regarded on Broadway, TV's soap operas are rarely tapped for evening-show casts.

"It makes me laugh every time I read that a producer is looking everywhere for talent," says Larkin. "One place producers never look is the daytime serial. And some of these people—who never look—are the very ones who suggest that the daytime serials are good places to train young actors.

"That's nonsense. We do a 30-minute show with a maximum of six hours rehearsal — and if it were a night-time show of the same length there would be 16 hours of rehearsal time. That takes experience. I will admit that there are a lot of clinches in daytime serials, and I will admit that a lot of pap comes out on it.

THURSDAY AT THE BELLE—Academy-Award winner Gloria Wonderful is co-starred with Tul Bryner and Margaret Leighton, in "The Sound and the Fury", in beautiful Color by De Luxe, and Cinemascope opening Thursday at the Air Conditioned Belle Theatre.

"But I also watch considerable night-time television, and I say that a lot of pap comes out on that. And I also say that with the same amount of money and rehearsal time, we—the technical and acting crews—could do a better job. And, what's more, I often see stuff on important evening shows—bad camera work, bad acting—which wouldn't be permitted on our shows."

Larkin says that the extremely slow pace at which the story line of the average daytime serial crawls along is deliberate.

"It's based on a formula which indicates that the average viewer watches our show 2½ times a week," he says, "and it is written so that if you watch the show two or three days in a row you'll have a pretty good idea of what is happening and what has happened in the immediate past."

AT THE PARK — Richard Widmark, as the sadistic outlaw in "The Law and Jake Wade", who sacrifices friend and foe alike for his own gain. Also starring in the excitement-packed MGM outdoor drama are Robert Taylor and Patricia Owens. The big outdoor feature opens Thursday at the air conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program and having its first showing, "Floods of Fear", pulse-pounding drama of suspense starring Howard Keel and Anne Heywood.

At the Belle

Gregory Peck and Susan Hayward in "Kilimanjaro" in Color, and "Intent To Kill" 2nd top movie.

"The Snows of Kilimanjaro", Twentieth Century-Fox's heralded Technicolor production of Ernest Hemingway's classic story, starring Gregory Peck, Susan Hayward, Ava Gardner and Hildegarde Neff, is one of two features playing today for the last times at the Belle Theatre.

One of the screen's major film achievements, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", is the dramatic story of a famous writer and big game hunter who reviews his life, loves, adventures and frustrations while awaiting possible death beneath the shadows of Mt. Kilimanjaro in Africa. Via the use of flashback, the writer traces his career through Paris, the French Riviera, Africa and the Spanish Civil War.

SECOND FEATURE TOP MOVIE

The second new feature attraction is a top movie, offering a new high in romance and suspense, starring Richard Todd, Dawn Addams, Herbert Lom and Warren Stevens and appropriately titled, "Intent to Kill".

The picture is a tense drama with an unusual action climax. Miss Drake, staff doctors, in the The story tells of an attempt plot against the life of Lom Latin American Dictator, a patient in a Montreal Canada hospital, a thrilling gunfight in the hospital where he undergoes a delicate a climax so unexpected and unbrain operation, Lom's would-be usual, that it takes audiences by assassins involve both Todd and complete surprise.

Cold Weather Greets Entries For Canadian Open Tourney

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The last wrinkles remained for the Canadian open golf championship come up today and all hands—certainly Bill Casper — were hoping the weather would warm as well.

The rotund Californian who won the U.S. Open Sunday, bopped off a plane Tuesday, was whisked to the Islesmere course and promptly declared: "I thought I was being set down in Alaska."

Prospects today were that the temperature might get up to 65 and that there will be gradual warming for the start of the 72-hole tournament Thursday.

The draw shows an entry list of 150. The field will be cut to 100 pros and ties after Friday's play and to 60 lows and ties after the third 18-hole round Saturday.

MANY MISSING

A good many of the touring pros hadn't arrived at the course Tuesday. For those on hand, practice rounds were the order of the day. Best reported was a three-under-par 69 by veteran Wes Hunt of Montreal's Laval-sur-le-Lac club.

Casper turned in a 71.

Among Casper's touring mates considered likely to upset him are Art Wall, Jr., this year's winner of the Masters and top-money man on the tour, Bob Rosburg, Doug Ford, Ken Venturi, Tommy Bolt and Paul Harney.

ELLIS DEFENDING

Wes Ellis, a Texan who plays out of Ridgefield, N.J., is the defending champion and is not being overlooked. Ellis won at Islesmonton last year.

He and big George Bayer of Dallas are the only previous winners among the American contingent entered. Bayer won at Richelieu two years ago.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Al Balding of Toronto, both of whom have been on the box, are regarded as the best prospects for a repeat by a Canadian.

Bring Back Floating Ball Suggests Scot

NEW YORK (AP) — A wee, silver-bairded Scotsman says there is only one way to keep golf from becoming muscle-bound — bring back the floating ball.

"Most are hitting the ball further than ever before, courses are being lengthened by real estate operators, it is taking longer and longer to play a round," Sir Guy Campbell said today. "I have long felt it is up to the rules-makers to do something about it."

Sir Guy, a sprightly 75, is an ardent golf architect who has spent his life in the engraving ground of the sport. St. Andrews. He is in the United States to lend his talents to building a unique golf course in Irvington, Va.

"We can't make longer courses — we haven't the space", said Sir Guy in an interview. "We can't alter our old courses without destroying their character. We have reached the saturation point so far as implements are concerned. That leaves the ball."

The floating ball was used by the British until 1921 and by the U.S. until 1932 when both countries adopted a heavier and livelier ball weighing 1.62 ounces.

The old ball weighed 1.5 ounces and was light enough to float on water.

"If the U.S. Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient got together, they could get manufacturers to produce such a ball—a perfect ball, mind you, but one which the topflight shotmakers could not hit as far."

Western Royals Have Agreement With Bruins

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hal Layne, general manager of the Western Hockey League New Westminster Royals, said Tuesday the club has made a definitive working agreement with Boston Bruins.

He also said the club, sold to Portland, Ore., interests recently, will operate this season in New Westminster "if the fans want us back."

Layone said the club stands a good chance of getting one of Bruins' three goalies—Don Simmons, Harry Lumley or Bruce Gamble.

The Royals are expected to move to Portland after the season.

City Commercial Softball League

Jack Reid's pinch-hit homer with a mate on base in the bottom of the seventh gave Bishop Steels a 9-8 decision over Mead-Sportsmen in a close City Commercial Softball league tilt last night.

Mead's had snapped a 7-7 tie with one run in the top of the last frame on pitcher "Bunk" Young's honest. Then in the bottom of the frame with two out and one on via a walk Reid came off the bench to line a circuit blast deep to centre for the 9-8 win.

Mead-Sportsmen had taken an early 5-0 lead before Bishop's entered seven in the fourth.

Andy Knott pitched the distance for the winners. He allowed nine hits, whiffed two and walked two. "Bruno" McCarty started for the losers, with Young taking over in the fourth. They gave up six hits, fanned nine and passed five.

Tommy Schrieder had a double and single for Bishop Seeds but Reid's homer was the telling blow. Singles went to Bob Nobes, Dusty Darvin and Jack Garvin.

Warren Snell had a double and two singles in defeat while LeRoy McBrien had a pair of four-baggers and Young a home run. Bill Muirhead, McCurdy and Al Worsley hit singles.

Mead-Sports. 101 3b1 1 8 9 3
Bishop Seeds 000 700 2 9 5 7

Batteries: McCurdy, Young (4) and Kumpf, McBrien (4); Knott and Schrieder.

Belle Cleaners climbed into second-place tie with Mead-Sportsmen in another Commercial League game by downing the Bobcat Juveniles 7-3.

The winners took an early 4-0 lead and never trailed as errors and walks hurt the Bobcat cause.

Deacon Whiting paced the victors at the plate with a home run, double and a single. The other hits, all singles, were shared by Wood, Chuck Rowbotham, Ellis and Treacy.

John Lewis smashed a long pinch-hit homer for Bobcats in the last of the seventh while Jerry St. Denis also hit safely in a pinch-hit role in the last frame. But it was not enough. Paul Zakos had a double and single while Gerry Duggan doubling and Stu Muirhead and Billy "The Kid" McGuire collecting singles.

Ellis hurled for the winners, allowing seven hits, fanning one and pating two. Ken McLaren gave up seven hits on the Bobcat mound with one strikeout and eight walks charged against him.

Belle Cleaners 121 010 2 7 7 1
Bobcat Juv. 000 201 1 3 7 4

Batteries: Ellis and Rowbotham; McLaren and Clapp.

The unofficial league standing shows Sports Centre in top spot with 13 points while Mead-Sportsmen and Belle Cleaners are tied for second with ten each. Plane's Construction has nine, Bobcat Juveniles seven, while Northern Electric, Chris' Drive-In and Bishop Seeds have six points apiece. Texaco Chiefs are next with five followed by Corbin Lock with four and Bankers, in the basement, with two.

Queen Visits Royal Ascot

ASCOT, England (CP) — The McGrath family of Ireland, which started the Irish Sweepstakes, shared honors with the Queen Tuesday as Royal Ascot opened its famous three-day meeting.

The Queen, who will miss two days of the Ascot meet because of her Canadian tour, saw her three-year-old Above Suspicion win the St. James's Palace Stakes, last event on the day's card.

Earlier in her good stayer, Agreement, ran unplaced in the Ascot Stakes over 2½ miles.

The Queen wore a buttercup yellow dress with roses on the shoulder. Hundreds of thousands of spectators, including the usual high percentage of fashionable people, jammed the famous race course in Berkshire on the first day of a meeting that ranks as one of the events of the social season.

The Queen has told Canadian friends in London that seeing several races at Toronto's New Woodbine track, including the Queen's Plate, will be a real compulsion for missing part of Ascot.

Seamus McGrath, 36-year-old Dublin trainer, saddled the first two winners Tuesday in Lucky Guy, owned by his brother Joseph, and Vivi Torquin, owned by Mrs. Joe McGrath. The latter was a prime mover in launching the Irish Sweepstakes between the wars.

Whats This! Tenant Wants Rent Upped

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Colts of the National Football League went to see their landlord Tuesday because they want his rent doubled.

Some landlords receiving such a request might be astonished, suspicious or inclined to call a psychiatrist.

But in this case the landlord —the city parks and recreation board — is genuinely appreciative. The town treasury needs a quick $12,000,000 or so to balance next year's expected budget, and even the estimated $50,000 a year resulting from the Colts offer would help.

The club offered the board a new contract to double the four per cent of the net gross gate which now goes to the city. The present contract has four years to run.

The board is expected to accept the offer.

Will Reply To Attacks Says Brundage

GENEVA (AP) — Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Tuesday he will return to the United States next week and reply personally to the "completely unjustified attacks" on the IOC following its recent decision on China.

The IOC decided last month at a meeting in Munich that the Chinese Nationalist Olympic Committee on Formosa would not be allowed to enter athletes on the Chinese mainland.

Brundage said in an interview that this decision would not be reversed but negotiations would continue to find some acceptable designation for athletes from Formosa.

"Our decision has been fantastically distorted, misunderstood and misrepresented — particularly in the United States where some ridiculous statements have been published," Brundage said.

Akins Fights Cuban Tonight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)— Virgil Akins, former world welterweight boxing champion, hits what he hopes will be the comeback trail tonight against undefeated Luis Rodriguez, Cuban welter king. Akins is a 7-to-5 favorite.

The Cuban figures to win if the television fight goes the distance but Akins does not expect it to last the 10 rounds.

Akins boasts a 49-22-1 record. He lost the crown to Don Jordan and failed to regain it in a return bout.

The 32-year-old Cuban will be fighting a man 10 years his senior and may try to wear down Akins with his speed and aggressiveness.

GIANTS RECALL RELIEVER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco Giants Tuesday recalled Billy Muffett from Phoenix in the Pacific Coast League in a bid to tighten their relief pitching. Muffett was 3-2 for Phoenix. The Giants sent reliever Don Liddal (0-0) and catcher Roger McCardell to Phoenix.

Favor Olmedo For Wimbledon Tennis Crown

LONDON (AP)—Alex Olmedo, the Peruvian who almost singlehandedly won the Davis Cup for the United States, Tuesday was made No. 1 favorite for the men's title in the Wimbledon tennis championships. The tournament opens Monday and runs until July 4.

The 22-year-old University of Southern California student was seeded No. 1 over Neale Fraser of Australia, the 1958 runner-up. Olmedo's Davis Cup teammate and doubles partner, Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, was seeded No. 5.

Neither the men's nor women's divisions will have a defending champion. Australian Ashley Cooper, who beat Fraser in last year's final, has turned professional. Althea Gibson of New York, the women's titleholder, has taken a temporary tennis leave.

Christine Truman, gangling 18-year-old British girl, was seeded No. 1 in the women's singles ahead of another British Wightman Cup player, Angela Mortimer.

GIANT'T WON TET

Olmedo not only never has been seeded at Wimbledon but even before his six-foot frame never has won a match in the appearance, in 1957, he was beaten in the first round by Mervyn Rose of Australia.

Meanwhile, Olmedo said Tuesday he wants to play top-class amateur tennis for another two years "before talking about turning professional." He added: "I want to win the Wimbledon claim another year and come back to defend it next year. Only then would I start talking about turning professional."

Olmedo was answering professional promoter Jack Kramer's claim that the Peruvian "turned his nose" at a $100,000-$100,000 offer to join the professional tennis tour in November.

Chisox Cut Del Ennis

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Del Ennis, a 10 - year major league veteran, was cut by Chicago White Sox Tuesday to enable the club to reach the 25 player limit.

Ennis, 34, will be either released unconditionally or optioned, with his acceptance, to the Sox' Indianapolis farm affiliate in the American Association.

He was acquired from Cincinnati May 1 for pitcher Don Rudolph and utility player Lou Skizas. Ennis batted .250 in Philadelphia Phillies' star had a hot streak the first few weeks of May, then went into a slump.

Chicago president Bill Veeck said he hopes Ennis may sign in an effort to close a "big" deal with Washington Senators. He said he wanted Washington five players, plus $250,000 for Roy Sievers and two other Senators, believed to be Jim Lemon and a pitcher.

Former Brave Juan Pizarro Has No-Hitter

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Juan Pizarro, a fire-balling southpaw sent down from Milwaukee just 10 days ago, pitched a no-hitter for Louisville in the American Association Tuesday night.

The Latin southpaw faced only 28 batters as he blanked Charleston Senators 1-0. He struck out eight and would have had a perfect game except for walks to Bubba Morton in the fourth and to Al Paschal in the eighth. Morton was erased on a double play.

Ole Archie In Montreal On June 24

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)— Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore said Tuesday he will leave June 23 for Montreal and his title rematch with Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B.

Jack Kearns, Moore's special advisor, said Moore plans to arrive in Montreal June 24 and participate in some of the ceremonies dedicating the St. Lawrence Seaway.

It is merely physical evidence that the College of Applied Pachydermy has added culture to its curriculum.

RICKI STARR

face. One of the fastest mat stars ever to don tights in the rugged pro sport, Ricki is an almost impossible target to hit squarely or grab firmly.

Verne Gagne said of him, "I've seen him wrestle and I think he is clever, but too much a will-o'-the-wisp and how are you going to pin his shoulders to the mat when you can't get him?"

All of which brought a big grunt of disdain from toughie Al Korman who meets Ricki here Friday night. "I'll catch him, if I have to use a butterfly net or a fishing gaff," he growled.

Yukon Eric is back in what should be a sizzling bout with that old toughie, the former world champion, Dick Hutton. That, too, should be one for the archives. Pat Flanagan and Jack Laskin open the festivities.

WATER SAFETY AT THE YACHT CLUB

The other day a father leaped into the water from a boat after his 2½-year-old daughter had fallen overboard. He swam to the child and kept her above water for some thirty minutes before a boat arrived and took both to safety.

Had the father not known some of the most important rules of water safety there would have been a single tragedy, if not a double one.

The city is emphasizing water safety this week through various organizations and methods. One of the features will be the public meeting at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club tomorrow night starting 7.30. The public is cordially invited to attend, and it well behooves all to be there and see what is being done and what can be done to cut down or prevent the large number of water accidents which occur every year, and of which at least one-half could have been prevented through knowledge of safety rules.

Three motion picture films will be shown in the yacht Club. An experienced RCMP officer will give a brief address on water safety. An RCAF Otter aircraft will demonstrate air-sea rescue, with conditions permitting, after which the public will be permitted to board the aircraft and inspect its equipment. Arrangements are under way to have the RCAF send a helicopter (sorry, no free rides), and an official diesel crash boat. Both the waterfront marines, Boothi's and Coyer's, will have large displays of water-safety equipment.

The Belleville Fire Department will be on hand with its various items of life-saving equipment and will demonstrate resuscitation and other methods.

The city Water Safety Council under the chairmanship of Dr. Harold Craig, and the Yacht Club's efficient Don MacKinnon are going all out to make this meeting a momentous one in the week's program.

None of us is too old to learn the simple rules of water safety. A few minutes of time spent this week attending the various instructional functions offered by the council, and the knowledge gained might mean the difference between rescue and tragedy.

Chief McLish Pitches Tribe To 7th Straight Over Bosox; Big Newk Wins Six in Row

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

There were snickers last spring when manager Mayo Smith figured the big fellow in his Cincinnati pitching staff might be Don Newcombe.

Newk? Sure he won 27 in 1956, but he was washed up, hadn't even been able to win 20 over two season since.

So who's the ace of the Red staff? Big Newk, winner of six straight, all complete games, with a 3.00 earned run average and .440 against the slugging San Francisco Giants after he chopped them down 2-1 Tuesday night.

It was Newcombe's seventh victory of the season, matching his total for last year when he lost 13. This one slipped the Giants two games behind the National League-leading Milwaukee Braves, who came off with a 5-4 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

CLEMS TAKE PAIR

Pittsburgh Pirates tightened their hold on third, just a game behind the Giants, by beating Chicago Cubs 5-2. St. Louis Cardinals swept a two-night series from Philadelphia Phillies 8-1 and 5-2.

Newk, who hasn't lost since he dropped his fourth game May 10, struckout the Giants stump in three games with a six-hitter, walking none and striking out three.

The sixth - place Reds didn't give him a lead until they roughed up Mike McCormick (4-6) for both runs in the eighth inning on Vada Pinson's 11th homer, a single by Frank Robinson and a double by Gene Thomas.

Lew Burdette won his 10th for the Braves but failed to go the distance for the fifth straight time when the Dodgers, shut out for seven frames, scored twice in the ninth. John Roseboro's double and walk brought on reliefer Don McMahon, who gave up a two-run single by Charlie Neal before getting Wally Moon on a popup that ended it.

Moon, who was 4-for-5, had tripled home a run and scored on himself in a two-run eighth. Johnny Podres (7-3) was the loser.

Bob Friend (3-8) won it for the Pirates, who broke a 1-1 tie with four runs after two were out in the ninth. Don Hoak's two-run double and Friend's two - run single beat Dave Hillman (3-5) as the Pirates won their fifth decision in a row. Reliefer Roy Face figured in his 37th victory since he last lost (May 30, 1958) by getting the last two outs. Ernie Banks hit his 18th homer for the Cubs.

The Cards made it eight out of 10 as Wilmer Mizell (8-3) beat Lee Philo in the opener and Ernie Broglio, who had lost five, won his first in the majors with Cindy McDaniel's two - inning relief.

Cleveland Indians are riding their hottest streak of the season and Carl McLish is back in stride, but still trying to shake a shutout jinx.

The big righthander, whose lone whitewash performance in the majors came eight years ago, pitched the Indians to their seventh straight success and a full-game lead in the American League race with a 4-1 victory over Boston Red Sox Tuesday night.

It was the fifth time this season McLish, 6-3, has come close to smiling his second shutout. This time he missed by inches—when Harry Kough's seventh - inning drive ticked outfielder Rocky Colavito's glove and got away for a home run.

New York Yankees helped along by defeating Chicago's second-place White Sox 5-1. Other games, limited at Baltimore and Kansas City at Washington, were rained out.

The Indians plunked the Red Sox back into a last-place tie with Washington on a two-run homer by Dick Brown in the fifth inning against loser Ted Wills (4-6).

McLish's lone shutout in the majors, Wednesday, came in the National League when he was working for Chicago Cubs in 1951.

The Sox wakees moved to within a single game of fourth - place Baltimore behind the five - hit pitching of Art Ditmar (5-4). The Sox scored in the first inning on a double by Nellie Fox and Sherm Lollar's single, then managed only a pair of singles by Norm Cash, in the fourth and sixth, the rest of the way. Detroit walked but one, struck out four, Billy Pierce (7-7) was the loser.

Hal Smith homered in the opener for the Cards and Gino Cimoli hit a two-run homer in the first inning of the nightcap, clinched on Stan Musial's triple in the fourth.

Dave Philley homered and singled for both second - game runs by the Phils, Ruben Gomez (1-4) and Jim Owens (4-4) were the losers.

Pirates Say All-Star Game Is Sellout

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Officials of Pittsburgh Pirates took on look at their mail Tuesday —and promptly announced what everyone expected. The all - star baseball game at Forbes Field July 7 is a sellout.

With much more mail from out of town to be received the ball club estimated it had received 150,000 applications. Only 15,000 seats will go to the general public. The remaining 20,000 are allotted to the baseball commissioner's office, both major league offices, the 16 major league team offices, minor league officials and others in baseball.

Pittsburgh officials said it will probably be at least two weeks before applicants receive their tickets or have their cheques and money orders returned."

Joey Giardello Ko's Flanagan In 1st Round

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Joey Giardello of New York knocked out Del Flanagan Tuesday night with a savage right smash to the head at 2:36 of the first round to inflict the second home defeat on the St. Paul boxer in his 10-year career. Giardello weighed 161½ and Flanagan 161.

Giardello's blow landed just above Flanagan's left ear. The 31-year-old Irishman lay motionless for a seven count and struggled back to his feet a split second after referee Billy McCabe counted him out.

Even if he had risen in time, Flanagan was in no shape to go on although he claimed he was on his feet before the final count.

Ingemar Was Not Impressive, Leaves Boxing Writers Cold

By JACK HAND

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)—He put it mildly, Ingemar Johansson was not impressive. Perhaps it was an off day for the unbeaten Swede. Perhaps he was holding back for fear of giving away secrets. Whatever it was, it left many boxing writers cold.

Johansson, in the home stretch of his training for the June 25 title match with heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, showed little fire in his work Tuesday.

Johansson said candidly after it was over: "Four good days and then this—the fifth. And with all the boxing writers and Jack Dempsey watching. I was not so fast. It was one of those days."

The European heavyweight champ used his right sparingly as he has done in all his workouts. Still, they insist the right is the big punch—the punch that knocked out Eddie Machen in one round. A slugger devoting all his time to a job is something like Mickey Mantle spending spring training practising bunts.

Dempsey watched carefully from a ringside seat.

"It isn't fair to look at a man once and make up your mind about him," he said afterwards. "This is a European fighter, fighting European style. Maybe he is holding back. Maybe they do it that way over there.

"I'll say this about him. He is a strong, rugged fellow in good shape. He has a pretty good left and he looks like he might throw a pretty good right when he gets around to throwing it. He looks like he doesn't fight too much in close.

"But the record speaks for itself. He is unbeaten. You've got to give him a chance. Remember he is not an American - style fighter.

"... Maybe he is trying to make Patterson over-confident."

Ingemar has only four more days of boxing before he finishes Saturday.

When is he going to throw the right? What is he saving it for? Maybe Patterson will find out June 25.

Goliat Smacks 'Walk' Pitch Over Fence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Goliat has clubbed many a home run, but the one he'll probably remember best came Tuesday night against Havana's Emilio Cuecha.

Cuecha was attempting to walk Goliat when the Montreal Royals' second baseman reached out and slammed the first wide pitch over the right field fence with two men on base. It provided the winning margin in the Royals' 7-5 victory.

In other International League action, Toronto defeated Miami 5-2, Buffalo clung to a half-game first-place lead over Richmond, though losing to Columbus, 3-2 while Rochester beat the Vees 5-4.

Goliat, who played 24 games with Toronto this season before being traded to the Royals, hit his blast in the sixth inning as Cuecha made his first pitch in relief of loser Walt Craddock (6-5). It gave his mates a 7-2 lead at the time.

Larry Novak hit two home runs for Havana and Curt Roberts and Clyde Parris one each for Montreal as Babe Birrer (4-7) got the victory with relief help.

LEAPS BY LATE RALLY

Toronto used four singles in the eighth inning to score two runs and the winning score 2-1 against Miami's Jack Fisher. They hit two more singles in the ninth before Art Kay took over and gave up three more and three runs. Fisher pitched listless ball over five innings. Al Pehanic (2-2) was the winner in relief of Bob Chakales.

Lefthander Joe Gibbon broke Columbus' seven - game losing streak against Buffalo with a five-hitter. He struck out nine and didn't walk a man. Bobby Morgan homered for the Bisons and Tim Burgess hit his 14th for Columbus. Don Erickson (3-2) was the loser.

Rochester's Bill Smith, also a lefty, duplicated Gibbon's five-hitter against Richmond. He struck out six and walked one as his mates used two errors for four unearned runs against loser Bob Wiesler (7-4).

CHICAGO (AP) — Abe Saperstein said Tuesday his Harlem Globetrotters basketball team will play nine games in Moscow's Lenin Central Stadium during a seven-day period beginning July 6. The Globetrotters will play their own travelling opponents, the San Francisco Chinese Basketeers. The Globetrotters now are in Paris.

Jobless Number Drops Further Early in May

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian employment continued to rise in May while the number of job-less dropped off by 111,000 in the month.

The government reported Tuesday that at May 16, the number of persons without jobs and seeking work was reduced to 334,000 from 445,000 a month earlier and 370,000 at May 24 last year.

Meanwhile the number of persons with jobs rose to 5,852,000 compared with 5,664,000 at mid-April and 5,750,000 at May 24 last year.

It was the fourth successive month of rise in employment for Canada, sharply different from the winter jobless peak of 538,000 in January. The post-war un-employment high was 507,000 in March last year.

LABOR FORCE GROWS

The number of persons with jobs in Canada rose in May at a pace faster than the growth in the labor force which increased to 6,186,000 at May 16 from 6,100,000 at April 18 and 6,020,000 at May 24 last year.

Farm job-holders increased in May to 724,000 from 661,000—in April, though the total was still less from the 739,000 at May a year ago. Non-farm employment rose to 5,128,000 in May from 5,003,000 in April and 5,011,000 last year.

Most of the May upswing in employment was of a seasonal nature with the resumption or ex-pansion of outdoor work such as farming, construction and trans-portation. One-third of the month's rise in employment was in farming.

In addition to the 334,000 with-out jobs at May 16, the govern-ment also reported 20,000 on tem-porary layoff compared with 22,-000 in the previous month and 19,000 last year.

Unless the bureau of statis-tics figures, the government also reported National Employment Service figures showing the num-ber of persons registered for work at employment service offices dropped to 585,489 at May 14, down 49,539 from May 22 a year ago. Some of these persons have jobs and are seeking new ones.

Canada To Build Big A-Power Station

HEPC To Share In Plant's Cost; Site Not Chosen

To Produce Electricity At Competitive Price

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will make an immediate start on the construction in Ontario of a large-scale atomic power station, Trade Minister Churchill announced today.

He told the Commons that the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Com-mission will pay part of the $60,000,000 cost of the station which will develop 200,000 kilowatts of electricity. It was expected the plant would be completed and in operation late in 1962 or early 1963.

Mr. Churchill said the site of the plant in Ontario is yet to be determined.

However, government sources said it likely will be located in southern Ontario, an area where hydro-electric power sources have been almost used up.

The minister said the plant, to be known by the code name Candu — Canadian Deuterium Uranium—will produce electricity at a price competitive with coal-fired power plants of similar size. This cost must be from five to six mills a kilowatt hour.

TO TRANSMIT HEAT

The station will use natural uranium as a fuel and heavy water to transmit heat from the atomic reactor to turbines hooked to electric generators.

This is the approach being used in an experimental power station known as NPD—another government demonstration — under construction at Rolphton, Ont., close to the site of Ontario hydro's huge Des Joachims generating station on the Ottawa River.

This plant—a joint project of crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, Ontario Hydro and the Canadian General Electric Company—will cost an estimated $20,000,000 and will produce 20,000 kilowatts of electricity when it goes into operation in 1961. This plant will not produce power on a competitive basis but information from it will be invaluable in the design of Candu.

Mr. Churchill said Atomic Energy of Canada will start the final design of Candu immediately to enable early construction. The basic design is to be completed in May, 1958.

WANTS IN RENFREW

Hardest hit was a four-block residential and business area around the Bisco plant in Renfrew where Police Sgt. Stewart Cooley estimated the loss would be at least to $1,000,000.

The storm also belted a Bisco rayon blanket area 24 blocks south of 79th Street and toppled trees and power poles in Cherry Grove, 100 blocks south of the causeway. It missed downtown Miami.

Cars were flipped and trees uprooted. A 90 m.p.h. wind was screaming into the streets, into the eye of blowing torrents of rain. Children wandered among downed live wires, police said.

The weather bureau first described the storm as "a severe thunderstorm."

"Everything we had is gone—levelled," reported Dr. George Ferro. "My $40,000 house is destroyed. There's a grapefruit tree where our living room was and a pool's been zipped out of the ground."

L. S. Pope, picked up bleeding on the causeway, said he was on the second floor of a five-family dwelling when its roof blew off. His bed was flung into the air.

Vicious Storm Batters Miami, Hundred Hurt

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The greater Miami area's first tornado in 10 years struck early Wednesday night and at least 100 persons were injured, some of them severely.

It was just don't get this kind of damage from a straight wind," forecaster Paul Hower said in identifying the vicious storm.

The first twister to hit the southeast Florida coast since the late 1940s left scores of bayfront homes in wreckage amid tangles of tree trunks, signs and overturned automobiles.

The storm hopped-frogged over a 12-mile path, dividing hundreds of persons from their homes.

An 11-year-old boy, Frank Vascellini, was reported in critical condition with head injuries but no deaths were reported.

When Reds in Spain Call Strike Absenteeism Declines to New Low

MADRID (CP)—Spanish Communists failed miserably today in their attempt to stage a 24-hour general strike.

Reports from labor centres throughout Spain showed even fewer persons absent from work than normally. Police headquarters had no indications of any incidents up to noon.

Foreign observers took the Communist failure to indicate a surprising strength in the non-Communist groups opposed to the regime.

FOUR RACE HORSES BURNED TO DEATH AT OLD WOODBINE

Screams of Animals Fill Night Air

TORONTO (CP)—A smoldering cigaret butt carelessly thrown near the stables of Old Woodbine race track Wednesday night sparked an inferno that killed four thoroughbreds and severely burned two others.

The fire department determined the cause of the blaze early today but could not give an estimate of the damage.

A mascot goat also died in the flames.

Track officials said approximately 200 horses valued at more than $600,000 were stabled at Old Woodbine. The overflow from the race meeting at New Woodbine and there were to have been moved there and to the Fort Erie course this week.

SAVE OTHER BARNS

Only the one building was destroyed by the fire. Stable boys formed a bucket brigade to wet down the roofs of the other barns.

Four of the dead horses were identified as Bumper Limit, four-year-old mare owned by Fred Dimarco; Sugar, owned by Mac-Farlane; Jay Wiseman; Win Gal; trained by Mr. Wiseman; and Miss Ekara, owned by Mrs. F. Maclean.

The fifth horse was believed to be Irish Martian, also owned by Mrs. MacLean. Officials said positive identification would be possible only when all the horses had been captured.

Ken Greene, manager of the lakeside track, could give no estimate of the damage or cause of the blaze.

TRAINER SAW FLASH

One of the first alarms was turned in by Earle Stone, a 60-year-old trainer. He was watering horses at one end of the stable when he saw "a flash of fire" down the centre of the 350-foot barn.

"I turned loose four or five horses then dashed to break the firebox. She sure went quick."

Grooms, trainers and stable hands released fear-ridden beasts which raced into the night. Police waved flashlights to keep them from hurtling into the mere 50 spectators who ringed the fire scene."

Gromyko Gets Day's Delay In Parley Showdown Session

GENEVA (CP)—The Big Four session due to be held this afternoon has been postponed until Friday an American spokesman said.

The postponement was announced shortly before the ministers were scheduled to meet at Andrei Gromyko's villa.

The Soviet foreign minister requested the delay during a private luncheon with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. Lloyd quickly obtained agreement from State Secretary Herter and Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Earlier today the three Western ministers held a half-hour session at which they were reported to have considered the possibility of seeking an adjournment if Gromyko rejects the West's new sloppo Berlin plan.

PEARSON MOTION ON PALLETT CASE NOT SETTLED

Speaker Will Give Verdict on Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — Speaker Roland Michener likely will rule Friday on the biggest procedural wrangle to hit the Commons since the uproarious pipeline debate of 1956.

Involved is the issue of whether the House should immediately consider a motion of privilege a motion by Opposition Leader Pearson calling for parliamentary inquiry into the conduct of Conservative whip John C. Pallett.

The Speaker sct off a furious four-hour debate Wednesday as he sought advice of members as to whether a question of privilege was involved.

FAILED TO GET ANSWE

Mr. Speaker, he said, he got no real answers to the questions on his mind and because of the importance of the matter, he was decided to delay judgment. He warned no date but it was learned he likely will rule Friday after reading the printed Hansard of the day's debate.

The Pearson motion rested on an Exchequer Court judgment on a legal action arising out of government expropriation land at Malton airport.

The judgment said a so-called "independent" land appraiser testified he was instructed by Mr. Pallett, member for Peel, to put as generous a valuation as possible on the appraised land.

The judgment also reported that Mr. Pallett, named government whip this year, testified that Transport Minister Hees agreed to be bound in advance on the

Sun Lifts Fog And Puts Plans Back On Schedule

Will Visit on Island Before Going to Quebec

BULLETIN

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)— The plane carrying the Queen and Prince Philip to Canada arrived over Torbay airport here at 1:35 EDT today.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—After two days of worry about whether the Royal Tour schedule would be upset before Queen Elizabeth even touched Canadian soil, the sun put things back to normal today.

A fog that blocked plane arrivals off and on for more than a week at nearby Torbay lifted today and opened the runways for an on-time arrival of the Queen's Monarch at 2 p.m. EDT.

BOAC, which announced shortly after the Comet took off from London at 8:03 a.m. EDT that the plane's destination was Argentia, Nfld., just four hours later that the original flight plan would be adhered to. An arrival at Argentia would have meant an uncomfortable drive for the royal party over 90 winding miles through Newfoundland road.

The Royal Tour committee confirmed as soon that the Queen would land at Torbay. After BOAC had announced the Queen was bound for Argentia, the committee in the decision was "neither final nor official." Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, chairman, made the official announcement of the Queen's destination early this afternoon.

Fog began lifting at all airports today and by noon planes were taking scheduled stops at Torbay, Argentia, Gander and Stephenville—the respective alternates considered by tour officials. The Comet was not expected to have any difficulty in making up the five - minute delay in the scheduled takeoff from London.

Had the Queen begun her sixweek, 45,000-mile North American tour in Argentia, it figuratively would have been starting on Britain's side of the Atlantic in American naval base.

Newfoundland weather luring the Queen's tour as Princess Elizabeth in 1951 wasn't as unco-operative. She and Prince Philip left nearby Portugal Cove on the first leg of their journey to Canada in an Atlantic gale. The royal couple won the heart of a shivering line storm as they bravved wind and rain to bid farewell to the crew.

The Queen and her party will proceed here from Torbay. No official ceremonies are scheduled for tonight. The night will be spent at government House.

After the opening program here the royal party moves to other points on the island before flying to Quebec.

Premier Joseph Smallwood said in an interview that "this is a great day for Canadians to appreciate the full meaning of the Royal Family and for that matter the British Empire.

"This is no time to listen to carping critics who would do us disservice. For the Queen's Commonwealth association and for the more maturity and more dependable predictability than anywhere else in this troubled world as ours. And the Queen is the visible symbol of that unbroken quality."

The department of lands and forests is providing the buffalo, which was shot Tuesday in Northern Ontario.

PARIS (Reuters) — Brigitte Bardot wed her handsome leading man Jacques Charrier, today after they teased the world for a week with yes-no replies to rumors they were already married.

This time it is official.

The glamorous French actress and Charrier took their marriage vows before Mayor Fernand Guillaume in the village of Louveciennes near Paris.

She wore a dazzling light linen dress for the simple civil ceremony in the town hall, which was approved by a handful of villagers and friends of the couple. LONDON (CP)—With a wave and a smile, the Queen and Prince Philip embarked today on the longest Royal Tour in a single country undertaken by any British monarch.

A benign sun filtered through a thick cloud as the royal couple left London airport for Newfoundland, its actual destination still in doubt.

The blue and silver Comet IV airliner took off at 1:08 p.m. BST (8:05 a.m. EDT) after a quiet ceremony at the airport.

The Queen, wearing a navy blue and white silk dress, matching coat and white hat with navy band, was the first to enter the aircraft, followed by the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret, who drove from the royal lodge at Windsor.

SAID GOOD-BYE

Prince Charles said his farewells last Sunday on a day of firm school and Princess Anne stayed behind at Buckingham Palace. The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret remained in the aircraft as three minutes before leaving. Then the Queen and the prince came to the door of the aircraft and waved goodbye two or three times.

Earlier, Prince Philip had spent a half-minute chatting on the tarmac with George Drew, Canada's high commissioner to the United Kingdom.

Also in the party seeing the royal couple off on the Queen's first cross-Canada tour as sovereign were Prime Minister Macmillan, the Earl of Home, Commonwealth relations secretary, Secretary R. A. Butler and other government officials.

Conversation at the airport was dominated by reports on the weather in Newfoundland.

Word had come that a storm was brewing at St. John's did not reach here before the departure.

ASKS INVESTIGATION

Mr. Pearson requested the judgment seemed to reflect on the conduct of Mr. Pallett and others in the committee. The House committee, Mr. Diefenbaker demanded that Mr. Pearson make a specific charge against Mr. Pallett, adding he would agree to such an inquiry.

Mr. Pearson maintained there had been a number of statements made since Confederation without a specific charge. It would be up to the committee to make a specific charge if it found this warranted. Mr. Diefenbaker maintained that a specific charge was necessary and was the basis of all previous inquiries.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) suggested Mr. Pearson was on "dangerous moral ground" in asking for such an inquiry.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson's motion was a "shilly-shally" one.

He said: "I hope I shall never allow any member to be struck in his honor and integrity on the basis of a motion such as this."

The exchanges grew so heated that at times it seemed as if approach the fury of the 1956 pipeline debate.

Throughout the storm, Mr. Pallett sat silently in his usual place in the committee room. Mr. Pearson's motion was a result of a speech delivered in the House last week by Liberal Leader Lester Pearson.

Argentine Army Dissidents Get More Support

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Support grew today for dissident army groups that already have forced the replacement of Argentina's undersecretary of war by a staunch anti-Peronist.

As President Arturo Frondizi's government entered its third day of crisis, heavily armed units manned all military establishments and fortified the war ministry in Buenos Aires with machine-gun posts.

At least nine powerful army garrisons were reported supporting the rebels in the Cordoba army command, which forces Col. Manuel R. Raimundes to resign as undersecretary.

Raimundes, felt by his fellow officers to be an ultra-nationalist, was replaced by Gen. Rosendo Fraga, described as closely linked with the pro-Peronist chief, Gen. Roberto Grotz.

Grotz demanded a thorough investigation of a rumored pact between Frondizi and a former dictator Juan Peron to ensure Frondizi's election last year. The Cordoba faction also is demanding an end to the government's use of troops and its military powers to block or break strikes on the railways and other key enterprises.

Frondizi has denied any pact with Peron, though the ex-dictator and his supporters claim one was signed.

Then I remember a beer bottle
Gone all heartaches and all fears.
Now I'm resting in God's love
Where they count not time by years.

Work on Sewage Disposal Plant On Schedule

TRENTON — Councillor Lloyd Weese, was named to take over as acting chairman of the Board of Health during the absence of the regular chairman, H. S. Pane, at a short meeting of the board yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Pane and Dr. E. W. Dow, Medical Health Officer for Trenton will be attending the Ontario Public Health Association's annual convention for three days in the near future and Mr. Pane will also be attending the convention of the plumbing inspectors.

At yesterday's meeting Eric Aldersey, town engineer told the board that the new sewer line across the Trent River has now been completed with the exception of hooking it up to the pumping station. This will be done when the pumping station has been finished. He also told the board that other work on the new sewage disposal plant is on schedule and it is expected to be in operation by the end of the year.

Mr. Pane, chairman of the board, told the members that the Trenton Dye and Finishing plant on Flint Street have entered into a contract with Lakeland Natural Gas to install gas furnaces in their plant on July 1st and they plan to end to the root which flies from the present smoke stacks onto houses and cars in the nearby residential area.

He also informed the members that the weeds around the condemned building at Murphy Co. have been cut and the expense of this will be charged against the owners on their tax bill.

Present at yesterday's meeting were Chairman H. S. Pane, Dr. E. W. Dow, Miss M. Gothard, O. W. Lacey and town engineer Eric Aldersley.

One digestion tank, shown standing in the background of the above photo, has been completed and the base of the second has been started as the new sewage disposal plant in Trenton begins to take shape. In the foreground the grit tank and the pipe leading to river can be seen. On the right of the photo the large sediment tanks are seen under construction. It is expected the plant will be completed by the end of the year.

Building Sale Sold for $11,110 To S. Klemencic

TRENTON—One of the choicest sections in town for building lots was sold by the town to Stanko Klemencic for the sum of $11,110 at a recent meeting of the full council.

The building site on the corner of Wilson Crescent and Bridge Street was put up for tender and advertised in local papers and six contractors had placed a bid on the land. It is believed about 12 homes can be constructed on the almost 2 acres of property.

During the budget meeting in the early spring the town council had decided to put the land up for sale and at first was contemplating the selling of it by lots. However at a recent meeting council decided to put it up for tender as a parcel and had anticipated getting around $10,000 for it.

With the decision to sell it to Mr. Klemencic, a local building contractor, was subject to the approval of the town engineer, Eric Aldersey and the purchaser will be required to submit a plan for the development of the site.

It is considered choice property because of its location in a residential area and because water and sewer services already run past both sides of the site on Sidney Street and on Wilson Crescent.

The land was recently returned to the town by the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Federal Government had decided not to build an armouries there.

Veterans to Hold Decoration Day On Sunday

TRENTON — In memory of those veterans who have passed on, Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion will be holding its annual Decoration Day, Sunday June 21st.

Legionnaires, members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, and all veterans are requested to be at the Legion Memorial Hall at 8.45 a.m.

Vehicles will be available to transport all those participating in the ceremony to the various cemeteries in the district.

At approximately 12.30 p.m. a suitable religious ceremony will take place in front of the Cenotaph at Fraser Park.

All citizens of Trenton are urged to join the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion in memory of Trenton's bravest sons.

Clearing Land At Batawa for New Building

TRENTON — Gangs of workmen began clearing away the ornamental trees and garden on the east side of Batu Shoe Factory, Batawa, preparatory to the new building project which is to be started as soon as the ground is clear. An extensive addition to the factory is being planned, thus making it one of the manufacturing assets of the Trent valley. The construction will be under the direction of Eric Sibley.

ENJOY PICNIC

Several bus and car loads of happy children left for Little Lake yesterday afternoon when the members of St. George's Anglican Church Sunday school enjoyed their annual picnic. Many parents and friends accompanied the youngsters on this excursion. The park was much patronized as a picnic centre yesterday, many other groups also availing themselves of the facilities offered there.

Business Women Enjoy Picnic

TRENTON — Thirty - six members and guests of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, attended the annual June picnic-banquet at Lake - on - the - Mountain last night A Belleville man, Mr. H. Stark, of 13 Wicket Street, was the lucky winner of the $50 gas certificate drawn at the picnic. The sale of tickets on the "Gas Certificate" is one of the club's major fund-raising projects.

The members took advantage of the facilities available at Lake-on-the-Mountain and put on their own program with club talent. Among the items of interest on the program was a solo by Mrs. Mary Thompson, "The Golden Key," by Carrie Jacobs-Bond, which is dedicated to the National Federation of B & PW Clubs.

During the evening a part president's pin was presented to Miss Kay Patterson and Miss Patterson in turn presented all members who had made a complete registration to the recent conference with black and silver International Federation pins. The program ended in a square dance session.

This was the final meeting for the season. Meetings will be resumed in September under the presidency of Mrs. Jennie Wills.

Dye, Finishing Plant to Use Gas-Fired Units

TRENTON — It was announced at the last meeting of the Trenton town council on Monday night that the Trenton Dye and Finishing plant on Flint Street will be replacing its present heating system with natural gas-fired units.

During the past there have been several complaints from nearby residents and presented at various council meetings concerning the abundant amount of soot which flies from the furnaces of this plant.

In seeking a way to eliminate this the company has apparently decided that the only way possible was to make arrangements to install the gas-fired units.

The announcement came following a report by Councillor William Bradshaw, chairman of the Sanitation and Waste Removal Committee, that his committee would recommend that the Trenton Dye and Finishing plant's chare in the cost of the new sewer to be installed there to be $8,500.

The total cost of the sewer will be $21,000 and will increase the present 10-inch line to an 18-inch one. This will relieve all the sewer lines in that vicinity and prevent the backing-up of sewer waters during heavy rain storms.

Shooting Ceases in Kerala But Showdown Still to Come

TRIVANDRUM, India (AP)— Shooting has ceased after five angry days in Kerala but the showdown between the state's Communist government and the united opposition is still to come.

The opposition political parties and religious groups, with their picketing of schools and offices, now no sign of dislodging the Communist regime. And 12 of the demonstrators, all Roman Catholic Indians, have died in clashes with police since Saturday.

If the campaign gets nowhere, the foes of the rulers of India's only Communist state threaten to launch an all-out campaign June 22.

TAX STRIKE POSSIBLE

This would include mass picketing of government offices and blocking the state-operated bus system, refusing to pay taxes and withdrawing money from banks.

A final decision on this will be made Sunday. The Congress party, largest opposition group, is under pressure from the govern ing national Congress party of Pr Jawaharlal Nehru to avoid violence.

Prime Minister Nehru to avoid anything that might lead to major violence.

There was one brief flareup of violence Wednesday — a village school was stormed by 60 youths. Picketing again took place all over Kerala despite the arrest of some 600 pickets in the disturbances.

Three opposition parties, Congress, Socialist and Moslem, and the Christians and Nairs (upper-caste Hindus) are demanding the resignation of the Communist government of Premier E. M. S. Namboodiripad.

The religious groups charge the government is trying to commandeer the schools, most of which are run by churches although the state pays most of the

HER WORK WAS A PLEASURE

The telephone is a big boon to a newspaperman. It saves him much legwork - - sometimes far too much. It is possible to go for months, or even years, without personal acquaintance with the person attached to the pleasant voice at the other end of the line.

The other day, coming on the cashier's desk at a restaurant with a woman with a happy face, we exchanged smiles and inquired whether the owner of the smile was not Mrs. Anne Haggerty, the city clerk. Receiving an affirmative answer, we expressed thanks for information and assistance given us on several occasions over the past half-dozen years.

"Oh, it was a pleasure," she said.

She sounded as if she really meant it.

The office of city clerk is one which frequently exerts extreme pressure on the time and temper of the occupant. The clerk, besides many official duties, has others which are never listed, not the least important of which is the unofficial task of being the public relations officer for the administration. Whether citizens are satisfied or discontent with the way affairs are being handled at the city hall depends, in no small measure, on the treatment they receive when they take their personal problems to some city official, and more often than not this official is the city clerk. There are times in the work of a city clerk when everybody appears to be demanding help at once. By the law of averages some of our telephone calls must have arisen at such a time. Yet we always received a courteous hearing and help when it could be given, and now Mrs. Haggerty was saying it was a pleasure to assist in this manner.

We thought of telling her that she was a remarkable woman to regard her duties in this light. Instead we settled for a nod and a smile. It was our loss. Now the opportunity to do a kindness is gone. We made a mental note to do her a kindness if the opportunity ever arose; now the best we can do is to relate this simple, true story.

PESTICIDES AND THE BIRDS

Prof. Joseph Hickey of the University of Wisconsin department of forestry and wildlife recently told a U.S. Senate hearing on regulations on the use of pesticides of the effects of three sprays on birdlife.

"We have found 158 pairs of robins to 100 acres in unsprayed areas, while in sprayed areas only 56 pairs to 100 acres . . . and we think more have died or will."

The clear implication is that these sprays are killing birds instead of insects.

It may be, though, that the decline in the number of birds in sprayed areas only reflects the effectiveness of the pesticides in killing insects. With fewer insects available for food, the birds may seek other areas where eating is easier.

This, though, far from ending concern about the effects of pesticides, ought to bring home to us with added force the fact that it is almost impossible for man to influence nature in one realm without producing, usually striking, and often quite unwanted, effects in other fields.

Everybody wants to kill insect pests, but nobody wants to kill robins, or to drive them away.

The ideal world, from the standpoint of most of the human race, would be one in which there were no creeping, crawling, flying, biting, insects - - but lots of beautiful songbirds.

As long as many of our favorite birds depend heavily on insects for their daily food, this dream-world cannot be attained.

Nobody, so far, has suggested any way to convert a swallow from an insect-eater to a diner on birdseed.

Speaking of birdseed, the kind most birds eat is produced by weeds - - and this source, too, is often attacked by man's sprays.

Pesticides and insecticides must be the A-bombs and the H-bombs of the bird world.

TWO VISIONS OF HELL

A preacher we know said, "My idea of hell would be to listen to myself on a tape recorder for 10,000 years, 10,000 years." Farther down the street, the pastor of St. John's by the Gas Station said he goes through his idea of hell quite often on earth: Preaching to a congregation that one by one like the Arabs, fold their coats and noisily steal away.—Simeon Stylites in The Christian Century.

EXPERIENCE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

It may be men have won success
By sitting down and shirking,
By dodging every sort of task
That kept a fellow working.
It may be men have climbed the top
By letting trifles fret them;
I do not say they've not, but if
They have I've never met them.

It may be on the top today
Are men who hated labor;
Who envied, as they went to
it,
Some rich and lazy neighbor.
But though they had no love for labor

They knew they weren't above it.
They buckled in and went to work
Although they didn't love it.

It may be there are men who loafed
Away their moments sunny,
Who dodged the tasks they had to do
And that way made their money.
I do not say this isn't so;
If so you've a task, don't spurn
it,
Because the only men I know
With coin, have had to earn it.

Letter To The Editor

President of WCTU Defends Its Work

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Many I have a small part of your valuable space to defend the work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

All reform work is open to criticism but the criticism should be based on the truth. In simple words, the organization has as its object the "protection of the home against strong drink."

Alcohol, in addition, are the key words of our work. The national temperance study course for October, the poster and essay contest in the public schools in May, and the Conference Children's Camp in the summer months, comprise our program. Are you aware of any fanaticism in any of our activities.

Over a TV broadcast, and in the press, fanaticism was associated with our work. It surely suggests weakness. The "too much" is the "not enough" total abstinence," we consider, is our strength. "No alcoholic problem in the social, moral or economic, ever arose from total abstinence."

"Total abstinence is the only scientific preventive for alcoholism." Our motto, "Educate to work."

Voluntary abstinence is a Christian alternative to the use of alcohol. Personally, my interest in the W.C.T.U. work stems from the words of Sir Wilfred Grenfell, the famous Labrador coast, who said: "Alcohol has wrecked more homes, murdered more women, starved more children, than any other single agency." also the declaration of research work in scientific temperance, "The first glass silences the Voice of God," alarms me. The higher cells of the brain, the seat of reason, conscience, judgment, adoration, prayer, in man, are the part of the brain first affected, numbed, by alcohol.

"Alcoholic education is the only effective antidote to the subtle propaganda of the liquor traffic."

BEQUESTS BENEFIT THEOLOGICAL COLLEGE

Recently, when Principal Andrews of Queen's Theological College visited the Faculty of the Theological Colleges of the United Church of Canada, was giving his annual report to the Board of that College, he told of bequests totalling $30,000 that came to the college during the past year. Among these was that of a farmer of fairly moderate means who, because he had an interest in the training for the ministry, had left the residue of his modest estate to the college.

Another concerned a woman who had wanted to set up a scholarship in memory of her husband, and for many years had put aside some of her savings into a special account for the purpose. The result is that the husband's memory will be perpetuated and the college that trains men for the ministry helped.

The third concerned a friend of the college who for many years during his life time had given generously to assist the college. In his will he has contributed to the college what had been doing while he lived.

As Principal Andrews remarked, "Fortunately for our church cannot give sons to the ministry, the gifts of many others do not enter the ministry. Those who have love for the church, however, and who see the need of a trained ministry, can help by certain gifts to those who give themselves. There are few better ways to make a will than to include in it some bequest to the Theological College."

Is Consumer Really King?

Ottawa Journal

Writes the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in a little booklet it has just issued: "As a consumer you call the tune." The pronouncement claims the Chamber and does control the Canadian economy through his free-will choice as to how, when and where he will spend his income. "This is a dynamic sound enough in theory and one of undoubted appeal to the consumer. But how does it fit the facts of everyday life? Frankly, we doubt it.

Just the other day, The Journal had some pertinent comment on the impending annual facture of small automobiles on the continent. Here has been a known market for small, economical cars for many years. But North American manufacturers of mobile manufacturers take any steps to meet that market? Very few of them did until they were virtually driven to it, not by the consumer but by the imports from British and European vehicle manufacturers.

It might be argued that this is an extreme case but it certainly is not a unique one. Arbiters of what shall go to the shops and what shall remain on the shelves of retailers are not the consumers but the manufacturers. Consumers are the people who do their best to lead, guide or direct the consumer to buy the products they want him or her to buy. Pressure for standardization is a tremendous one while it is true that mass production permits low prices, it undoubtedly restricts the consumer's freedom of choice.

Even though he might like to believe he makes the decisions, the consumer dresses as the retailers urge him or she will dress, accepts his food packaged as the packages determine, eats the cigarettes the manufacturers decide he'll eat. In the main, all this is not especially harmful and most Canadians are pretty well satisfied with the manner in which their lives are run. But as to the consumer's freedom of choice, that's something else again. If it existed in its entirety, why would there be a Canadian Association of Consumers?

Letter To The Editor

Hospital Financial Facts Are Outlined

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital, concern was expressed over statements made by members of city council regarding hospital financing. These statements appeared in the daily press, broadcasted and were broadcast over radio station CJBQ.

The Board of Governors feels that to persons unfamiliar with the hospital operation that these statements might require some clarification.

Reference was made to the payment of the monies to the Belleville General Hospital for indigent patients. The statutory requirement with respect to indigent patients by a municipality is $5.25 per indigent patient per day. In 1951 the council of the city of Belleville recognized that the hospital lost money on special services for the indigent patients and agreed to pay the hospital for these; particularly in the case of the sodium salts — as opposed to the calcium or magnesium salts, which do not react in the same way with the organic materials in soap, and you don't get that "squeaky" ring". And, of course, the bathtub isn't the only place the poorly-soluble residue will collect. The reason why soft water is better for washing you skin is that the residue rinses out more easily.

But the important thing is how the water behaves for washing. To the best of my knowledge, and the knowledge of some experts whom I have consulted, it is not necessary, or no health hazard from drinking "hard water". Anyway, you don't eat soap, so you needn't worry about any "bathtub ring" in your stomach!

As to your arteries, or gall or kidney stones, I haven't any way in which "soft" or "hard" water would make the slightest difference, one way or the other.

There is, so far as I ever have been able to learn, only one health consideration involved. "softened" water is a matter of substituting sodium for either calcium or magnesium. Some softened water contains considerable amount of sodium. Some people say they think it gives a slightly salty taste. Others don't.

But for somebody on a low sodium diet (or low salt diet) this softened water could include too much sodium. For them — thumbs down! Don't drink the softened water.

There isn't any reason to drink softened water "because it is healthier." It isn't. And if I ever learn anything to the contrary I will so report to you.

For washing, I'm thoroughly in favor of soft water. As for drinking, some people (who like the taste of hard water for drinking, or for making coffee, etc.) install a third faucet at the kitchen sink. Others just find the softened water just as palatable, don't bother with the third water line. It's a matter of taste. Isn't (except in the matter of good) wrestling low salt diets) a matter of health.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it very important to use a douche? I have been using it for years and never used anything like that. I am expecting a baby soon.—Mrs. L."

I am at a loss to know where this idea of the douche originated. It is not necessary. The only exception to this flat statement is that a doctor, because, mildly medicated douche may be what you prescribe. For healthy people, not necessary.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

OSHAWA, ONTARIO

Following completing of the York Road (for military purposes) between Toronto and Toronto by Governor Simcoe in 1793, people began to settle in the area. By 1800 the village was quite a settlement known as Skea's Corners. When incorporation became a reality in 1850, a more suitable name was sought, and an Indian word was considered the honor of naming it. He chose the name Oshawa, the meaning of which is "The Crossing Of A Stream." No mention is made of what stream was meant.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I REMEMBER

I find myself remembering things that happened when I was a small boy easier than the multitude of things that are planted in my memory of recent years. I believe that one is forced us up with memory so that we might have more room from time to time, and call to mind many things that we shelved long ago.

It is wonderful to bring before us, in memory, those with whom we have not talked for many years. I recall many of my teachers in High School and College. And some of the scenes seen as real as though I had greeted them in my home. Memory is so very kind.

I recall how proud I was when I had learned to harness a team of horses, how to work with a "cradle" on the steep hills of the farm where I worked for two years. My employer was a very kind man who had no sons to go to the fill. He was an inspiration to me. I was but a lad of twelve years!

I have always been thankful for the opportunity of having teachers who were so helpful and kind. They work my way through school, but never felt bitter over the fact that my father was not able to pay for my expenses. I enjoyed being strong and healthy, and was to come close to Nature on the farm, and to learn much by way of honest experience.

The attitude of today, in contrast to that when I was young, is puzzling. Boys liked work then. I like it still. The cost of men today were once boys at humble jobs. I have always considered work a gift, no matter what it was. Work is food to the soul!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When these genteel beatniks of cultivation of the mind, the good family, on TV or radio or even in the press, deplore the absence of culture in Canada, we are inclined to ask a question. Let's get the willies. Do they not see culture sweeping over us like a prairie fire?

Our food is cultured, our fluids are cultured, our hands, our hair, our drinking water is cultured. The air we breathe is cultured by the rude forest which grew as it will. Our very thoughts are cultivated. Your mind is warped — like the door that stands open a year after year. Close it for a while on something and meditate yourself to a bit of intellectual privacy.

The genteel beatniks, of course, suppose they are talking about a different form of culture, the cultivation of the mind, the cultivation of taste — art, music, literature, the dance, and also the art of long and enlightened conversation.

But it is not, of course, all the same thing. Culture, in its barest and largest sense, means improvement, progress and liberation.

And all the massive forces of mankind, as expressed in industry, politics, science and art, are swollen with purpose to improve.

So it is safe to guess that without these genteel beatniks, they will not be able to find, in the whole of nature, a single, living thing that grew the way it wanted to grow; nor any living soul that has not been subject to perfection like a show poodle. Culture, in its most ancient sense, is likely to be the end of man.

Strength for The Day

PLEASE CLOSE THAT DOOR

A door that is always left standing open warps at last. Carpenters say that this is practically beyond dispute.

Now this writing today is going to be a nasty little diatribe against a certain variety of open-mindedness which has always appeared to be one of the every worst than the closed mind. I refer to people who talk this way: "One religion is as good as another to I'm an internationalist; don't think of myself as my own country than of any other . . . I believe in trying everything once; had hundreds of life as well as the good. . . . It's nonsense for a man to talk about loving one woman forever; broad-minded ness calls for spreading out and experimentation. I don't belong to any political party; I vote for the best man I can find. The Bible is a fine book, but there are a lot of other books in the world that are just as good. I subscribe to no creed; just try to do my best from day to day. I'm a broad-minded brother, light somewhere. Get your feet down on something. Flitting about is for the birds. Your open-mindedness means that you're just plain empty-headed. Your mind is warped — like the door that stands open a year after year. Close it for a while on something and meditate yourself to a bit of intellectual privacy.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

1st FOXBORO

Last Monday Scoutmaster Harry Ashton and Cubmaster Jim Churchill received their warrants signed by His Excellency the Governor-General.

Mr. Don Allan made the presentation and spoke of the many years these two gentlemen had devoted to the training of boys. Hundreds of boys have enjoyed the fun of Scouting and are better citizens because of the careful attention given them in the Foxboro Pack and Troop.

When Don was ADC Scouts, he valued Foxboro leaders as reliable and enthusiastic, always willing to do extra duties when called upon.

It is interesting to note that Mrs. Churchill is ACM and Queen's Scout Jim Churchill is Patrol Leader. Tommy is a Cub Scout and the late Fred Churchill (Jim's brother) will be remembered for a long time for his services to Belleville Scouting.

To Mr. and Mrs. Churchill, Jim and Tommy and to Mr. Ashton we wish many years of good Scouting.

AVONDALE CUB RECEIVES THIRTEENTH BADGE

Albert Besteman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Besteman, Palmer Road, was presented with his thirteenth proficiency badge on May 2.

Albert has always set a very good example of obedience in the pack and has shown keen enthusiasm in all Cubbing activities.

It is a great achievement for a Cub to work for and earn thirteen badges in, 3½ years of Cubbing. Efficiency of the boys have learned to swim by attending classes at the YMCA during the winter. The incentive to shore islands.

Other news at the Avondale pack over the past three months includes two going-up ceremonies. The following boys went up to the Scout troop; Ronnie Kingman, David MacDonald, Ronnie McPherson, Keith Taylor, Denis Rushton and Albert Besteman.

Donald Pugh, formerly of 8th Belleville, now living in the Avondale district, also went up to the Scout troop.

Keeping Afloat 10 Minutes First Need in Water Safety

What are the rules of water safety? There are several which are listed for the convenience of those who will be engaging in activities in, on or around the water.

The first of these is to learn to swim well. The very minimum requirement for this is to keep afloat in rough water for 10 minutes without the benefit of any supporting devices. Practice in keeping afloat for long periods is, of course, extremely desirable.

Next in importance of water safety rules is for one to learn to judge distances so that one does not swim out beyond one's capabilities.

Third is to swim parallel with the shore line—not away from it. If a person wants to practice speed swimming he should do it whilst travelling towards the shoreline so that he will not become exhausted in deep water.

Fourth is to swim with others where one can be seen and heard at all times. Never swim alone.

Don't take dares. Always be sensible and do not let someone else take chances with your life.

Always swim in a safe area, preferably a marked area where there is supervision. Keep out of weeds and swim where the water is pure.

Always rest before swimming if you are fatigued or overheated.

COULD STRANGLE

Eighth is to never jump or dive into the water where there is food or gum in one's mouth. Strangulation could result from such an action.

Ninth: competitive swimming or swimming in cold water should be avoided right, after eating. Contrary to popular belief there is no danger in casual swimming in warm water after eating.

Tenth: don't be a show off.

Eleventh: in the event of being caught in an undertow don't battle it. Swim parallel with the shoreline until the tow weakens. Then swim to shore. Avoid panic.

Twelfth: Always look before you dive and know the depth of the water you are diving into. Shallow water can result in broken necks.

Thirteenth: Don't try to play the game role if you cannot swim well. Only the strong swimmer should attempt a water rescue. There is no sense in causing a double fatality.

Fourteenth: Know how to apply artificial respiration even if you cannot swim.

Avoid panic if you get a cramp in the water. Rub or squeeze out the cramp if in the lower limbs, from a floating position or turn over on your back and scull gently for the shore. In the event of a stomach cramp, which is the worse, remain calm since you can still float. Turn over on your back, sculling with least possible effort and shout for help.

Sixteenth: Whilst swimming be careful to inhale only through the mouth, exhaling through both nose and mouth. Bacteria in the water can affect one's sinuses. If swimming in unclean water, or jumping or diving into the water, nose clips should definitely be worn. Ear plugs are advisable for those who have perforated ear drums or deteriorated ear wax.

People with head colds, ear infections or stoppages should not swim. Those who have sinus trouble should only indulge in surface swimming using proper breathing habits.

BOATING SAFETY

Boating involves the recognition and observance of additional water safety rules. These include;

—if you cannot swim do not go boating alone; always have someone with you who can both swim and knows how to handle boats.

—if capsized stay with the boat, which should not sink; distances to shore can be deceptively long at times;

—on entering a boat or canoe, grasp the gunnels firmly and step into the centre of the craft, it is also a good idea to have someone steady a canoe for you;

—always take a few cork or air-filled cushions or other floatable objects when going boating;

—if capsized an oar or paddle can keep one float. Turn on your back and place the paddle at the back of your neck, holding it in place with both hands;

—does should be unlaced, it being preferable not to wear them, at all;

—don't change seats with a companion, go ashore to do this;

—learn the proper techniques for handling the craft you are using;

—if alone, paddle or row from just behind the centre thwart;

—in a canoe the paddler should sit or kneel on the bottom thus lowering the centre of gravity and making the canoe more manoeuverable.

ONE RULE OF THUMB

The above are the main rules of water safety. If a person cannot remember all of them there is a pretty good rule of thumb to go by —never get overconfident and always use common sense. If this maxim is followed there should be no need to see the memoes being used by the firemen at the accompanying pictures in use this summer.

Another good idea is for parents to make sure their children are properly instructed in the above rules and to keep reminding the kids of these rules until they are almost second-nature. This information when understood by children (and adults) can save lives.

Forty-Two Years Of Service With C.N.R. Is Ended

A Canadian National Railways passenger train conductor who commenced his railway career in this city just 42 years ago, has made his last official trip down the dale of a Toronto-Montreal flyer.

He is Mr. A. W. Herring, 76 Hastings Drive, who "deadheaded" in from Montreal after completing his final run from Toronto.

A native of Bury, Quebec, Mr. Herring commenced his railway career as a trainman in Belleville and since then has worked out of this city although the job has resulted in thousands of miles of "deadheading" to commence his regular runs.

During his career as a railroader he has worked both freight and passenger trains and in recent years has been continuously on the fast Toronto — Montreal runs.

What to do now that he is retired from the railway?

"I expect to be busy around the house for quite some time," he laughed.

Mr. and Mrs. Herring have one son, Norman, with the CNR car department at Belleville, and a grandson, Richard.

Wedding

BURNETT — HOLLOWLINK

The Protestant Chapel at the R.C.A.F. Station Trenton, was adorned with pink and white pedestals on Saturday, June 21, at 3.00 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when LAW Jacqueline May Hollowlink, of RCAF Trenton, were united in marriage to LAC Robert George Burnett of RCAF Station Uplands, Ontario, by S/L R. P. Candon of the Trenton Station. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hollowlink of Creston, B.C. and the bridegroom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Burnett, Trent Road, Belleville.

The wedding music included "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by W/C W. B. Mann, the bride was charming in her embroidered organza bridal gown featuring a tiered skirt, molded bodice with long sleeves, and full skirt in ballerina-length. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a lace headdress and she carried a bouquet of red roses, a pendant cultured pearl in a gold setting, the gift of her bridegroom, was her only adornment.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Field, of Belleville, was gowned in pale blue dotted Swiss organdy fashioned with fitted basque with puff sleeves, bouffant skirt in three-quarter length, with matching mitts. She carried a nosegay of pale pink and white carnations and wore a single strand of pearls.

The bridesmaids, Miss Gwen Warren of the RCAF Station Trenton, was in pale pink chiffon, in ballerina length, with short sleeves and matching mitts, and carrying a nosegay of pale blue and white carnations. A single strand of pearls completed her ensemble. Both attendants wore white shoes and matching feather headdresses.

LAC Phyl Taylor, of Uplands Station, RCAF, attended the bridegroom, while Sgt. R. L. Cournoyer of Trent Road, Belleville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was usher.

The reception was held in the Air Women's lounge at the Station, Trenton, where the bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by orange blossoms and red roses.

The bride's mother, wearing a pale green two-piece ensemble with white accessories and corsage of white carnations, received the guests. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, attired in pale blue dacron sheath with white accessories, and corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's sister, also assisted, gowned in a pale blue two-piece dacron ensemble with white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to points east and north, the bride chose a beige tone embroidered shantung sheath, with white accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Creston, B.C.; Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa, St. John's, Quebec and Belleville.

A shower honoring the bride was held, previous to her marriage, at the home of Mrs. R. L. Cournoyer, Trent Road. She was also entertained at a cocktail party at the home of W/C and Mrs. W. B. Mann, Middleton Park, Trenton, and at a presentation by the members of the office staff of the bride, when she was the recipient of a chrome canister set and breadbox.

The bride's gift to her attendants, pearls; to her bridegroom, tie bar and cuff links in gold; the bridegroom's gifts to his groomsman, silver cuff links and tie bar, and to the usher, cigaret lighter.

LAC and Mrs. Robert George Burnett are shown following their recent marriage in the Protestant Chapel, RCAF Station at Trenton. The bride is the former LAW Jacqueline May Hollowlink, of RCAF Trenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hollowlink of Creston, B.C. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Burnett, Trent Road, Belleville.

Avondale Cubs, Scouts M.A. Holds Last Meet

The Avondale Cubs and Scouts Mothers' Auxiliary held its monthly and final meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Ivey McDonald, Bonnie Rd., with the president, Mrs. T. Legacey, presiding.

A most delightful pot-luck supper was enjoyed by the mothers with a beautifully decorated table, centred with spring flowers, yellow candles in tri-branched silver candelabra and lace cloth.

Reports were given by Mrs. Cooke, welfare convener, and Mrs. McPherson, social convener. Ballots were also distributed for the election of officers for the next season.

SPECIAL GUEST

Mrs. T. Legacey expressed sincere thanks to her executive and leaders for their whole hearted support throughout the year.

A social time was spent in the viewing of colored movie films shown by Mrs. Spence Wonsacott. Of particular interest was one taken by Mr. Dave McDonald showing Avondale Cubs going up to Scouts and the presentation of scrap books to retarded children.

Wedding

LUCCIOLA — WAITE

A lovely June wedding was solemnized in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 6, at 2.30 p.m. by the Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church, when Shirley Jean Waite, of Belleville, R.R. 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Waite, became the bride of LAC Joseph Fred Luccicla, of Belleville, R.R. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Luccicla, in a double-ring ceremony. Baskets of pink and white 'mums mingled with British Columbia huckleberry sprays, interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Clifford Tempier, church organist, provided the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Eric Waite, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white illusion and Swiss lace over taffeta, fashioned with molded bodice having a pointrait neckline outlined with scallops of lace and seed pearls. The long, sheath-like sleeves ended in V points over the hand. The bouffant skirt was accented by Swiss lace panelling, falling softly into a sweep train at the back. She wore a chapel-length embroidered veil of tulle illusion held by a crown of crystal beads and brilliants, and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lace and tied with satin ribbons.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Sandra Reynolds of Belleville, was attired in ballerina-length aqua taffeta under white cotton eyelet fashioned on princess lines with fitted bodice, and cap sleeves. She wore a matching headdress, mitts and shoes, and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations encircled with pink lace, and streamers.

Miss Shirley Baldrick, of Belleville, as bridesmaid, was gowned in similar style in coral taffeta under white eyelet, with matching shoes, headdress and mitts and carried a white carnation nosegay surrounded with lace and matching streamers.

Mr. John Luccicla, of Belleville, R.R. 2, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and LAC Donald Fawsett, of Belleville R.R. 2, were ushers.

LAC Joseph Fred Luccicla and Mrs. Luccicla are shown signing the register following their marriage in Holloway Street United Church. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Jean Waite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Waite of Belleville, R.R. 4. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Luccicla of Belleville, R.R. 2. (Photo by McCormick's Studio, Belleville.)

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at Parkdale Hall, for 100 guests.

The bride's table was prettily arranged with a three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Doxtator, of Point Anne, with pink roses and silver leaves, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom and misted about the base with white tulle. The bridal bouquets lent a further nuptial accent to the appointment.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in beige-toned sheath of linen and rayon, with white accessories, and picture hat, with corsage of yellow carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing blue and white chiffon with white picture hat, white accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Buffalo, and around Lake Ontario, the bride chose an aqua-colored sheath with square neckline, fashioned on princess lines with matching aqua and white - striped jacket having three-quarter sleeves with tiny frost her co-workers. Also at hem per co-workers. Also at a linen shower held at the home of Miss Sandy Reynolds, of Belleville.

Upon their return, LAC and Mrs. Luccicla will reside for four weeks in Belleville, after which they will leave for Langar, England, where they will reside for the next four years.

Guests attended from Toronto, Belleville, Deseronto and surrounding district.

When bride was received, a linen shower held at the home of Miss Sandy Reynolds, of Belleville.

Pork Shoulder Good Example Of Versatility

More and more people are enjoying pork in summer meals and, fortunately, this year there's no shortage! You can buy many cuts prepared in many different ways . . . fresh or cured, picnics, hams are cooked . . . that you can serve pork as often as you wish without monotony.

Pork shoulder is a good example of the versatility of this plentiful meat. In the fresh form it's available bone-in or boneless; roast or divided into two parts sold as Picnic Shoulder and Boston Butt; and with even further cutting the shoulder is made into chops.

When cured and smoked the picnic shoulder retains the same name but when Boston Butt has been processed it is called Cottage Roll. Cured and smoked picnics are sold either bone-in or boneless; cottage rolls are always boned. Some smaller pieces, Canned picnics which of course are completely cooked, offer the other convenience designed for easy use in summer salads and sandwiches.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

CAROL R. — If she marries him she shouldn't get a cent.

Jack R. — But the money really belongs to her.

Carol R. — My husband and I are involved in a heartbreaking argument over what to do about our daughter Sue, who is planning to marry outside of our faith.

Sue is 22 and her boy friend is 24 so I'm afraid there isn't much we can do about it. But I've told her she won't get a cent from us if she goes ahead. I know she counted on this to help them get started. She is just out of high school and her boy friend is just out of the service so they haven't a cent between them. The boy's parents feel as we do.

I don't have much hope, but I feel it may make her think twice or even smarter places. Canned picnics which of course are completely cooked, offer the other convenience designed for easy use in summer salads and sandwiches.

Jack R. — The way I see it, this money really belongs to Sue. We served her as we did for the other children. Her two sisters got nice church weddings and lovely wedding gifts besides. We have no right to withhold this money from her.

If we do this to Sue it will mean an end to our relationship with her. My wife is so upset now that she says she doesn't care, but I think she'll feel differ-ent later. I know she'll want to see Sue — and I certainly will. I don't want to lose my daughter, regardless of what she does.

Once we do this thing we'd never be able to go back on it as Carol suggests. I know Sue and I know she wouldn't take the money later on.

The Council: We get the impression that withholding the money will cause Jack more pain than his daughter and this is a factor to consider. These parents should not cut off their noses to spite their faces.

Jack is wrong, however, in his idea that the money "really belongs" to Sue. Its gift is an obligation and a wedding gift is not an exception. Parents do not like to withhold from one child what is given to another, but if they wish to underline their disapproval, it is an effective way to do it and give vent to their feelings.

We also take strong exception to Carol's idea of using the money as a threat. In the first place, it will probably strengthen this already rebellious girl in her plans. In the second place, it causes her to lose respect for her parents and the principles they profess.

Sue has chosen to buck her family and she should be willing to accept one of the consequences. If she is mature and marrying for love and not simply for an expression of rebellion against her parents, she will accept her disappointment and the money in stride. If she is immature and bent on defying her parents, a wedding gift will not prevent her from later finding other issues to out of which to create bitterness.

The withholding of this gift should not, in itself, result in the loss of this daughter. If these parents do not want a complete break with their daughter they should tell her so in just those words. The idea is: "We don't approve of your marriage and will do nothing to encourage it but we'll always love you and consider you our daughter." It is impossible to escape some pain and bitterness in such a situation, but most parents will prefer to leave a path open for future contact.

Serve Sausages With Authority

by Mary Moore

A peach of a way to bring the food budget back into line is to resort to the old reliables and make them like a party. Your husband will fall in love with you all over again if you can rightly claim you have not overspent your budget this month, O happy day!

How are you as a sausage cook? Fair? Good? Excellent? They may be pan-fried, baked or broiled. I will go into all three methods because they are brief. Then I will suggest accompaniments and ways of serving so many you securely up the ladder to the "excellent" status.

HOW TO COOK FRESH SAUSAGES

Pantry — Place sausages in a cold frying pan and brown over moderate heat 20 to 25 minutes. Pour off fat as it collects. Sausages in casings may be parboiled 5 to 10 minutes before browning, in enough water to cover. See notes below.

Bake — Bake uncovered in the centre of a moderately slow oven, 325 deg. Fahr. Turn when first side is browned. Bake 30 to 36 minutes. See notes below.

Broil — Preheat broiler. Place sausages on cold rack of broiler pan so that sausages are 3 inches from heat in the centre of the oven. Broil 4 to 6 minutes each side.

Notes: Sausages are excellent baked on the top of scalloped potatoes or baked potato salad, during the last 30 minutes. But before starting on the top of the dish of potatoes, parboil them 4 to 5 minutes to remove excess fat. Drain. You know how to make scalloped potatoes but you may not know how to make

BAKED POTATO SALAD

1 egg, beaten, 1-3 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1-4 cup butter or margarine, 4 cups mashed potatoes, 1-4 cup minced onion, salt and pepper to taste, 2 tablespoon prepared mustard.

Mix all ingredients together well. Place in casserole and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. Top with 1 pound of sausages and bake another 18 minutes. Makes four servings.

ACCOMPANIMENTS AND GARNISHMENTS

Serve pan-fried , or baked sausages—1) on hot platter blanked with broiled crescents of canned pineapple alternating with mounds of fluffy boiled rice, or 3) On hot platter with hot French toast, apple butter sandwiches. Delicious! A restaurant in southern USA features these for breakfast every Sunday morning. Or 3) For a quick economical and ever-so-good mid-week supper, with a fluffy pile of perfectly scrambled eggs (containing chopped chives, parsley and some Tabasco sauce) in the centre of the platter. Or 4) For a company - type, leisurely breakfast, bake the sausages while you are making a stack of pancakes from his special (really yours) recipe for sour-pancakes or griddle cakes.

W.H.A. Presents President With Two Cheques

The June meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary took place in the nurses' residence on June 12th, with the president, Mrs. B. E. Burley, in the chair.

The highlight of the afternoon, arising from the reading of the various reports, was the presentation of two cheques to the president. Miss Ivy Dickens, as treasurer of the Coffee Shop, turned over $1,500 as their net profit for the last six months, and Mrs. F. Beeby, convener of the Opportunity Shop, presented $2,100, also the net profit of that project for the last six months.

Mrs. Burley announced that Mrs. W. H. Fiskin, past president, had kindly consented to convene the annual "Fashion Fiesta" in November and that Mrs. A. Wolfenden would convene the sale of draw tickets. Holder of the winning ticket will receive $200 worth of merchandise of her choice from McIntosh Brothers Stores Ltd.

All members were justly proud to hear that Mrs. J. Lennox-Smith, a past-president of the Auxiliary, and present member of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron, had recently been successful in acquiring the title "Ship's Navigator" and has the distinction of being the only woman in Canada to hold that title.

At the conclusion of business, a social half-hour was enjoyed over the tea cups, after which a delightful film, "Trans-Canada Summer," was shown by Mrs. M. Hookings at the projector.

As it was the last meeting of the season, Mrs. Burley wished all members a fond farewell, a happy and restful summer, and with renewed vim and vigor, a return to duties in the fall.

MISSION BAND MEETS

RAWDON — The June meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Mission Band was held in the church hall with two adults and 34 children in attendance.

Kalvin Sharp gave the opening prayer and all sang "We Are Lilie Sunbeams," and repeated in unison "The Mission Band Purpose." The group sang "This Is My Father's World," and Fred McAdam read Psalm 100, followed by "The Lord's Prayer."

Betty McAdam gathered the offering which amounted to almost $5 and it was dedicated by Janet Fletcher. Nancy David presented her report and the roll of members was called.

Mrs. Herbert Smith outlined the study on Cuba. This was a graphic story of a little girl who longed to go to the mission station to learn to read.

Cuba is now a free country and a large number of Cubans are descendants of the Spaniards who once ruled the island. More sugar cane is raised here than anywhere else in the world. A great deal of cattle are also raised on the island. The weather is always warm and sunny.

Lorraine Jeffs and Bonnie Williams sang a duet. Readings were given by Howard Jeffs, Kenneth Smith, Larry Jeffs and Brenda Campbell. Piano soles were played by Carolyn Merrick and Brenda Williams. Shirley Potts and Joyce Cooney sang a duet.

The leader, Mrs. Harry McAdam, spoke briefly, and plans were made for the July meeting when the Mission Band and Baby Band will present the program and the W.M.S. will have its annual family party. The guest speaker will be Miss Doris Dunham.

The service closed with the hymn, "Heaven Is Ringing, Earth Is Singing," and the benediction.

Tabernacle Aux. Holds Discussion

"Koinonia" (the fellowship) was the theme of the worship service when the ladies of the Evening Auxiliary of Tabernacle United Church gathered at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Morris Smith for the June meeting. A delicious and varied potluck supper was enjoyed prior to the start of the meeting.

"Koinonia" was a word originally used to designate a partnership "a fishing or some other shared enterprise, but was later borrowed by Christians to suggest their partnership in Christ.

A lively discussion followed about what a church would do about the present-day problems of world hunger, racial discrimination in industry and in housing areas, economic exploitation, and slum conditions.

The worship service was prepared by Mrs. Leslie Boyle who was later presented with a cup and saucer. Mr. and Mrs. Boyle are moving to Madoc this summer where Mr. Boyle will be principal of the high school.

Auxiliary president, Mrs. A. R. Miller, spoke highly of Mrs. Boyle's work with the group, and of her cheerful willingness at all times to do more than her share.

The conclusion of the study of the North American continent was presented by Mrs. Ross Shane. The many problems refining to this continent of varied people were reviewed and the overall picture of how the Christian church has advanced was given.

Business was discussed and the group made plans to meet at Dougherty's cottage on July 12th for a picnic. It was announced the mission study for the next year will be on Africa.

Following the closing prayer by Mrs. Miller, an auction of baked goods and miscellaneous articles was held.

Women's Institute

QUINTE W.I.

2nd SIDNEY — The Bay of Quinte Institute held its June meeting on Wednesday evening at Harolers' school. It was a warm evening so the attendance was small.

Mrs. Don Sandercock opened the meeting.

There will be no Institute meeting in July. On August 12 it will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones of Bayside, with Mrs. Casey Ketcheson, the convener for home economics and health in charge of the program.

It was decided to arrange for a tour of an industry, later on. A short course put on by the Extension Branch of the Department of Agriculture was applied for. This is called "When food makes the difference".

Fifty souvenir coffee spoons have been ordered to sell at 50 cents each. These spoons are for the remainder of the Queen's visit to Canada this year. Her picture is on the handle and on the bowl is inscribed "Queen Elizabeth visit to Canada 1959". Call Mrs. Donald Sandercock if you wish to get one.

Mrs. Alva Dunn demonstrated how to "loop"; catching a run-ner in one's stocking and making it look like new.

Mrs. Arden Gilchrist gave a fine report of the June W.I. annual convention held recently at Stirling.

Mrs. Carlisle Gives Talk at WMS Meeting

RAWDON — The June meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Mac Shannon, with 27 ladies in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Herbert Smith, welcomed the guest speaker, Mrs. George Carlisle, and a visitor from Regina, Sask. Mrs. Burton Sharpe officiated at the piano.

Mrs. Ernest Spencer was in charge of the program which she and Mrs. Stanley Williams had arranged.

The service opened with a hymn and Mrs. W. G. Fletcher offered prayer. Mrs. William McAdam read the Bible and the convener read an article on courage entitled "Religion and Life." This was followed by The Lord's Prayer and "Faith of Our Fathers."

Mrs. Percy McMullen introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. George Carlisle, who is first vice — president of Belleville Presbyterial W.M.S.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

The speaker gave an informative paper on "Christian Fellowship," stating in part: "Our attitudes to Christian missions must be based on the Bible. In Matthew there is the admonition to 'go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations,' and many other passages of Scripture are centred on that theme. The Bible itself is a missionary library filled with many books available for both reading and study."

Mrs. Carlisle closed her message with a prayer poem for day-to-day living.

She was presented with a gift on behalf of the W.M.S. by Mrs. K. Weaver.

Mrs. Carleton Potts sang "I Have Found A Hiding Place."

The president expressed thanks for the hospitality and program.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen read her report. Mrs. Gough-Stubbs reported a bank balance of $70.43. Mrs. W. G. Fletcher gave a message regarding Korea. Mrs. Don Johnson gave a full report to date on the supply department, and the bale will be packed for overseas relief at the end of June. Each study is asked to bring two small articles for sale in July when the Mission Band and Baby Band will present the program.

The offering was gathered by Miss Eleanor Smith and dedicated with a hymn. The friendship calls to homes and hospitals were recorded for a two-month period, and totalled almost 160 calls.

STUDY CHAPTER ON U.S.

The president was in charge of the study chapter on the United States. The Year Book of American churches shows that the Baptists lead in church membership, followed by Methodists and Lutherans, and several are members of the National Council of Churches.

"The greatest step forward is the growing realization that the church is for all classes to meet together in one congregation. Churches realize they must minister to people in their own immediate area.

"The United States is the richest country in the world and yet, because of lack of distribution of abundance produced, there is still poverty. It is the right of every person to have a reasonable level of living.

"Spiritual problems and social problems interlock and the church must deal with both. The church has made great strides and they are aware of the great challenge as thousands of Puerto Ricans and immigrants of other nationalities come into the country.

"The keynote is based on Christian concerns for all, including the American Indian. It is estimated some fifty to sixty million human beings in the United States alone are in need of the Christian mission. Those people who need the promise of eternal life transmitted from God to man, is the Gospel of Jesus Christ," she stated.

The service closed with a hymn, "A Charge To Keep I Have," after which the lunch conveners and the hostess served refreshments.

Togs For Toddlers

By TRACY ADRIAN

Sugar and spice, and clothes pretty and nice, are what little girls like. And here is one diaper duet that will please both daughter and Mom.

The outfit is made of easily washable cotton in a pastel color with white stripes. The dress has a white pique collar and pique trim on the yoke. A perky, side-set bow, placed high on the bodice, gives an added touch of chic. Matching bloomer panties are plastic-lined and elasticized at the waistband.

Feminine Touch Just Right at Service Stations

CALGARY (CP)—Pretty red headed Mrs. Doris Dix looks snappy and clean in her white uniform as she goes to work every morning—at a downtown service station.

Calgary service station owners are finding the feminine touch is just right and several have hire women to "man" the pumps.

Operator Wes Fallis says "the girls' work is as good as any male's. They're more conscientious and they keep the station clean."

"The work isn't difficult," says Mrs. Dix, "and the wages are the same as what the men make."

She and her co-worker, Mrs. Alice Porter, serve gasoline, deliver cars and even make minor mechanical repairs.

"But mechanical jobs don't run into much work for us," says Mrs. Dix. "The usual ones are changing head and tail lights."

She explains that when the first got her job there were six girls on the pumps.

"We used to do oil and filter changes then. But with two of us there isn't time for that now."

While Mrs. Dix looks after gasoline, Mrs. Porter is busy around town picking up and delivering cars to businessmen who ask them in the station's lot during the day.

"Driving experience is a must," says Mrs. Dix. Both women are former taxi drivers.

Mr. Fallis says the set - up couldn't be better.

"The girls are very dependable. We find they stick around longer than many men. I'm sure they're happy with their jobs. We never give them better wages than they can get in many other jobs."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

ON PLANNING SIMPLE ENGAGEMENT PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a late-afternoon tea on a Sunday soon to announce the engagement of my only daughter. My husband died a year ago, and my daughter and I want this party to be as simple as possible, with no engagement announcement gadgets such as rose tea often seen, no announcement-toast (which we remember her father had spoken about). She already has her engagement ring, but of course she has not worn it in public. Now she and I are wondering if at the party she could simply announce the engagement by wearing her ring. Would this be in good taste? — Mother

Yes, this most simple way of announcing the engagement would be in excellent taste, particularly under the circumstances.

REMOVE GLOVES BEFORE EATING AT RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On Saturday I went with my aunt to a large, formal wedding reception. I kept on my gloves while I was eating refreshments and while I was smoking. My aunt said this looked "most unattractive, terribly, affected." (P.S.: She shamed me into finally taking them off!) But was she right about this? — R. R.

Indeed your aunt was right about this. Correctly a woman should take off her gloves before she starts eating, drinking, smoking, or puffing on make-up.

WEDDING CAKE MAKES FESTIVE, MEMORABLE CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are having quite a large semi-formal wedding in my church, to be followed by a reception in the Church Parlors, and the guests invited to the ceremony will be invited to the simple, informal reception. Would it be proper to serve punch and small, dainty sandwiches and cookies at the reception? — E.

Yes . . . and I hope you are planning to serve a Wedding Cake. There should certainly be a Wedding Cake, no matter how simple, for the festive and memorable ceremony of The-Cutting-of-the-Cake by the bride and bridegroom, and the serving of it to the guests.

ENCLOSED REPLY-CARDS AREN'T CORRECT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I understand that it is not considered correct to enclose reply-cards and addressed-and-stamped envelopes in invitations. However, this procedure seems to me to be very practical; please explain why people neglect (in Kitchener, anyway) to answer RSVP, for the sponsor's information, if they are enclosing the reply-card and envelope. Please advise. — V.

You "understand" right . . . it is not considered correct to enclose reply-card and addressed-and-stamped envelopes in invitations. But since you have decided to do this, I doubt that advice would be helpful. However, if you find out (as many people do somewhere) that many of the invited guests pay no more attention to the reply-cards than they would to an "R.s.v.p. . . . the really "practical" thing to do is to telephone The Discourteous Ones for their "yes" or "no".

ON PROPER SEATING PLANS AT WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter, our only child, is to be married soon. My husband's mother is living; his father is dead. My father is living; my mother is dead. There is a particularly close bond between the bride-to-be and these grandparents of hers. She (and we too) would so very much like to have her grandmother and grandfather be seated with us in the first pew on the left. But we have never seen this done. Would it be at all proper?

— M. H.

Yes, this would be entirely proper, and is occasionally done. And in your circumstances, it would indeed be a fine gesture to these two grandparents so beloved by the bride-to-be. They would, of course, be escorted either singly or together, to their places in the first-left pew several minutes before you are escorted to your seat.

Mother's Helper

MARKETING tip: Measure (on paper) out how your toddler busy while you're doing your housework. Give him 10 old envelopes or two, his pencil and scissors and a small box or basket. Ask him to cut out pictures of everything he thinks you need at the store. As he "buys" an item, he puts it in the box as you would drop it in a shopping cart.

DESERONTO

Routine Matters Only Discussed At Council Meet

DESERONTO — Mainly routine business occupied Town Council at their regular meeting on Monday night. The session was brief with Council adjourning shortly after nine thirty.

Mrs. Hattie Brant complained to Council that for the past six years she has been paying taxes on half of Lot 15 on College St. and now finds that the half lot is owned by the town. The matter was referred to the property committee for a search of the title of the half lot in question.

The letter of the Department of Transport regarding the placing of Stop' signs was referred to the police and streets committees, jointly. Council again laid over the matter of ascertaining the cost of sewers and water supply as the report has not yet been received from the Water Resources Commission on the survey they made some weeks ago.

TAX COMPLAINT

The complaint of William McGregor regarding the taxes on his property which he has not yet completed was referred to the Court of Revision.

The by-law to acquire certain lands within the town for the use of the municipality was given two readings with the third reading laid over until a minor detail had been cleared. The by-law however, to regulate the hours that retail grocery stores may remain open was passed without a dissenting vote. The by-law is to be effective the latter part of June and provides a penalty of $500 for an infraction.

The chairman of the Finance Committee, Reeve Alford, brought up the subject of tax arrears and thought something should be on record so that people in arrears could be sued after a certain date. On his recommendation, a motion was passed to the effect that on and after September 15 an injunction shall be taken against any person whose taxes are in arrears prior to 1959. On a recorded vote the council was unanimous in favor of the motion.

In keeping with the procedure of former years, council decided to dispense with regular meetings during July and August.

TOWN HALL REPAIRS

Councillor Howard introduced the problem of repairs to the roof of the town hall. He stated that the tender had been accepted some time ago as doubting had wanted to make certain that the same time ago and nothing had work was done and the repairs were not left until it was too late to do them. The Property committee are to investigate the matter.

The continuation of Centre St. from Main Street to the Bay shore also came under the consideration of Council. It was revealed by Councillor DeHor that there was no access to the Bay for people wishing to launch boats as the Street allowance near the bay was blocked by fish net reels and shacks. The Streets committee is to arrange to have the allowance cleared. The clerk was also instructed to contact the town solicitor regarding the right-of-way that Drave was to turn over in return for the lower portion of Mill St.

Production Lines Which Have Turned Out 400 Viscount Airliners Grinding to Halt

WEYBRIDGE, England (CP)—The mile-long production line which have turned out more than 400 Viscount airliners are nearing a halt. The Viscount, as far as advance orders are concerned, has become obsolete.

When production of the four-engine, turbo-prop airliner stops after the fifth plane it will put the finishing touches on the greatest success story in British long and varied history of civil aviation.

But the aircraft itself is by no means finished. The Viscount, front-line plane for 41 airlines in 23 countries, will be around for many years yet. Fifty of the aircraft are in service with Trans-Canada Air Lines.

The dramatic story goes back to 1944 when Vickers-Armstrongs Ltd. first equipped the airplane with straight jet engines. But before the aircraft flew, Rolls-Royce Ltd. developed its turbo - prop Dart engine and the Viscount was redesigned around the new power plants. In July, 1948, the first Viscount 630 took to the air.

BLEAK PROSPECTS

At that time, prospects of selling the 32 - passenger aircraft looked bleak. British European Airways had just acquired some Dakotas—the world's engine ambassadors and appeared uninterested in the Viscount. Other airlines seemed equally unimpressed.

Even if it was found that Rolls-Royce had underestimated the power of the Dart engine by only per cent. This added Vickers-Armstrongs to design a bigger Viscount capable of changing engines. In 1950, the Viscount 700, capable of carrying 53 passengers, was in the air and BEA ordered 20.

Other orders soon trickled in. Air France wanted 12, Aer Lingus 2 and Trans-Australia and the most important order, for 15, came from Trans-Canada.

"TCA said they would take the Viscount only if about 80 modifications were made," the company spokesman said. "If we accepted this order it would mean 300,000 design man hours—by modify the aircraft—more than went into the original design."

The company accepted the order.

ORDER FOR SIXTY

When the manufacturers finished the initial modifications to oil changes, cabin redesigning, pressurization and heating and air-con instrumentation, it required little additional work to give the Viscount 725, certificate of airworthiness. That's when Capital Airlines of Washington ordered it and placed an order for 60.

"If we hadn't got that first TCA order we might never have got into the American market," says Vickers spokesman. The company made the aircraft popular with American airlines which previously operated American planes.

Senate Rejects Proposal of Bank Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate, in the words of its members, has struck a blow for taxation by Parliament rather than by cabinet order.

Following a lengthy debate, the upper chamber rejected on a voice vote Wednesday night the proposal of its banking committee and approved a government bill that incorporates the current tax on exported electricity into the Excise Tax Act where only Parliament can change it.

For the last 33 years the tax, which yielded $1,400,000 last year, has been imposed by cabinet order. First in 1925 at $5 per horsepower exported, it has been unchanged since.

By a vote of 13 to 12 the banking committee recommended that a government proposal to put the tax under the Excise Tax Act be turned down and the issue thrown back.

SAYS POINT OBSCURED

Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario) charged that in unrescinded and intemperate language those opposed to the committee's suggestion sought to obscure the point at issue under an inflated and swollen picture of danger to the rights of Parliament.

But following his address, the Senate rejected the committee's recommendation.

Earlier, a group of Liberals, Senator Walter Aseltine, government leader, appealed to the senate to "get away from the wrangling of special interests but attend to the duty which is ours—to give, by order-in-council or by regulation of the cabinet . . . is not ordered by law in which to raise revenue."

Senator David Croll supported the Progressive Conservative point of view, as did the then industrialist Axel Nesbitt-Gren and other power interests urged to oppose the committee's recommendation.

Senator Croll said:

"The bitterness of Canadians in the Atlantic Ocean. The trip is expected to take 10 weeks. The adventurers, Richard Mellach, skipper, Albert Barth and Robert Franz—hope to travel on ocean currents and make occasional use of a small sail. Trouble cropped up early as the boat was being towed 80 miles out to sea by a trawler — two of the adventurers became seasick. (CP Photo).

Deficit in Foreign Trade Of Goods, Services in First Quarter Totals $450,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's deficit in foreign trade of goods and services in the first quarter of the year stood at $450,000,000, a sharp increase from $282,000,000 in the corresponding period last year.

The figures of statistics reported today that the increase was due largely to a trebling of the deficit on the balance of trade in goods, from $63,000,000 a year ago to $188,000,000 this year.

The deficit in non-merchandise transactions, such as investment, tourist spending and gold shipments amounted to $262,000,000, up from $219,000,000.

The deficit figure means that in the first three months of the year, Canada imported more goods and services than it exported.

LARGEST SINCE 1957

It is the biggest quarterly deficit since the first quarter period of 1957, when it stood at $528,000,000.

The bureau of statistics said that the deficit on the trade of value of imports while the imbalance in non-merchandise transactions resulted from large Canadian tourist spending abroad, larger payments of interest and dividends to foreign investors and a temporary reduction in gold shipments.

The bureau said the rise in the deficit in the trade of services has been rising steadily since 1952.

Dealing with the deficit in trade of goods, the bureau said imports normally increase in periods of increasing output and business activity in Canada.

FEW CHANGES

There were few changes in the direction of trade, with moderate increases in shipments to the U.S. and Britain, and some declines in exports to Europe and Latin America.

The deficit on travel and tourist spending rose from $80,000,000 to $84,000,000, mainly as a result of higher Canadian spending in the U.S. and overseas.

The deficit on income accounts rose to $170,000,000 from $94,000,000 as Canadian receipts from investments abroad slipped and payments to foreign investors increased. The increase in dividend payments abroad resulted from larger transfers by subsidiaries to parent companies in the U.S.

Federal government contributions abroad declined in the quarter to $,000,000 from $13,000,000.

Britannia Will Get Welcome Entering Harbor

TORONTO (CP) — The royal yacht Britannia will sail between two lines of lake boats and ocean ships for about three miles before entering the western channel to Toronto harbor on her June 29.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will be cheered by the crews lining the rails of ships and the vessel will greet the royal yacht with prearranged whistle blasts.

The review of merchant shipping has been organized by the Dominion Marine Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada.

It is hoped that about 22 ships will participate and at least four companies have already indicated that some of their vessels will be in the lineup.

Officials of Upper Lakes Shipping hope to have their new bulk carrier, Seaway Queen, on hand after her maiden lake voyage.

The Seaway Queen is 717 feet long, almost twice the length of the royal yacht.

The two rows of ships will be in direct alignment with the western channel. They will be anchored more than a mile from shore so that the view of spectators watching from the Canadian National Exhibition grounds will not be obscured.

BLAME WORKMANSHIP

TORONTO (CP)—The collapse of a bridge framework on Highway 401 near here June 2 has been blamed on "poor workmanship and material." Six workmen were injured, W. J. Fulton, Ontario deputy minister of highways, said the contractor, Spar-Way Construction Company, has accepted full responsibility.

Service Vote Could Change Some Ridings

TORONTO (CP)—Tabulation of the service vote in the June 11 Ontario election will continue today and announcement of results is expected Monday.

Chief Election Officer Roderick Lewis said he expects counting of votes cast by Ontario servicemen stationed in Canada and the United States will be completed Saturday and the overseas vote by next Monday. He plans no announcement until the counting is finished. Mr. Lewis won't know until the count is complete how many service votes are cast in each riding.

Standing in the 98-seat House on basis of the civilian vote: Progressive Conservative 71, Liberal 25, CCF 2.

The constituency with the narrowest winning margin in civilian voting is Kenora where Liberal Fred Wren, member since 1945, had a four-vote edge over Howard Keffer, Progressive Conservative. Mr. Wren said 4,311 votes; Mr. Keffer 4,307 and W. C. Sherman, CCF, 1,491.

In the 1955 election, 14 service votes were cast in Kenora. Of these, Mr. Wren and four for his Conservative opponent.

OPEN AT CLOSE

The riding is noted for its close races. Mr. Wren's final margin in 1955 was 11 votes. It was 133 in 1951. A Conservative candidate lost by 190 votes and a CCF candidate won by 190 in 1945.

There are four other seats where the winning margin in the latest 11 civilian vote was fewer 200.

Only in one—Ottawa East—was the total service vote in 1955 larger than the June 11 civilian vote winning margin. Progressive Conservative Jules Morin won re-election in Ottawa East in 1955, Mr. Morin by 1,220, his Liberal Paul Leduc, one-time Ontario mines minister, 0f the New Democratic and the CCF 12.

Other close margins:

Glengarry—Liberal opponent Fernand Guindon defeated Liberal W. J. Macdonell, 5,244 to 5,198, were 13 service votes in 1955.

Oxford — Liberal Gordon W. Innes won by 271 over Conservative Thomas Dent, Jr. There were 32 service votes cast.

Toronto Woodbine — Ken Brydon, CCF, won by 297 over Conservative Harold Fishleigh. There were 34 service votes in 1955.

In the 1955 election, service men cast 4,681 votes. Liberal candidates received 2,244 or 48 per cent; Conservatives 2,150 or 46 per cent; CCF 287 or 6 per cent; others 4%, less than one per cent.

Civilian vote percentages in 1955 were PC 48, Lib 32, CCF 17, other 2.

Senators Insist Guns Be Loaded And Working

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators set out today to investigate claims of making it as certain as possible that guns aboard Polaris patrol planes fly with guns loaded and in working order.

Democratic Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire joined Democratic Senator Thomas Johnson of Texas in a demand that steps be taken to see to it that no "dud" guns are sent aboard when the converted navy anti-submarine planes take off on their long MiG fighters this week over the Sea of Japan.

Our planes should be fully armed and have their guns ready to fire," Bridges said. "Reports indicate that some of their guns will be fired on."

HAD ONLY ONE GUN

Johnson and Bridges said Wednesday that they were left at the mercy of Navy Communist fighters when their one operative gun in the tail assembly was knocked out. Only a short time ago the proposals for romantic love and sex as the only basis for a marriage.

Welfare needs now arise more from affluence than from poverty, he said.

ADRIFT NEAR FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) Two boys were rescued from the Niagara River about 2¼ miles above the falls Wednesday after their motorboat ran out of gas. William Samuels, 16, and Kenneth Burns, 17, used oars to guide their 13-foot outboard to a breakwater that juts into the middle of the river. Firemen took them off the tiny island in an amphibious vehicle.

Metropolis vs. Dream-Tinged Frontier Mining Town Gives Professors Chance to Argue

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Toronto university professors pieced together the characteristics of two types of Canadian communities—the worn and sprawling metropolis and the dream-tinged frontier mining town.

Town planner Anthony Adamson and sociologist Oswald Hall headed into their discussions—under the title of Communities in Crisis with staunch defences of their subjects.

Both addressed closing sessions of the Canadian Welfare Council annual meeting.

"Sprawling and lethargic . . . ancient and travel-weary," said Dr. Hall of the metropolis, as he prepared to discuss the welfare problems in a newly-established community, Elliot Lake, a uranium mining community some 80 miles northwest of Sault Ste. Marie, he said 5,311 voters.

SAYS METROPOLIS "HEART"

Mr. Adamson said the metropolis, rather, is the "heart" of Canada from which the motive force for all advances in welfare field flows.

"Middle class suburbias like Elliot Lake, transplanted into the wilderness to house men, to dig uranium, to destroy the hill cities of the bad people are of no consequence and it is no wonder that they have to go and get drunk in Blind River every Friday night," he said.

Opening salvoes fired, the two Toronto men commenced into perspective.

Dr. Hall warned that in developing communities the Protestant-Roman Catholic balance must be taken into account.

PROBLEM FOR AREA

In Elliot Lake's early days all recreation facilities, "innocent and otherwise," were located outside the community and produced more crime and serious problems on the neighboring communities' facilities and police forces.

"Such a pattern, of going out of town to find good vice must become relatively enduring," he said.

At Elliot Lake, with its homogeneous housing pattern, an extremely egalitarian population and up of migrants who may settle, stay awhile or simply float through the community, and its characteristics as a company town, the problem of the facilities of nearby communities, Dr. Hall said.

There was ambiguity in the party to be played in social service by public welfare and by the mining industry in the frontier community.

SYSTEM COMPLICATED

"The increasingly slovenly borderline between business government and welfare operations will complicate the system of social welfare," Elliot Lake an unexpected degree."

There was little separation between consumer, government and industry, and, in an attempt to avoid the "company town" situations, more welfare services may be undertaken by the industry than otherwise would be the case.

Professor Adamson found in Canada's six metropolitan cities potential populations of 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 people in which their environment will make or break the well-being of the nation.

CAN IMPROVE CITIES

Canada's cities can stay, but they could be improved and guided with intelligence and imagination, he said.

Mr. Adamson said it was difficult to find a metropolitan centre which show that in Ontario since 1950 the divorces of parents with children under 21 years of age increased 100 per cent, while the rate per cent of divorces in Toronto.

It was not known whether these divorces were the result of environment, high wages promotion or the pressure of the propa-

Welfare Council Offers Different Views on Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Welfare Council heard opposing views Wednesday on payment of old age pensions.

"Canadian old-age pensions do not make sense today," said Andy Andras, director of legislation for the Canadian Labor Congress. The $55-a-month pension for those over 70 was "no longer adequate for a substantial part of the population to live at a subsistence level."

Mr. Andras spoke as a member of a panel discussion at the closing sessions of the welfare council's three-day annual meeting.

WARNS OF PRESSURES

C. H. Dimock of Toronto, of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, told the panel:

"Governments are often called to do not only the things governments can do, but also the things most of us could do for ourselves.

"It seems most urgent that we forestall pressures, when our governments consider introducing new rules to the neglect of their more economical predecessors."

Harvy Perry of Toronto, of the Canadian Tax Foundation, called for a more liberal attitude toward future increases in old age pensions, "when we should equal total payments, he said.

With present old age security payments, Mr. Perry added, "there is strong argument for subjecting them to payroll tax in a revenue source rather than using personal and corporate income taxes."

FAULTY PRACTICES

Dr. Elizabeth Govan, from the University of Toronto's school of social work, said the public opinion against means tests — required for most supplementary pensions—"has developed largely because of degrading administrative practices." She did not elaborate.

Leclen Masse of Hull, Que., was elected president of the welfare council.

Boost Notices Sent Out Before Bill Is Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unemployment Insurance Commission had inadvertently sent out some notices of increased rates in the insurance rates, even though Parliament has not yet approved of the increases.

Labor Minister Starr, replying to Wednesday's M.P.U. Martin (CCF—Timmins) who raised the matter in the Commons, said it was not the commission's intention to circumvent Parliament. He explained that it had prepared in anticipation of the bill's passage.

Instructions had been given that there are to be no collections until the legislation was approved, but "unfortunately" some of the notices went out. On the mail last week, Mr. Starr said.

Martin, speaking during clause-by-clause study of the legislation, said he received a letter Tuesday from St. Catharines saying the notices had been received in an office there, causing great confusion.

The notice said the new rates of payment in the insurance premiums were going into effect June 28, Mr. Martin charged that by allowing such erroneous notices to go out the government was encouraging arrogance and a tendency to use its big majority to ride roughshod over Parliament and the people of Canada.

It seemed, he added, that the government was going to make up its mind on changes in rates even before Parliament had acted on even before advice had been received from various organizations involved.

11 CHEQUE CHARGES

STRATFORD (CP) — Henry Wilson Mavin of Stratford, Ont., was remanded in custody Wednesday until June 24 when he pleaded guilty to 11 charges of false pretences involving several banks. Detective Mark Anthony testified Mavin had dealings with banks in Guelph, Simcoe, London, Kitchener and Wilsonburg between April 9 and June 4.

Woman Juror Tips Liberace Off He Had Won Libel Suit

LONDON (AP)—A grey-haired woman member of the jury that awarded Liberace libel damages of £8,000 against a London newspaper turned up at his hotel afterward and told Liberace who thought he was "wonderful"—"a real smasher."

Three minutes before the High Court verdict was announced Wednesday, Liberace's mother, 70-year-old Mrs. Jean Friend, had given the American pianist-showman a broad wink to tip him off that he had won his suit against The Daily Mirror.

Mrs. Friend's wink came as the court crossed the threshold for the verdict. The jury was out three hours and 22 minutes.

Liberace, wearing a subdued dark grey suit and a patterned grey silk tie, swept in with his entourage. He was mopping his brow with a monogrammed handkerchief.

His gaze travelled over the 10 men and two women of the jury box in the front row sat Mrs. Friend.

SMILES, WINKS, NODS

She smiled, winked and nodded. Then Liberace smiled silently: "It's all right." Murmurs of "he's won" ran through the courtroom.

Three tense minutes ticked by before the official announcement that the jury had handed in a verdict in favor of Liberace.

Liberace announced he was "delighted at my complete public vindication."

The singer announced it will file an appeal. It devoted three the verdict, including a photograph of a smiling Liberace. There was no editorial comment and there was no mention of Mrs. Friend.

After the verdict Liberace hurried through a throng of women fans, some of whom cried "well done." He was driven to the nearby Savoy Hotel and immediately telephoned the good news to his mother in California. Newspapers said he then asked Mrs. Friend and two companions to join him.

Liberace's mother-in-law, Mrs. Frances Williams, told reporters in suburban Chiswick.

"I just wanted to shake hands in the courtroom, Mrs. Friend said:

"Oh, dear, I hope I didn't do anything wrong." Poor Liberace looked so terribly tired and I thought he needed cheering up.

"But I just can't help showing my feelings. I was a very emotional person. Any woman would be. Liberace is very nice. I really liked him, and I think he is a real smasher."

NOT INTIMIDATED

Mrs. Friend hastened to add: "Of course I didn't let my feelings run away with me. I was sitting on the jury."

At Chiswick Liberace told a cheering audience:

"It has been said many times by ladies and gentlemen, that English justice is the fairest in the world. I am very proud to be a citizen of that now."

Mrs. Friend, a seat at the plane, seated as usual with his can-delabra trade - mark, then "scrambled" to get a seat on the south beach for a change."

Liberace's pianist and orchestra shouted back: "Come down here if you want a softer one."

Invitation Sets Off Fireworks In Legal Circles

BLOWING ROCK, N.C. (AP)—Actor Raymond Burr who plays Perry Mason, the lawyer who never loses a case—is scheduled to address the convention of the North Carolina Bar Association—and the invitation has set off some legal fireworks.

Superior Court Judge Frank Armstrong won't be in the audience. The judge, protesting the bid to Burr to speak Friday, said:

"I see about as much of Perry Mason on television as I care to because my children watch it at home.

"Perry Mason's program bears no semblance of the correct and proper means of administering justice, or the proper conduct of the lawyer in trial of a criminal case."

Pay Television In Canada Before End of Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pay television will be in operation in Canada before the end of the year Louis A. Novins, president of International Telemeter Company, said Tuesday.

Telemeter's programming will consist of three shows televised simultaneously on one wire, so the paying viewer would be able to have a sports program, a motion picture of a local show available at the same time.

Novins said he anticipates pay-TV will be inaugurated in the United States before too long. He said at least 10,000 coin boxes suitable for attaching to home sets will be coming off the assembly lines each day by the end of the year.

Kill off June Bug Grubs Now

The white grub—lives destroying larva of the June beetle

June beetles are in the news again — that's the big, brown beetle that flies so clumsily, making so much noise — there are reports of great swarms of them from all over the province.

June beetles have become quite a nuisance and they cause a lot of damage — particularly when they are in the larval or white grub stage. In no time at all these nasty little critters can turn your lawn into a ratty bush carpet of green into a dull, lifeless, brown mat.

But you don't have to endure white grubs . . . you can do something about them. In fact, you can control them for up to three years with just one treatment. That's because the June beetle has a three year life cycle . . . first the adult lays the eggs . . . then two or three weeks later the eggs hatch into white grubs. The white grubs feed all the rest of that summer on decaying vegetable matter and the roots of living plants — namely your grass! The grubs spend the winter deep in the soil, then, in the spring they push their way up just under the surface of the soil. Then they start their second season as grubs and this is when they do the most damage — feeding ravenously all summer long. The third year of the cycle, the white grubs feed as before, then turn into the adult beetles which stay in the soil till the next spring when they emerge and start the cycle all over again.

Now, if you can kill off all the grubs and adult June beetles in your lawn in one year, it follows that you have a pretty good chance to be relatively free of grubs for three years.

There are several good white grub controls on the market, but the best of them contain dieldrin, a high potency insecticide that kills all stages of June beetle development quickly and surely. You just spread the dieldrin insecticide evenly over the grass, then wash it into the turf with a good soaking from the hose. That's all there is to it, and your lawn is protected from white grub damage for two to three years.

But here's something you should keep in mind. Most folks don't know that their lawns are infested with white grubs until the damage is done, then it's too late and they have to start their lawns all over again. To make sure you are not wasting your efforts this year, treat your lawn against white grubs now, even though there may be no indication of white grub activity yet . . . as they say, it's better to be safe than sorry.

Rawdon

RAWDON — On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Archie Bailey was hostess at her home for the Carmel W.A. meeting. The program consisted of readings by Mrs. Joe Grills and Mrs. Ray Hagerman, and a piano solo by Miss Dorothy Johnston.

Mrs. Arthur Prear gave a concise report of the recent W.A. convention held in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

The hostess conducted a contest, after which the ladies committees served light refreshments.

Two newly married Rawdon couples visited at the same home one evening last week while on their wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown were overnight guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Vandervoort, at Branford, Ont. Both couples met unexpectedly at the Vandervoort home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sine entertained on Wednesday Mrs. K. B. Henry, Buffalo, N.Y., and Miss Gena Spry, Stirling.

Many Rawdonians extend congratulations to Mr. Keith Brown of Peterborough, who was successful in his bid for a seat in Parliament on Thursday.

Keith was born at Stanwood and came with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, to the 13th line Rawdon, where his father was cheesemaker at the old "Maple Leaf Cheese Factory." Later his father was in charge of the Ebrold Cheese Factory.

Keith has many relatives and friends in Rawdon township who spent Thursday evening listening to the results on TV and radio.

Welfare Service Organizers May Have Tables Turned

OTTAWA (CP) — The future may turn the tables on the principal groups which organize social welfare services, a Canadian sociologist said Wednesday.

Dr. Oswald Hall, sociology professor at the University of Toronto, told the Canadian Welfare Council annual meeting:

"Each of the larger cities on this continent has developed a set of families, drawn from the oldline stock, which have played this social role of initiating and organizing welfare measures at the local community level. Some of these have risen to the point at which they could operate at a national scale. . . ."

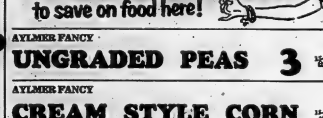
SUBJECT TO CHANGE

Such a state of affairs is by no means an "eternal arrangement," he said in a discussion of welfare services in a plasticed community. In the future "more recently arrived groups may feel restive and demand a share in this social life."

His statements were included in a text of the speech issued to the press before delivery.

The prerogative of organizing welfare services has belonged initially to "and been retained tenaciously by," the earliest of the migrant groups, which emerged as the dominant or "charter membership" group.

Bi-cultural Canada had two charter member groups, and Elliot Lake, a new, planned uranium-mining community, inherits in its social structure the strain of these two groups, Dr. Hall said.



He said Elliot Lake also inherits some of the newer migrant groups "who now may feel impelled to claim a place as the givers of service rather than the recipients."

In this community with a homogeneous housing pattern and an "extremely polyglot population," Dr. Hall said the struggle between social groups for place and criority in welfare matters now is complicated by a "new breed of functionaries, the enlightened leader of industry."

The industrial leader with energy and financial resources also gathers prestige for the task and may diminish the pioneer groups' enthusiasm, he said.

Agricultural Revolution — A New Phase

TORONTO — Rapid technological change is the keynote of our time and the swift onward sweep of science and technology is as pervasive in agriculture as in other sectors of the economy, says the current Monthly Review of The Bank of Nova Scotia. "The broiler chicken, neatly packaged, of uniform quality, and displayed in volume in the super-market, is as much a product of modern science as the transistor radio or the jet plane."

Inevitably, says the Review, the pressures of economics and technology are tending towards larger, more specialized commercial farm units. For any type of commercial farming the capital investment now required is large; and the trend towards the greater use of purchased "inputs," including the highly complicated feeds of today, is augmenting the need for capital as well. A growing amount of technical knowledge is required of the farmer, and heavier demands are made, too, on his capacities as a businessman.

VERTICAL INTEGRATION

Of the major adjustments in the organization of the farm enterprise associated with the new techniques, one of the most publicized is so-called "vertical integration." This term is employed to cover a wide variety of situations in which the essential element appears to be coordination of two or more of the stages of production — supplier, grower, processor and sometimes retailer — in a relationship closer than that of the open market.

The Review discusses developments in the broiler industry, which "by its very nature lends itself to contractual arrangements." Many kinds of contracts have arisen, ranging all the way from very close-knit ones involving all stages of the industry, to loose and partial ones. Among the simplest is an arrangement known in the trade as a processor for delivery of a crop of broilers at a given time at the market price — an arrangements known in the trade as "scheduled production." Another is an advance of credit by a feed dealer to a farmer for the purchase of chicks and feed (a long-established practice), the grower making his own market arrangements.

At the other end of the scale is the extreme case in which a feed dealer, a feed manufacturer or a processor furnishes chicks and feed to the grower, perhaps even leases his buildings and equipment, closely supervises his management of the enterprise, and simply pays him wages for his labor. Between these extremes, of course, are many other arrangements, under most of which the grower shares his profit in return for credit and risk-sharing.

OTHER INVISIONS

A good deal of the lively discussion about contract farming centres around the likely extent of its spread into other areas of livestock and poultry production. Scientific and technological advances similar to those behind the mushrooming of the broiler industry are occurring with other products. The same factors that favor contracting in chicken broilers obtain with turkey broilers, and production of these small-sized turkeys, which has become important only in the past two years, is as highly integrated as the chicken broiler industry.

Egg production is becoming more and more a large-scale commercial undertaking, the small flock of a few hundred birds giving way to big commercial operations of 40,000 to 50,000 layers and up, with rigidly controlled conditions and a great deal of mechanical feeding, watering and cleaning equipment. Contracting here may be directed towards obtaining quantity production of a predetermined standardized product.

So far, contracting in hogs and cattle in Canada has not gone very far. However, a sign of the times is experimentation with "pig hatcheries" where weanling pigs are produced for finishing by other growers. There are now in Canada a few hog enterprises so large that 4,000 of them raising weaners and other 4,000 feeding them out could provide the entire Canadian supply of pork, now produced on more than a quarter of a million farms.

In the United States, large-scale "beef factories" are in operation, particularly in California, where enormous numbers of animals are fed under contract. Even across the border, operations of such huge size are still very much the exception. They do, however, indicate a trend in the livestock industry which informed observers expect will continue, though probably much more slowly than in the broiler industry.

WIDELY DEBATED PRACTICE

In the voluminous literature to which vertical integration and contract farming have given rise on the North American continent, the pros and cons of this growing development have been widely debated, the Review points out. Those that it says reduce the farmer to the status of a hired hand are no doubt exaggerated. Unquestionably, however, from the point of view both of the farmer and of society at large, some types of contract are preferable to others.

It is clearly desirable that contracts should be such as to give the farmer an incentive to conduct his enterprise as efficiently as possible. It is also desirable that improved returns resulting from the application of the new techniques should be shared equitably among the various stages of production that contribute to the greater efficiency. Monopoly anywhere along the line might cause an undue share of the profits or income to come one link in the chain, or might deprive the consumer of the benefit of cheaper food.

Bundling Bed Probably Answer To Argument

CHICAGO (AP)—An Oshkosh, Wis., bed manufacturer says he has the answer to the old single bed-double bed controversy.

What's needed, he says, is a revival of the bundling bed of New England Puritan days with its centre board separating bedmates.

"The bundling bed may very well add up to a happy medium in the battle between twin and double beds."

Patterson Says He Is Fit Johansson Proving a Puzzle

By JACK HAND

CHATHAM, N.J. (AP) — If Junior's final report card wasn't up to the kid's standards, teacher, Just give thanks that Floyd Patterson wasn't grading the papers.

The heavyweight boxing champion must be the busiest student in the world. He once gave himself only 11 per cent in one of his elementary classes. In high school grade he says he handed himself was 76 per cent but his effort against Archie Moore the night he won the world crown.

"Right now I'd say I am 100 per cent," he said Wednesday after finishing a four-round workout. "Before a fight you can't settle for anything less. But after it is over I know I'm going to mark myself lower."

Patterson goes against Swede Ingemar Johansson in New York next Thursday night in a 15-round title scrap.

Manager Cus D'Amato says Floyd must be 100 per cent or what he thinks a perfect fighter should be able to do. He'll never reach his peak because he asks so much of himself."

Leafs Drop Halted Game With Marlins

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Staff Writer

The loss of Jay in Montreal after pitching Chicago Cubs' Cubs was costing contender to the hosting of Toronto manager Dixie Walker's hurt his team lost 2-1 at Miami in a rain-curtailed International League game Wednesday night.

Walker was furious when umpire Harry Schwartz halted play in the sixth inning with one run in, two Toronto runners on base and catching hitter Lloyd Moxey coming up.

"It was raining no harder when they stopped it than it was when (Leo) Burke hit the home run in the fifth," Walker fumed.

WINNING HIT

Burke's home run came with a man on to account for both of Miami's runs.

Toronto strengthened its first place lead to 4 games and a half, with a 6-5 victory over Columbus, while second-place Richmond lost its second straight to Rochester, 5-3. Montreal and Havana were rained out.

Don Johnson (6-6) was the victim of Burke's one-out homer.

"Time should have already been called before Burke came up," Walker declared. "It was always a downpour. How could they expect Johnson to pitch in that mess?"

Toronto tagged winner John Anderson (4-3) in the top of the sixth with Joe Amalfitano's single, two groundouts, a run-scoring single by Larry Raines and Jim Pisarcik's triple to Schwartz intervened. The score reverted to the end of the fifth.

Mickey Harrington's single with the bases loaded in the first inning drove in two runs and gave Buffalo pitcher Chris Short (6-11) an 8-6 victory over Columbus. Paul Giel (3-2). Short scattered four hits and struck out seven. Bobby Kratzer's double and Tom Burgess' single getting Columbus' only run. Buffalo added its cushion in the eighth on three singles.

Bob Keegan won his ninth in 10 decisions for Rochester, with Bobby Wine's two-run, fourth-inning, sparked by Dick Rand's triple and Keegan's double brought the Wings from a 4-2 deficit. Darell Johnson homered for Richmond which used three pitchers. Starter Zack Mccrow (3-3) got the loss.

Young Cuban Gives Akins Sound Licking

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Cubans for the Miami area today hailed what they called "the new Kid Gavilan" in the person of Luis Manuel Rodriguez, a lanky, fast - punching youngster from Camaguey.

Rodriguez soundly whipped former welterweight champion Virgil (Honeyboy) Akins of St. Louis in a 10-round fight Wednesday night.

Gavilan ruled the welterweight division from 1952 to 1954 And Rodriguez, 22, hopes to follow in his footsteps. The young Cuban is unbeaten in 22 fights.

Using a flurry of left jabs and right hooks, Rodriguez won all but a couple of rounds in the opinion of referee Cy Gottfried and two ringside judges.

Akins was a tired and beaten man at the end while Rodriguez was still throwing stinging punches that had closed the former champion's left eye.

Akins won the title on June 4, 1952, and lost it to Don Jordan in Los Angeles on Dec. 5.

"Now let's have the same kind of quiet as if I were putting for an eagle!"

The tackle is Stu Smith, 19, of Ottawa, who showed considerable promise with St. Anthony's Juniors here last year.

Lopez Speaking, Tigers Strongest Club in League

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Al Lopez of Chicago White Sox take the third-place Detroit Tigers as the strongest club in the American League.

"Those Tigers are really hot right now," Lopez said Wednesday. "Jimmy (Dykes) really has them all hopped up. Thurp's getting good hitting and good pitching. You can't beat that combination."

Despite the bouquets, Lopez still believes his team will beat them, as well as the Indians and Yankees for the pennant. "Our club hasn't played its best ball yet," he said. "We were the best team in the league in the last half of last season and we have practically the same team.

"The fellows haven't been hitting. That is, all except Nellie Fox, Luis Aparicio and Bubba Phillips. What has saved us is the fact that we've been able to get key hits to win ball games."

Argos Open Rookie Camp

TORONTO (CP) — An eager group of 40 candidates donned full football equipment for a stiff workout at training camp Monday as Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union opened their heavyweight drills before the Wednesday night.

Head coach Ramp Pool and assistants Joe Thomas and Steve Owen, drilled the prospects in heavy contact work immediately to determine their physical condition and to weed out any obvious misfits.

The coaches were aided by Teddy Morris, the club's chief recruiter of rookie talent.

The best of the group will be invited to Argos' regular training camp, opening July 6. The coaches hope to discover at least eight capable enough to play in the Big Four this season.

The rugged 90-minute workout led to one serious casualty. Mike Lavelle suffered torn knee ligaments, knocking him out of further contention.

Argos' two top prospects, quarterback Norm Turner, and end Larrt Sheriff, were unable to take part. Turner, is tied up with high school examinations, and Sheriff, formerly of the University of Toronto, and the club's number one choice in the college draft, was detained at work.

WANTS NO PROS

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Otto Lorenz, president of the Austrian Skiing Association, has rejected a proposal to allow professionals to take part in the Olympic Winter Games. Also chairman of the International Skiing Association's amateur committee, he said the proposal by Sir Arnold Lunn of Britain, to make acceptable because each organization is built on amateurism. Nobody would want to work for all sets who enter races for profit."

Rocky's Brother Truro Bearcat

TRURO, N.S. (CP)—Truro Bearcats of the Halifax and District Baseball League have one player who pitchers will probably be reluctant to throw a "duri off" pitch at.

He is catcher Peter Marchegiano, brother of former world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano. Rocky, who retired undefeated in 1956, was born Rocco Marchegiano.

Eighteen - year - old Pete graduated from high school in Braintree, Mass., last month. He plans to attend the University of Florida on a baseball scholarship this fall.

Harness Racing

HULL, Que. (CP)—Dr. John Fleming of Grove Corner drove his entries to victory and placed with a third in the nine-race program at Connaught Park Wednesday night.

In the featured $600 invitation pace—the eighth—he drove Leesoft to victory over Judill, owned by Harold Barry of Cardinal and driven by Don Corbett.

Flamira entries took two races, Ivan Farr driving Merry Brook C to win the fifth, a mile D pace, in 2:18 flat and Don Corbett driving Play Ball to win the sixth, a mile C pace, in 2:12 2-5.

Victor Grattan Bars, a Long Sault entry driven by Sid Locke, took the ninth, a mile C pace, in 2:18 2-5.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Not so long ago this city and district recoiled with something akin to horror from the shocking inquest of the news that four fishermen, well known locally, had drowned in fishing accident in Algonquin Park's Lake Opeonga.

The bodies were never recovered. Veteran anglers who have been fishing this part of the district for years express the opinion the cold deep waters of Opeongo will never give up their dead.

What happened is a mystery. Four men in two boats set out in reportedly good weather and smooth water in the cool of the evening. They had failed to return when the dawn silvered the wooded slopes that border the lake. A search of part of the 350-mile shoreline of the lake revealed two overturned boats. Nothing else. Thus far the dark depths of Opeongo have kept their secret well.

Much conjecture has been aired as to what happened. The water was known to be in the vicinity of 40 degrees. Did one of the men accidentally fall into the water, and capsize the boat trying to get back? Did the other boat capsize trying to rescue those of the other? Did the boats accidentally collide, throwing all four occupants overboard? The truth will never be known.

Every season anglers suffer mishaps and encounter disaster because safety precautions were overlooked, or because they were unaware of or neglected one or more of angling's prime rules for safe fishing and boating.

The Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity warns: "In every way, play it safe and live to fish another day."

A lot of people are unaware of even the simple rules of water safety. Tonight is a good chance to get acquainted by attending the public water safety meeting at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. It starts at 7.30.

Incidentally here are a few simple safety rules for fishermen that may help prevent those unnecessary angling accidents that spoil too many vacations.

Land fish carefully. Keep a landing net handy — and use it. Otherwise your hand may slip on the slimy fish and run foul of a triple-barb hook, with painful results, far from a doctor. Use a heavy glove and long-nose pliers when removing hooks from "muskies" and other such fish.

Cast clear of other anglers! Learn the "three-quarter" overhead haltcast. It's securer, safer, than "side-casting" but the "side-winder" method is for when you're alone! It's dangerous, too, to cast directly overhead—a puff of wind may blow the hooked fly in your face. Experienced fly casters use the "three-quarter" cast—keeps the line to one side a bit. Be sure, however, that companions on your other side are safe!

Fish only from a firm footing! To fish from a submerged rock or log is to invite disaster, especially the loose or slippery kind. Test the footing with your feet before you mount them — if they don't "feel good," seek a firmer perch. Take your time — and move about slowly.

Wade streams with care! Never chase a running fish unless you know the stream and its bottom beyond peradventure. A hidden log or rock, a hole, soft sand or sudden drop-off, and you're down — and sometime you won't come up! Just be sure you have plenty of backing to cope with a trout's rushes — and stand still. No fish is worth an accident!

Know your boat and what it will take under all circumstances. Balance your passengers and baggage. Avoid overloading. Don't skimp on life preservers. When boarding a small boat or canoe, step into its centre. Avoid changing places except at a dock or along shore. Never allow children on the open bow where they can also have been known to slide off when waves or emergency turns cause the bow to veer and slope sharply.

Sit down in your boat! Sure, you can bail-cast or fly-cast much more easily standing up — but you only increase your chances of taking a dive, losing your expensive tackle, and maybe your life!

Even when fishing shallow waters near shore, learn to fish sitting — or kneeling on the bottom if in a canoe—thus keeping your centre of gravity low and your stability high!

In every way, play it safe!

Dodgers Trim Leaders Twice As Frisco Kids Nip Redlegs; Tigers Lose, Chisox Beaten

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Young Milt Pappas has his first major league shutout, and he couldn't have picked a better time to nail it.

The big right-hander, 20, put it away with the best pitching of his brief career Wednesday night for Baltimore, dropping Detroit Tigers 4-0 with a two-hitter and halting the Orioles' skid in the American League race.

Pappas, signed two years ago off the Detroit Sandlots, struck out six and didn't walk a man. He had a perfect game going until Lew Berberet got the first of the Tigers' two singles with two out in the fifth inning. The other hit, in the sixth, was by Jim Bunning (6-6), who allowed only four Baltimore hits but lost.

Pappas retired the last 11 men in a row while gaining a 6-3 record.

TANKS, SENATORS WIN

That left the fourth - place Birds, who have lost five of seven since tying for first last week, 3½ games behind Cleveland's league - leading Indians, whose game at Kansas City was postponed because of cold weather. Chicago White Sox were beaten 7-3 at Boston as Frank Sullivan beat Kansas City 7-2.

The Orioles got to Bunning when Gus Triandos and Chico Carrasquel hit solo home runs in the fifth inning. A single by Al Pilarcik, Gene Woodling's triple and an error produced the other two Orioles runs in the eighth.

The fifth - place Yankees returned to the win column for the straight over the White Sox, Mickey Mantle's 14th homer, a two-run wallop into the third deck in right field at Yankee Stadium, capped a five-run second inning against loser Ray Moore (1-3). Bob Turley (6-7) won but needed Ryne Duren's help over the last 2 2-3 innings.

Camilo Pascual (5-7), who had lost three in a row and hadn't won since May 27 despite five consecutive complete games, was handed the As their fourth consecutive loss with a six-hitter. He fanned eight and was backed by two-run homers from rookie Bob Allison and Reno Bertoia. It was Allison's 17th, Bertoia's eighth and helped the Senators hit a season total to 80. Ned Garver (5-5) lost it.

Miami Beach, Fla.—Luis Rodriguez, 147, Cuba, outpointed Virgil Akins, 146½, St. Louis, 10.

Albuquerque, N. M. — Neal Rivers, 164, Los Angeles, outpointed Jimmy Martinez, 157, Phoenix, 10.

What's happened to Milwaukee Braves?

They've lost 10 of their last 15 games and have been shut out three times in the last four games, is this the beginning of the end to their hold on the National League pennant—or is this just another of those slumps, such as they had and shrugged off while winning the flag the past two years?

Either way, they have only a half-game edge left from what was a bulging, 4½ game lead a month ago after dropping a twi-night doubleheader to Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night. They were checked on five hits by lefthander Sandy Koufax while losing the opener 10-2, then were blanked on two hits by Danny McDevitt, another lefty, as the Dodgers took the second game 4-0.

GIANTS CLOSE BEHIND

That put the second-place San Francisco Giants, who swept a three-game Cincinnati Redlegs—within .009 percentage points of the champions. The same two belong to the Dodgers into fourth place, one percentage point behind Milwaukee but following the Pirates' 5-2 loss to Chicago Cubs. St. Louis Cardinals whipped Philadelphia Phillies 10-4.

The Braves, getting a first inning home run from Johnny Logan against Koufax (3-1), had only a pair of singles with Hank Aaron in the nightcap. McDevitt (5-6), walked three, struck out two.

Los Angeles broke through a two-hit shutout by Joe Jay (2-3) in the seventh on a bases-loaded walk and an infield out, then added two in the eighth off Bob Trowbridge on a single by Don Demeter and Hodges' double.

GIANTS BURST

The Giants broke a 2-2 tie with five runs in the sixth against Orlando Cepeda's three-run homer, one a two-run smack by Willie Kirkland, three walks and an error. Johnny Antonelli won his 10th, but needed help in the eighth from Sam Jones.

Cal Neeman, who singled and scored one run in the fifth and seventh for the Cubs, hit a three-run, inside-the-park homer in the fifth off loser Jack Sanford. Southpaw Harvey Haddix (4-5), Bill Henry (5-3) won it in relief.

The Cards made it nine out of 11 with Ray Jablonski and Bill White each driving in three runs. A five-run fifth put it away against reliever Jim Hearn. Robinson (4-1) while lefty Marshall Bridges held the Phils to five hits over the last 4 for a winning, 5 1-3-inning relief job in his major league debut.

BEAVERS VALUABLE

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—More than 8,000 beaver were trapped in Newfoundland and Labrador in the 1957-58 winter season, says a report from the resources department. With pelts valued at nearly $135,000 the beavers topped muskrat in trappers' income.

Americans Drub Australians in Pro Tennis

TORONTO (CP) — The Australians lost to the Americans Wednesday night here.

Pancho Gonzales and Tony Trabert defeated Ashley Cooper and Ken Rosewall in the opening singles matches of the 15,000 professional tennis tournament.

Pancho knocked off Cooper 6-1, 6-3. Trabert defeated Rosewall 6-3, 6-3.

In an exhibition doubles match, Lew Hoad and Pancho Segura defeated Mervyn Rose and Frank Sedgman 1-6, 7-5, 6-4.

The pros, fresh from 10 days of playing on cement courts in California, had trouble adjusting to the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club's en tout cas topping—a brick dust type of surface, rolled hard.

"Cement makes you drive all the time," Gonzales said.

"These courts call for a defensive game, and you play the shots to keep the ball in play."

No Solid Favorite Named In Canadian Open Tourney

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BUNTRIAL (CP)—The $25,000 Canadian Open golf tournament got under way today without a solid favorite being established after most of the touring pros had played several practice rounds over the Islesmere Club course.

The first threesome teed off at 8:30 a.m. but most of the big names among the 149 competitors were scheduled for afternoon rounds.

Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., one of the pre-tournament favorites to take the $3,500 top money, was one of the all-round starters, along with Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., who won the U.S. Open Sunday.

CANADA'S BEST

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, the Canadian pro observers have thought had the best chance of bringing the title back to Canada, was in a threesome with Casper and Jay Hebert, the San Diego, Fla., pro.

Although the field includes Wall and Casper, the circuit's top two money-winners, many of the richest pros are missing. Of the top 15, seven didn't make the journey, including Gene Littler, Arnie Palmer and Mike Souchak, third, fourth and fifth in earnings.

Most of the pros played casual rounds Wednesday, getting the feel of the 6,885 - yard, par-72 pedition.

course, the site two years ago of the now-defunct $25,000 Open.

All of them finished the course with honest respect for its fairways and greens, in top shape after several days rain during the early part of the week.

WALL PLEASED

Wall, who has won a total of $34,120 on the circuit this season, has been a tournament since the masters in April, was pleased with the play after an experimental round in about par.

"I haven't been playing well for three weeks or so but in my practice round I seemed to be getting better. If the improvement stays with me, well I'll be hoping for the best."

Leonard, a conserves his strength by picking his spots on the tournament trail, started his practice round poorly but finished with an even par 72.

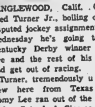
"I was just shadow - boxing, anyway," Leonard said afterwards. "The course is playing a big longer than it did when I was here a couple of years ago. I have never seen a brighter green in the Montreal area."

FAMED NAVIGATOR

Captain James Cook sailed all around the Antarctic continent in 1772-74, inspiring many future explorations.

Derby Owner Will Quit Racing

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Fred Turner Jr., boiling over a disputed jockey assignment, said Wednesday he's going to sell Kentucky Derby winner Tomy Lee and the rest of his stable and get out of racing.



Turner, tremendously upset, flew here from Texas after Tomy Lee ran out of the money in last Saturday's Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park. He thought he had made a commitment for Willie Shoemaker to ride his star, but United Shoemaker took another assignment in the East. Don Pierce was aboard Tomy.

He blames Shoemaker's agent, Harry Silbert, for violating what he said was an agreement for Shoemaker to ride.

Silbert said there was no agreement on Shoemaker and it was no secret he was to ride Second Dancer last Saturday.

Twenty-Four Hit Bludgeon Barrage Features Point Win Over Cobourg

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen reaped sweet revenges for the no-hit loss handed them by Cobourg Merchants last week when they thumped the Merchants 12-3 at the Point last night in a Belleville and District Softball League affair.

Phil Lotz's crew broke away from the gate quickly with three runs in the opening frame and never looked back. Cobourg cut the margin to 3-2 in the second but another trio by the Cementers in the fourth kept them well in front.

The Merchants pecked away but could get only one run per inning while the winners struck hard for two in the seventh and four in the eighth to win going away.

Neither club played too sharp in the field or on the base paths as the batters fattened their averages with 24 hits, 14 of them by the Cementmen.

Pat Marcle opened ten hits on the Ox-Point mound to even his record at 3 wins and as many lost. He nipped six Merchants on thirg strikes while walking two. The latter should have been caught, hurt his cause. He whiffed two and passed five.

Carr's bunt single and a walk were followed by clean-up man Johnny Batchelor's long home run over the centre fielder's head in the initial frame, his second circuit clout in three games.

After Cobourg's two in the second, Point Anne struck again for three on an error and hits by Soule, Carr and Batchelor. Campbell got one back by tripling off Soule's glove in deep centre and scoring on Harnden's single in the fifth. They cut the lead to 6-4 on Soule's back to back singles by Turpin and Harnden and McGahan's double in the seventh.

Marcle drove in two in the last of that inning with a solid hit after a walk and an error. Safeties by O'Brien and Campbell and a Belcher's choice threw from the outfield got the losers' their final marker.

Carr and Jones singled in the eighth and Doug Hull's misjudged double netted one. Kingston doubled two more home and scored on an error to close the scoring.

Claude Carr with four base knocks in five attempts sparked the Point Anne hitters. John Batchelor slammed a homer and a single, Gary Coyer doubled and singled and Doug Soule singled twice. Doug Hull and Chuck Kingston and two-baggers, Marcle and Dave Jones one-baggers.

Campbell tripled and singled in defeat with Clarke Harnden and Leo O'Brien getting two hits apiece. Rex McGahan doubled with singles shared by Dick Turpin, Chuck Meyer and Al Church.

Lineups — Cobourg: Turpin ss, Harnden rf, McGahan rf, Meyer c, Church 2b, McSporran lf, J. Hart 1b, O'Brien 3b, Campbell p, B. Hart lf.

Pt Anne: Carr c, Jones 3b, Hull ss, Batchelor 2b, Kingston 1b, Coyer lf, Marcle p, Soule cf, Elliott 3b, rf.

Umpires — Al Kelleher (p) and Harold Bawden. Time — 1.22.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Friday, June 19

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Here is a day when you can go out and contact all those people with whom you would like to be allied in the near future, particularly those in fields that intrigue you and about which you are quite ignorant. Be friendly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Consulting with your physician, financier, broker, et al., produces fine results today. Be sure to ask questions about anything you do not understand. P.M. discuss things with close friends or kin and get their OK.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Long talks with associates and even competitors is fine now to know your exact position with them. Be certain to state any data that will bring real understanding between you. Correct relations. P. M. have fun at sports or theatre.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Stop deliberating about the work ahead of you and roll up your sleeves. Put it behind you efficiently. It has to be done sometime. Thus this can be a very productive and enlightening day for you. Use best methods possible.

Warden Forced To Release Man, Snored too Loud

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sleepy Travis Zellis, 28, snored his way out of the county jail Tuesday.

He had been given a 90-day sentence May 1 for stealing an amplifier from the stage of a night club.

Soon after Zellis was sentenced, however, Judge Simon L. Leis and the probation department began receiving calls from Charles Junker, the jail warden: Joseph Hesselbrock, his assistant, and Sheriff Dan Tobin.

It seemed that Zellis snored day and night. He couldn't stay awake on any job given him. He'snored so much during the day that other prisoners could not work and made so much noise at night they couldn't sleep.

There was only one solution. Judge Leis and the county prosecution department decided he had to be released—on three months' probation, of course.

Had Backache; Food Upset Stomach - "Always Tired"

"Many Days I Ached All Over," Says This Man as He Tells of Relief by Taking Syntona.

"There is a definite improvement in the way I feel since I've been taking Syntona," said Mr. George Moore, 137 Hibernia St., Stratford, Ontario, in a recent report.

His Experience

"Previously I had to be careful of what I ate or I would suffer with gas, indigestion and sour acid rising afterwards. I was also troubled with backache and rheumatic pains in my limbs. I felt tired, nervous and was very apt to get on edge, so I couldn't get my proper sleep at night. I was always tired and subject to headaches.

"But this is all changed since I've been taking Syntona. Although I eat heartier meals, indigestion, backache and other pains are relieved and my nerves are steadier. I sleep like a log and always feel as I was before."

Easy to Take

Syntona is pleasant to take and results are quickly felt. For prompt, effective relief from faulty digestion, nervousness, sleeplessness, backache or rheumatic pains begin taking Syntona today.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Delan the Druggist.

Opposition Nearly Wiped Out By Alberta Socreds

Three Party Leaders Meet Defeat at Polls

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Social Credit government almost wiped out opposition forces Thursday by scoring one of the biggest election landslides in Canadian provincial politics. It won 61 of 65 seats.

All three opposition leaders were defeated.

A record vote gave the government its seventh consecutive four-year mandate by a margin greater than that of 1955 when Social Credit made its successful debut as a political party.

Opposition strength dropped to four from 24 in the last legislature and may stand at three when the first session is called. One Independent Social Crediter who returned his seat is expected to be taken back into ranks. He was read out in 1944.

Durban Police Call for Armor To Quell Riots

DURBAN, South Africa (CP) A police call went out for heavy armored troop carriers today as rebellious African women began gathering again around beerhalls in the riot-torn non-white townships here.

Following Thursday night's arson spree, police tightened up their watch around the halls, starting points of the violence.

Authorities said a call had gone out for three Saracen heavy armored troop carriers from a depot in Cape Province, about 359 miles away.

The threat of renewed trouble came as flares still flickered in the ruins of 25 buildings burned in Thursday's violence, in which three Africans were shot dead and unknown numbers injured in day-long clashes between 5,000 Negroes and hundreds of white policemen.

A white policeman, shot during the orgy of arson and furious racial strife, was not in serious condition.

During the night the situation in the two Durban townships of Cato Manor and Chesterville was reported tense but quiet. Smoke from burned-out buildings drifted into the sky as knots of armed police patrolled the area and trained searchlights on highways.

SCENE LIKE INFERNO

Cato Manor—scene of bloody race riots between Africans and Indians 10 years ago which cost 142 lives—was an inferno Thursday night as police battled stick-ers by the light of blazing buildings.

Infuriated Africans, a few armed with guns, others waving clubs or hurling stones and bottles, swarmed through the streets setting fire to government offices, schools, stores and houses, wrecking cars and buses.

One building set ablaze housed a branch office of the native administrative department of South Africa's nationalist government, exponent of strict race segregation.

One of the immediate causes of the riots appeared to be establishment at official handling of a slum-clearance project in Cato Manor. At a meeting of a leader claimed Africans in the township had been "ruthlessly evicted" by police.

The other was anger over "indiscriminate" raids by police on natives making home - brewed kaffir beer, a commodity sold in municipal-brewed beer sold in African beer halls.

SENATE TAKEN DOWN BOULEVARD 'BROKEN DREAMS'

Tax-Sharing Pact Said Frankenstein

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Harold Connolly Thursday took the Senate down the boulevard of broken tax dreams to a "federal Frankenstein" as the result.

And, he said during debate on extension for another year of existing federal - provincial tax-sharing arrangements:

"The federal Frankenstein, no matter how benevolent it may appear to be and is in some cases, rules the roost."

A former Liberal premier of Nova Scotia, he described himself as an apostle of provincial rights and "a voice crying in the new economic wilderness."

He retraced income tax steps down "the boulevard of broken dreams" to show how it all came about.

BEGUN WITH RELUCTANCE

The first income tax legislation had been introduced, with reluctance, as a temporary expedient because of a war emergency in 1917.

As another temporary wartime measure in 1941, the federal government had persuaded provinces to vacate the personal and corporation income tax fields in return for payments to provinces.

And in the 1957 election campaign, Prime Minister Diefenbaker had promised the provinces a better deal and an end to the coercive taxation and centralization.

But nothing had changed. There was no indication when, if ever, the provinces would be released from their "bondage" to the central government.

The two wealthy provinces had been placed in a position by these "handouts from Ottawa" whereby, because of their greater wealth, they must always sign tax agreements on the same terms as poorer provinces.

Senator Connolly said everyone should stand on his own feet. But he knew that his was "but a voice crying in the wilderness of economics, where spending, and not saving, is the order of the day; where thrift has become an old-fashioned word to be sneered and laughed at as a has - been suspected."

He said Canadians surely have not reached the level where they are prepared to disregard the principle of responsible government, which envisaged each province retaining "the powers necessary" done were to be redressed, the federal government should call a dominion-provincial conference without delay and let the provinces "have the largest say in the way provinces' money that was being spent by Ottawa in a way that would give a clear voice in how that money was to be spent and in what quantities."

KHRUSHCHEV THREATENS END TO BERLIN ACCESS

East German Treaty Would Change Status

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev said today if Russia is forced to sign a peace treaty with East Germany it would be an "illusion" for the West to believe its rights of communications with West Berlin would remain.

East Germany, he said, would become a sovereign nation through a peace treaty and it would be up to the East Germans to decide on the maintenance of Berlin's communications.

Khrushchev addressed a Kremlin ceremony honoring an East German delegation that has been visiting Russia for the last two weeks. The delegation is headed by Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist party chief Walter Ulbricht.

Khrushchev said the talks here that the East Germans had established a common point of view on all questions discussed. He announced that a communique would be signed and published later today.

If West Germany refuses to sign a peace treaty, Khrushchev said, "There remains nothing for Russia to do but to sign one with East Germany alone."

ANOTHER OFFER

The Soviet premier offered to propose another unspecified time limit for ending Berlin's occupation status if the one - year period suggested at the Geneva Big-Four talks did not suit the West.

But he added the establishment of a time limit is "by no means the most important question." The most important thing, he said, is to reach agreement on matters of principle.

"We are proposing to establish

Gromyko Rejects West Plan, New Scheme Brings No Hope

GENEVA (CP) — Russians Foreign Minister Gromyko today rejected the West's latest proposals for a stopgap Berlin solution even as a basis of discussion.

A British delegation spokesman said also that new proposals for an interim Berlin arrangement put forward by Gromyko have given "no new hope" to the West for a solution.

The American, British and French delegations then announced they were issuing their proposals — indicating that negotiations are at an end. They had withheld publication for three days, although the content was made known in general terms, on the grounds that the proposals were still under negotiation.

The British spokesman said:

"Mr. Gromyko has not accepted the Western proposals for talks.

"Furthermore the Soviet position as put forward this afternoon gives no hope on the Western delegations for a solution."

The British statement, echoed by other Western delegations, was issued during an interval between two private sessions of the Big Four foreign ministers.

It immediately poured the likes hood that the Western ministers would raise with Gromyko the question of resumption of this conference.

Word on Gromyko's stand came shortly after it was learned that the Soviet minister had dropped a new set of porposals into the

TV Star Explains

Indifferent to Royal Visit But Not Toward Royal Family

NEW YORK (CP)—Joyce Davidson, Toronto television interviewer, said today she is indifferent toward the Royal Visit but not toward the Royal Family.

Speaking on the NBC television program "Today," the Canadian TV personality amplified on remarks she made on the same program Wednesday during a press appearance.

She said then in answer to a question that "like most Canadians, I'm indifferent to the visit of the Queen" and her remark touched off a furore in Canada.

"I said I was indifferent to the Royal Visit," she said today in an interview between segments of the show, adding that nothing in her remarks denoted indifference to the Royal Family.

Host Dave Garroway brought the subject up again today and Davidson had said beforehand that she wanted to elaborate on her remarks—by the way, Toronto newspaper report of her original statements.

The Canadian, who conducts interviews on the CBC-TV network here, said she was astounded by the reaction of her statements and stressed that she had not been trying to act as a spokesman for Canada but was merely expressing her own opinions.

Garroway produced a sheaf of telegrams from Canadians, some critical and others supporting Miss Davidson, and quipped: "It's nice to know the people in Toronto are listening to us."

Miss Davidson said several hours after the first interview, Miss Davidson admitted that "I'm sorry I ever said it, only because of the fuss it caused."

She said that many of her neighbors, her friends and the people she works with seem to be unimpressed by the Royal Visit.

"We're a big, lusty, rolling country and perhaps we resent the feeling we are dependent," Miss Davidson said. Most Canadians do not come from Britain, but "from Italy and Germany and other parts of the world".

Miss Davidson said she is going to take her own opinions to see the Queen.

One of her strongest objections to a Royal Tour is the way it is covered in Canadian newspapers. She called the news articles describing the Royal Family "treacly—they hid the fact that the Queen is a real person."

Through Lyal Brown, director of information, the CBC said: "We do not share Miss Davison's views."

Max (Rawhide) Ferguson, a colleague on Tabloid, said he applauded Miss Davidson's honesty, and said she had no right to speak for "most Canadians."

Mr. Brown said the CBC switchboard has been "flooded with hundreds of calls," virtually all in disagreement with Miss Davidson.

Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips said Thursday night that Miss Davidson owes the people of Canada an apology.

In reply to this, Miss Davidson said today in an interview that she has nothing to apologize for because she did not insult anyone.

"Who is she anyway?" Mayor Phillips asked. "She certainly doesn't represent Canadians or the people of Toronto."

He said of her remarks:

"An irresponsible statement. She may have her own opinion, but she can't speak for the people of Canada.

"I think she owes an apology to the people of Canada for putting them in a false light."

OTTAWA (CP)— Deportation of United States-born Hal C. Banks, Canadian head of the Seafarers' International Union, was suggested today in the Commons.

H. W. Herridge (CCF - Kootenay West) proposed deportation to Immigration Minister Fairclough, who promptly replied that she has no legal authority to kick Banks out of the country.

Meet And Talk With Laborers In St. John's

After Inspection Board RCAF Plane for Gander

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Laborers and dignitaries met and talked with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip this morning as the Royal couple began the first full day of their Canadian tour in this Nfld., in an RCAF plane after spending their first night in Canada at the Newfoundland capital.

Their plane landed here at 11:07 a.m. Dorset Head, Canada's transport minister, greeted them at the entrance to the H-shaped terminal building.

A small group of about 14 officials clustered at the foot of the ramp as the Queen descended, smiling warmly. She wore a light topcoat, white hat and a coral-colored dress with three strands of pearls.

Most of the welcoming crowd had gathered in the main waiting room of the terminal, where the official ceremony took place.

Premier Joey Smallwood with Mr. Hees, waving a greeting to a group of about 50 airport employees standing behind an RCAF guard of honor. The group included carpenter John Tricket of Spot Cove. "It's a real pleasure to be able to meet the Queen," he said.

The first workman she met was Thomas Saunders of Botwood, an 18-year-old apprentice carpenter. The Queen was delighted interested in the new building, to be the tallest in Newfoundland when completed. The premier showed the Queen where the building will be located in relation to Elizabeth Avenue which was named after her following the 1951 Royal Tour.

Premier Smallwood read an announcement of Newfoundland's gift to the Queen—plans to spend $10,000 a year on the education of mentally-retarded children. He gave her a copy and kept another for presentation to the provincial archives.

Hundreds of Newfoundlanders lined the streets and roadways as the Queen and Prince Philip were driven to Torbay airport where they arrived Thursday for their Canadian tour. The rear of the car was enclosed by a plastic bubble because of the chilly weather.

FIRE SALUTE

Thousands more people were at the airport. A navy honor guard was drawn up smartly on the tarmac. Behind them were members of his cabinet and tour officials expected to travel aboard the royal plane. A 21-gun royal salute was fired as the plane touched down.

Good flying weather continued to hold for the visit today and things were being kept on schedule.

Wild Duck Production Will Be Down Due to Drought, Late Nesting

OTTAWA (CP)—A bleak picture of wild duck production in the Canadian prairies during the unfolded Thursday and wildlife officials today continued to discuss seasons and bag limits for the 1959 season.

Drought in the Prairies, hitting the main hatchery area of Saskatchewan particularly hard, indicates that the 1959 hatch will be a lean one, the federal-provincial wildlife conference here was told. Late nesting is expected in Canada generally.

Meanwhile, the conference was working behind closed doors to draft a new Migratory Birds Convention which later will be approved—probably without revision—by the cabinet.

In other developments as the two - day conference opened Thursday, it was announced that Ottawa would spend $100,000 to produce a proposed change in the fisheries act within a year. The amendment would be for the purpose of stiffening control of pollution of waters.

Both industry and the public are to blame for pollution, it was pointed out Thursday, but there is some doubt about what federal statute should be used to make prosecutions stick. Further study was required.

A further progress report on the stately white whooping crane, the Canadian - based species which United States wildlife authorities are sending-a scout to the North-West Territories nesting grounds. The idea is to see what happens to the immature whooper who apparently are the most prone to non-survival.

Yesterday night, Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton told a dinner meeting of the conference gates they are too modest. They should ask for more, he said.

Wildlife scientists didn't need to be self-effacing any more, because the public now is wildlife conscious. Wildlife work constitutes a vital component of recreation, which will become increasingly important for a harried modern civilization.

Screaming Curses, Louisiana's Long Again Dragged to Mental Hospital

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Hoarsely screaming curses, Governor-elect Long of Louisiana backed all the way Thursday night as he was forced into a mental hospital for the second time in three weeks.

"God damn it, God damn it, God damn it," the rumpled and sweating governor bellowed to sheriff's deputies who had him in a bear hug to Southeast Louisiana State Hospital.

The 63-year-old governor swung from delusions of persecution—paranoic schizophrenia.

"I don't feel I need to be hospitalized," Long told physicians at the state institution.

Dr. Charles Bethea, acting superintendent, indicated Long must remain in hospital at least 30 days.

Both latest chargers pitched against Louisiana politicians into additional jitters with the question of who is to take over the duties of governor.

Lieutenant-Governor Lether E. Frazar—it is presumed—will step into the breach, as he did when members of the Long family flew a drugged and unwilling governor May 30 to a psychiatric clinic at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, Tex.

Long's latest outburst came after a drugged and unwilling governor-elect Long was hospitalized.

One of her strongest objections to a Royal Tour is the way it is covered in Canadian newspapers.

Indian Found Dead

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — Queen Elizabeth officially opened a new $3,500,000 terminal building at the big international airport here today.

New Canadians, Foreign Consuls Being Invited

TORONTO (CP)—At least 15 foreign consuls and a representative group of New Canadians are on the invitation list for the official Ontario banquet for Queen Elizabeth, Lieutenant - Governor Keiller Mackay said today.

Raimund Bock, editor of the German - language newspaper Toronter Zeitung, said the banquet invitation list contains the names of very few representatives of the 300,000 non-British New Canadians in Toronto.

The lieutenant governor said "it isn't fair to judge on the basis of part of the list. One purpose in releasing the list was that if any errors or omission had occurred, we would have an opportunity to correct them."

He said ethnic groups have been and will "be given as fair as possible" representation at the banquet.

MEET AND STALK

land which 10 years ago became Canada's 10th province.

Only hours after the Queen and her husband stepped into a convertible to tour part of this old city, picturesquely set at the bottom of a mountain-ringed inlet, fog moved back over the whole island.

MAY DISRUPT FLYING

This brought frowns to the brows of flying officials whose schedule calls for the royal visitors to fly from one to another town in the next two days—until they board the royal yacht Britannia at Sept-Iles, on the St. Lawrence River north shore 300 miles east of Quebec City.

Three thousand residents and Newfoundlanders from surrounding outports who had been trickling into this ancient port city for days, watched the BOAC Jet Comet carrying the royal couple land.

They stared and grinned as the Queen, smiling attractively, and the handsome Edinburgher and Prince Philip jaunted slowly down the ramp to begin their 15,000-mile tour. A 19-gun salute boomed and a navy guard of honor snapped to attention as a band broke into God Save the Queen.

GREETED BY OFFICIALS

Governor-General Massey, Supreme Minister Diefenbaker and Premier Smallwood greeted the royal couple and official and tour officials were introduced.

At an archway of evergreens Mayor Harry Mackey and city council members awaited the limousine procession for the 30-mile trip from Torbay.

Speaking to Mr. Mews, the Queen remarked on the number of cameras held by onlookers who were being held back by an RCMP cordon.

Prince Philip talked of the weather with Mayor Mews, it was bright and sunny in London when the Queen left, he said.

Weather was the chief subject of conversation from the moment the royal couple landed.

APPRECIATES PROBLEM

"I get a good view of the folk along the coastline and I can appreciate the worry and problems it has been," the Queen said to Mr. Smallwood at the airport. "But I'm happy that when we reached here the sun had broken through."

While city lights blinked dimly through an evening fog, the royal couple stood to the stone, tree-surrounded residence of Newfoundland's lieutenant-governor. All was light and color earlier along St. John's streets lined by a crowd of about 80,000.

From silent awe, following a brief spontaneous cheer at the airport, the crowd's reaction warmed up to lusty cheering and flag waving along the city streets.

Macmillan May Confer With Eisenhower

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan today was reported ready to fly to Washington or Paris for a Western summit meeting if the foreign ministers return empty handed from Geneva.

His plans would be to thrash out with President Eisenhower, President Charles de Gaulle and possibly Chancellor Konrad Adenauer the West's next move in negotiations with Russia.

A secondary aim would be to resolve American and British disagreement with France over locating nuclear warhead stockpiles on French territory. De Gaulle has refused to accept these stockpiles unless France has a voice in their control.

Diplomatic sources in London thought it just possible that Eisenhower might come to Europe for a meeting of the Western Allies, but Washington seemed the most likely site for such talks.

The Daily Express reported a western heads - of - government conference was "almost certain."

Harry Willson Valedictorian At Graduation

Harry Willson, whose home is in Brantford, entered the Ontario School for the Deaf at the age of six years, completed his 12th year at the school yesterday day, and as head student in the graduating class, delivered the valedictory address. Harry had partial hearing when he entered school, and during those 12 years was promoted in his studies, acted as stage manager, took part in the school band and was distinctive for his leadership in residence.

Following is the address:

"Mr. Deniega, Mr. Kennedy, honoring teachers, supervisors, teachers, supervisors, housemothers, fellow pupils, and friends: For many months we have looked forward to the day of our graduation. The day has finally come and now it is not easy to say good-bye. We find it difficult to leave the school where we have been guided and instructed for so many years. We sincerely appreciate all the help we have received from the superintendents, teachers, industrial instructors, and the housemothers.

Their work has prepared us to take our places in the world as useful citizens. They truly deserve heart-felt thanks for looking ahead to our future and for sending us to the school to prepare for that future.

PROVINCE DID WELL

The Province of Ontario has done much to equip our school with the finest equipment for teaching the deaf. We are grateful for all this.

Queen Street superintendent, Mr. Demeas; assistant superintendent, Mr. Jones, and their staff our sincerest thanks for their kindness and understanding. They are always interested in the welfare of the pupils.

Our teachers and instructors have been very patient in teaching and advising us, and they have always encouraged us to do our best.

In the residence we have had every comfort. The housemothers and supervisors have always been kind to us and have done problems. We thank them for everything. By their good care, they have helped the dentist, and the dietician have prepared well-cut meals among us. The well-planned meals have kept us strong and healthy. We are grateful to everyone on the O.S.D. staff.

We hope this Queen Street class of 1959 will enjoy their graduation year as much as we have done.

It is time now to say good-bye to you all. Our best wishes for good luck, health, and happiness in all that you do.

We hope to return for a visit whenever it is possible.

Signed, Harry Willson

House Speaker Rejects Motion By Liberal Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons Speaker Roland Michener today rejected a Liberal motion of privilege calling for a parliamentary inquiry into the conduct of Conservative MP John Pallett.

Mr. Pearson immediately appealed the Speaker's ruling and the House divided for a vote.

This was the first time a Speaker's ruling had been appealed since the 1956 pipeline debate during the former Liberal administration when there were 24 appeals of rulings by the then Speaker, Rene Beaudoin.

Mr. Pearson, before calling for a vote on Speaker Michener's ruling, called it "unprecedented."

BASIS OF REJECTION

Mr. Michener based his decision to reject Mr. Pearson's motion of privilege on the conclusion that no charges had been made against Mr. Pallett, either inside or outside the Commons.

He said Mr. Pallett's meeting for the Toronto - area riding of Peel, may have been, "immature" in his conduct in failing if govern m e n t appropriations of land to build the Malton airport, but it was not the kind of conduct punishable by Parliament.

Admits Change Made in Hansard

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker admitted today to Stirling Hansell, the official record of Commons debates, but said he did not change the sense or meaning of his original statement.

He said his change was made only to make his statement grammatically correct.

Paul Martin (LEsser East), who raised the matter Thursday on a question of privilege, replied that Mr. Diefenbaker missed the point—the prime minister's alteration changed the meaning of a comment by Mr. Martin on Mr. Diefenbaker's original statement.

Teachers of Retarded Children Regretfully Relinquish Duties

The final meeting of the Quinte Association for Retarded Children prior to the summer holidays was held in Prince Charles Public School.

The major part of the evening was taken up with presentations to their teachers by the QARC School students. Both Mrs. Ridley and Mrs. Bowden have regretfully left their duties at the pooling of their RCAF husbands. Mr. Tom Stowell, president of the QARC, opened the meeting by reminding those present that the QARC School is nearing its first year of operation. He emphasized that the success was a parents' effort and it is the continued efforts of parents that will ensure its future success. Two classes are now operating and a third class will open in Trenton in the fall. After a preliminary set-back it now looks as though accommodation has been found for this class. A teacher, too, has been found and the building has been available in the Trenton area for some months.

Mr. Stowell then introduced Mrs. Arthur Ward, educational director, who thanked the teachers and their many helpers for the wonderful work done during the term. As she pointed out, the excellent display at the back of the hall was positive proof of the tremendous progress made by the students under the expert and devoted guidance of Mrs. Ridley and Mrs. Bowden.

Mrs. Ward presented Mrs. Ridley and George McGimmon, then presented the teachers with a cup and saucer each.

EXPRESSES THANKS

Mrs. Ridley said: thanks to the students and the parents said that she was so appreciative of the opportunity of being the first teacher of the new Quinte Association for Retarded Children School. Among the many wonderful memories she will always retain of the students will be the smiles they gave her, the smile of the boy with a little girl got her first pair of spectacles . . . the smile that lit up the face of the little boy when he got the thrill of ringing a brand new school bell . . . the smile of many of them on a little boy's face regardless of how cross she tried to be with them.

Sounds, too, would always be part of the memories—the Quinte students . . . the first time a little boy ever said the word clearly "Polly had a Dolly". Mrs. Ridley also thanked the parents of the students display and she was proud of their combined effort. Mrs. Ridley thanked the students for her gift and said how much she had enjoyed teaching them, and how helpful the encouragement of parents and friends of QARC had been.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Margaret Rogers and Mr. Stowell for their advice and help since the beginning of the school. Mrs. Ridley, Secretary Thatcher presented Mrs. Ward with a gift while the director of the school but Mr. Clare Miller received a gift from Secretary Thatcher. A list of helpers at the school were announced including Mrs. Cummings, the janitress, and each in turn was asked to stand and make a bow. Mrs. Ridley is then care working people behind the scenes." And Mr. Stowell, "contributed so much to the success of such an enterprise as QARC."

MANY THANKED

Mr. L. A. Kells, district supervisor of public schools, and his staff were thanked, so, too, was Trenton the wholesome and Queen Victoria School where the QARC classrooms are housed. Mrs. Dorothy Sickles, Belleville Public Health Department was thanked: Dr. Craig and Miss Harriet Stevens of CJPQ, were thanked also. "Local press, radio and television stations have contributed much to publicizing the work and the great need for its support," said Mr. Stowell.

Belleville Boy Scouts and Cubs were thanked for the special projects on behalf of the school and Cub Carry Robson presented Mr. Stovell's son Rodney, a pupil of the QARC school with $12 earned through a dilligent search for empty pop bottles — his own special contribution to helping the retarded children's school.

Mrs. Ward, a late comer to the meeting owing to civic duties, was thanked for her many efforts on behalf of the QARC and received a gift from student Gregory Barhhurst.

SLIDES SHOWN

Next on the program came the presentation of colored slides of the hospital school at Smiths Falls. This was made by Mr. Stovell and Mrs. Ward who attended the school during this year's annual convention of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children.

Mr. Arthur Ward then thanked Mr. Stovell for his unselfish leadership since the beginning of the Association. One of the announcements made at the closing of the meeting was a request by Mr. Parkhurst, transportation chairman, for volunteers the use of a garage to house the school bus during the summer months.

The meeting was then adjourned and a social time of discussion centered around the display of the students' work. Refreshments were served and over 100 parents and interested friends enjoyed the last of the regular monthly meetings during the Quinte Association for Retarded Children until the fall.

Seaway Boycott By River Pilots Is Withdrawn

MONTREAL (CP) — A threatened seaway boycott by river pilots was withdrawn today after the pilots' lawyer received word from Ottawa that their major demands had been met.

"The dispute has been entirely settled," said Lawyer Gerald Fauteux of the St. Lawrence - Kingston - Ottawa Pilots Association which had threatened a walkout next week when the Seaway opens for the season.

In fact Deputy Transport Minister F. R. Baldwin sent two telegrams outlining him of the government's approval of the pilots' proposals on wages and working conditions.

Earlier, he had been told by telephone of the forthcoming settlement. The pilots had declined to withdraw their walkout threat until formal word had been received.

The deadline had been 8 p.m. EDT tonight. As civil servants, the pilots are not permitted to go on strike. But they had planned a "general meeting" of all 96 harbor and seaway pilots for Monday, thus leaving the new seaway without marine guides.

But Transport Minister, Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said a trailer has already been located at a harbor for the pilots at the St. Laubert Lock, the eastern gateway to the seaway from the St. Lawrence River from Montreal.

The department of transport also agreed to hire immediately six probationary pilots for the Montreal-Kingston seaway run.

The pilots and the government reached a compromise on transportation and delay charges.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said the Ottawa telegram received Thursday night also promised that Transport Minister Hees will do "everything possible to expedite the sending of an order-in-council" to confirm pilotage tariffs on the seaway.

Pilots collect $10 per foot of ship's draught with a minimum of $175 per trip.

Ludwig Erhard May Quit Post In Bonn Regime

BONN (AP)—Ludwig Erhard threatened today to resign as West Germany's economics minister. He spoke at a session of the Christian Democratic party called to discuss the aftermath of Konrad Adenauer's decision to stay on as chancellor, a job for which Erhard is the logical heir.

"Someone is systematically trying to degrade my reputation," said Erhard, leaving little doubt he meant Adenauer.

Erhard, called on as the architect of West Germany's post-war recovery, spoke so angrily at a caucus hastily called to discuss an interview with Adenauer published in Germany. This New York Times story said Adenauer repeated my previous statements that Erhard is too lacking in political experience to step down the post of chancellor. Adenauer did call Erhard a "very talented man."

Erhard told the caucus he would not be satisfied with a denial of the statement.

"Behind all this there is method," Erhard said.

"If this sort of thing turns up in the glare of publicity of the world press, some of it is bound to stick."

Schoolgirl, 17, With Triplets Wins Diploma

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP) — Linda Sue Voss has a few things the other 469 graduates at Redlands High School lack — triplets.

"Today is just about the proudest day of my life," said Linda, who gets her diploma today. "Nobody around here thought I'd make it through school."

The triplets are Johnny, David and Steve — were born on Sept. 17 to Linda and her husband, David, 18, a dairy worker.

At the time, Linda was about to enter her junior year. She was determined to graduate, so she moved into the hospital for her instruction at home.

She and David took turns feeding the youngsters and her mother helped with the children during the hours a day when neither she nor her husband were home.

When teacher called Linda, put away the diapers, brought out the text books and hustled the babies off to sleep.

"It's been tough all right," she added, "but you never know what you can do until you have to. And mister, we have to."

Those we love we never lose,
Though dear and sad the truth,
Loved, remembered, treasured,
Always in our memory.
—Sadly missed by the family.

PHELPS. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Martha Phelps, who passed away June 19th, 1956.

God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
—Sadly missed by son George Phelps.

PHELPS. — In memory of a loving mother and grandmother, Martha Phelps, who passed away June 19, 1956.

Sleep on in peace and take your rest,
To give it, yes and more;
When we shall meet and live her smile,
And greet her at the door.
But all I can do, dear Mother, is go
And tend your grave—
—Remembered by daughter Mae, Joe and grandchildren.

Centenarian Denies Dancing Broke Her Hip

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Sara Nelson, who weighs less than her age 300 pounds to 100 years — denies breaking her hip while she was dancing.

But, the little lady admits, "I was kicking up my heels a bit."

Mrs. Nelson, who will be 101 July 6, explained Thursday night how she came to be in hospital for the first time in her life.

Toasting photographers in her hospital bedside with a raised glass of orange juice, Mrs. Nelson said she fell while getting food out of the refrigerator of her apartment.

When a policeman arrived and asked her what happened, she told him, "Oh, I was kicking up my heels a bit."

But as for the police report that she had been balled down, she snorted: "I don't know where they got that ridiculous idea."

Some Fifty Ministers and Laymen Senate Rejects Nomination of Lewis L. Strauss

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate early today rejected President Eisenhower's nomination of Lewis L. Strauss as secretary of commerce. The vote was 49 to 46.

The tense roll call in a packed Senate chamber capped a battle in which Eisenhower put his own prestige at stake with all-out support for Strauss.

Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was the first cabinet nominee to be rejected by the Senate since 1925, when Calvin Coolidge's choice of Charles B. Warren as attorney - general was turned down.

When the showdown came, shortly after midnight, 31 Republicans and 15 Democrats voted for confirmation. Against confirmation were 47 Democrats and two Republicans — Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and William Langer of North Dakota.

NO COMMENT

"There will be no comment from the White House at this time," press secretary James C. Hagerty said shortly after the vote.

Strauss, 63, issued a statement thanking Eisenhower and the senators who had voted for him and adding:

"I have done the best I knew how to do—to protect and defend the national security even when that was not the recognized, nor easy, nor popular, course of action at the time.

"I leave with confidence that history will be just."

Strauss' foes pictured him as an arrogant egotist with a Napoleonic complex. They said he had been derelict and in the past had been devious in his dealings with Congress.

Centre Inspected By Board and News Reporters

TRENTON — The regular meeting of the Community Gardens Board was postponed for one week but the members of two of the members appeared for the meeting. Chairman John Purvis and Secretary Mrs. Banfield were the only two members present.

However, the two members of the board and the two newspaper reporters were given a tour of the Community Centre by manager Ron Thornton.

Mr. Thornton explained the different work projects he has in progress with the work being done by the staff and at no extra cost to the Community Centre.

With the management of the rink taking over the concession booth, one of the rooms adjoining the board room has been relieved out and the manager said this will be used for the storage of stock for the canteen. He plans to build shelves, etc., to hold the goods.

He displayed the cleanliness of other rooms in the Centre and especially the First Aid room which had in days past been operated by the members of the local St. John Ambulance Society. The room has been completely redecorated and will be taken over by girls from the medical section of the RCAF in Trenton. These young women will staff the room free of charge whenever it is desired by the management of the rink.

The manager also showed the board members the dressing rooms and explained it is planned to paint these rooms again but that they are cleaned out each morning as part of the routine of the rink staff. Outside the dressing rooms and under the seats they are building small lockers which will be rented out next winter at a nominal sum to anyone wishing to rent them. This will add to the revenue of the rink. Mr. Farwell and Mr. Banfield both complimented the manager on the cleanliness of the rink and expressed their appreciation that he had done it with very little cost.

Suit Against PUC Withdrawn Meeting Told

TRENTON — Gerald Weaver, dairy car dealer, has withdrawn his suit against the Public Utilities Commission. The members were informed at their regular meeting held in the Board Rooms on Elgin Street yesterday.

Mr. Weaver's intention to withdraw the action was stated by the PUC following a letter dated yesterday and delivered to the manager of the PUC, Robert A. Pringle, of Pringle and Pringle Barristers in Belleville, who is the PUC's lawyer in the matter was in attendance at yesterday's meeting and instructed the members of the legal steps they could now take to end the issue.

No mention was made if Mr. Weaver had withdrawn his action against the Town of Trenton over the supplying of sewer services to residents outside the town boundaries.

Cliff Baker, chairman of the Utilities Commission and engineer Jim Pape were instructed to proceed with the plans for the official opening of the new addition to the Filtration Plant. It was expected that the plant would be pumping water by June 30 and the opening would be some time after that. No date has been set.

The commission also extended part-time limit for the plant to be in operation from May 31 to June 30 because of the delay the Tatuson Construction Company had experienced this year. The commission took this action because of the penalty clause in the contract with the company but they stipulated that if the filtration bed was not in action by the end of June then the penalty clause would be backdated to May 31.

WILL HOLD MEETING

The issue of installing water lines under the Local Improvement Act was brought under discussion and it was decided that Mr. Pape should meet with O. W. Larry, town clerk-treasurer, and Frederick Campbell, town solicitor, in planning some sort of policy in the matter for future years.

Mr. Baker said he felt this money should be collected through taxes and not the water bill. He said where this is now being done in the Champlain Heights) the people feel they are being discriminated against by having to pay for their water bill each month. Doctor Takes Wedding Ring To Pay Debt to pay it anyway through taxation.

NORTH BAY (CP)— A World-field Normandy mother-to-be gave up her wedding and engagement rings because she was unable to pay a doctor's bill for an appendix operation.

Mayor Ross Burtt informed the board that the Trenton Dye and Finishing Plant were looking for a municipal supply of supplying their own water and to discontinue the use of the PUC service. He said they have brought in the Lee Engineer Consultants and they are in favor of finding a well near the plant but enough to handle their needs. If this cannot be done it is possibly they may run a line to the bay and supply it from there to the plant.

Mayor Burtt said the work they do will be at their own expense.

It was also decided at the meeting that the manager of the PUC will meet with representatives of the Trenton Parks Board to tour the parks and decide on the necessity of putting in meters at the various parks for water service.

"If the West wishes to consider our proposals as a threat, it must be admitted that it is a somewhat strange threat—not a threat to start a war, but a threat to conclude peace . . . Yes, we intend to conclude a German peace treaty."

Khrushchev said Russia is prepared to guarantee a "free city" of West Berlin with its present political basis. He blamed Adenauer for "imposing" an anti-Soviet policy on the West.

JOBS - - AND EDUCATION

The latest figures on unemployment in Canada make rather encouraging reading. On May 16 there were not only 111,000 fewer Canadians looking for work than there had been a month earlier, but the number unemployed was also 36,000 less than at May 24 last year.

This reduction compared with a year ago had been achieved in spite of an increase in the labor force, which stood at 6,186,000 on May 16 compared with 6,120,000 a year ago. Thus, in addition to reducing the number of unemployed by 36,000, the Canadian economy has also absorbed a 66,000 increase in the labor force, resulting in 5,852,000 being employed this year on May 16 compared with 5,750,000 on May 24 last year.

The real test, though, is just beginning, as young Canadians leave school, many of them for the last time.

In this connection it is worth noting that we recently received a memorandum from G. G. Blackburn, director of information of the Federal Department of Labor, suggesting an editorial urging young Canadians to remain in school.

Everything that Mr. Blackburn writes about the advisability of such a course, and everything that several speakers said on the same subject in a series of broadcasts earlier this spring, is true. It might be noted, though, that besides benefitting themselves, and their own chances for future remunerative employment, by getting all the education they can, young Canadians who decide to return to school next fall rather than to seek permanent employment will be lightening the burden of those responsible for solving unemployment problems.

EYES RIGHT!

What is your most treasured possession?

Your right arm probably claims pride of place, when it comes to a figure of speech, but what you would, or would not, give away in exchange for some other possession not now yours. But if the truth were told most people value their eyes ahead of their arms.

Yet, 4,000 Ontario residents have offered to give away their right eyes, and their left ones, too.

The catch is that they do not make their gifts until after they are dead. Their eyes, though, will still be precious. They will bestow the blessing of sight -- and in their second reincarnation they will be the windows for souls who have lived long in darkness. Many blind people are eagerly awaiting for corneal transplants to restore their sight, since the institution of the Ontario Eye Bank in 1956, 156 eyes have been provided for corneal grafting in this province. In a series of 70 corneal-grafts performed at the Toronto General Hospital in the past four years, not a single eye has been lost by infection.

If you list your eyes with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind the good you do will not be buried with your bones but will live after you.

HO-HUM DEPARTMENT

Here are two clippings on modern youth.

Item one:

"Among some fifty applicants for employment, ranging from 18 to 20 years of age, 'the great majority sauntered in for an interview with both hands stuffed in their pockets, some with cigarets dangling from their mouths,' writes Nova Scotia businessman Leo C Hogan in a letter to the Halifax Chronicle-Herald.

"Why, wonders Mr. Hogan, are today's teenagers lacking in politeness and in good manner? Chances are that climate of contemporary politics, together with parental indifference, has left many just entering the labor force with the notion that the world owes them a living and that employers exist only to hand them jobs on a silver platter. Halifax is not unique in so far as attitude and appearance of many teenage job seekers are concerned."

Item two:

"Those who think that modern Canadian youth is going to hell in a handbarrow will find such notions bluntly refuted in Winnipeg, where a total of 143 students in grades 10 and 11 have indicated that they want to keep on going to school when Summer vacation begins."

The items both appeared in the June 15 issue of the Fort Erie Letter-Review, one under the other.

SCHOOL IS OUT

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

Laughing lads and bright-eyed lassies,
Full of health and strength and vim,
Gayly trooping from their classes,
Some to romp and some to swim;
Hear their peals of merry laughter,
Joy is theirs, without a doubt;
What are cares that may come after?
School is out.

Free they are until September,
Three long months they have to play;
Joys they'll garner to remember
When bright youth has passed away.

Fun and frolic, joy and laughter,
Care at last is put to rout.
Hear their shouts from floor to rafter:
School is out!

Ah, you little ones, light-hearted,
Have your pleasures while you may;
On the Road of Life you've started,
Long and winding is the way.
Once you leave your youth behind you,
You'll encounter grief and doubt;
Never more this joy will find you
When

Tender Trap - - Drake-Style

By John Goold in the Christian Science Monitor.

They say this is a man's world, but I don't know; and the remainder of the time will be passed in considering the facts. This is my annual report on my foolish ducks, and it is both happy and sad.

Sad, because when I let the flock out of its nightly quarters I provide for their winter habitat, the time coincided nicely with the arrival at my premises, just up the road, of a jolly and active drake. Why this new arrival came I have not to this late hour ascertained. Pansies are for thoughts, I am told, and Pansy had a brain in his pumpkin head before he succeeded handsomely in hiding said asset. Pansy came over and surreptitiously under the tutelage of the ladies of my ducks. Not with any animus, of course, but in a playful way intended to be only amusing.

The ducks had come through the winter in fine shape, four hens and two drakes. The hens were heavy with eggs and all ready to go to work. The drakes were of large size. The mallard drake still holds my admiration as one of the prettiest birds in nature. And his laudable bravery the drakes stood up to Pansy while their hens snooded for the drink and swam out on the billowing wave, quacking like all good ducks in their privacy. And my hens were widows, as I which grief I attempt not to cook off up the highway in great voice, protesting something in duck talk that I know. I do not recall what I said, but I am led to believe I must have been good, for he hasn't been back.

Anyway, what had started as a happy forenoon in the spring-time of love for me was now a hollow and forlorn occasion. My ducks are pets and companions, and I do not look upon them as expendable. Upon the bosom of our humble pond the ducks swam in circles, protesting their bereft state. Some would sit all on the bank in the sun and protect the property. They gave promise to incubate the future.

Some people think a hen does all the work, but they neglect to observe how the rooster, or drake, takes his empty meal and takes care of everything when nobody else is around.

They're not, of course, is a wild bird. Here in Maine they have been domesticated for a long time, probably since the earliest settlers found that they would forsake their natural state and become pets. Other waterfowl have also been tamed, and I think they will wing away if they can. The mallard is the wariest bird of the species. But in the spring of the year with the wild flocks of waterfowl coursing our sky, it is possible to obtain replacements if you have the will power.

I thus came into possession of a fine drake never before fed, at a time when my flock was smaller than my late drakes, for wild birds forage in the fens and swamps and don't have the same duck's chance to get bigger and fatter at a full hopper. Grain from a bag was news to him. He quacked a good deal as I trimmed one of his wings over shears, and then I carried him out by the pond, stroking his neck gently and making reassuring nothings in his ear. My four hens, thinking I was bringing the custenary corn, assembled to meet me, and I placed him on the ground and left.

Up went the heads of my ducks, and they wharked and wharked, and bespoke themselves in unwonted fury of disarrangement. They called me a gentleman and a scholar, remarked on the intelligence showing in my handsome face, and said they would support me gladly in any endeavor.

The new drake, however, eyed them warily and seemed reticent. He did not know that ducks prattle when they are mad, and he surveyed the work laid out and seemingly decided he wanted no part of it. He flopped his wings, as if to take off for Bird Valley, and with a subdeviated wing he flopped over and landed in a heap at his ladies' feet. He he was not at his best. He screamed, and, describing a wide circle, and trotted around in circles as if looking for a way out.

Suddenly he found one, he swam across the pond and went into the bushes. And there he stayed he stayed out of sight for three days. I could hear his small companion now and then, but I talked to himself in his perplexity, and described his doings during the Dire Straits. He was unhappy. He was the victim of a dirty trick, and he told of the joys of an Arctic summer.

But now and then a hen would swim over and look up under the bushes, and would go wharking merrily, and then would come back up in his little gullet, and would encourage him to do what, he might devour. That evening he came out again, and afternoon he was in the pond and ate with the hens, and soon again he was the gallant gentleman and dearly and lovey-dovey, and fawning and carrying on.

They were now out of him. He could have held off and remained his own, but he was a hen he was enticed into matrimony. Just another bachelor who had been enslaved -- a man in a woman's world. He sits on the limp grass by the pond, and store, biding his time until little feet peer in the mud and the in the weeds.

And he seems perfectly happy in the peep of small mallards is heard now. He doesn't trust me allogether, though, and I can't say that I have forgotten the wild Barts. Land shores where he can be glad exactly what he is doing anyway -- if it hadn't been for Pansy.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

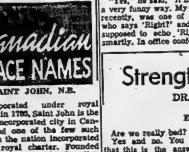
HELLO SUMMER

Summer holidays are nearly here for students and teachers alike.

Most high school pupils have already completed their year's work and the balance of the young scholars will have finished by the end of June.

For the next two months, the school buildings will be largely deserted, and the corridors and rooms of the "No more lessons, no more books, no more teacher dirty looks" will be memories.

For the teacher, summer is a time of relaxation, but it is also a time of contemplation and preparation. Decisions of the past year are reviewed, and plans are made for a more successful coming year.



For the benefit of the teaching profession (and the entertainment of students and ex-students) we are reprinting a few "Hints for the Guidance of Teachers," from a book of rules and regs 1890's to aid public school teachers in this area:

"History — No text book in Canadian history need be used by the pupils. The teacher should, from his own knowledge of the subject . . . deliver his instructions orally. He should give prominence, according to the stage of advancement of his pupils, to the political and civil constitution of the Dominion, and of the Province of Ontario . . . The dates committed to memory should be few and important. He should always remember that a comprehension of leading facts and general principles is more valuable than the mere possession of knowledge of details, if unaccompanied by ability to distinguish what is important from what is not."

"Geography — The School House and its surroundings, with which the pupils are familiar, should be taken as the first subject of lessons to give correct ideas of boundary and direction. Map drawing should be practised from the beginning."

"Hygiene — On the science of the laws of health, is to be taught, (analysis, however, has been prescribed. The teacher, however, will grievously fail in his duty if he confines the whole tenor and tone of his instructions in the school room and in the management generally, be not only consistent with the ordinary properties of life, but also characterized by a high moral tone. To his pupils he sets a standard of conduct . . .

With these hints in mind, the 20th century teacher is far better equipped to face the new school year. Our thanks to School Inspector A. Cummins for bringing this early educational record to our attention.)

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Our neighborhood was pleased to note recently that one of our number has come out with a beautiful new lawn mower, a new European car of racy lines, a new job on his front porch and a grand new coat of paint over his house. Costly items all, and evidence of a recent turn of fortune.

My curiosity was appeased last night when I met him with his new lawn mower to show how it works on my lawn.

"Oh, yes," he said modestly. "I've recently been moved up to executive duties. Executive now, I can sleep in till eight."

I congratulated him.

"Yes," he said, "it happened in a very funny way. My boss, until recently, was one of those men who says 'Right!' and you are supposed to echo 'Right!' very smartly. In office conferences, or even in ordinary conversation, he would punctuate every sentence with 'Right!' and every subordinate would instantly respond: 'Right!'

"Well, one day last month, we were having a conference, with everything going 'Right!' 'Right!' And unknown to me, our old president was standing at the open door at the back of the room listening. And in the middle of the 'Right!' of every business, just for the heck of it, he said 'Wrong!'

"I don't know whether you ever heard a burp in church. But that's what it was like. It was the burpens that the boss was wrong.

"When the conference ended the president called me into his office and appointed me the new sales manager. My boss was moved over to the purchasing department, where he now has only three elderly girls to say 'Right!'

EVEN THOUGH DIMLY

Are we really bad?

Yes and no. You may reply that this is the answer always given by theologians who don't know what they're talking about, and to that I shall have to plead guilty as a limited and humble individual.

Yes, we are all bad. Let us look that straight in the eye for a moment. Everybody makes mistakes. Everybody at some time deliberately does what he knows is not right. Furthermore, we are members of a fallen race, and inherit tendencies to do wrong, but man lost no time manufacturing that image by disobedience to the Commandments of whether there are people on other planets or not. God has evidently collected on this one a pretty dismal-looking lot of delinquents. There is enough truth in the old proverb that the worst of human beings, that is, is human. We are bad.

And yet, we are also basically good. A fragment of God is in every one of us. The image of God is still the distinguishing mark of our being. Put to the test, mankind usually responds nobly and with unlimited self-sacrifice. Homo sapiens can be selfish, selfish, and brutish, and vile, but when he gets in a tight place he usually comes out. God shines through, even

BACTERIA ARE LIKE PEOPLE —MOST OF THEM ARE GOOD

The world is full of bacteria. More of them are good than are bad. Many more. Older people "hard" because of bacteria. We make ordinary kill them all with bacteria. There are a hundred (or a thousand) useful bacteria for each harmful, disease-bearing bacterium.

Bacteria may live people — mostly good, with a few criminals scattered around.

I wanted to make this clear before commenting on a report made at a fairly recent medical meeting. It would be too bad for people to start worrying about bacteria in general. It is the occasional, specific, disease-causing types of bacteria that require combat.

Now let me go a step further. There are bacteria which invade the system (scarlet fever, pneumonia, meningitis, and so on) and there are others which by their peculiar natures prefer to hang around on the surface of the body but only rarely invade the whole system.

There isn't much doubt in my mind that some of us have reasonable immunity to some of these germs, while other people, with precisely the same germs, find them causing trouble.

The point I want to make is that we ought not to overlook or know that some bacteria do, indeed, lurk on the skin, just as shades of a certain kind of clinched to hang around pool halls. Some are trouble - makers; some of them aren't.

Anyway, at a recent medical meeting in Pennsylvania, Dr. James S. Jordan presented the idea that some people who suffer from a condition known as blepharitis — in which whitish scales form around the eyelashes, and make the eyes uncomfortable at times — are the victims of bacteria which lurk in the scalp, causing dandruff.

MAY HELP SOME

The eyes may burn, or they may be unduly sensitive to light. It may require a microscope to find the tiny white scales around the eyelashes, he said.

Clearing up the trouble on the eyelashes, he suggested, may bring permanent relief, because the germs are still congregating on the scalp, and constantly reinfect their way down to the lashes again.

His suggestion, in such cases, is that the victim shampoo the hair about twice a week for a month or so; the soap in the shampoo may very well wash away enough of the bacteria from the scalp to prevent further trouble from the eyelashes.

If the trouble persists, he suggests the wise thing is to consult a dermatologist (skin specialist).

Admittedly I haven't investigated this situation with a microscope myself. But I am willing that his suggestion makes plenty of sense, and since it can scarcely be harmful in any event, it is well worth a try.

—MOST OF THEM ARE GOOD

It is also my feeling that we still know very little about these "bacteria" germs. It has been more important in the past to understand how to conquer the germs which cause serious or deadly diseases. In the future, I feel, quite certain, we are going to learn a great deal more about the "nurture" forms that aren't deadly but cause some of our common and annoying ailments.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have read that brewer's yeast is good for sinus trouble, and that eating sunflower seeds is good for the eyes. I would appreciate your opinion.—A."

My opinion on both: No more useful than crossing your fingers to avoid bad luck! Just superstitious.

Note to Mrs. M. R.: A "trouble-ed pregnancy" wouldn't have anything to do with having a retarded child. If there is a history of retardation in the family — and by that, I mean a succession of feeble - minded generations, and not merely an isolated retarded child somewhere along the line — then the outlook is not good. A single case can happen to anyone.

Letter To The Editor

Wants Tenders for All Major Building Work

The letter which follows was received in the form of a petition addressed to Mayor Hyde and Council and read at the meeting of City Council Monday. The Editor.

Mayor Hyde and Members of Council,
City Hall,
Belleville, Ontario

Gentlemen:

We are greatly urge that building operations other than those of the most minor nature, be the subject of tenders, and crying that all such operations be carried out, as far as is practicable, on a stipulated sum basis.

It has been my observation in a more or less extensive experience in these matters, that work is carried on more expeditiously and more, economically in this manner. As a taxpayer and an architect, I would like to see this method of operation made a matter of policy by the City of Belleville, which view is endorsed in the strongest terms by all others in the construction industry with whom I have discussed the matter.

W.A. Watson,
Architect.

TODAY'S TALK

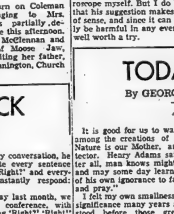
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HUMILITY

It is good for us to walk often among the creations of Nature. Nature is our Mother, and Providence is our Father. As said: "As far as all, man knows mighty little. But the little he does know is enough of his own ignorance to fall down and pray."

I felt my own smallness and insignificance many years ago as I stood between the great California redwood trees. Trees that were the oldest living things on this earth. I was alone but removed my hat and for a moment felt the infinite Creator of all things. I felt so small and unimportant. In the presence of my greatness, how otherwise can we feel than rooted in humility?

No matter how many times I have looked into the starry night the grandeur of all I see fills me with awe. I am reminded of familiar stars, how humble I feel! But in all nature there is a variety of beauty that we are thrown into moods of wonder and spiritual speculation. When out Creator put this earth together I am glad I don't have to try it apart to learn about all that was beneath our feet.



I am humble in thought when-ever I begin to think of all the wonderful things that were woven into a world! The tiniest creation challenges me. So does a good looking star twinkling and shine. Every creation put into this world was put there with a purpose. The robin, happily taking to its nest — and crying for the fresh worms from the new soil, understands and returns her gratitude in the form of morning and evening songs.

Some of these magic things in Nature that we marvel at always humble the thoughtful person.

Many of the soft noises of evening are perhaps whispers from worlds beyond — even beyond the stars!

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

The landing of an RCAF "Otter" Search and Rescue plane on the bay as a part of yesterday evening's Water Safety display proved very interesting for the many hundreds of spectators who lined the docks and shoreline along Victoria Park. In the background the Otter may be seen as it is guided into a berth. Tied up in the foreground is one of the "crash boats" of the RCAF.

The demonstration of various pieces of survival equipment used by the RCAF also drew large crowds. Here a covered life raft, which looked much like a pumpkin, is held up for the spectators to view. Smaller life rafts and life jackets of the self-inflatable type were also displayed. Also in the outdoor displays were the Fire Department's Emergency Unit and rescue boat, and a properly equipped boat in accordance with the latest regulations.

Several Hundred Present For Water Safety Display

Several hundred local residents were present at the Water Safety Week displays held at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club yesterday evening. The Search and Rescue Unit of the Royal Canadian Air Force had two crash boats and one Otter search plane present. The public was invited to board these pieces of equipment to inspect them and many took advantage of the occasion. A short, lecture-demonstration was also given on the various types of life-saving and emergency equipment with which RCAF planes and personnel are equipped. Youngsters were especially intrigued with the inflatable rafts and life-jackets.

The Belleville Fire Department was also present with their Emergency Unit and outboard motor boat. Chief Gerald Vance and other members of the department explained the use of the various inhalators, air-packs, resuscitators, and other pieces of equipment. The operation of the special equipment and breathing apparatus drew the special attention of many of those present.

An outboard motor boat completely equipped as per the new regulations was provided for boating enthusiasts' scrutineering by Booth's. For boats under 16 feet in length the following requirements are laid down by the Department of Transport: for each person on board — one approved standard lifejacket or lifesaving cushion; two oars and row locks or paddles; one bailer or manual pump; one class 1B fire extinguisher (this class includes a one gallon foam extinguisher, a four-pound capacity carbon dioxide extinguisher, a one-quart capacity vaporizing liquid extinguisher, or a four-pound capacity dry chemical extinguisher); and if the craft is capable of carrying more than 12 passengers, approved buoyant apparatus or approved buoyant slabs sufficient to support 50 percent of the persons on board are required.

Following the outside demonstrations and displays several films and lectures were given inside the clubhouse.

ACTIVITIES OUTLINED

Flying Officer Pete Kings of the RCAF Search and Rescue Unit gave a very interesting address on the activities of this unit. It was noted that much of the work done by this unit re the rescue and searching for civilians is sometimes due to little other than the sheer stupidity of those who are being sought. Several instances of concentrated searches, which involved the RCAF, the United State Coast Guard, the RCMP, and the Ontario Provincial Police, when the persons or boats being sought are not even lost, but had failed to notify their families or friends as to where they were going or how long they were going to be gone, were given.

Flying Officer Kings had the following advice to offer boating enthusiasts. First was, when going on a trip notify people as to where you are going and for how long you expect to be out.

Next, several instructions as to what to do if lost or in trouble in order to attract attention were given. These included, building a fire in the sailing bucket from rags which have been used to wipe oil and gas off the engine; use of the boat's clearance lights to signal searching aircraft or other persons; waving clothing or flashlights; using brightly reflecting objects to catch the sun's rays and create flashes of light.

Know your limitations is also quite important, stated the RCAF officer, indicating that many people get into difficulty because they fail to realize just what they can and cannot do. It is recommended that every small craft carry a compass, maps and suitable clothing to meet any weather conditions if going on a journey of a fair distance.

The operation of the Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Trenton was also described and people were advised not to call this place directly because the RCAF is unable to take any action unless requested to do so by an authorized government agency. Calls concerning missing boaters or overdue watercraft should be directed to the local or Provincial Police.

FILMS SHOWN

Following F/O King's talk three films on water safety, both for boaters and swimmers were shown.

Mrs. McClusky of the St. John Ambulance Corps announced that her group would be giving evening classes in artificial respiration during the month of June. Anyone who is interested is advised to call the local headquarters at Woodland 2-3035 as class times are to be arranged shortly.

The films were shown through the courtesy of Elmer Hardy of the Carling's Conservation Club; Jack Devine, chairman of Water Safety Week, introduced the speaker, F/O Peter Kings; Dr. Harold Craig, chairman of the Quinte District Water Safety Council, thanked the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and the many people involved for contributing to the success of the evening; and Don MacKinnon was chairman of the evening's activities.

Remand Accused Week on Charge Armed Robbery

Charged with armed robbery in connection with the February 10th holding of the Cash and Carry Dairy, Raymond Woods, 36, of Mountain View, was remanded this morning for one week to obtain legal aid.

Woods appeared before His Honor Judge G. F. Smith at the Hastings County general sessions of the peace. Bail was set by Judge Smith at $5,000 cash or $10,000 property, on the suggestion of Crown Attorney John A. Pringle, who stressed the gravity of the offense with which the accused was charged.

When Woods was found to be without counsel, the court was briefly adjourned, with Crown Attorney Pringle being instructed to arrange for legal aid. On reconvening of proceedings the court was told that Mr. Ben Hurley, Belleville lawyer, had been asked to act as legal aid for the accused.

Woods is charged with the armed holdup of the cashier at the Cash and Carry Dairy. He is said to have polished a sawed-off shotgun at the cashier and ordered the safe turn over the cash box.

About $15 in silver was stolen, police claim.

Welfare Work In Hong Kong Drop in Ocean

CALGARY (CP)—The wife of the British crown prosecutor in Hong Kong says it is impossible to term all the poverty in that British Crown colony, just off the Chinese mainland.

"Welfare work there is just a drop in the ocean," says Mrs. F. J. Greenfield.

Mrs. Greenfield is president of the Council of Women in Hong Kong, a member of the council of social services and one of four white women who are honorary members of the Chinese Women's Club.

Now on a world trip with her husband, she is making an informal study of women's clubs. They are accompanied by their three-year-old son Peter.

CHANGING TIMES

"The Chinese in Hong Kong are in a period of great change," she said. "Two of the problems faced by the women's clubs there are refugee care and concubinage."

Refugees have settled in tin and tar-paper shacks on the Kowloon mountainside. They produce large families, live in poverty and often are made homeless by frequent fires, she said.

The Hong Kong clubwomen have concentrated their help in assisting the government to aid the refugees. During the last five years government grants for resettlement areas have been established.

On the ancient problem of concubinage, the Hong Kong Council of Women recently drafted a petition signed by 20,000 women urging that it be banned. Mrs. Greenfield said this custom allows a Chinese to bring into his home as many wives as he chooses. The law does not demand that he support a discarded wife and her children.

No Such Thing As Tame Lion Says Trainer

EDMONTON (CP) — Streetred-headed Jeanne MacGill says that training a circus lion does not gives her a feeling of accomplishment and challenge.

"I don't like using force to get a lion to the cage," the Scottish girl declares. "There is no thrill in a tame lion."

Jeanne married into the lion act 10 years ago. Within a year, she learned the art from her husband, Terry MacGill, and has been handling the big cats for about six months.

The entertainment of the circus is nothing new for Jeanne. Her parents were in the circus in Scotland where she was born, and since then she has been a trapeze artist and trapeze artist.

Visiting here with the circus, Jeanne said that the lion act is more than a whim with her.

"When I was a child I was always fascinated by the lion pets. But everyone laughed when I said I wanted to go in the cages. Too small and so on.

"When Lou and I got married I asked him to teach me. At first he was against it, but he finally came to me and said he'd do it.

In the cage Jeanne quickly learned always to go forward, never backward, she was taught to make her commands hard and clear, always using the same words.

A lion will never roar or snarl unless it is upset, Jeanne said. The animal has a lot of dignity. It is not a natural performer. He has to be stunt through his tricks with the long, braided crop.

She does not use a chair as a barrier, as do some trainers. The act depends on intense concentration, no awareness of every move the animals make.

The Experts Say
Girls Should Buy Nylons To Fit Feet Not Shoes

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Do you still long for those early post - war nylon stockings that lasted and lasted and just never seemed to run?

They're still available, but if you recall them as lovely and durable you have conjured up a pre-war mirage. They are durable, but compared with today's lovely sheers they look heavy, almost cotton-like.

But they are practical, and the Canadian Association of Consumers is urging housewives and others who need heavier-weight stockings to try them out.

PROVIDE ANSWERS

A panel of experts who make, buy, sell, wear and write about women's hosiery answered dozens of questions during an interview recently.

Mrs. Mary Humphreys of the CAC said she is certain that women just don't know what they are buying when they purchase nylon hosiery.

Women are not acquainted with the various deniers, the term used by the manufacturers for weight. A committee of the consumers' association will ask the manufacturers to tag their products by deniers. In this manner the committee hopes that women will realize that 30 denier weight is naturally twice as heavy as 15 denier weight, and thus twice as durable for practical wear.

Alex Boothe, hosiery department manager of a large Toronto retail store, had a lot to say about women and their hosiery purchases. Improper fit was his main complaint.

SHY ON SIZES

Women, he says, buy stockings to fit their shoes, which are too small, instead of buying stockings to fit their feet. "The difficulty is to sell the customer what she needs, not what she wants," he added.

The proper length of the stocking was also mentioned and at this point the panel was bombarded by questions about the proper marking of lengths. Everyone agreed they didn't care if the stocking lengths were marked in inches or in tall, medium and short; they just wanted them marked. Mrs. Humphries said the CAC was also endeavoring to have manufacturers indicate the three groups of stocking lengths.

Fit in washing was stressed, with rings among the highest hazards for snags and runs.

Elizabeth Birch, who represented the yarn producers, said women had come to accept nylon stocking as a basic staple.

"In 1946 they were regarded next to a diamond ring and by 1956 they were next to the garbage pail," she said.

With color added to the field, women are taking a keener interest in purchase and care of their hosiery, the panel decided.

YOUNG DRINKERS

LONDON (CP)—Convictions for drunkenness among persons under 21 are increasing, says the Christian Economic and Social Research Foundation. Their report estimates convictions rose 6.6% last year, compared with 6.4% in 1957.

Wedding

TWEEDY — HINDS

A very pretty double-ring wedding was solemnized at high noon in Bayside United Church parsonage on Saturday, June 13, with the Reverend W. G. Fletcher officiating, when Lena Marcha Hinds, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinds, of Wellman's Corners, became the bride of Keith Aubrey Tweedy, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tweedy, of Harold, R.R. 1.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her ballerina-length bridal gown of white French rose-point lace and nylon tulle with iridescent sequin-trimmed buttoned-down-the-back bodice having a scalloped neckline and long, sheath-like sleeves ending with lily-points over the hands. Her finger-tip veil of white nylon tulle with scalloped edges, accented with embossed rosettes, was caught to a tiara of white satin and net tulle, shimmering with iridescent sequin and rhinestones. She carried a cascade of red roses and satin streamers.

Mrs. Valentyn Korobucki, of Campbellford, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, gowned in lace-blue nylon chiffon in street length, with corsage of red roses. Her headdress was of matching velvet roses. While satin pumps completed her ensemble.

Mr. Ross Tweedy, of Ivanhoe, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

The bride's mother wore rose-beige lace over taffeta with white accessories and corsage of deep pink roses, while the bridegroom's mother was attired in blue-flowered nylon chiffon with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The ladies of the Loyal Orange Ladies, Shiling, No. 655, catered for the reception, which was held in the hall, beautifully decorated for the occasion with baskets of pink and white peonies and lupins, pink streamers and wedding bells.

The bride's table was set with white damask, centred by a three-tiered wedding cake made by the bride, with all-white icing, decorated with white rosebuds and daintily topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The basket was were sprinkled with low silver bowls of peonies, lupins and roses with green ferns, and silver candlesticks added to the festive beauty.

Mr. Fletcher proposed the toast to the bride, to which the bridegroom responded. Brief speeches were also given by Mr. Albert Tweedy and Mr. Thomas Hinds.

Following the reception, the bride chose a white princess styled nylon brocaded linen dress with white accessories for her honeymoon trip to Winnipeg and other northern points. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Tweedy will reside on the bridegroom's farm at Harold, R.R. 1.

Many useful present from Campbellford, Ivanhoe, Stirling, Springbrook, Harold and Wellington.

Previous to the marriage, the bride was guest of a feathe-weight electric steam iron and an electric tea kettle from employees of the Elaine Footwear. She was also entertained at a miscellaneous shower by her girl friends at home of Mrs. Valentyn Korobucki in Campbellford.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a set of luggage; to his groomsman, cigaret lighter, and gifts to the bride-groom, luggage, and her to matron of honour, costume jewellery.

WATCHET, Eng. (CP) — Children in this Somerset village had better keep away from the swings on Sundays. Council banned their use on Sunday. One councillor said: "There are plenty of other things they can do on Sundays. We don't want the Continental Sunday at Watchet."

First Novel by London Girl Creates Favorable Comment

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The latest of Britain's successful young authors is Maria Browne, a student-looking London girl who says she decided to write "for first novel, Whom the Gods Love, has created a favorable impression among British critics.

The Observer, a Sunday newspaper, says the story of a group of aristocratic young Romans in Nero's time is "mature and skilful." The Times calls it "spirited and amusing . . . Miss Browne assumes youth has not changed much through the ages."

Written in a modern idiom, the book portrays the parallel between the problems of ancient Roman and those of contempo-

LONG SHAPING UP

Interviewed at her home in Earl's Court, a London district with a large population of students and office workers, Miss Browne said the characters in the book had been shaping themselves in her mind for many

"So I had to write the book—it was the only way to find out their destiny," she said.

Now she is at work on a second book, two others are "on the stocks."

Miss Browne is an eloquent talker, with brown eyes and shoulder-length brown hair. She admits to having few friends her own age, saying she would prefer to be with people the age of her parents.

"I can carry on being a human being with them. With my own age group, I feel I have to conform."

GOING TO IRAN

She feels the characters in her novel are people who come to terms with death in their own way. "And they discover that you mustn't let the fear of death affect you in any way."

With the moment, Miss Browne is getting ready for a trip to Iran where she hopes to teach English and work in a mission.

This will be her third visit to a country which attracts her more than any other, apart from her native England.

She says she inherits her love for Iran from her grandfather who was a famous Persian scholar. The country has "one of the great languages and books and an extraordinarily rich literature."

Miss Browne says she doesn't regard herself as career woman.

"I always get angry when I'm asked about that.

"Ultimately, I should like to get married. A woman's business is to marry, have children and keep her husband happy, provided she finds her husband

Mrs. S. Homan closed the worship service.

A welcome to the visiting societies was given by the president. A solo by Mrs. Brennan from Plainfield, was much enjoyed.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. J. Patterson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. C. Alston from Tweed. Mrs. Alston and her husband visited the Holy Land at Easter time this year. She showed pictures and gave a fine talk on the Holy Land, "they visited the Garden of Gethsemane on Easter Sunday."

While this picture was being shown the ladies sang "In the Garden."

Mrs. Alton stressed the need for Bibles in this country and also the great need for missionary work.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Alton by Miss M. Hicks for coming and for her interesting travelogue of the Holy Land.

Answer: The recipe for Marshmallow Lemons which follows is the one to which you are referring, I think. To make rose petals use a smaller amount to make them pale; or strawberry or cherry or raspberry jelly powder and form into petals shapes. Your wonderful knowledge of the Elaine Footwear Co. — but sure enough when we were in Kingston recently there it was — meaning manageable, practical. Thank you for adding this new very descriptive word to my vocabulary.

MARZIPAN LEMONS

Makes 100. One can (1 lb.) sweetened condensed milk, 3 packages lemon Jello reserve one box of this), 1 lb. unsweetened packaged coconut. Combine the sweetened condensed milk, 2 packages of lemon Jello and cocoanut. In large bowl, adding a few drops of yellow colouring. Mix well. Form into small balls and roll between palms to shape as little lemons. Pour the rind package lemon Jello into a plate and roll "lemons" in it to give them a pebbled coating. Let air dry overnight on wax paper.

Tip: Baking powder bread recipe: I have all call for nuts or fruits. You could use the recipe without bread below and leave out the nuts if desired.

NUT BREAD

4 tsp. baking powder, 2 cups sifted all-purpose or cake flour, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ cup cold shortening, ½ cup chopped nuts, 1 egg, 1 egg yolk, 1 cup milk.

Sift flour, sugar, salt and baking powder together and cut in shortening with a pastry blender. Add nuts. Beat egg and egg yolk and add milk. Add to flour mixture and mix quickly, just enough to dampen all the flour. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 40 minutes.

Variations: (1) Instead of nuts, add ½ to 1 cup of raisins, or nuts and raisins.

(2) Instead of 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, use 1 cup all-purpose flour and 1 cup unsifted whole wheat flour.

(3) A popular combination is ½ cup each chopped nuts, chopped cooked prunes and chopped cooked apricots.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beekman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP: "WELL-GROOMED"

Are you proud of being well-groomed? You'll be doing all right if your thoughts and your manners are also well-groomed.

"DOUBLE" INVITATION. . . TO CEREMONY AND RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

It seems to me that I recall reading in your column some time ago that it is correct to include the invitation to the wedding reception on the same page with the invitation to the ceremony. I would like to plan to have the kind of invitation. If it is correct, If you tell "me" it is correct, will you also tell me the correct form for this "double" invitation? Thank you. — Dorothea

The form you mention is correct — to include in the invitation to the reception in the wording of the invitation to the ceremony, when all the guests are invited to both church ceremony and reception.

Then the "double invitation" reads:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blake request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Dorothea to Mr. Anthony Hill on Tuesday, the fourth of August at four o'clock Grace Church and afterwards at 123 Park Street Havea, New York

R.s.v.p.

ON PROPER DOUBLE-RING CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

We are to have a double-ring ceremony. I know the best man takes charge of the ring my bridegroom is to give me. Does he also take charge of the ring I am to give my bridegroom, or should my maid of honor do this? — Bridesmaid

Unfortunately, the best man does take charge of both rings. But unfortunately today it is the maid of honor (or matron of honor, who carries the ring the bride is to give the bridegroom.

PROBLEM ABOUT GIVING SHOWER IN SUMMERTIME

Dear Mrs. Beekman

My dearest girl friend is to be married the first part of September, and would like to give her a shower. Since most of the girls I would like to invite are "working girls" and everyone will take their vacations in August or the last two weeks in July, do you think it would be too early if I plan to give my shower the first week of July? — R. A.

A very wise plan you have, I think, and we at all too early to give your shower.

EARLY SCHOOL

A school of arts and handicrafts was established by Bishop Laval at Cap Tourmente, Que., in 1675.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. P. J. — He is forgetful and irresponsible.

Victor J. I can't help it — that's how I'm made.

Mrs. P. J. — What can parents do with a teenage boy who seems to have no more sense of responsibility than a baby?

Our son Victor is 15 and the middle child in a family of three. He has always been the forgetful and irresponsible one. I can leave all sorts of responsibilities to his older brother and younger sister, and know that they will do all that is expected of them, but Victor never, never comes through.

Lately he has taken to staying away from home long hours at her school. Usually he goes to some friend's house or wanders around town. He has never been in any trouble, although I've asked him again and again to tell me if he isn't coming home until late, I can't get him to do this one simple thing. Scolding or punishment don't seem to bother him at all.

Victor J. — My mother always tells me though I'm trying to spite her or just be sorry when I don't do what she wants. She'll never believe the plain truth. I've told it to her a million times. I just forget. I don't know why I'm this way, but I just am. Things seem to go in one ear and out the other.

Outside of being forgetful I don't see where I'm such a heel as my mother seems to think. I'm no genius at school, but I get along pretty well. One of my bridegroom said that if I paid more attention and wasn't so forgetful I could even be a candidate for one of the science medals they give every year at my school. Even my mother about that she bawled me out for being forgetful. I thought she'd be happy.

I want to stop being that way, but just can't help myself.

The Council: Forgetful is not just the absence of something. It is a positive element and Mrs. P. J. should be aware of that. It is a way of saying "no" without making immediate conflict. We all remember what we really want to remember.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

This should not be interpreted as the signal for the P. J.'s to rise in righteous indignation against Victor. The "no" he issues is a cry from one side of his personality, in another aspect he would like to do as his parents wish and win their approval.

When a youngster consistently does wrong and insists it is against his own desire, he is suffering from some jevvily sharp conflicts within him and his parents should do what they can to find the real source of the trouble. Flighty symptoms is never as effective as fighting causes.

In Victor's case, the fact that he evades home responsibilities and takes a certain pride in his own accomplishments reveals that he feels oppressed by the demands made by parents but finds school a challenge he enjoys meeting. People need to be appreciated for work and duty when they see no purpose behind it, and believe that they get love or appreciation for it.

For one reason or another Victor feels out of the family life and the P. J.'s must use the positive approach to bring him back. They should show Victor that he is appreciated for what he is accomplishing at home, that he is depended upon to accomplish certain things and that his parents believe in his basic ability.

Sunday School Lesson

Justice at Grass Roots

BY ROY L. SMITH

There has always been an intimate relationship between religion, and -the administration of justice. In those lands where an ethical faith has enjoyed the support of the people their rights have been safe in the courts. In those lands in which religion has been purely ritualistic, the people have suffered serious injustices.

This week's lesson is a study of a revival of religion among the Hebrews which expressed itself in the reorganization of the legal system of the nation, whereby the poor and the defenceless were at last given a measure of justice. And for that matter, any religious revival that does not produce an increased measure of justice is subject to some serious questioning.

JUSTICE AT TOP

The acid test of a legal system appears when a poor man falls into the toils of the law. The ability of a nation to insure justice as those at the bottom helpless is an identification of its maturity and stability.

At the same time it must be remembered that those at the top are as certainly entitled to justice as those at the bottom of the social scale. A man with a million deserves the same kind of justice as that meted out to the penniless.

It is at this point that our present-day legal system is subject to some serious question. Again and again it has happened that men of wealth have settled cases out of court, in order to avoid going into court, knowing full well that if their case were to be submitted to a jury it would go against them for no better reason than that they had the money to pay any damages that might be assessed against them.

If is for this reason that we require officers of the government, judges, and witnesses in the courts, to take an oath that they will tell the truth. That many have been perjure themselves in so doing is quite true, of course. But their sin in no way invalidates the principle that the whole system represents a civic responsibility toward God.

HEADS OF FAMILIES

It is highly significant that the Biblical record should say that the "heads of the families" of Judah were responsible, along with the judges, for the administration of justice. Where citizens attempt to bribe the courts, or otherwise misstery justice, the very fabric of orderly government is threatened. For justice is a national achievement, and not a personal convenience.

The neighborhood that winks at law violation will hardly complain if vicious forces take over and prostitute justice. A people who are willing to submit as necessary as judges traitors in the technicalities of the law. Fathers who boast at their dinner tables of having outwitted the law, or having bribed a traffic officer, can hardly complain if their teenage sons decide that law-breaking is clevierness, providing you can get by with it.

There is no more efficient crime in the land than home in which lawbreaking becomes a matter of boasting.

Etobicoke Will Be First to Get Pay TV

TORONTO (CP) — Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., has announced that the first Canadian system of home pay-as-you-see television will be constructed in the western suburb of Etobicoke.

Starting with more than 70 miles of TV cable and a potential of 13,000 homes, the system will be readily expandable to serve an area of 2000 square Toronto homes, J. J. Fitzgibbons, president and managing director, told a press conference.

Programs including motion pictures, will be available on the pay-TV at varying prices. The installation cost would probably be $3. Education TV and events of local importance would be offered free as a public service.

Mr. Fitzgibbons said London, Ont., may be the second Canadian community to get pay-TV. His company was constructing a combination antenna there to make American channels available to London viewers. To be in operation by the fall, the new setup would be adaptable to pay-TV.

HOW TO Play Safe NEAR THE WATER
11 WATER SAFETY RULES FOR PARENTS
. . . LEARN THEM . . . FOLLOW THEM

1. Watch your children whenever they are near the water . . . and prevent a dreadful tragedy.
2. If children are poor swimmers or non swimmers, they must wear life jackets. You know —young children move quickly . . . watch them carefully.
3. Watch children playing with plastic toys. They're not to be used on the beach — HAZARDOUS in the water. The slightest breese will carry them out of reach into deep water.
4. Don't use inner tubes, water wings, etc., if you can't swim. The false confidence they build may cost your life.
5. Even after small children learn to swim VIGILANT SUPERVISION must be continued
6. Do not permit swimming in unknown waters. Have a responsible adult check a new area for drop-offs, currents; water purity — and for safe firm bottoms.
7. Do not swim alone under any circumstances. Child and adult alike may panic when no help is near.
8. Don't swim in the dark . . . It's dangerous.
9. Know and teach "reaching assists" . . . how to help a swimmer in difficulty by lying flat and extending an arm, a pole or paddle, or towel or clothing . . . how to throw a line or a ring buoy—KNOWLTDGE SAVES LIVES!
10. Prevent boat accidents. If you can't swim wear a life jacket — or stay on shore.
11. Don't overload a boat . . . it's dangerous and stupid. If boat does capsize — HANG ON! Wait for help to come to you.

The uniform Sunday School lesson for today is Johoshaphat, Wise King of Judah.—2 Chronicles 17; 19 and 20.

This miscarriage of justice appears conspicuously in the cases of those who find themselves sued for some injury suffered in a traffic accident for it is assumed that "the insurance company is rich; it can pay." No one seems to think that the only way the insurance company can pay is by collecting premiums from the insured. When the insurance company is "soaked," it is always the insured who pay the costs.

RESPONSIBLE TO GOD

In a court which operates under a totalitarian system the judge and the jury are responsible primarily to the state. In a democratic land the courts are responsible to the higher authority of God. This is the essential difference between totalitarian and a democratic legal system. Whenever the courts become subject to the party in power the rights of the people have been struck a body blow.

The lesson of this week is a recital of the reforms put into effect by a king of Judah who was determined that the laws of the land should be administered in behalf of the rights of all the people. In endeavoring to bring this to pass he undertook to make the courts responsible to the God of the nation, rather than to the ruling house.

Acoustical Tiles Effective In Reducing Noises in Home

One of the best ways to improve the home is to make it quiet and restful. Acoustical materials, which can be installed in any room, afford an effective means of reducing noises.

Place on the ceiling toward which most noise is reflected, these materials which are soft, porous tiles (in home sizes, usually 12"x12") can absorb up to 85 percent of the noise that strikes them. A room treated with acoustical materials will thus have a noticeably quieter atmosphere.

A bonus value, in keeping with home improvement and modernization trends, is the attractive effect an acoustical ceiling will have on the appearance of a room. The tiles are available in about 20 different surface designs. Some have colored plastic surfaces, others look like veined marble or stone and still others seem to change patterns when lighting angles in a room are altered.

The installation of an acoustical ceiling constitutes a minor remodelling job. Anyone a little handy with tools can make it a do-it-yourself project or an acoustical contractor can do the job in a day or two. The main methods involve cementing directly to the ceiling surface and nailing or stapling to wood furrings. Explicit instructions are provided by acoustical materials makers.

The use of draperies, soft, cushion furniture and resilient floor materials will also help absorb noise. Placing pads or coaster under chair and table legs will eliminate scraping noises, and mounting refrigerators, washers and other such appliances on rubber or cork pads will absorb the noise caused by machine vibrations. Weather resilient material on doors will prevent slamming.

As for dealing with noise emanating from outside the home, it is advisable to weather strip doors and windows and to use double glass windows where possible reduction of street noise is a by-product of air conditioning which requires closed doors and windows during the warm weather months when outdoor noises are usually most noticeable.

The planting of bushes and the building of fences around the home will aid in absorbing or deflecting noise before it reaches doors.

Most of the suggestions can be undertaken with little trouble and expense. If as many as possible are followed, there should be a notable reduction of noise in the home. It should be remembered that the lowering of the general noise level just a few decibles will result in an environment substantially more comfortable.

TO STORE TAPE

Don't discard that old cellulose tape dispenser. It's just as handy to store and dispense your electrician's tape.

Now You Can Spray Paint Without Gun

A shortcut for a small paint job is offered by the new enamels in aerosol cans for spray painting. These cans, charged with freon gas, spray any object with paint as effectively as expensive equipment with a motor driven compressor.

Of course, each can contains only a comparatively small amount of paint—8 to 12 ounces, depending on size. So it would take a lot of cans to spray paint a house. But for refinishing a radiator, touching up chipped enamel on a refrigerator or kitchen cabinet, or giving a small piece of furniture a smooth finish like an automobile body, several cans of spray paint are big time savers.

There is no cleaning of brushes or rollers when all you do is press a button on top of a can and let the paint spray. You can get 13 colors, including gold and aluminum, plus a clear colorless lacquer. All of these dry within a few minutes. They can be used on wood, metal, leather or paper.

Various decorative possibilities have been opened up by this invention.

AVOID KINKING

Cover the cords of power tools with the spiral wrapping sold for telephone cords. This will prevent snarls and kinking.

Why Air Filters Must Be Clean

Dust clogged air filters tend to impede the flow of air through heating of air conditioning units. This makes such units operate at higher temperatures than their normal settings. This in turn boosts operating costs and cuts comfort performance.

There are two general types of filter units. One made of oiled glass fibres compares in cost with a carton of cigarets and is thrown away and replaced. Another, made of oiled metal fittings can be cleaned re-oiled and used indefinitely.

Does It Like Canada

No one will deny that we have a distinct climate in Canada. In fact, we have several climates. For that reason the flower and vegetable seeds we sow and the nursery stock we plant must be especially selected for Canada. Something that may give wonderful results in England or Virginia or the South Seas could be a terrible flop here. When one selects seeds from a Canadian seed catalogue, one can be sure that that seed is suited to Canada, that, in most cases, it has been field tested under actual Canadian conditions.

THE TORONTO-DOMINION BANK OFFICIALLY OPENS NEW BUILDING

First Bank Opened in 1882

It was in 1882 that the Dominion Bank first opened its doors to Belleville residents with one of the first branch offices to be established by that banking firm in Ontario, outside of its Toronto office. For about 60 years they served this city from offices on the north-west corner of Front and Bridge Streets. Tomorrow a new building will be opened for Toronto-Dominion Bank customers on this same location.

During the construction of the new building, which started in October of last year — following the demolition of the old structure, which started on June 9th of 1958, the bank served its clients from temporary offices at 305 Front Street.

The new building was designed by A. Bruce Sherington, staff architect for the Toronto-Dominion Bank. The firm handles its own construction projects utilizing its own designers and superintendents, local firms for sub-contracting work, and local labor. Walter McCrindle, a superintendent in the Bank Premises Department from the bank's head office in Toronto, has been supervising proceedings since June 9th of last year.

The building, whose modern and unusual but simply conceived exterior which will give a fresh look to the Four Corners, accommodates two floors, a mezzanine and no basement. The ground floor is used entirely for banking purposes. The manager's office, the main vault, night depository, coupon booths and desks are located here. The mezzanine accommodates staff washrooms, a machine room, a stationery vault and the air conditioning unit, for the first two levels. The top floor accommodates several rented offices, tenants, washrooms, lunch room, another air conditioning unit, and the furnace for the entire building.

The buildings' windows are all sealed due to the air conditioning and the degree of soundproofing from vehicular traffic outside is quite remarkable.

About the only difficulty involved in the construction of the new building was that the walls of the old offices which bordered neighboring buildings had to be left standing for fear of the adjacent walls collapsing.

The vault, which utilizes a seven-ton stainless steel door, had to be relocated from its original position because of the possibility of unpredictable river activity.

Japan Suspends Canadian Sales Of Textiles

OTTAWA (CP) — Japan has agreed to a temporary suspension of its Canadian sales of a wide range of finished, low-cost textiles.

This announcement by the Japanese embassy here Wednesday followed C a a dian complaints that an abnormal and increasing flow of low-cost Japanese goods to this country is harming the domestic industry.

An official in Finance Minister Fleming's department commented that the move had been anticipated because the Japanese have said they do not want to impair their trade relations with Canada.

About two weeks ago Mr. Fleming made strong representations to Japanese ambassador Toru Hagiwara, asking that the Japanese voluntary quota system be extended to cover the suspension of finished textile exports, pending results of the quota system more effective.

U.S. ACTS SIMILARLY

Similar action was taken recently to reduce Japanese exports to the United States. Japan operates a quota system for its exporters to prevent them from flooding foreign markets with low-cost goods.

A finance department official said that textile industry in Canada assures that no new export licences will be issued to Japan. However, the department did not know the quantity of goods which would come under the new undertakings issued before the suspension came into effect.

It is understood the goods affected by the suspension included trousers, sport shirts, coats and slacks of spun rayon, knitted outer clothing of spun rayon, skirts, knitted underwear and other undergarments.

In a brief May 26 to Finance Minister Diefenbaker, the Textile Workers Union of America (CLC) sought import quotas to protect the Canadian industry from a rising flood of foreign goods, chiefly Japanese. Imports of knitwear appeared to be headed for a record of from $1,200,000 worth in 1958 to $3,000,000 in 1959, the union said.

The Canadian knitting industry also asked for increased protection against low-cost Asian goods.

CELEBRATION BEGINS

QUEBEC (CP)—The city Tuesday night opened its celebrations of the feast day of St. Jean Baptiste—John the Baptist — eight days early. The celebrations were started to coincide with the 350th anniversary of the arrival here of Mary de la Peltrie and Montmorency Laval, who established the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Canada.

'Pork-Barrel' Politics' Charge Made Against Justice Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Erhart Regier (CCF — Burnaby - Coquitlam) Thursday accused Justice Minister Fulton of "pork-barrel politics" in taking off a government-approved list the name of Irving Freeman, St. Catharines lawyer.

Mr. Fulton replied, during a Commons discussion of the matter, that Mr. Regier's conclusions were "quite in error" and that the charges against Mr. Freeman was based only on the lawyer's ability and his other business interests.

Mr. Regier read from a thick sheaf of correspondence between Mr. Freeman and the Justice department, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the prime minister's office and John Smith (PC—Lincoln).

The correspondence showed that in May, 1957, Mr. Freeman was put on a list of lawyers approved by the government as eligible to do business for the CMHC.

Then the fall of that year, after Progressive Conservatives took over the government from the Liberals, Mr. Freeman found his name no longer on the list.

The correspondence showed that he conducted a concerted—but unavailing—campaign to have his name restored, finally ending with what Mr. Fulton described as a "threat" to make public through newspapers and opposition MPs all the correspondence involved, unless his name was restored to the list.

Mr. Regier argued that Mr. Freeman lost his listing because he did not support Mr. Smith in the last federal elections.

Mr. Fulton said that, since the government hasn't enough work to keep every lawyer in practice, it must select lawyer in Canada, it must select those eligible. One qualification especially is for lawyers who might do work for CMHC, was that they should have no conflicting interests among their clients. But it had been found that Mr. Freeman had clients who were doing business with CMHC at the same time he was endeavoring to do work for CMHC.

TOPIC RAISED AGAIN

Mr. Regier and Mr. Fulton sparred over the question again Thursday when Mr. Regier, in the CCF MP saying he has seen a number of correspondence from Ottawa lawyers complaining of being removed from the eligible list because they were civil servatives or members of firms that had contributed to that party.

He said Mr. Fulton should follow the lead of Works Minister Green and declare there was no political discrimination in his department.

Norman L. Spencer (PC—Essex West) asked whether Mr. Regier would recognged for government that made political attack. Mr. Regier wasn't a fit person to represent his constituents.

Mr. Regier replied that many lawyers who advocated his defeat were working men and ill to help his party for any government. He would like to see in power a government that would be entirely impartial.

Seafarers' Union Thrown Out of Labor Congress

OTTAWA (CP)—The Seafarers' International Union has been thrown out of the Canadian Labor Congress.

For persistently tossing its Canadian affairs into other CLC affiliates in defiance of Congress constitution, the SIU finally was dropped overboard by the congress' executive committee Thursday.

Its suspension from the 1,000,000-member main central body of Canadian labor will hold good until at least next spring. Then, the seafarers may appeal to the biennial convention of the congress.

Executive committee members, who have been snubbed publicly on occasion by Canadian director Hal C. Banks of the SIU, fisily by Banks of the SIU, fisily that he and his 12,000-member union were out of the congress, after having been on the carpet at a closed session.

SEND LETTER

In a letter to Banks made public after the meeting, CLC President Claude Jodoin said that:

"In view of the position taken by you before the executive committee today, in which you emphatically stated your refusal to comply with the decision of the executive council, the SIU stands suspended from affiliation with the Canadian Labor Congress."

The decision of the 22-member CLC executive council was that the Banks union quit raiding the small—about 1,200 members—Na-tional Association of Marine Engineers.

The SIU has grabbed off several hundred of its members in the last couple of years, in defiance of a no-raiding clause in the congress constitution and various formal and informal warnings from the CLC leadership.

CAN'T BE REACHED

Banks could not be reached by phone for comment Thursday night.

The decision will give him a free hand in his fight to drive with both the engineers' union and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, another CLC affiliate. But it will not be CLC warfare, at least for some time.

The SIU-engineers dispute is a complex scrap between the brotherhood and the seafarers for control of the Great Lakes. The brotherhood says it is the only bona fide member of her family who knew him personally.

Mrs. Galsford attended the opening of the Manitoba legislature last week and appeared on Front Page Challenge—a television program from Toronto—May 31.

Mrs. Galsford lived with her son Hugh, her daughter-in-law and two grandchildren—another son, Lionel, lives at Selkirk, Man.

BORN IN KINGSTON

Born in Kingston, she attended a finishing school in England and came to Winnipeg in 1885. Her father, Sir Hugh John Macdonald, was elected law here.

Mrs. Galsford is in mid uprising as a captain. In 1891, he was elected to the legislature as a Conservative member for Winnipeg and nine years later led the Conservatives to victory. He was premier for nine months.

Mrs. Galsford was honorary president of a hostel named after her father and was a member of the Conservative women's group.

Four years ago, while speaking as a guest at a Conservative second-century banquet, she told a story she remembered her grandfather arriving wounded home one night.

"He put his hand on my head and said: "never mind, pet, you'll be a good cause. I love Canada."

She said Sir John was "a tall lady, and he had a terrible temper; but he was also so kind and considerate."

Treasurer Pleads Guilty to Theft In Thorold

THOROLD (CP) — Thorold Secretary-Treasurer James J. Cartmell pleaded guilty Thursday to a charge of stealing in excess of $10 from the Welland County town. He was remanded in custody until June 25.

Assistant Crown Attorney Don Scott said an audit of the town's books showed $2,309.99 missing between May 1 and Dec. 9, 1955. He added that the investigation was not yet complete.

The treasurer is accused of taking money over a period of years by switching cheques and accounts. It was not discovered until auditors did an audit of the books for the years 1952-58.

BRITISH ROADS

Total mileage of public roads in Great Britain is 190,000, of which 162,000 are in England and Wales.

A WOMAN'S TOUCH — A smiling Queen Elizabeth straightens the collar of her coat shortly after leaving her plane on landing at Torbay airport near St. John's, Nfld. She was chatting with Premier Joseph R. Smallwood of Newfoundland and Mrs. Croke of the St. John's Evening Telegram snapped this picture. (CP Wirephoto).

Granddaughter Of Canada's First Premier Dies

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mrs. Isabella Mary Galsford, 83, granddaughter of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, died here Thursday.

She was 14 when Sir John A. died in 1891 and was the last member of her family who knew him personally.

The engineers are in the battle, but mainly as spectators, while the brotherhood — largest affiliate of the CLC — and seafarers fight it out.

The engineers are charging the SIU with illegally stealing members by hitting shipping companies with threats of strikes, by intimidating up the ships unless the companies have engineers signed contracts with the SIU. The seafarers can do this through its conciliation members.

Meanwhile, the brotherhood is about to take over the engineers' bargaining rights, he informants. A majority of the engineers has been tricked by the legislation to confuse matters further, the SIU claims that so many engineers have switched to the new engineers' association that union for the licensed (officer) division of the SIU that the vote is meaningless.

C.P.R. System Divided Into Four Districts

MONTREAL (CP) — Mo,R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said Thursday general managers have been named to take charge of four regional districts in a new coast-to-coast administration setup.

He said the CPR's present eight Canadian districts are to be reorganized as four districts beginning July 1.

The four regions are: Atlantic, with headquarters at Montreal, eastern, Toronto; prairie, Winnipeg, and Pacific, Vancouver.

R. M. Gossage is to manage the new eastern region, which includes operations at Smiths Falls, Trenton, Bruce, London and Toronto. Other managers will supervise divisions and the Canadian Pacific electric lines and Great Lakes Steamships. The region is wholly within Ontario.

C. E. Mayne heads the prairie region, which includes terminals at Fort William, Kenora, Winnipeg, Brandon, Man., Portage, and the divisions of Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, Sask.

FELLS FROM CHAIR

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Sol E. Handler, 60, is suing his daughter and son-in-law for $25,000 because he fell out of a wheelchair while babysitting at their home. The suit alleges he suffered a leg injury that aggravated a heart condition when he fell from a defective chair.

U.S. Reviews Plans to Build High Speed Jet

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. military chiefs and scientists are taking a "hard look" at the question of whether to build the long-range, high-speed F-108 interceptor plane, Defence Secretary Neil McElroy said Thursday.

Involved in the decision, McElroy told a press conference, is the "very serious question" of whether to go beyond the manned interceptor planes now on the drawing boards before beginning to rely on missiles for defence.

He said that even for a relatively small number of squadrons, the outlay would be somewhere between $3,000,000,000 and $8,000,000,000 for the F-108.

He was asked about the B-70 long - range supersonic bomber project. Those planes will have a price tag of $5,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000, McElroy replied.

MINOR DIFFERENCES

Asked if there was a majority vote by the joint chiefs of staff for a master plan that would include use of both the air force long-range Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and the shorter - range Army-Hercules weapon, McElroy said only "We did not have complete unanimity, but in my view the differences were minor."

In another phase of air defence, McElroy said the joint chiefs should have a decision within the next couple of weeks on a request by Gen. Earl Partridge, chief of the North American Air Defence Command, for additional authority.

The master plan will mean that two of the previously planned 14 launching sites for the air force Bomarc missile will be dropped, McElroy said, but he declined to say which ones.

Liberal Motion Ruled Out by Deputy Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals Thursday sought to kill a section of the government's unemployment insurance legislation that will boost employer and employee contributions to the unemployment insurance fund by an average 30 per cent.

Charging that "the man with the dinner-pail is being made to pay for the fiscal mistakes of the government," W. J. McMillan (L—Wellland) attempted to have the section deleted and leave current rates of contribution in effect.

Ruled out of order by Deputy Speaker Pierre Sevigny, Mr. McMillan and his colleagues later attempted to kill the clause on a standing vote in committee but the government won by a vote of 41 votes to 23 by Liberals and the CCF. Attendance in the 265-seat chamber ranged in a small in committee.

After that with only a slight hitch, the Commons completed clause-by-e clause study of the measure which has been the subject of the longest running battle in the house of commons ending —usually a formality—remains to be done in the Senate.

MORE THAN SHARE

Mr. McMillan said the working people want to pay their share of the cost of unemployment. But they don't want to pay more than that, and that is what the government was asking them to do in the bill. Their higher contributions by the end of the year would be considerably greater than benefits paid out.

He questioned the fairness of that when benefits are paid get from a portion of the higher contributions to be out with the worker himself and his employer.

Labor Minister Starr attacked Feuil Perrault (PC—East), the most persistent Liberal critic of the measure, by recalling that Mr. Martin as acting labor minister in 1950 piloted through the Commons a bill that put the unemployment insurance commission's surplus funds at the disposal of the provinces for unemployment assistance during the effects of the legislation would be null had been passed by Parliament.

Ethel Barrymore Dies in Sleep In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Death came quietly Thursday to Ethel Barrymore, matriarch of the Barrymore clan on an era ruled by a proud family tradition.

She died in her sleep. She had been an invalid in her Beverly Hills apartment for more than a year with a heart ailment and bronchial trouble. She was 79.

For more than six decades her regal bearing and resonant voice were familiar to audiences. She had been a star of the theatre, movies, radio and television.

The sharp-witted actress, who originally wanted to be a pianist, was the first Barrymore to go on the theatrical triumvirate that included her brother John and Lionel. John died in 1942 and Lionel in 1954.

"We Barrymores became actors not because we wanted to go on the stage," she once explained, "but simply because it was the thing we could do best."

MOVIE DEBUT

Ethel was the most versatile, ranging from light comedy to tragedy with equal skill. She won a 1944 academy award for her portrayal of the hard-boiled mother in None But the Lonely Heart and nominations for Spiral Staircase and Pinky.

In New York, the Ethel Barrymore Theatre, named for her by her brother, minutes before starting the night's performance.

Miss Barrymore, born in Philadelphia, was educated in a convent in Paris. She left it after another summoned her to Montreal and ordered her to take a part in a play on Broadway in Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines. It was the first of more than two score starring roles.

In 1909, she disappointed devotees of suitors by marrying Russell Griswold Colt, of the firearms family. They had three children, Samuel, Ethel and Barrymore, and were divorced in 1923. Miss Barrymore, a Roman Catholic, never remarried.

Without Arab Nationalism Little Would Stand in Way Of Swift Red Success in East

This interpretative on the current situation in the Middle East comes from an Associated Press news analyst who has just completed his eighth tour of that area. On the current tour he visited Iraq, Lebanon, Jordan, Iran and Egypt.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

CAIRO (AP) — Throughout the Arab East and Islamic world, developing between Communism and Arab nationalism.

This nationalism, or pan-Arabism, subscribes to the idea that the Arabs as a whole are a nation, whether in Egypt or Iraq. It is more theory than actuality, but it is a powerful force.

Without pan-Arab nationalism, little would stand in the way of swift Communist success in the Arab East.

Islam, the religion of Moslems, is no shield.

The contest between nationalism and communism centres on a relatively small group of educated men, mostly men, mostly young, are the ones who will decide how far the Communists have succeeded and often unshod farmers have to say in what is going to happen.

Arab nationalists apparently have the upper hand at present.

Yet, while Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser puts Communists and such, his United Arab Republic still welcomes Soviet economic aid. Communism has a long and good chance of getting away with it.

The U.A.R. already is deeply in hock to Moscow for arms and is the key to Soviet penetration of the Arab East.

Nasser continues to blast Communism and persecute Communists while other Arabs against them.

Thus Nasser has accomplished something all the dollars of the United States could not do—drive Communists underground.

Arab anti-Communists front. This is not out of love or respect for the United States, since Nasser is far from pro-Western. It is because Communism is growing war between nationalism and communism not only in the Arab East but in many other developing countries.

The Russians are being patient. They have little choice. To back Nasser to the hilt is to risk economic pressure against Egypt by the West, but there are anti-imperialists, no different in Arab eyes from their image of British, French or American imperialists.

There is little doubt that Nasser right now is the main barrier to further Red advances in this area.

Military Revolt May Be Started In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) —President Arturo Frondizi's government charged today it is the target of a revolutionary plot while developing between Communism and Arab nationalism.

This nationalism, or pan-Arabism, subscribes to the idea that the Arabs as a whole are a nation, whether in Egypt or Iraq. It is more theory than actuality, but it is a powerful force.

Without pan-Arab nationalism, little would stand in the way of swift Communist success in the Arab East.

Islam, the religion of Moslems, is no shield.

The contest between nationalism and communism centres on a relatively small group of educated men, mostly men, mostly young, are the ones who will decide how far the Communists have succeeded and often unshod farmers have to say in what is going to happen.

Sovereign Recognized Head Of State in Canada Since 1760

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The arrival of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip in Canada declines in novel but significant fashion the sovereign's role as father of Canada.

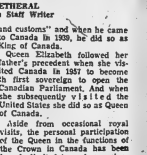
The main reason for the royal tour is the 350th anniversary being carried out at this time is that it will allow the Queen to take part in ceremonies marking real June 26 officially inaugurated the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Participation in such ceremonies is part and parcel of the duties of monarchs in Canada and common to countries throughout the world. The Queen is also officially opening a major public project devolves on the head of state.

The sovereign has been the recognized head of state in Canada since 1760 when the capitulation of Montreal following Wolfe's victory on the Plains of Abraham a year earlier ended French rule in North America.

But the intervening years have brought a continued advance in the Queen's relationship to Canada as the country progressed gradually from colonial status to full independent membership in the commonwealth.

The British North America Act of 1867 provided for responsible government and authority of and over Canada is vested in Parliament.



In 1926, the Imperial Conference in London acknowledged the equality of status of the United Kingdom and the Dominions as autonomous communities. That conference also recognized that "it is the right of the government of each Dominion to advise the crown in all matters relating to the affairs of the Dominion."

In 1936, King George VI took the oath "to govern the people of Canada according to their laws and customs" and when he came to Canada in 1939, he did so as King of Canada.

Queen Elizabeth followed her father's precedent when she visited Canada in 1957 to become the first sovereign to open the Canadian Parliament, and when she subsequently visited the United States she did so as Queen of Canada.

Aside from occasional royal visits, the personal participation of the Queen in the functions of Canada is carried out largely limited to such occasions as the granting of honors and the approval of changes in the table of precedence, institution of new orders and awards on the periodic appointment of a governor-general.

In visiting Canada to open the seaway, she is showing her determination to participate, as fully as her Commonwealth duties permit, in events of outstanding significance to her Canadian subjects and to lend to such events the lustre of the Crown.

3 Hours After Landing Film Shown in Europe

LONDON (Reuters) — Millions of TVNC and Eurovision viewers on Thursday night saw a film of the Queen in Canada within three hours after her arrival at St. John's, Nfld.

The film was sent across the Atlantic on the telephone cable by a new method perfected by BBC engineers.

After cameraman had covered the Queen's arrival at the airport, Prince Philip for their 45 - day tour of Canada, the film was sent on a microwave link to Montreal.

There, it was recorded and transmitted across the cable to London frame by frame—something as news photographs are sent by wire or radio.

Sea Page, piloted by stable jockey Benny Sorensen, will likely be ridden by Eddie Arcaro in the Queen's Plate June 30.

ASCOT, England (AP)—Wallaby II, a four-year-old bay from France, won the Royal Ascot Gold Cup stakes Thursday from Alcide in a race so close that the judges argued about the victor even after studying the photo.

Wallaby took the lead about 200 yards from the finish of the 2½-mile turf race and hung on grimly. The triumph meant $30,680 for Baron G. de Waldner of Paris.

In the companion feature, Queen Elizabeth's Pindari took the mile and-a half Edward VII stakes by three quarters of a length over Hieroglyph and Fatemeran.

Hoad, Sedgeman Win Over Segura, Rose

Hoad downed Mervyn Rose, also of Australia, 6-4, 6-4 in a battle of his big hitters.

In the first doubles encounter of the tournament, Pancho Gonzales of the United States and Australian Ken Rosewall downed Australia's Ashley Cooper and Segura 8-2, 7-3.

India war all out for 168, but by the close England had lost three wickets for 50.

Temper, Tears Take Over Tennis Tilts

LONDON (AP)—Tennis tantrums and pre - Wimbledon nerves have taken over in the London championships at Queen's Club.

Several players displayed minor outbursts of temper after losing or making poor shots Thursday. Ray Moore was hurled in the air and flung to the ground, balls were banged out of court, umpires were abused and the ball girls reprimanded for moving while play was in progress or not picking up balls at the net.

Barry MacKay of the U.S., who earned the tag "The Gentle Giant" in earlier rounds, lost it in a fit of temper. After being beaten in the quarter-final 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 by Australian Frank Gorman, he crashed a foot through his racquet. He stalked off court muttering: "I'm mad, mad about losing."

Tigers Pan Football Gold

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's Tiger-Cats, for the last two years the power in the Big Four Football Union, have struck what they hope is a rich lode of football material in Northern Ontario.

They announced Thursday the signing of Tom Dasovich, 250-pound, six-foot-three, tackle from Sault Ste. Marie.

He follows Ron Baker, six-foot-three, 212-pound defensive end from North Bay intermediates, who was signed earlier.

Jake Gaudaur, club president, fought for and got the northern section of the province when the league was slicing up Ontario for territorial rights.

"The players there are hungry and tough," he said.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

1. You want to hear some tall hockey stories, prepare to be in Toronto on Saturday, Sept. 13. That day, more than 20 of hockey's all-time great players who made the headlines over a 50-year period dating from the 1890s to the 1940s, are scheduled to be in Toronto.

Old age and inability to get around may keep some of the 30 or so guests at home, but there should be enough around to make it a historic occasion. The idea is to honor all the living members of hockey's Hall of Fame.

Another reason for the get-together is to let people know that a permanent building to house pictures and some of the equipment of old-timers will be set up on the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. The old codgers will have a lot to reminisce about.

"GOOD OLD DAYS"

They recall the "good old days" of seven-man teams when the extra man was known as the rover. There'll be talk of the days when there were no goal nets, just a couple of poles placed on the ice, and when there was no artificial ice and the brewery fellows played in outdoor rinks in temperatures that would send modern-day folks to the comfort of their living rooms.

This will be their day of glory, the first time since the shrine came into being nearly 19 years ago that an effort has been made to get all the old-time greats together.

They will represent most of the storied old teams that were formed before a bearded old gentleman, Lord Stanley, donated the Stanley Cup in 1893. That was before the Davis Cup or even the long-forgotten Temple Cup, which is baseball's World Series trophy, were thought about.

Among the invited guests, for instance, are Danny Bain of Wilkinson, a star on the old Winnipeg Victorias team that won the Cup in 1896, and 81-year-old Dickie Boon of Montreal who captained the "little men of iron" — the Montreal AAA team that won the Cup in 1902.

Then there are Frank (Cyclone) Taylor from Vancouver and Newsy Lalonde from Montreal, who played on the Ottawa Silver Seven and Renfrew Millionaires teams, among other clubs that rode high in pre-First World War years.

FEATURED 50 YEARS AGO

Paddy Moran is another great expected to be on hand. He played goal for Quebec Bulldogs more than 50 years ago.

From the West, in addition to Bain, will be Ernie (Moose) Johnson, a native of Montreal and a colorful defenceman with Montreal and Pacific Coast teams.

Lester Patrick from Victoria, B.C.; Frank Fredrickson from Vancouver; Red Dutton from Calgary, a comparative newcomer and a wild defenceman from the old Montreal Maroons and New York Americans.

From Toronto there will be Hugh Lehman, one of the great goalkeepers of his day in the early 1900s.

Probably the best known is Joe Malone of Old Quebec Bulldog fame who scored 44 goals in a 22-game schedule in the 1917-18 season.

Executives and builders of the game who have been elected to the Hall of Fame also are expected to be on hand. They include Colonel Sam Smythe and Billy Hewitt of Toronto; Bill Northey and Senator Donat Raymond of Montreal; Claude Robinson and Frank Patrick of Vancouver; Al Pickard of Regina; Lloyd Turner of Calgary and George Dudley of Midland, Ont.

You can bet that the players will attract most of the attention.

WOMEN'S GOLF TO QUEBEC

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) Mrs. R. Lyle, Kanawaki, shot an 83, seven strokes above her first round total, to win the annual 36-hole woman's invitation golf tournament Wednesday. Mrs. Lyle, with a gross total of 79-83—162, led the field of 49 players from Ontario and Quebec by 11 strokes.

Al Kaline Has Fracture Of Cheekbone

BALTIMORE (AP) — Al Kaline, Detroit centrefielder, was h.. by a thrown ball in a double-play attempt in the first inning of the Detroit-Baltimore game Thursday.

The Tigers had the bases loaded with none out. Kaline, batting fourth, grounded to Oriole shortstop Chico Carrasquel, who threw to second baseman Billy Gardner for the force-out of Charley Maxwell.

Gardner's peg to first to complete the double play was wide and struck Kaline in the head.

The injury was diagnosed as a depressed fracture of the left cheekbone. He was taken to hospital for observation.

The blow knocked the young outfielder unconscious but he recovered somewhat in the clubhouse.

Argos Grab T.C. Gridder

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four, Football Union picked up Thursday a line-backing dividend not due until next year.

Sherrill Headrick, six-foot-two, 215-pound all-conference back in the powerful Southwest Conference last year, has failed his examinations at Texas Christian University and has agreed to join Argos.

National Football League teams are not permitted to make passes at the youngster until draft time next winter, so Canada was his only avenue to professional football this year.

The emotions of being a father...

The world is a scene of many changes. Every day fresh knowledge extends our horizons. New inventions create fresh wonders. New discoveries shape new opinions.

But some things are little affected by external changes. The emotions of being a father, for example, stay constant through the ages.

The hopes and fears . . . the wishes and apprehensions. The humbling realization that no other task in all the world carries with it so grave a responsibility, so rewarding a victory as that of being a father.

For where else does a boy look . . .

. . . for light which will lead to sure places for young feet to stand?

. . . for guidance through the great continent of the mind?

. . . for strength of will and love of goodness?

. . . for those words and teachings that will open wisdom's way?

. . . for a held-out hand, a haven in every sudden storm?

Where else but to a father, who knows that every son is a miracle, like daily light.

The emotions of being a father never change. They flow from well-springs deep within us, as old and changeless as instinct itself. More than anything else Fatherhood is guidance and wisdom — the wisdom of setting a good example in thought, in word, in deed. And one principle that surely deserves to be exemplified is the practice of Moderation in all things. It is this thought which The House of Seagram wishes to leave with you on this Father's Day, 1959. May it enrich your life with happiness, and your son's thereafter.

A mighty mound master named Judd
As a hurler his name is not "Mudd."
They all start by vying
At that lightning-fast thing
And all that they hear is a thudd.

—Dippy the Dope.

But the Ox Pointers' hill-topper Pat
Says Dippy just talks through his hat
"When I meet up with Judd
His name will be Mudd,
And I'll bet my last teepee on that."

—Dopey the Dip

All week long the cafes and nicktspots of Ox Point have been buzzing with whispers that ex-GI Ray Judd, the nimble-footed of the Lakefield Charlions of the Peterborough Senior Softball League (that name served, Cecil) will make a personal appearance with his softball troops at the CNRA Park here come both night.

They should do so, if for nothing but honor's sake, for they swore by all the pickerel in the Kawarthas they would entertain the game compliment and that had slightly singed the more or less venerable Pat Marsele by a measly run in the first meeting of the squads in Peterborough a few days ago.

At this time of writting everything is in the air. Look at the bottom of this column, or thereabouts, for the last word. The Juddikst troupe is supposed to play at the CNRA Park tomorrow evening but the supreme court of the Peterborough league has been waiting for the last this time whether to allow the Juddikts to perform here or not.

It would seem the powers-that-be that sit in authority over the Peterborough League spuds, are not too fussy about their ace attraction traipsing around the countryside giving foreign yokels the opportunity to watch their favorite softball Nine blast off from strange hillsites.

Manager Bill Shaw, the guiding business light of the Ox Pointers, has been running around like a lost kitten at a cat convention practically all week waiting for the Peterborough League brass to make up its mind. First, the game has been "on." Then he gets word it is "off." A third message said "maybe." A fourth intimated it all depended on the weather. It seems the LitHock Loop schedule is going to be kept up to date, come hail or high water, exhibition dates to the contrary.

The Saturday night date was an open one for the Juddikists when original arrangements were made. They were scheduled to play in a doubleheader last night, but if it rained, the edict said, the game would be played Saturday night. And that's final, the umpired ruled.

All-in-all the situation has not been fair to Shaw and the Ox Pointers. "We wanted to advertise this game as much as possible," Bill said between pitches at the Cobourg-Point Anne game Wednesday night, "but this outfit has kept quiet and at the moment I don't know what's going to happen."

When Judd played for Lakefield before he left to do his army stint with Uncle Sam, there was bitter but friendly rivalry between the Mormon ace and Big Chief Rubber-Arm Pat Marsele of the Painters. If memory is correct honors were evenly divided between the respective squads at that time. When Judd returned, lugging a big cousin in tow, the same friendly rivalry existed between the two and at the moment Judd holds an edge by virtue of a 1-0 victory.

The smooth-working Mormon always brings out the best in his Ox Point rival. The Chief did not show too many of his best apples against Cobourg the other night, probably saving them for his Juddy-buddy—if there is a game.

Meanwhile, the Lakefield ace has been travelling at a terrific pace. He has tossed three one-hitters and won four games since June 9 and his strikeout average over ten tits is 17.

LATER—THE GAME IS ON. LAKEFIELD AND JUDD WILL MEET POINT ANNE AT THE CNRA PARK TOMORROW EVENING, STARTING 6.45. BILL SHAW SAID LATE LAST NIGHT.

BALLET TONIGHT

Tonight marks the city debut of that prancing pachyderm, Ricki Starr, ballet master of the wrestling swans who will tip-toe through the tulips of grunt-and-groanery with their heavy, Al Korman. That's like eating sayerkraut with ice cream but it won't hurt the digestion of fandom. The handsome Ricki, who wears ballet shoes, is the Fred Astaire of the muscle-muckers, but he tosses in some terrific wrestling just to show his versatility. Then of course, gad, we almost forgot, there is Yukon Eric and Dick Hutton, a couple of stout limb-benders who disdain the fine arts for the more bourgeois style of wrestling. Pat Flanagan and Jack Laskin will show how wrestling should be wrestled.

Invade Gotham for 4 Tilts After Bosox End Win Skein; Braves Win, Face Gets No. 11

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cleveland Indians invade New York tonight for the first of what should be four tough games with the Yankees in a weekend series that could displace the Indians from the American League lead. It could also stop the Yankees in their comeback drive from last place.

The Indians, holding a 1½-game lead and 3½ games ahead of the fifth-place world champions, still have pitching and fielding troubles, but Mickey Mantle is hitting the big home run again. Mantle, who clinched Wednesday's game with a three-run homer, Thursday belted a 10-inning home run for a 5-4 victory over Chicago White Sox.

The Boston Red Sox ended the Indians' winning string at seven with a 7-6 decision. Detroit Tigers dropped into a third-place tie with Baltimore at 7-6 and Orioles scored twice in the ninth for a 2-1 victory.

SENATORS WIN

In the lone night game, Harmon Killebrew clouted his 13th major league home run lead with his 33rd as Washington Senators beat Kansas City Athletics 5-3 and several Boston's 10 hits — including fifth-inning homers by Vern Stuart, Jackie Jensen, Jack Harshman and pinch-hitter Ted Williams — helped the Red Sox to a 7-6 victory over Cleveland.

The Yankees and White Sox blew two-run leads, Chicago with two unearned runs in the fifth inning against rookie Jim Bronstad and New York with a two-run eighth that produced Mantle's 10th. Bob Shaw, Mantle's 10th homer handed the loss to Bronstad (1-1) and Early Wynn (3-2) while Bobby Shantz (1-2) won in relief.

Chico Carrasquel and Gus Triandos hit a pair of two - run homers in the Baltimore - Detroit game. Chico then won it with a two-out, two-run single in the ninth.

The Tigers lost Al Kaline when he was injured in the face by a wide throw as he ran to first base in the first inning. Kaline, No. 3 in the league batting race behind teammate Harvey Kuenn, suffered a broken cheek bone an dwill be out for about 10 days.

The Senators came from behind three times to beat the Athletics and Ray Herbert (4-4) finally clinching it in a three-run ninth when Julio Becquer's pinch double broke a 5-5 tie. Roy Sievers homered for the Senators—the 199th of his career. Bill Fischer (6-2) won it with Tex Clevenger's three innings of hitless relief.

Bisons, Vees Open Big Decision Series

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richmond Virginians begin their final session in the event of "week of decision" with the league-leading Buffalo Bisons tonight in a much better position than this time a week ago.

They open a four-game international League series at home against the Bisons and trail them by a game and a half. The two teams opened a four-game series in Buffalo last Friday with Richmond 3½ games back.

The Vees used Bill Shantz' pinch-hit single in the last of the ninth inning Thursday night to gain a 3-2 victory over Rochester and Wings while Buffalo made it nine wins in 11 games against Columbus Jets with a 7-5 win.

STANDINGS AND MOVEMENTS

The Montreal-at-Havana game was postponed for the second straight night and rain washed out Toronto's game at Miami.

A seven - game series would give the Virginians a 2½-game edge. They must win three to gain a five-game edge and eight percentage point lead, .551 to .536.

Shantz' single came with one out, runners on first and third off Rochester reliever Jim Pisoni in for a doubleplay. It was preceded by a battle of strategy after the Vees' Mike Baxes' fed off with a triple, held third on an infield out and scored on Red Wings' pitcher Bobby Deakin get walked Bob Martyn.

Bob Martyn was sent to hit for Dale Alvarez but Rochester manager Cot Deal countered with lefthanded pitcher Bill Richmond came right back with Shantz.

RELIEVER WINS

Richmond's Bob Blaylock (6-1) pitched the start of the ninth while relief Cot Deal (7-1) got the win's decision. Gene Green hit a home run for Rochester.

Richmond's Frank Herrera hit home runs for Buffalo, Ron Stone, while Herrera scored in five decisions with relief help from Hank Mason.

Dick Lines (5-6) was the loser, getting tagged for six runs and ten hits in 4 1-3 innings. The loss was his fifth in seven decisions during the last month.

Mickey Harrington had a triple and three singles in four at-bats for the Bisons, while Herrera's homer was his 17th. Del Greece's, his 10th.

WITHDRAW SUPPORT

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 2,756,000-member American Legion has withdrawn its support and fund - raising activities for the 1960 Olympic games unless the Chinese Nationalist Olympic team is allowed to participate.

National Commander Preston J. Moore said Thursday. He said he will request the 17,200 American Legion posts to "cease co-operation, and financial support" for the U.S. Olympic team.

Toronto Hopes

Third Major Baseball Loop To Be in Operation by 1961

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's third major league has its target date. In 1960 it hopes to line up its player talent. In 1961 it hopes to start operation. By 1962 it thinks it can compete with the existing majors in the big money.

Bill Shea, chairman of Mayor Wagner's baseball committee and a prime mover in lining up the proposed new league, said Thursday:

"The most important thing is to get organized. We expect to be in operation by 1961. It is our idea that by 1962 we should be able to compete with the other leagues on even terms."

AN OPTIMIST

Shea is an incurable optimist. At a press conference he announced the names of the three most important backers of the New York franchise.

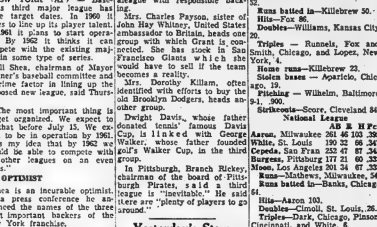
One of the people associated with the proposed New York team, Donald Grant, a director of the San Francisco Giants, disclosed that a number of league cities already exists and they are screening other applicants. However, all concerned declined to identify the other cities.

Toronto, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Houston, Fort Worth-Dallas and New York have been the cities most frequently mentioned in connection with the third league.

COOKE SEES SHEA

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, conferred with Shea last week in New York.

"We'll know if we're in when a peace with respectable backers in New York," Rudy Schaffer, Leaf general manager, said in Toronto Thursday.



The New York owners, disclosed by Shea, were listed in three groups, each of which would have a one-third interest. He said their interest is contingent upon a new ballpark on the old world's fair site in Flushing Meadows which Mayor Wagner has said the city will build for

Balding Held Stroke Lead Going Into the Second Round

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ISLESMERE GOLF CLUB, Montreal (CP) — Ranny Al Balding, the 33-year-old Markham, Ont., pro, held a narrow one-stroke lead going into the second of the 50th annual Canadian Open golf championship today.

Balding, one of the most successful Canadians on the Canada pro circuit, burned up the soggy Islesmere course with a six-under par 66 in the opening round Thursday, but four United States players came in with 67s.

Balding, his putter hotter than it has been in months, put together six birdies and was never worse than par on the other 12 holes for his 33-34 total.

Behind him came Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., who hasn't won a major tournament in more than two years, Art Wall, Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa., leading money - winner this season, and veteran George Bayer of Dallas and Dow Finsterwald of Tucquata, Fla.,

PRIZES $25,000

Total prize money in the tournament, which ends Sunday, is $25,000 with first place worth $3,500.

Bayer, Canadian Open winner in 1957, turned in the best single score of the day, a 31 on the second nine that included three birdies and an eagle, to go with his par-36 on the first nine.

In all, 34 players broke par in a driving rain that kept up most of the day. Six of them were Canadians.

Grouped at 68, two strokes back of Balding, were Tommy Bolt, the high - tempered Crystal River, Fla., pro, Doug Ford of Pinehurst, N.C., Billy Blanton of Coronado, Calif., Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Texas, Jim Turnesa son of Sebring, Fla., and Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia.

The top Canadian after Balding was Montreal's Jack Kay, who was in the same threesome as the leader and finished with a 72, as did three others.

LEONARD TOPS PAR

Conspicuous absent from the par-breakers were Billy Casper, the Apple Valley, Calif., pro who won the U.S. Open Sunday, Wes Ellis of Aldecress, N.J., last year's Canadian Open champion, and Stan Leonard, the Vancouver pro many thought might be the top Canadian.

Casper finished with 35—74. Leonard, who said afterwards, "I was awful, I could have had a 80," finished with 38-35—73.

Balding, obviously exhilarated, said he felt "pooped" at the first tee but "I guess I was just relaxed.

The six-foot, three-inch swinger said he had trouble sleeping and then had to get up at 6 a.m. to avoid traffic which easily jams the narrow, winding road between his motel and the course.

HITTING GOOD

"I was putting real good, no kidding," he said after, and his 28-putt total for the round backed him up. Balding one-putted eight greens, was in the hole with two on the other 10 and sank 25-footers on the seventh and 18th holes.

He was in danger only on the 16th and 17th when his approach shots went into a trap. But he came over beautifully both times, and got his par.

Wall, who has won $35,000 on the tour so far this year but hasn't been first since he won the Masters in April, went out in 34 and came home in 33 for his 67 total.

BRANTFORD AMATEUR LOW

The low amateurs in the field of 145 starters were L.A. Molner of Brantford, and Jim Funston of Detroit, both finishing in with par 72. Molner was 35-37 and Funston 38-34.

The day was also marked by a hole-in-one, a disqualification and a heated protest.

Montreal's pro Jim Swarbrick collected the hole - in - one—a six-iron shot on the par - three, 120-yard fourth hole.

Phil Friedman, Windsor, Ont., amateur, was disqualified on the third hole he apparently forgot he was playing in a tournament and picked up his ball in it lay on the rim of the cup, common practice in casual play.

Jules Hoot of Montreal who entered his first Canadian Open in 1930 finished with a 74, then heatedly insisted officials it should have been a 73. He said his approach shot on the 15th hole landed in a four-inch rut left by a tractor wheel. He claimed the rut had not been marked by officials when they inspected the course and he should have been allowed a provisional ball.

His protest was not allowed.

The low 100 and ties today advances into the third round Saturday, with a further cut to the low 60 and ties for Sunday's final.

Other Ontario amateurs competing included Bill Bevan of St. Catharines, with 40-40—84. Pro Bob Dean from Cornwall had a 79-38—77.

SIX-UNDER-PAR — Tall Al Balding of Markham, Ont., was holding an early lead in the opening round of the Canadian open golf championship at the Islesmere club. He shot a six-under-par 66 during a steady drizzle Thursday. (CP Wirephoto.)

Says Durelle In Better Shape Than Last Time

MONCTON (CP) — Chris Sheban, manager of world light heavyweight contender Yvon Durelle, said Thursday night the Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., slugger "is looking better. every day."

"Yvon's in better condition right now than when he met Montreal (titleholder Archie Moore) the last time," he said. "He's got more drive and is punching well with both hands. Moore will have two hands instead of one to worry about this time."

Durelle and Moore meet July 15 in Montreal in a rematch for the NBA-CAC light heavyweight championship. Moore stopped Durelle, Montreal Negro, in the fifth. Empire light heavy titleholder, in the 11th round last December in Montreal.

FERRARIS WIN

LE MANS (AP) — Ferraris swept the top three spots in the 1959 24-hour Grand Prix Le Mans sports car race and dampened British hopes that Jaguars or Aston-Martins might win the race Saturday. The best British cars could do was second by a Jaguar.

Temples' Tabbies Trim Trenton 6-1
Bobby 'Cat' Green Has Four-Hitter

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Bobby Green tossed four-hit ball and his mates backed him with a sharp hitting and fielding display at Trenton last night as the Bobcats downed Trenton 6-1 to increase their first place lead in the B and D softball league.

The Cats won the game in the first inning with a three-run outburst. Trenton settled down after that and held Temple's crew of the scoreless until the ninth when they made it 6-0.

Trenton's loose tally came in the bottom of the ninth. Green's mound opponent ruined his chance at keeping off the losing end. Maroney, slammed a solo home run deep to right-centre field. Green got the next three to wrap it up.

The speedy southpaw gave up a single to Roger Drake in the first, a bunt safety to Doug Alexander in the second and another one-bagger to Billy Mitts in the third. That was all until Maroney's homer. Green fanned six and walked seven but came through with men on base and received air-tight support in pickup by his fourth win of the campaign. He left eight stranded.

Maroney was tagged for 11 safeties. His mates gave him good backing after a shaky start. He whiffed four, dozen and walked only two men, both in the initial frame.

"Wiener" Brown took care of the first two Belleville runs. A trip to Hughes and Faulkner's bunt set the stage, Brown scoring both with a double through the centre. A passed ball and error made it 3-0. Another miscue when Drake stepped off first too quickly, Smrke's single and a walk loaded the sacks again before three were out.

Smrke singled to open the top of the ninth. Green lifted a double down the right field line and Bert Faulkner sent both runners to scoring position on triple to right centre. Brown's blazing double off centre field fence made it 6-0. Bob Hull drove a terrific blast zooni 325 feet to deep centre field where Don Cole came back for the catch to rob him of a four home run.

Although the loss was number seven in eight starts for the Garnetts, most of the players came up with smart fielding plays, including two of the game's three twin killings.

"Wiener" Brown, Bert Faulkner and Bob Hull all had good nights with the hickory for the Bobcats. Brown drove in three runs while banging a triple and two doubles in five attempts. Faulkner had a triple, double and single while Smrke hit three singles. Green's double and Roger Hull's single rounded out the Cats' attack.

The same clubs go back at it again at CNRA Park here tonight at 6.45.

Swede Knocks Out Champion, In-Mirrors

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)— If ever two heavyweights approached a championship fight with more divergent training methods than Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson, it must have been when Max Baer was bewildering boxing experts.

Johansson, the Swedish challenger who'll try to lift the world title from Patterson next Thursday night, winds up the hard work today. Patterson, in his Chatham, N.J., camp, plans to keep right on working up to the day before the fight.

Johansson hasn't neglected boxing and road work, but his theory is that once he has achieved top condition, the relaxed approach will bring him up to the fight in better physical and mental condition.

"I feel myself getting stronger and stronger," he explained seriously. "I shadow box before a mirror and always I see my good right hand hitting him and knocking him out. It happens again and again. It's very nice."

Ingemar's right hand has been the subject of considerable speculation. He has used it very seldom against his sparring partners and there was a rumor he still is troubled by old hand injuries.

The articulate challenger saw Floyd stop Brian London and "saw things that convinced me I could win."

The experts don't know how to take that remark.

Seven Districts Submit Entries For Softball

PRESTON (CP)—Seven municipalities submitted entries for the 1959 Inter-County Softball Association playoffs at the group's organizational meeting Thursday.

Woodstock, Preston, Tavistock, Hespeler, Lynden and Sheffield will meet in bantam division action while Preston, Woodstock, Gore and Sheffield clash in the midget section.

All teams will play a home-and-home round-robin semi-final playoff schedule with the top two teams in each division meeting in the loop finals. Squirt and peewee titles will be decided by zone-by tournament competitions in September. Entries for these groups will be accepted later.

Seven directors were appointed to assist the association's elected executive. They are Sam Keeping, Woodstock; George Crawford, Hespeler; George Thomas, Simcoe; Andrew McConachie, Gore; Bill Main, Sheffield; Stan White, Lynden; and Jack Fraser, Preston.

Elected executives include president, Don Mackie, Preston; vice-president, William Patterson, Galt; secretary, James McNair, Preston; and treasurer, William Bettke, Kitchener.

Bantam action today sees Preston at Sheffield. The midget schedule opens next week.

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE SCOUTS

A social evening, planned to be a very modest affair, developed into a gala event Wednesday evening owing to the surprise visit of Miss Louise Rush, Scoutmaster of Canniton Boy Scouts fifty years ago, and the first lady Scoutmaster in Canada.

A picture was taken and the group consisted of Miss Rush; Mr. Sam Palmer and Mr. Robert Turner, who as boys were members of the original troop; Scoutmaster Stan Kerr and the present troop; Regional Commissioner A. S. Lewis, who joined the Boy Scouts 50 years ago; District Commissioner P. L. Allcorn; Field Commissioner A. L. Jackson; Mrs. Eleanor Blake, president of the executive board of Ladies' Auxiliaries; the flag bearers, Queen's Scout Jim Churchill and Kerr and the Queen at the 9th world jamboree, and Queen's Scout John Plumpton, winner of the Bank of Nova Scotia essay contest at the 8th world jamboree. Canniton wishes to express its thanks to these Scout dignitaries who took time out from their busy schedule to join in honoring Miss Rush.

A.S.M. Fred Furmidge Jr. opened the social evening with a short prayer and chairman Harvey Putman welcomed the visitors and special guests.

Mr. P. J. Lancaster, Local Association president, complimented Miss Rush and the esteemed dedicated leaders of her day. The firm has they gave to Scouting has resulted in the vast world-wide organization it is today. As a supplement to home, school and church, the movement is unequalled.

BIBLE PRESENTED

A beautiful Bible was presented to Miss Rush by Mrs. Fred Furmidge. It was also suitably inscribed like an illuminated address which made it a very personal gift. Miss Rush led those present down memory lane to her teaching days in Bancroft, Centenary, Upper 4th Sidney and Canniton schools. She felt a responsibility to her community and church; there was a Young Folks' Society which was rather weak, so Miss Rush started the Boy Scouts Troop. A big success and it meant a lot of added duties to her already busy life. It was a most enjoyable talk, particularly to those present who were students at school when Miss Rush was a teacher.

Mrs. Furmidge, with her auto-harp, sang and made things very lively with a sing-song. John Plumpton gave a short speech on Scouting from a boy's view. He presented his points with a clarity and humor worthy of experienced after-dinner entertainer. All expect to hear good reports of John as he grows older. S.M. Kerr presented him with his Assistant Scoutmaster's phone so that he can now apply his talents to the training of Boy Scouts. Congratulations, Bud.

After a film, shown by Mrs. Putman, refreshments were served by the Scouts and from remarks passed, everybody had a good time and were glad they attended this happy get-together.

OPPOSITION

standing at dissolution was unchanged from the 1955 election result.

The government campaigned on its 24-year record while opposition candidates pledged more aid for municipalities, education and agriculture.

The election was the first since 1921 in which the simple ballot was used. The legislature in 1958 voided its discontinuous proportional representation and the single transferable ballot which had been used in eight previous general elections.

The Social Credit's fifth election victory under the leadership of 51-year-old Premier E. C. Manning, who combines religious work with his other duties.

Mr. Manning who also holds the portfolios of attorney-general and minister of mines and minerals was returned along with the 12 members of his cabinet.

The vote total was a record, more than 406,000. An estimated 600,000 persons were eligible to cast ballots. The previous record was set in 1953 when 376,000 valid ballots were recorded from 580,000 eligible to vote.

The Social Credit popular vote increased to 56 per cent from 47 per cent in 1953 when the party elected 37 members. The Conservative vote increased to 23 per cent from nine while the Liberal figure dropped to 14 per cent from 21 and the CCF to five from eight.

Grant MacEwan, elected Liberal leader last year to succeed who has sat in the House for 15 years. She was one of four women elected.

Macmillan May Push For Early Summit Talks

Would Visit Allied Capitals to Get Views

GENEVA (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan today was reported thinking of a new swing through key Allied capitals to push his ideas for early summit talks with Russia.

But there were signs here that the British leader is being advised against any move to support the arrangement of a top-level conference of Western statesmen.

Some Western leaders are afraid that it may prove very difficult to genuinely patch up Allied differences it a conference with Mr. Khrushchev at this time of President Eisenhower, Macmillan, French President Charles de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

WEST VISITS CONSULT

Nevertheless some form of inter-Allied consultation is being planned to take place during the three-weeks recess of the big four foreign ministers.

Informants said these possibilities are in the air:

1. Eisenhower and Macmillan, either together or separately, might visit de Gaulle in Paris.

2. Macmillan may press Adenauer to visit London as he has strongly agreed to do, or alternatively go to the West German capital himself.

3. If President Eisenhower does not come to Europe, Macmillan may travel to Washington to see him.

4. Foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany almost certainly will meet before the East-West Big Four resume their talks here July 13. Other Atlantic Allied statesmen may join in.

ALONE IN VIEWS

Alone of Allied statesmen Macmillan still wants an unconditional summit conference with Russia's Nikita Khrushchev on Germany and other European problems.

President Eisenhower, de Gaulle and Adenauer think the Russians should say something of a price for such a meeting — a price in the form of political concessions over some of the grave problems of Europe.

Khrushchev tried Friday to spike any notion that he would be willing to buy his way to the summit. He said he favored only a summit conference now can ensure world peace.

Officer's Widow Given $47,615 In Judgment

TORONTO (CP)—The widow of a Peterborough policeman, killed in a car-truck collision in 1957, and her two sons were awarded damages of $47,615 Friday by Mr. Justice Wilson of the Ontario Supreme Court.

He assessed the damages against Robert Garnet Laing, driver of the truck which collided with a car driven by Constable William Gerald Scott, 39, and the owner of the truck, Mrs. Marie La Fairville.

Constable Scott was killed in the accident on Highway 28 near Peterborough and Mrs. Scott, 44, was seriously injured. Their sons, William John, 14, and Gerald Douglas, 11, escaped with minor injuries.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Wilson said Laing's liability was limited. He found that Mrs. La Fairville liable although she claimed that Laing, a business associate of her husband, took the truck without her consent while he was drunk and started it by crossing the ignition wires.

The judge said Mrs. La Patrillo knew Laing's driving licence was suspended and that he often used the truck for business.

Mrs. Scott was awarded $21,916 for suffering and disability, and $15,000 general damages. The boys were each awarded $5,000 plus the cost of medical expenses.

DUTIES OF JUDGES MAY BE REVISED BY MINISTER

Outside Activities May Be Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said Friday that, although many problems remain to be settled beforehand, he hopes eventually the duties of judges may be revised toward an elimination or at least a diminution of their outside activities.

But he added, during Commons study of his department's spending estimates, if such ex-ra work—with its accompanying extra income — were eliminated or sharply reduced, salaries paid the judiciary would have to be raised substantially.

He had instituted a study by his department and in co-operation with the attorneys-general of a number of provinces.

HOPES FOR PROGRAM

From this and from a study along similar lines being conducted by the Canadian Bar Association, "perhaps we shall eventually be able to emerge with a sensible program for revision of the judges' act" including provision for salary, retirement allowance and outside work.

Mr. Fulton said he questions whether a judge should be used as a conciliator in a labor dispute.

This involved an attempt to persuade both sides to find agreement.

But he thought it might be

200 African Natives Die In Outbreaks of Violence

LONDON (Reuters) — More than 200 African natives have died in outbreaks of violence throughout Africa in the first six months of this year. Hundreds more have been injured and many imprisoned.

Latest examples of the unrest sweeping the continent flared during the last week in the South African seaport city of Durban and in Brazzaville, capital of the Congo Republic.

Trouble was sparked by superficial causes such as African political rivalry in the Congo Republic, a former French colony, or the alleged resentment of "chicken queens" — women selling illicit liquor—against municipal beerhalls in the African township of Cato Manor near Durban.

Deeper causes, however, including "scorn of the average white settler for the blacks" and the basic disparity between the living standards of the two races, were given by a parliamentary commission that inquired into riots last January in Leopoldville, capital of the Belgian Congo, in which 49 Africans were killed.

Whatever the immediate excauses, always in the background is the uneasy relationship between a few thousand white settlers and administrators and millions of African Negroes whose political and economic awareness has been sharpened by such gatherings as the all - Africa People's Congress in Ghana last December.

African women, who since last October have staged protest marches against the South African identity cards they are required to carry, were responsible for starting the Cato Manor riots which brought four deaths June 6, though men later joined in. Durban's Mayor W. E. Shaw told the city council.

As he spoke Friday, armed police patrolled the streets, which were littered with burned - out cars and broken bottles, while many of the 25 buildings set afire the day before were still smouldered.

The South African government has banned the appearance of the "chicken queens" against the beerhalls' allegedly unfair competition.

In Brazzaville, 150 persons were estimated to have been injured in three days of clashes between rival political groups following the success of Prime Minister Abbe Fulbert Youlou in the general election June 14. Three deaths were reported.

WEST FORESEES NEW RUSSIAN SUMMIT DRIVE

Geneva Talks Fail, Recess Until July 13

GENEVA (AP)—The Big Four foreign ministers today recessed their conference until July 13 without breaking the East-West deadlock on Berlin.

Western officials forecast a new Soviet drive for the summit following failure of the talks which began May 11. They said Soviet Premier Khrushchev is trying to frighten the Western powers into a summit conference instead of offering concessions on Berlin as a lure to the West.

Western diplomats are reported to have decided two weeks ago that this was Khrushchev's strategy. Western interests in breaking off the negotiations here dark from that time.

The West came to Geneva believing it held one trump card—Soviet fear of a desire for a summit meeting.

FINAL COMMUNIQUE

The ministers, Christian Herter of the United States, Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, Maurice Couve de Murville of France and Andrei Gromyko of Russia, met for 10 minutes to approve a final communique.

The communique said:

"At the conference of the foreign ministers in Geneva which began on May 11 a broad exchange of views took place between the participants on the subjects under discussion.

"The ministers believe that further discussions and negotiations are necessary.

"The ministers agreed to recess and to resume the work of the conference on July 13, 1959."

The ministers met under the chairmanship of Gromyko. No speeches were made.

A new period of mounting tension in the Berlin crisis was forecast, especially since West Germany has decided to hold an assembly to elect its new president in West Berlin on June 30.

The Communists, who are trying to force the Western Allies out of West Berlin, have assailed this West German meeting as a provocative act in the city 110 miles inside East Germany.

POLIO GAINS IN U.S.

Shirt-Sleeved Newfoundlanders Welcome Queen

Visit to Gigantic Mill Follows 32-Mile Drive

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip Friday flew to the heart of Newfoundland where shirt-sleeved villagers, their women and children standing along a sparsely settled 32 - mile gravel route, gave them a stirring welcome.

From Deer Lake's specially extended red dirt runway, where the royal plane landed to be greeted by some 100 people; to Corner Brook, where the Queen and Philip motored to visit the gigantic Bowater newsprint mill there were groups of village residents cheering and waving. Union Jacks.

The reception given the Queen under brilliant sunshine, where from the simplicity of the brief ceremony at Deer Lake airport to the serious businesslike tour rounding the tour of the paper mill, where machines turn out tons of newsprint every four minutes.

The royal couple's visit to the rugged west coast of Newfoundland marked the second day of their 7,500-mile tour across Canada.

VISIT U.S. BASE TODAY

The Queen and her husband, after spending the night at Sir Eric Bowater's secluded crescent-shaped estate on Humbermouth Hill, just outside Corner Brook, were to fly south today to Stephenville.

After touring that mushroom-like community and base, received by officers of the United States Strategic Air Force base, the royal couple were to fly 500 miles north to Quebec's northernmost town of Sheffer-ville, deep in the barren Ungava territory.

After an inspection of the $16,000,000 town built by the Iron Ore Company of Canada and a visit to its open pit mines, they were to fly to Sept-Iles, the St. Lawrence gulf terminal of Ungava ore operations.

Sept-Iles, a bustling community of 5,000 which a few years ago sheltered only a handful of fishermen, had prepared a brief welcome for the couple before they were to board the royal yacht Britannia.

The Queen and prince made a farewell tour of St. John's Thursday before flying to Newfoundland's west coast.

INAUGURATES TERMINAL

The royal plane landed briefly at Gander, site of the big international airport, where the Queen inaugurated a modern glass-walled terminal recently opened by the prospects of officials.

The tour of the Corner Brook newsprint mill, guided by Sir Eric, was a serious affair.

The Queen particularly Prince Philip questioned mill officials about various phases of newsprint — making operations from the time pulp wood is stripped of its bark to the final point where the pulp speeds through a huge machine to emerge as paper.

The Queen appeared poised and relaxed as though she was walking along a river bank as she entered the dryer room filled with the ear-splitting roar of machinery. The temperature in the room was about 120 degrees. Close to the dryers the thermometer indicated 110. Here the Queen paused cool. Prince Philip, wincing slightly under the heat of the dryers, walked over to a laborer and questioned him about his work.

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip left for Deer Lake, Nfld., at 10:05 a.m. NDT (8:35 a.m. EDT) today where they were to board a plane for Stephenville, the last stop on their Newfoundland tour. They spent the night at Strawberry Hill Lodge, 12 miles east of here.

About 100 persons waited outside the huge oaken door set in a stone wall which serves as the entrance to the secluded lodge, set back 2½ miles and overlooking the beautiful Humber River.

Along the 30-mile route to Deer Lake, hundreds of the road. Many who had spent hours waiting Friday for her arrival here in warm, humid weather shivered today in the cold.

The drive to Deer Lake was expected to take about 40 minutes. From there the royal couple flies to Stephenville, Nfld., early this afternoon take off for Knob Lake, Que.

Argentine Army Votes to Back Present Regime

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine Frondizi remains president of Argentina after surmounting—at least temporarily—the gravest crisis of his administration of 14 months.

But the price he paid remains to be seen.

Following waves of tension and bombings by military plotters, a meeting of army leaders Friday night voted confidence in the president's war ministry, thereby breaking up any thought of an immediate coup d'etat.

Frondizi, grim faced and tired, met reporters to say he still was in command of the constitutional duties. But he did not indicate what concession he made for military support.

TWO SURRENDER LIVES

A announcement also was made that two alleged leaders of the plot had agreed to submit to detention by army officials.

They were Rear-Admiral Arturo Hill, who led the revolution that overthrew dictator Juan Peron, and retired Lt.-Gen. Arturo Osorio Arana, whose arrest order ordered their arrest Wednesday. Several forces had been unable to find them.

Informed sources said Hill and Osorio Arana led a military group that felt Frondizi had not dealt severely enough with Peronbackers. They were said to have demanded the ouster of all government officials with Peronist leanings and strong measures against labor leaders who have called countless strikes that plague the national economy.

Despite recent government concessions, the anti-Peronists militarists apparently were not satisfied but in a showdown apparently could not convince their fellow officers of the necessity of ousting Frondizi.

Mother Rescues Daughter, 7, By Ramming Abductor's Car

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—As attractive another deliberately crashed her small sedan into another car and rescued her seven-year-old daughter from a would-be abductor.

Mrs. R. E. Carroll told detectives she could see her daughter, Sally, fighting desperately in the window.

"I could see my baby and that's all I could see," she said. "He started off fast and I rammed him as hard as I could."

Detectives identified the youth from papers found in his car as Raymond A. McMahon, 17, of Chicago.

The youth fled on foot after the collision. Bloodhounds were put on his trail but he was not found.

Sally was flung into the street in the collision. Seventeen stitches were need to close a cut on her forehead.

CHILD SCREAMS

Police said Sally and her sister, Susie, 5, were visiting a friend when a car pulled up and a youth grabbed her. He yanked her screaming child from the car and sped away. Susie ran shouting for her mother.

Mrs. Carroll obtained a description of the car, told a neighbor to call police, jumped into her own small sedan and went in search of her daughter. She said she spotted the car parked about a mile away and "I could see the girl fighting to get out of the window."

When the other car started off, Mrs. Carroll crashed her car into it.

Dalai Lama Says Revolt in Tibet Continues; Declares 65,000 Slain

MUSSOORIE, India (Reuters) — Tibet's revolution still is going on with leaders drawn from all classes of the people, the Dalai Lama declared today.

Tibet's 23 - year - old god-king called on the Chinese Communists to let international commission investigate his charges, and added:

"On our part, I and my government will readily agree to abide by the verdict of such an impartial body."

Holding his first press conference since his flight from his Himalayan kingdom in March, he accused the Chinese Communists of killing 65,000 Tibetans since 1956 and trying to wipe out the Tibetan nation.

He said that the Chinese had brought 5,000,000 Chinese settlers into the country, and 4,000,000 more were coming.

The Dalai Lama said the Chinese had "contemplated a reign of terror which finds few parallels in the history of Tibet."

He said that the inhabitants of the capital city of Lhasa have been classed in three groups:

1. Those who were "deported and, interrogated and punished without limit in various Chinese military headquarters in Lhasa."

3. Those who were "given food by the monastic kind, each individual being made to carry 160 loads of earth daily, failing which his food was given."

The Dalai Lama said that he considered himself head of the Tibetan government in exile,

Officials at the city pump house stated .45 inch of rain fell from about 11 o'clock last night to 12.30 this morning.

The rain will temporarily halt haying operations which are now well underway but farmers pointed out the moisture would do much for growing crops and pastures which were beginning to dry up as result of the prolonged dry spell.

Skiltool Plant Will Begin Work In Near Future

TRENTON — The newest industry in Trenton, the Skiltool Corporation, expected to begin work in the very near future it has been announced.

The effect the plant will have on Trenton and the nearby areas was described as the last action of the "LOMA News" the official bulletin of the Loma Area Development Association. The article from the LOMA News reads as follows: "Last fall the town of Trenton announced that the Skiltool Corporation would set up manufacturing facilities at this community. The new firm has been a new building being constructed for them which contains some 15,000 sq. feet of floor space.

Representatives of the firm decided on Trenton after touring the area with officials from L.O.D.A. and the Trade and Industry Branch.

"While Trenton will receive direct benefit in the form of taxes and other revenue spent, let us look at some of the benefits for Loma. In the first instance, because of the building alone, the cement blocks are from Bridge Street, a large boiler used to heat the plant was manufactured in Napanee; other items are chosen for the sake of course many of the new employees will spend their money in the area and will indirectly provide jobs for many more throughout the region. Other smaller items used in the building have been purchased from industries in the communities in the area. All these and many other factors will contribute many more dollars as well as increase the general economy of the region.

"If your town cannot land the big industry, as close as possible where you will derive at least some benefit."

TRENTON — Students of St. Peter's School, Trenton, presented a musical and variety program to a large audience on Thursday night and also last night. The performance was held in the school auditorium with Bill Long at the organ for interval music, and at the piano by the accompanists.

The first item on the program was a rendering of four songs, popular and sacred, by the united choirs which was received most enthusiastically by the audience. Mr. Maisella's first grade one, sweetly dressed in white and little suits of various colors presented their rhythm band, complete with baton twirlers.

Grade one recognition, Johnny Garrel, then sang, "Don't You Want a Little Doggie." Sr. Mary Matthews' grade one sang "My Best Sunday Dolly," when each little girl rocked in mid-air, future rocking chairs during the song.

Mrs. Marsh's students performed a folk dance with much vigor. This was followed by Miss Taggart's grade four and five singing "Time Hour." Sr. M. Stanislaus' and Mr. Laforge's room, two and three performed "Rocking Lullaby."

Miss Walsh's grade five gave a very good performance in a picnic scene while Miss Jane Byrnes played a piano solo with much finesse. Sr. M. Eusebia's grade six sang two selections, one of which was also sung by Sr. M. Joseph William's grades three and four.

The finale sung "Early One Morning" very sweetly as a solo by Margaret Ann Hughes and Miss Walsh's rooms sang some selections, followed by "The Happy Farmer" from Mr. Fraser's room. "Three Little Maids" by Sr. M. Irma's class was followed by an accordion solo by Tony Klemencic.

More part songs were most ably performed by Sr. M. Joseph William's and Mrs. Marsh's pupils, followed by selections.

One of the highlights of the evening was the "Wedding of Jack and Jill," with Louise Laforge as the little bride and Gregory Williamson as the groom.

All the planning of the costumes, scenery and vocal arrangements were by Sr. M. Joseph Theodore. Rocking chairs were loaned for the "Rocking Dollie" by courtesy of McPherson's Tire Sales, Trenton.

Cheese Buyer Causes Uproar

STRATFORD (CP) — A representative of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board will appear at an auction of Western Ontario cheese when he outbid by a Toronto buyer who was offered to take most of the cheese offered by auctioneers.

Nelson Cowan of Atwood, a representative of the cheese producers' board, criticized bidding 35¾ cents a pound on behalf of producers and said the board had reached 33 cents, a price they said was "topa" for them.

Walter Hunter, Woodstock buyer, later outbid Mr. Cowan at 35¾ cents. Other buyers followed suit, with no cheese going to the growers.

Mr. Seth Pellow, Ingersoll buyer, said: "It is not right in principal for the cheese producers here to come and bid on an auction board which they operate."

Roy Johnston of Brantford said buyers should have been told that a government buyer was going to be at the meeting to bid.

Sold at the final offer of 35¾ cents were 2,500 lots of special cheese; 900 of white and 2,700 of colored cheese. The next exchange will be held here July 3.

Value of Nutria Exaggerated Says Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The money-making value of nutria has been a big, ugly fur-bearing rodent from South Africa, are being exaggerated and should be classed wildlife authorities were told Friday.

A. E. Tremblay of the Quebec Department of game and fisheries said he has been and heard television and radio advertising claims that the nutria is an all-round package of profit.

The meat was said to be superior to beef, he recalled, while its fur superior to beaver.

There should be regulations to stop that sort of advertising, Mr. Tremblay said. The fact was that the nutria's meat was fine but it wasn't comparable with beaver as a fur animal.

Dr. Douglas Clarke, deputy chief of the Ontario fish and wildlife service, said there is evidence of keen interest in breeding nutrias among Canadian farmers, particularly those from Germany.

It could be a "vicious sort of thing" to promote such undertakings.

Ernie Paynter, Saskatchewan delegate, said the price for a pair of wild nutria ranged from as high as $3,500.

It was agreed that there's little chance of the nutria existing wild in Canada, although some had escaped as far north as Manitoba and Oregon states. Some also are loose in Ontario.

VANGUARD VIGILANCE

200 AFRICAN

was under an 8 p.m.-to-dawn curfew for the first time since bloody riots—also political—last February in which more than 100 Africans died.

The election was for a legislative assembly to govern for the next five years.

Abbe Youlou's governing Democratic Union for the Defence of African Interest (UDDIA) won 54 seats to 12 for the opposition African Socialist Movement (MSA).

Last week, houses were sacked and burned during clashes between militants of the governing party and Andre Matsus's mystic sect which had staged a tax strike and boycotted the elections.

The premier accused the Matsuanists of civil disobedience.

CAUSES LISTED

Several varied long - term causes of the January riots in Leopoldville were given in the 190-page report of the Belgian parliamentary inquiry published in Brussels March 29.

In addition to the 49 Africans killed, 290 persons, including 45 Europeans, were injured in the riots.

Among measures the commission proposed to prevent a recurrence of violence were the promotion of investments, easing of unemployment among the 350,000 Africans in Leopoldville, and a form of unemployment benefits.

It also proposed that Congolese nationality be created.

On Jan. 13—nine days after the riots started—Belgium promised the Congo, which is 80 times the size of the motherland, a new deal. Elections, a "skeleton parliament," an end to all discrimination between non - white and white and eventual independence were promised.

British meantime is awaiting a report from the Devlin commission on riots in Nyasaland last February and March.

They burst death to 50 Africans, declarations of emergency in Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland and detention of African nationalists leaders in the Rhodesian Federation, chief member of which is Northern Rhodesia.

The commission headed by Judge Sir Patrick Arthur Devlin has promised to submit its report by the end of July.

Among the key issues on which the Devlin commission is expected to report are allegations of an African "massacre plot" made in a British government white paper of March 23. Nyasaland and Africans being part of the Rhodesian Federation.

In 1960, British and Rhodesian federation leaders will discuss the federation's future—including possible full independence.

Atomic-Powered Planes Said Safer Than Cars

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP)—Atomic-powered airplanes, even if they crash, will be no more dangerous than "other hazards routinely accepted by the public", a scientist said today.

In fact, he said the chances of a person being killed in a traffic accident are 10 times greater than the chances he will receive a lethal dose of atomic radiation from a nuclear plane crash.

The findings were presented by Dr. C. P. Straehler of the General Electric Company aircraft nuclear propulsion department at Cincinnati in a paper prepared for Health Physics Society meeting here.

The national organization is made up of the physicians and other specializing in the study and treatment of the effects of atomic radiation on health.

CRASH HAS HAZARDS

Gamertsfelder's findings included:

The main source of hazard would be in a crash "violent enough to make the reactors incapable of removing afterheat," resulting in the release of harmful products of atomic fission into the air.

If the crash were in a densely populated area, the numbers of persons who might receive damaging radiation doses would be no greater than those who might be killed in a commercial airplane accident or similar major disaster.

To increase safety, nuclear powered aircraft could be required to fly in 50-mile-wide corridors over sparsely populated areas or over water.

Rev. A. Peterkin Being Ordained To Priesthood

On Sunday, June 21, Rev. Alan Peterkin, S.J., is being ordained to the priesthood at the Jesuit Seminary chapel in Toronto by His Eminence James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto.

Father Peterkin is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Peterkin of Winnipeg and Belleville. At Winnipeg he attended St. Paul's High School and St. Paul's College. During the Second World War he served in the RCAF as a pilot.

In 1945 he entered the Society of Jesus at Guelph where he made his novitiate and classical studies. He then completed the philosophy course at College de l'Immaculate Conception in Montreal, and taught for several years at Loyola College, Montreal and Regiopolis College, Kingston. He is completing his theological studies at Regis College, the Jesuit Seminary in Toronto.

Father Peterkin will celebrate his first low mass in the Seminary chapel on the Monday following his ordination. He will sing his first solemn high mass in the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Sault-au-Recollet, Montreal, for his sister Sister Mildred Peterkin, RSCJ.

In early July Father Peterkin will visit Belleville, the guest of his sister, Dr. Edith Peterkin.

Lawyer Thinks Saving Could Be Obtained

OTTAWA (CP)—A prominent Canadian criminal lawyer advocated in the Commons Friday that the death penalty automatically assume full responsibility for prisoner parole facilities as a long-term saving of public funds.

Arthur Maloney (PC—Toronto Parkdale) said he would like to see the government assume responsibility for the granting of probation as it has already done in the field of parole.

Mr. Maloney also advocated that the Criminal Code be amended so that no one could be accused of a criminal charge by majority instead of unanimous verdict as required now.

Justice Minister Fulton said he would like to see both sides of the unanimous-verdict issue.

"So far the arguments in favor of the retention of the present system seem to have outweighed those in favor of a change," he said, but Mr. Maloney observes "will be closely studied."

Mr. Maloney said he believed he would be a long-term economy from making the probation system more uniform.

He used the experience of Ontario, which he said is the most advanced province in this field, to illustrate his point. The total number under probation supervision in 1958 in Ontario was 12,599, and the money collected for deserted wives and families from probationers last year was $2,206,525. He pointed out that these wives and families would have been dependent upon public welfare relief had the offenders in question been sent to prison.

But perhaps "the most striking figure of all," said Mr. Maloney, is the total earnings of Ontario probationers last year — about $15,000,000.

Had these offenders been imprisoned, it would have cost $1,500 to 2,500 annually for each one incarcerated in an average cost of $250 each to keep them on probation.

Mr. Fulton said probation problems now are under study by his department's new correctional planning committee.

DUTIES OF JUDGES

proper for judges to act in arbitration capacities, where the decision reached was binding upon both parties to a dispute.

Mr. Fulton also questioned whether, as is a widely-followed practice across the country, a judge of a magistrate should serve as chairman of a municipal police commission.

In some instances, the judges would find himself trying cases in which the charge had been laid by policemen appointed by the commission on which the judge served.

The extra income from outside work had become important to judges in various sections of the country, while their services in such capacities had become a habit.

"I have evidence that there are some cases in which judges find almost their main occupation as chairmen of these boards."

Meantime, other judges were occupied full-time in their judicial duties and hadn't time for outside work.

This created a disparity between the salaries of judges of our courts" Mr. Fulton said.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton East) that any redistribution of judges duties would require provincial consultation and co-operation.

Harry Harry (PC—Muskoka-Sound-Muskoka) said top lawyers have been known to turn down judicial appointments because of the salary level and retirement allowance.

Joyce Davidson Takes Holiday, No Resignation

TORONTO (CP)—Joyce Davidson, freelance television performer who stirred up a storm of criticism when she told a United Stages interviewer that she thought Canadians to have different to the Royal Visit, announced today she is taking an indefinite holiday from the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Miss Davidson made the statement through Lyal Brown, CBC director of press information, in Montreal:

"She has not resigned. We haven't pressured her into anything. She has requested a holiday and we've agreed. The length of it is up to her".

He also said the CBC would conduct a review on the damage she might have caused to her "public acceptance" by her observations that "we don't undertake surveys on programs to check on their popularity".

Miss Davidson appears flivi times a week on the national television program Tabloid and works under contract with the CBC, Mr. Brown pointed out.

"Several editorial writers and the mayor of Toronto have asked me if Miss Davidson resigned. I'm beginning to wonder myself.

"Why our opinion on the subject of the Royal Visit should have been magnified into a matter of front page importance, I cannot understand.

"As far as I can see, a grass fire has been fanned into a four-city block holocaust. I'm more sorrier than anyone that so many people have become so distressed by my private views.

"It upsets me to find so many people willing to restrict freedom of communication and to feeding, in fact, by anyone's. The ferocity of some of the comments I have received or read or heard since getting back to Toronto is quite alarming.

"I am deeply sorry to have been the cause of so much fuss . . .

The pretty blonde performer, who handles interviews on the Tabloid show, worked for a week with the Dave Garroway show in New York and it was on his program that she made her debut. Not only does it add to the appearance and value of the performer, it also means a reward for out-door clothing and foolwear storage space. An additional oil-fired hot water heating furnace has been installed to provide more adequate heating for the play room and dining area. Shrubbery has been planted around the house and play grounds fence. Said Mrs. Pollwell, "the property is now in A-1 condition, and presents a neat, tidy appearance, inside and out."

The president introduced Mrs. Jane Forrester, chairman of a special committee appointed to study and recommend policy around the placement of children in adoption.

Said Mr. Morgan, Mrs. Forrester and her committee comprising of Mrs. Pollwell, Lieut.-Col. E. S. Fairman and Mr. Don Stirling, have worked very hard on this project. They have held at least four meetings and many hours of personal time and effort have been involved. Mrs. Forrester, in introducing the policy, stated that much of the preliminary work had been done by the local director, Mr. Kerr, Mrs. Lillan Hartley, the social worker in charge of the Adoption department, and Mr. Donald Adamson, the agency's supervisor of casework services.

ACCEPTED UNANIMOUSLY

The policy, which was accepted by a unanimous vote of the board, makes provision for such things as the medical examination and chest X-ray of all applicants to adopt, establishes maximum and minimum ages for adopting parents, indicates what the Society expects of adopting parents insofar as medical and surgical care and treatment is concerned, restricts the placement of infants to two per family "by reason of the scarcity of children under the age of one year for adoption and the society's desire to be fair to all who meet the necessary requirements."

The local director, Mr. Kerr, stated that with the exception of the medical examination now required, every item contained in the new policy has been "tried by fire". For more than five years now we have been considering this policy and while not every item has been in actual practice for that length of time, more than 200 children have been placed in adoption by our Society during this testing out period. It is comprised of what is generally considered to be the best in the art of the placement of children in adoption, modified in some respects to suit our local scene. In every sentence and paragraph the interests of the child are paramount. Our focus has been entirely on what is best for the child, today, tomorrow and forever.

72 CHILDREN IN CARE

Mr. Kerr, the local director, reported 223 children in the care of the Society at the end of May. Five children were admitted to care during the month. Mr. Kerr also said eleven were discharged. Ten were placed in adoption. This year will be a banner year for us insofar as the placement of children in adoption is concerned. It appears as if we will place as many in adoption during the first six months of 1959 as were placed in adoption in the twelve months the year our adoption department was first established on a full time basis . . . and we were very proud of our accomplishments at that time.

There is an amazing increase in interest in the adoption of children. Children of the Protestant faith, of Anglo-Saxon origin and normal intelligence are most in demand. We have a number of children in the 2-3 year age group, some of whom are of mixed racial origin, available at the present time to adopting parents to whom academic achievement doesn't mean too much. We would be pleased to discuss adoption with anyone desirous of knowing more about what is involved.

CAS Treasurer Says Deficit For Child Care to Be Heavy

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society was held at Belleville on Thursday of this week, Mr. C. B. Morgan, the president of the Board, presided.

Mr. Morgan announced the resignation of Wilfred St. Pierre who has been chairman of finance for the past two years, and assistant treasurer for five years. Said Mr. Morgan, "Mr. St. Pierre has acquired an unparalleled knowledge of Children's Aid financing. He will not be easily replaced." Mr. St. Pierre has been transferred away from the area.

The resignation of H. R. Park of Trenton, dug-to ill health, was also announced. Mr. Park has been a member of the Board for almost ten years.

C. L. Hyde, the treasurer, informed the meeting that by reason of the greatly reduced number of children in care, the Society received $1,500 less in May of this year for the maintenance of children than was received in May of last year. While this is a real saving to the municipalities maintaining children in the care of the Society, it affects the Society's financing. Said Mr. Hyde, "it appears that we will suffer a heavy deficit in our child care operation this year." Mr. Hyde acknowledged the receipt of a grant of $2,000 from the city of Belleville in support of protective services within the city.

GIFT RECEIVED

Mrs. Ruth Pollwell, chairman of the property committee, announced receipt of a cheque for $500 from a friend of the Society who wished to remain anonymous. This has been applied against the cost of a new porch at the rear of the receiving home at 37 Hiahland Ave. With the exception of a few minor details this work is now complete, said Mrs. Pollwell. Not only does it add to the appearance and value of the property, it also means a reward for out-door clothing and foolwear storage space. An additional oil-fired hot water heating furnace has been installed to provide more adequate heating for the play room and dining area. Shrubbery has been planted around the house and play grounds fence. Said Mrs. Pollwell, "the property is now in A-1 condition, and presents a neat, tidy appearance, inside and out."

Three Brandon Convicts Beat Guard Who Put Mate in Punishment Cell

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Three prisoners in Brandon provincial jail Friday beat a guard's face into a "bloody mess" as "an expression of sympathy" for another prisoner in a punishment cell, jail officials said.

Jail superintendent William Sutherland said a riot could have developed if the other 84 inmates of the institution had not returned to their cells in an orderly manner.

The three prisoners burst through a jail corridor and propelled the guard into another room. They locked the door and beat him.

The attackers ran downstairs to the medium security institution's basement storehouse when other guards broke the barricaded door. They surrendered when police reinforcements arrived.

Donald McKaig, 45, the victim of the attack, is in hospital in fairly good condition.

Superintendent Sutherland said the disturbance came after a prisoner was placed in the "punishment cell" when he disrected abuse at the guard who was attacked. The prisoner had refused to tidy up his cell.

SACRIFICED FIVE

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Police announced Friday the capture of the leader of a strange religious cult who is accused of offering five officials a golden sacrifice to a group of stone idols. Sia Wongrin, who claimed to be reincarnation of a Siamese King Rama III, led a cult which police say murdered five local officials in Northern Thailand May 29.

WELL FIL BE - -

We do not know the racial extraction of Paul Revere, but the name suggests that he may have had some French background. He had, apparently, lost it, otherwise his famous phrase would have come down to us as "The goddamn are coming!"

This little tidbit of information we deduce from an address at the conference of learned societies being held at the University of Saskatoon. One of these societies is the Canadian Linguistic Association and its members recently heard Dr. J. D. Tassie, associate professor of French at Carleton University, Ottawa. Dr. Tassie's subject was "Sacrilegious Profanity in French Canada."

"Among the phenomena that characterise a people, none is more revealing than the way it swears," declared Dr. Tassie in opening his talk. "Remember, for instance, that ancient French' word for an English soldier, goddam, purportedly dating from the Hundred Years War. It seems that the Frenchman simply applied as a generic term the one English expression he heard most frequently on the battlefield."

Dr. Tassie dealt with swearing from several different angles.

Grammarians, for instance, might be interested in his observation that "oaths seem to have a peculiarly grammatical mobility, assuming with ease the functions of various parts of speech." Most of us, though, will find more valuable ammunition in his declaration that "swearing is essentially a psychological phenomenon that functions as a release mechanism for strong emotions. Every society has its particular code of generally accepted principles of thought and action, based on long corporate experience. The individual is normally constrained to remain within these limits of propriety set as the safeguards of the society. Under the stress of strong emotions, however, a person may occasionally exceed the limits. The verbal explosion that does take place may be one of safety valve to obviate the physical explosion that would otherwise occur in the form of assault and battery on a person of wanton destruction of an offensive object." From this, it ought to be possible to put up a convincing argument that those cuss words you string out when your son hits your thumb with the hammer, or when you drop the bottom window in the mud after spending a half-hour cleaning it, are proof-positive you are a really civilized person and have abandoned the cruder ways of the savage.

For those who still frown on cursing, we recommend consideration of the following learned dissertation: "As soon as the crude terms are modified euphemistically by the normal linguistic processes, they become rather mild and even amusing. Often nothing offensive of the original term remains in public view but the initial consonant. What gentleman may not permit himself an occasional shucks? What dear old lady would hesitate to use expletives such as fudge, fiddle and-fiddlesticks? Who is not disappointed to be diddled out of something he wanted. These mildly humorous exclamations and their like are obviously toned-downed versions of originally obscene oaths."

Using obscene oaths, by the way, proves that one comes from a society which has a puritan tradition, as Boss English Canada. "Profanity, in denying that tradition, find its natural expression in obscenity."

"The most pervasive factor in shaping the thought of French Canada," on the other hand, "is religion and the strongest single influence in that society is still the Church." From which is the reason for the preponderance of profanity in French-Canadian society? That's right - - sacrilege.

The system's simple, isn't it? And the next time you see a man - - or a woman - - smile sweetly when he upsets his beer, (or snags her nylons as the sex may be) just refrain on what you're thinking of their satanic habits of thought when anger is not stirring.

This conclusion, by the way, is our own and not Dr. Tassie's. If he retorts "Oh pumpernickel," we'll all know what he is really thinking.

THEY CAN ACT

The International Confederation of Free Trade Unions has passed a resolution condemning South African racial policies as "morally indefensible and an affront to the human dignity of all races."

If there is any organization in the world which is in a position to do something effective about these policies, it is the Confederation. A world-wide boycott of South African goods produced by black labor herded into the white man's factories would do more to change the Afrikaaner's mind about apartheid than any number of resolutions expressing moral indignation.

MAN'S DUTY

Do you believe that you're hard pressed?
Your father had his troubles,
too;
Yet he kept on and did his best
And made a smoother path for you.

Are you following behind

Then what of those who follow

Are they to find a rougher

A little better path to tread,
Because of work you've failed to do—
Because you turned and quit the fray?

Then what of those who follow you?
Are they to find a rougher way?

Purge These Obscenities

Editor, The Intelligencer:

What is the "nation emphatically not" one, or all men and may one be more of the following subjects, namely, crime, horror, cruelty, unnatural and sexual vice? Is legislation to be introduced into the House this session it is obscenity to show on the screen, or put on the stage, or to sell and destroy pictures, or anything, or to be a party to certain "obscene" matter. If the legislation is passed it will become part of the Canadian Criminal Code and we can expect action right away.

We would like to nominate some publications for the attention of the censors and give our reasons for doing so.

First on the list is that gruesome tale to be found on every public library shelf — including the numerous sets of the Canadian Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby by Charles Dickens. Unfortunately the author is dead and cannot answer for his work of bestiality. In the book it says on the second from page one to the end. It concerns a depraved villain, Wackford Squeers, the proprietor and headmaster of Dotheboys Hall, a boarding school for unwanted children which specialized in turning out broken bodies and distorted minds. It concerns also the dreadful treatment of Smike a half-witted boy, and Nicholas a boy who eventually died from Mr. Squeers' cruelties. Mr. Dickens' fiendish cruelties. Mr. Dickens' fiendish example this book at the first possible moment after the Criminal Code Act becomes effective.

Second we would like the courts to examine the book "Ulysses" by Joyce, a chronicle of monstrous perversion and physical perversions of the most revolting nature. Joyce is probably the most blatant exhibitionist of our times. Few used her wiles on Adam; moreover it includes scenes of orgies quite unfitting for the youthful mind. Part of a populace used to fraternity smokers, stag parties and evening cocktail parties, which pass for social entertainment today. The book is filthy, and in the opinion of any, was undoubtedly exploiting the censorship with his opera. It too should go.

And lastly we urge the courts to examine the "Confessions" Tolstoy that arch vulgarian and exploiter of the medieval mind Geoffrey Chaucer, who has incidents too unspeakably indecent for a clean book of this page and we shall not dwell upon them. We only urge that it receive the attention it merits.

Then, as the courts work their way through the list and other works — the 36 plays of Shakespeare, for example — the battle for decency will be profited from their endeavours, literature in Canada may be able to proceed unhindered for several hundred years before the courts catch up with it. And that will be the greatest blessing that the Criminal Code amendment can confer on the nation.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

CRANBROOK, B.C.

Although David Thompson, the great pathfinder, was the first white man to visit this district, in 1807, he had no part in the selection of the name of the city. The building of the C.P.R. through to the coast brought in its wake Col. James Baker, an Englishman and wealthy who purchased a large homestead in the district. He, in credit with having given the town, the word Cranbrook being taken from a market town near his home in Kent, England.

900-Year-Old Dust Is Found

Sudbury Star

People collect all sorts of things in eccentricities, from curios for something different or unusual to the foundation for a museum. Dust is not, as a rule, specifically aimed at the tourist trade. Knick-knacks and antiques are purchased by the millions each year as mementos.

But a collection of dust, unusual, however must be 900-year-old dust from Westminster Abbey. That's old church and buried places of kings and notables is undergoing its first over-all cleaning in centuries.

At the beginning of the cleanup an analysis was made of the dust on its grime. It was shown to contain soot from candles that had burned in the Abbey 800 years ago.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Dove-cotes were a feature of both country and city homes for centuries all over Britain and Europe. In some of the old paintings and drawings these pigeon lofts are shown as elaborate architectural components of the architecture of mansions and palaces. In fine old houses in France and stately palazzos in Italy. To the owners the pigeons in these dove-cotes impart a lovely sense of the charming character of the place.

But dove-cotes were strictly mundane. They were, in fact, more practical than the chicken pen. They were a basic source of food for the house during the lean seasons—of winter and spring. Pigs had to be slaughtered before fall to be fed, there had to be hay for the cattle.

But pigeons were an economical item. They foraged for themselves. They foraged far and wide, over the neighbors' estates, in each darling dove-cote was a trap room in which nest weed's squabs were lovingly incarcerated while being fattened with grain and finally donated and appetized for the table.

In many a town today, pigeons are classified as nuisances. Rarely anybody realizes that there birds are the descendants of their forefathers' live stock.

They try to set us, with their strutting and pecking, to live without their ancestors, we mightn't be here.

It seems far too soon to attribute a reported 30 per-cent drop in accidents to Ontario's new driver examination system. We must wait until the plan has been in force longer than four or five months before any reduction in fatal or care is really responsible for such a spectacular decrease.

Mocking Bird Opens Doors

Calgary Herald

A mockingbird down in Big D (Dallas, Texas, not Dickens', Alta.) has proved once again that man is smarter than the animals — or has he?

The bird's finale actually took place with one of our feathered friends—a mocking bird he has cultivated himself a few ago does so well. Seems a Mr. Roger Dodger, a Dallas citizen, set, rigged his garage doors to that it would open when he honked his automobile horn, and vice versa. So accurately was the device tuned to Mr. Harlan's horn and whistle, that a neighbor could not whistle the door open.

At any rate, all went well on the Harlan homestead until the mate of the house began fiddling with the garage door open when he came home.

A few days later Mr. Harlan reported a mocking bird arrived daily, perched on a backshed hoop above the door and had a delightful time opening and closing the door. Mr. Harlan, Mr. Harlan's whistle. Mr. Harlan considered the problem from all angles, but could not whistle the door open.

Offhand, I can't remember a case in which the parakeet was not upset by it. Yet I can't recall a case in which such a patch of malcolored hair ever turned out to be an omen of impending baldness.

The cause of these gray and white patches is not exactly known. It may be hereditary in some fashion. It may be due to some nutritional deficiency or some disorder of metabolism that causes these areas to lose the pigment that then may be some difference in the particular pigment that does not make. What is known is that the hair of the child is not getting proper food. For if that were the case, all of it would have found enough many, many cases of the same sort in parts of the body that have been subjected to starvation diets. And that is not the case. Although I can't tell you exactly why these odd patches of hair while occur, I have no hesitation in suggesting that stop worrying! Hundreds of thousands of otherwise perfectly normal creatures have been born with small areas on the surface where there was no hair, and no hair ever grew later. Yet it didn't indicate any impairment of health.

People aren't so greatly worried if a dog is born with a brown mole, or a red or purple "strawberry mark" or with both conditions on an extra tongue or toe. We know that these things are not serious. The marks on the skin (if they are so located as to be objectionable) may be removed so can a sixth finger on a hand. Happy is the person who has ten.

However, for some reason which evidently is entirely human, we are more worried when a comparable oddity occurs in the hair.

IT MAY BE PERMANENT

All I can say is this. The change in color of the hair in that spot may be temporary. Or it may be permanent. It's merely a matter of the pigment (coloring matter) in the hair at that spot. Why it fails is a baffling thing of concurrence. So let's not be alarmed by the fact that any that it's one of those things that happens occasionally, but we look at the matter closely. If the child is good, it's something better forgotten.

After all, in the last few years it has become a mark of distinction, or beauty, or something, to bleach a single lock of hair. Why worry if Nature does it?

GRAY OR WHITE PATCHES IN CHILDREN'S HAIR NOT HARMFUL

"Dear Dr. Molner: We have a 13-year-old son whose hair is light brown but we have noticed lately that he has a spot on the back of his head that is all gray. It is about the size of a quarter. What could cause it? Will it go away? — Mrs. A.L."

In the years of my professional life, I've seen my share of cases like this — young people who have a patch of gray or even white hair.

Offhand, I can't remember a case in which the parakeet was not upset by it. Yet I can't recall a case in which such a patch of malcolored hair ever turned out to be an omen of impending baldness.

Using Fingers Is Etiquette

Cape Breton Post

A Sydney restaurant's menu which features a variety of salt meat chicken and chips, carries the printed invitation: "Use your fingers, it's more handy." A kindly and civilized suggestion, welcomed by anybody not too polite for comfort.

There should be more of this sort of thing in the culinary arts. The knife and fork tradition has destroyed the convenience, not as a form of penance, and not designed for anything within a 10 foot circle of roast fowl.

Further what would life to say, in wielding a knife and fork. It may take practice, but it can be done with good taste. What we must need is not nice manners but nice fingers, and a culinary art that can advocate the table manners of Henry the Eighth.

People complicate life, and so give themselves over to many needless problems. Just be kind, and do not burden yourself to carry more than you can.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JUST BE KIND

The virtues of the heart never run out of style. They are always in season. They shine forth, ennobling all within contact of them. The good and the beautiful in character is permanence to spiritual intelligence.

Be simple, kindly things are what make life worth while. Many a day I have had cause to be kind. No extra effort is required. It's the little things that must be kept moving and alert.

George Gissing, the English novelist, on his way home one evening, came upon a crying little girl and learned that it had lost a sixpence. It didn't take this kindly man long to produce a new one, putting it into a chubby little hand — and then came the miracle. A sixpence of happiness, and no more grief. Just be kind, and you will not want for friends.

WATCH OUT FOR GENIUS

The world may be full of "crack-pots" against whom we should keep watchful guard. But let us keep in mind that almost every great discoverer was considered a crack-pot by many in his generation.

Take Socrates for example. Imprisoned at Athens put him to death because he got out of the customary groove of thought and therefore appeared to be corrupting the youth of his day. Many centuries afterward Galileo signed to the flames when he announced that strange plan for making beyond the horizon. The Bible spoke of the ends of the earth. There was a precipice beyond the horizon and this insane fellow was bent on bringing the crews of three ships to tragic ruin. The scientists of his day forced the crack-pot Galileo to get down on his knees and recant his false statement that the sun was the center of the universe and not the earth. Pasteur announced that disease was caused by little bodies he called germs, and that he would try his anti-hydrophobic serum on a boy who had been bitten by a rabid dog. The authorities warned him that if the lad died, Pasteur would be tried for murder.

We look out when you call anybody a crack-pot. He may just be a genius.

The Canadian National Railways does not think the future is behind for the railroad business. The company has ordered 200 heated box cars. These are large steel cars which would double the capacity of standard refrigerator cars.

The freight cars will be ready in October and can be used for the movement of perishable freight in the winter season.

The program of adding freight cars in the future will be in keeping with the thought that Canadian business will expand. There may be low points when things are not too brisk, but over the long period there is little doubt the steadily increasing.

Passenger service may fall off, but freight has to be carried. And, the railroads are the carriers that can take the business in winter and summer. There are times when only railroads can reach some of the communities in Canada.

There is a future for the railroads. The trains will keep on running because they are needed.

A Lift for Living

Replace Ugliness With Beauty

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

At this season we are giving thought to our gardens. On the sidewalks of large cities we have to do our gardening in our dreams, but nevertheless we do it. And on this June day, my mind is drawn to a statement which stands in the Fourth Gospel: "In the place where He was crucified there was a garden."

Although that is just a simple prose statement of description, there is something deeply symbolic about it. The putting of gardens in the places of painful crucifixion, the replacing of the bad things which cause crosses with the good things which make gardens — this is the challenge of Christ.

Consider the contrasts between the cross and the garden. First of all, in the place where He was crucified, there was ugliness. The cross itself was an ugly object. We have decorated it with gold and set it with jewels; but in Jesus' day the cross was viewed as the scaffold as it is in our time, as ugly, sinister object. Then there were the angry tempers of the accusers, the leering countenances of the curious onlookers who had come out to see a man die. The whole scene was ugly.

To replace ugliness with beauty is a task which makes a person feel he is a "worker together with God." It was a true instinct which inspired the authors of the Bible to picture man's beginning in a Garden of Eden. Man is made for beauty. God intended man to enjoy beauty. The growing interest in garden clubs is one of the most wholesome signs of our times. I know some towns where the men's garden clubs are competing with the golf clubs.

A HEALING POWER

Gardens have a healing power. In a period of deep sorrow my wife and I took a trip to Charleston, S.C., to see the glorious magnolia gardens. There was something about those gardens which made us feel that life is too strong for death. That is the symbolic service which flowers render at a funeral service. In that solemn funeral ritual we read, "In the midst of life we are in death"; but flowers remind us that in the midst of death we are in life. If winter comes, flowers are not far behind.

The growing interest in beauty is apparent not only in the gardens around our homes and the parks of our cities but in the arts. At college commencements I see the increased attention given to the fine arts. The way to lessen the strain of the competitive life is to increase the noncompetitive values of our world. We can enjoy beauty without taking away from anyone else.

We can cultivate gardens in our own minds. We speak of our gardens of memory, but are our memories really gardens of glowing beauty or places of ugly conflicting thoughts? Do we keep torturing ourselves with old regrets? Do our minds dwell on the unlovely and painful experiences of the past?

There is, you know, a peculiar section in the channel of memory which can draw in an amazing lot of mental driftwood when once the current gets going in the wrong direction. The little boy put it naively, but truly, when he said, "A fellow starts crying because of the thing which has just hurt him, but he goes on crying for all the sad and sorry things that ever happened."

BECOME OBSESSIONS

That is the way our memories sometimes serve us. They draw us back into circulation so much that should have been discarded. And while we often complain about our inability to remember, it is a worse mental state when we cannot forget, when fixed ideas become obsessions until they unbalance our minds.

One of the secrets of mental peace and progress is to dig from our memories the weedy regrets which infest them. We should sift the ugly, envious thoughts which our present experiences keep sowing in the fertile soil of the subconscious. When C. F. D. Meyer first came from England to the Northfield Conferences, he attracted great crowds, for some years he was a most popular and welcome visiting speaker. But after a time another Englishman, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, came also to Northfield. And the crowds left Meyer to hear the brilliant Bible expounding of Morgan. At first, Dr. Meyer confessed he felt the pangs of jealousy. But he said, "The only way I can conquer my feeling is to pray daily, which I do."

When we hold our minds to whatsoever things are true, honorable, just, pure, lovely and of good report, we are replacing ugly conflicting thoughts with a garden of memories.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

EGG ARRANGEMENTS

Of course we are all aware that eggs must vary greatly in size. Even in our own section of Canada there is the big difference between the tiny, 1 inch long egg of a hummingbird and the big inch one of a common loon. Variation in color is also quite understandable: white if laid in a nest hidden from sight, otherwise marked to suit their surroundings so as to be invisible. But did you realize that their shapes, too, vary?

The hen's egg you had boiled for breakfast is a good example of the standard shape — longer than wide and somewhat smaller at one end than the other. The majority of our songbirds, and a number of others, lay eggs of this type. No doubt they fit into a nest better than perfectly elliptical ones.

Ducks, however, think otherwise. They lay large clutches of eggs that are very nearly the same at both ends. The ballplate, for instance, may have as many as 17 almost elliptical eggs. A favorite arrangement is end to end as though strung together like beads, one necklace placed inside the other.

Owls' white eggs, generally laid in a hollow tree, are little longer than they are wide. Those of the small saw-whet owl are just 1.18 x 1 inches — very nearly spherical.

PEAR SHAPED EGGS

The eggs of certain birds are pear shaped. The semipalmated sandpiper, killdeer, and Wilson's snipe are good examples. Their four eggs naturally fall into the pattern of points meeting in the middle, thus forming a cross.

Gannets nest on precipitous cliffs overlooking the sea in a few large colonies, the largest being on Bonaventure Island off the Gaspe coast. The one very long egg, placed on some trash and seaweed, is held between the feet, as is also the tiny bird afterwards.

A murre makes no attempt to build a nest, but places its single, strongly tapered egg on the edge of a cliff, trusting that owing to its shape it will not roll off, but just roll around in a circle. In June, rows of these birds, parked closely together, may be seen on cliffs in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, each holding an egg between its legs.

We are told that the single egg of a penguin is held somewhat similarly, but actually on top of the feet, and is further protected from freezing by a loose fold of the parent's skin which hangs down over it.

B.G.H. Class '49 Marks 10th Anniversary

Memorable days were recalled as members of the class of '49, Belleville General Hospital, were reunited during the week-end on the 10th anniversary of their graduation.

The weekend's activities began with a gathering at the home of Mrs. Earl Cousins on Saturday afternoon, an attractive buffet supper table.

On Saturday evening, dinner was served by the class in the Pinnacle Room at Hotel Quinte.

A toast to the class was given by Mrs. John (Wahl) Asmussen, expressing the appreciation felt by out-of-town members in being able to meet and reminisce with colleagues once again; also for the hospitality shown by those members who lived in Belleville. Mrs. Lila Kilpatrick, class president, responded.

Following the dinner, the class was entertained at the Officers' Mess at the armouries, with Cecil and Mrs. Alex Cunningham as host and hostess.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE

On Sunday morning the class met again for a tour of B.G.H. where Miss Helen Ross, former associate director of nurses and Miss Eleanor Boyce, clinical instructor, were on hand to be both interesting and informative for the former B.G.H. students to see the recent additions to the hospital and the modernization now underway. The Nurses' Residence of General Hospital has undergone extensive changes, but not least in the nursing school.

The class was entertained at a buffet luncheon at B.G.H., with Miss Kilpatrick and Miss Ross as hostesses.

13 ATTEND

Of the 15 members of the class of '49, 13 were able to attend: Mrs. Lon Keeting (Barbara Ann) Alberta; Mrs. Earl Cousins (Taylor), Belleville; Mrs. John Raven (Dougherty), Belleville; Mrs. Ross Greer (Heasman), Mrs. Doug Richardson (Richardson), Brockville; Mrs. Jack Colden (Stanton), Picton; Mrs. Harold Redden (Bond), Mrs. Warkworth; Mrs. Betty Cunningham (Mallory), Belleville; Mrs. John Stringer (Hagerman), Goderich; Mrs. Ron (Slaven) Thompson, Belleville; Mrs. John (Wahl) Asmussen (English), Copenhagen, Denmark.

Not present were Mrs. George (Poulsen (Edwards), Brockville, and Mrs. Dennis Denton (Lamoin), Galt.

It was felt by all that this reunion was the first of an annual occasion and it was decided to meet again in 1964.

Avondale N.A. Enjoys Views Of Gt. Britain

The closing meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid for the summer months was held at the home of Mrs. D. F. Cameron, Trent Road, with a large attendance of members and several visitors present. The president, Mrs. Melvin, presided.

The various secretaries' reports were given and showed gratifying results of interest and activity in the group.

The devotional period opened with a hymn. Mrs. S. Lough read the Scripture reading from Luke 10:30-37. Mrs. E. Bush gave a meditation and prayer. Two readings "Friendship" and "The Village Neighbors' Aid" were given by Erma Reid.

Several items of finance and other items of business were taken care of.

After a discussion re the usual picnic or chartering a bus for a day's outing it was decided to leave the decision until a later date.

The highlight of the afternoon was when Betty Lough introduced Mrs. Gilbert Bailey who gave an informative talk, and showed the colored slides which she took during her ten - week tour of Great Britain.

Mrs. Bailey expressed the appreciation of those present and presented a small gift to Miss Homan.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Nellie Chambers, Pearl Holmes, Ada Reed, and Lena Reid.

Several ladies received gifts during the social period, namely Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Bonnor, Mrs. Wettlaufer, and Mrs. Reid.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Cameron for opening her home, and to Mrs. Melvin, president, and committee, concluded another enjoyable meeting.

Fearless Words

By Alma Mason

There are many kinds of courage; silent long suffering, patient courage; the courage that springs from physical endurance; the courage of self denial; the courage that refuses to yield to set patterns laid down by the rank and file; the bold, militant courage that battles fearlessly by word and deed for a just cause regardless of public ridicule.

John the Baptist exhibited a rugged, stern and passionate courage in propounding his convictions. His courage was not to his personal appearance. We are told that he was garbed crudely in camel skins, that his hair was matted and unkempt, that he subsisted almost unshod, burned by the sun and the wind; that his appearance — like his words — was dynamic, unusual, simple and primitive. His words were unadorned by any thought of politeness or convention.

John knew that God expected him to pave the way for the Messiah — to be a forerunner for the Son of Man. He saw that Israel must be subjected to a great purification. He realized that if the spiritual tree of Israel would be spared the axe, it must first produce fruits steeped in repentance.

John's mission was to rouse lethargic, degenerate people from a dogmatic sleep and bring about moral reform. This could only be accomplished by a simple, fearless, forthright man. He openly attacked the hypocrites for their greed; the soldiers for cruelty and violence. When approached by the self satisfied Pharisees he became openly wrathful and accusing. Before his humble death he routed men to an eager expectancy and belief in a new democracy founded on the dictates of conscience.

When John the Baptist rose to lash the meandering herds of sinners back into the fold, there was neither flattery nor unreasonable sure could cause him to swerve from his evangelical purpose. His age — like ours — was a self seeking age. The world was whipped the people who blindly followed each other in wrong doing like stupid sheep.

Reading the lives of John the Baptist dress was laid on outward religious practices. There was no power to impede or convert the sinful. Deep down men were lonely and lost. The people ritual, the empty monotonous teachings of the Scribes were as clanging brass and tinkling symbols. For four hundred years there had been no prophet in Israel.

John's staunchly in his cry for repentance roused the people to shed contrite tears. Many of the people incredibly knowing its emptiness, they were also blind and self-satisfied and aroused. John fearlessly criticised and rebuked King Herod for his adultery in taking his brother's wife to him heart hunger. The silver essence of stalwart moral principles fed his empty soul. The royal sinner sent for John again and again.

COURAGE OF CONVICTIONS

Great men, bold men imbued with Christian faith who are not afraid of public scorn and who openly confess to the world some of their convictions are God's finest gift to nations. Pioneers who lead the advance in morals and religions do more for mankind than all others.

Today God has sent another prophet to a sin burdened world. Billy Graham — like John the Baptist — is a forerunner with a weighted world to a light shining in the darkness.

We cannot be John the Baptists or Billy Grahams. We can, however, wear the badge of Christian belief over our hearts for all to see instead of concealing it cravenly within.

We can speak out for Christ and our belief in His teachings with Christian courage. Only the spread of the principles of Christianity through fearless words will save our nation, our cruel world from wholesale destruction.

How far we have fallen from the early faith; the faith that was sanctified even when followers of Jesus were fed to the lions and burned at the stake. How ashamed those martyred forefathers of Christianity would be of us!

He who does not have the courage of his convictions has no convictions. Nothing good comes or spreads without sharing. Let us take out our rusty buried faith and exhibit it proudly and exalt it by distributing it freely before it dies forever in a damp, dark soul. Let us awake and arouse those about us by fearless words, and noble deeds with tenderness but with an unbending determination.

A dormant cringing faith is no faith at all. It will never be worthy of the great prophets who martyred army of those who died for the faith and of He who died on the cross that we might live.

God, make us fearless in Thy cause,
With souls of iron and steel;
May all the halting unsaid words,
The Christ like thoughts we feel

Buried within a craven heart,
Dormant in coward's soul,
Emerge and flaunt a banner brave
To heal and make men whole.

Wedding

CROZIER — CARTER

A lovely wedding was solemnized recently in Christ Church, Belleville, when Marilyn Joan Carter, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Carter, was united in marriage to William Roger Crozier, also of Belleville, son of Mr. A. E. Crozier, of Welland, Ontario, by the Reverend Everett Smith, assisted by the rector of the church, a double-ring ceremony. White gladioli and mums adorned the church for the nuptial rites. Mr. Gay of Man's Destiny," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her wedding gown of white brocade with Chantilly lace bodice in fitted style, with long chapel scalloped Sabrina neckline, etched with sequins, the bouffant sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The fully fitted skirt had many criss-cross allines, was complemented with wide tiers of alternate lace and brocade. The finger-tip veil of Juliet design encrusted with sequin - edged lace, tiny seed pearls and caught by a pearl and the-face finger-tip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a cascade of Carl Ambling gardenias, with white streamers, pompons mingled with ivy.

Miss Marion Jean Carter, of Peterborough, cousin of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in a sheath dress of navy, designed on Grecian lines with shoulder drapes, bodice accented with two flying panels, and embasined with bouffant, bell-shaped skirt, finished with a deep row of tucking. She wore a matching picture headdress of pearl-tooled leaves entwined with iridescent mohair; shirred veiling fell from the headdress and carried a mosegay of blue cornflowers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Marie Reid and Miss Marilyn Tapp, both of Belleville, were attired in Romance blue, identical in style to that worn by the maid of honor, with matching headdresses and gauntlets. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

The flower girl, Miss Cheryl Lloyd, of Belleville, was daintily frocked in a Romance blue chiffon floor-length dress with matching headdress of softly-draped collar caught by a pearl brooch and full skirt over a hoop. She wore tiny matching gauntlets, a floral wreath of blue cornflowers and carried a small basket of pink and white Pinocchio pompons.

Mr. Frank Wettlaufer, of Welland, Ontario, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man, while Messrs. Alex Ryan of Belleville, Royan Ryan, also of Belleville, and Ken Smith, of Wawa (Jamestown), Ontario, were ushers.

The reception was held in Club Canara for approximately 100 guests. The bridal table was appointed with white gladioli and mums, a three-tiered wedding cake in all-white topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked with white candles and the bridal bouquets.

The bride's mother received, gowned in a seafoam aqua petti length dress with matching coat, an organza cummerbund caught at the back by a pearl spray and complemented by a matching lace bolero. She wore a tiny pillbox hat in white, with white and white velvet violets, with matching accessories. The groom's mother was a white orchid with yellow throat.

The bridegroom's sister assisted, gowned in a two-piece Romance blue style ensemble with shrimp with white accessories and corsage of white roses.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. St. Catharines, Buffalo, Welland, Niagara Falls and Oshawa, the bride chose a royal blue, fine English wool suit with blouson jacket and three-quarter length cloche hat, beige gloves, shoes and purse. A white orchid completed her ensemble.

Guests were present from Peterborough, Toronto, Brockville, Kingston, Wawa, Oshawa, Waterloo, Welland, Toronto, Peterborough, Niagara Falls and Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at the home of Mrs. Raymond Cassidy, Belleville, at a miscellaneous shower, and at the home of Mrs. Harold Baker, with co-hostesses, Mrs. Raymond Latchford, Mrs. Arnold Weston. Also at the home of Mrs. Dick Black, Belleville, members of the bride associated her with a coffee table; the employees of the Big "A" Company presented her with an electric vacuum cleaner and Peterborough friends a leather hassock from the employees of the Foley Foundry and Machine Company.

A trousseau tea was held at the home of Mrs. Baker for her friends and neighbors. Mrs. Malcolm McClelland, of Belleville, godmother and aunt of the bride, poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Walter Breach, of Peterborough, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Arthur Breach, of Belleville, grandmother of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. William Roger Crozier are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Joan Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Carter, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. A. E. Crozier of Welland, Ontario. This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

It is two years since an editorial appeared in a magazine I printed in Ceylon concerning a letter I'd T had written. The editorial was entitled "Silken Fetters." The editorial and its correspondence was a literal example of contradiction to Kipling's lines "Oh, East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," On October 26, 1957, I & T wrote "Silken Fetters." The words convey a thought quite possibly unintended. How much more desirable to be fettered by silk than tantalized by tanks. It is a law of nature and the way of men that perfection eludes us beyond the horizons of our endeavors, but the hope that justice will in the end break silken fetters quicker and easier than iron curtains seem a cruel people deduction.

Let & T indulges itself not in valu eulogy. Rather, this 26th day of June, 1957, we pray for humility for Commonwealth leaders in London strengthen the silk that binds us; weave a fibre strong enough eventually to destroy intolerance and injustice, and give strength to create faith rather than suspicion. We pray that the ultimate reality of peace on earth, goodwill toward men guides all our deliberations. We pray that the possible weakening of Commonwealth does not happen and that Commonwealth by its very mysticism, its very ideals, its very silken fetters will grow stronger for peace. We pray for the men who meet together and that they find that strength being lain human frailty. And, too, in a column on the women's page, it is fitting to pray for the gracious mother, woman and wife, Elizabeth Windsor, the power in Commonwealth of a 'Silken Fetter.'

End of quotation two years ago the date of this.

What a spring of material lies here to elaborate a tenuous thread of endless logic. What innumerable bricks of words is in a storehouse of language from which to build a structure that could build with bricks of meaning a mansion. What a splendid silken fetter is here to study. What a wealth of words remaining to be stitched.

Let the social cynical joy seemingly to delight the pseudo realist, is here for the prejudiced of the ages to wax intellectual upon. From sticks and stones, from steel and atoms, the mighty all of our yesterdays have risen transiently and fallen irrevocably. The envious satisfy a little jealousy. The bullying is little understood and lightly shouldered. What is a silken thread?

The silken thread of commonwealth is the hope of mankind, is the ideal of aspiring humanity and the forever beyond reach of the ethic of the brotherhood of man. It is indeed a tenuous slender thing. It is indeed the only thing that has remained man from his dark ages and given him the fortitude to try again. It is the British Commonwealth wealth is the most glorious experiment in international understanding ever conceived, born in tribulations, succoured in the blood of the best of today, in our twentieth century, bred together not by British legions and centurions, Communist tanks and fear, nor of selfrighteousness of false protection. It is an unfinished pattern woven so far by a slender silken fetter than can be cut away in as few seconds as it has taken years to stitch so far. It is not the only pattern and many are the best stitches and many are the weak; and always are the strength of new and thread looked for and required. And, most important, the architects are not exclusive or dictatorial. Improvement is sought from India and Pakistan, from the U.K. and N.Z., from Singapore and Trinidad, from all men of goodwill.

Of course it is an ideal and it is in many ways mystifying, but the ethic of all great religions is an ideal and the fatherhood of God is a mystery. Even a silken fetter requires a symbol. It is a human necessity. Our symbol is as gracious, as good, as human, and as slender as the silken fetter of symbolizes. We welcome to Canada our fellow commonwealth answer her critics nor exist her own virtues. We extend our welcome to all the commonwealth pray she may be sustained and guided by God, that she may be endowed with courage and character which add distinction, which will make her a fitting silken fetter of Commonwealth. We welcome Her from Steer who in Saturday night tells us of the Indian factory worker in Bombay. In reply to Prince Philip's enquiry as to the reason the old workman wanted the Queen to come to India he said "Is she not the Mother of our Commonwealth."

God save and protect the Mother of our Commonwealth and the silken fetter she so fitly symbolizes. May the symbol of a silk ribbon known as the mighty St. Lawrence which ties the oceans with the heart of a continent be with her as she journeys across the Dominion and brings out her arduous and inescapable duties.

Visitors Must Go A-Hunting to Enjoy Mysterious London

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

What Paris is to women, London is to men.

If the gay cocquette perfumed, coiffed and costumed to a turn is the symbol of Paris; then the Englishman and his bowler, brolly and mustache is the very soul of London.

Paris is enchanting as a seductive woman, but London is intriguing as a mysterious gentleman. Its weathered stone buildings with their polished brass entrances and aged wood interiors are tailored to conservative masculinity the very face of Paris is turned to feminine frivolity.

With the exception of historical landmarks, London's outward appearance is nondescript as great cities go. There are no sky-scrapers of modern architectural complexes. Shop windows are tasteful gaudiest are only politely inviting. Piecadilly Circus is a tawdry honkytonk, Leicester Square a sweep or cornball glamor of Times Square.

The real London demands to be sought out. So much of what is magnificent is tucked away in someplace, like the famous tarnished Temple Bar Memorial, ugly on the outside but ingenious-ly restored on the inside, with darkly tinted windows, a partition between the driver and passenger and room enough for visitors set back from prying eyes. Seeking the unusual, most tourous tailors you must root out an unobtrusive little street called Savile Row. Here in the shops there are in dim semi-basements behind tiny windows at the end of subterranean passages. Bargains in Sheffield silver are found in the most unexpected of vaults on Chancery Lane, where partners in a solicitor's office junk in cubbyholes behind steel doors.

You must look to find the financial houses on Lombard Street, where there is a sameness about the buildings that is little understood by Americans and Britishers alike. Only one thing that has remained man from his dark ages and given him the fortitude to try again. It is the British Commonwealth wealth is the most glorious experiment in international understanding ever conceived, born in tribulations, succoured in the blood of the best of today, in our twentieth century, bred together not by British legions and centurions, Communist tanks and fear, nor of self-righteousness of false protection. Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

A newspaper story, telling how a harbor bell had guided a distressed vessel into the safety of a fog-shrouded port, supplied the inspiration for this old gospel hymn.

John H. Yates of Batavia, New York wrote the song after reading the news piece . . . an eye witness account in which sailor said: "We were nearing a dangerous coast and night was drawing near. Suddenly a heavy fog set-

THE HARBOR BELL

Our life is like a stormy sea
Swept by the gales of sin and guilt
While on the windward and the lee
Rising heavy clouds of unbelief;
But o'er the deep a call we hear,
Like a harbor bell's inviting voice;
It tells the lost that hope is near,
And bids the trembling soul rejoice.

Come, gracious Lord, and in Thy love
Conduct us o'er life's stormy wave;
O guide us to the home above,
The blissful home beyond the grave;
There, safe from rock, and storm and flood,
Our song of praise shall never cease,
To Him who bought us with His blood,
And brought us to the port of peace.

tled down upon us. No lights had been sighted and the pilot seemed anxious and troubled, not knowing how soon we might be driven to pieces on the hidden rocks along the shore.

The whistle was blown loud and long but no response was heard. The captain ordered the engines to be stopped and for some time we drifted about on the waves. Suddenly the pilot cried, "Hark!" and far away in the distance we heard the well-come tones of the harbor bell which seemed to say: 'This way, this way.' Again the engines were started, and guided by the welcome sound we entered the port in safety.

Mr. Yates was not a preacher but his hymn-message is a grand sermon. It pictures life as a between gales of sin and grief" and darkness by "heavy clouds of unbelief" . . . a sea on which the voice of Jesus, inviting men and women to Christian peace, is a welcome harbor bell.

"Arthur's greatest passion is for watches which he buys wholesale by the gross," writes Mrs. Murray in a series of recent articles for the Saturday Evening Post about her famous husband. "There are what we once known as 'dollar watches' which he wears (in preference, say to the $1000 wafer-thin platinum wrist watch, a Christmas gift from his wife) and discards whenever anything goes wrong, to select another from a desk drawer crammed with them."

Mr. Ronald Keel, owner of one of Belleville's jewelry stores, who is an expert watchmaker, claims dollar watches enticed him to take up his career.

"As a youngster," he said re-cently, "I worked as a customs' clerk in a wholesale house where customers were given brand new dollar watches for their old ones rather than bother with repairs. I used to collect, take apart, make "like new" and sell these. By the time I was fifteen, I knew what I "must" be led to be a watchmaker."

Today, aspiring young watchmakers attend The Provincial Trades Institute for two years.

"But in my day," Mr. Keel continued, "it was a matter of being apprenticed to a watchmaker and the term of service depended upon individual ability entirely. For the first six months I worked for my board, the next six months for ten dollars a month, then my rate of pay-ing list, too, and soon after, I got a two-dollar raise. That was something! By the time I was twenty, I was considered ready to start on my own."

"I recall sometime later applying for an opening at Ryrie Brothers, (now Ryrie Birks) but was told that only watchmakers with families and years experience need apply. I heard afterwards that they felt one young could not possibly qualify."

SWITZERLAND LEADS

While most of us think of watches made in Switzerland" where the work is handed down in families from generation to generation so that other nations can not really compete with the Swiss workmanship, still a watchmaker must have a kit of tools which calls today for, at least, an outlay of a thousand dollars, said Mr. Keel. A very good watch, for instance, costs two hundred dollars.

"That's one advantage about the apprentice system; it allows one to buy tools gradually as one is learning."

Mr. Keel has repaired timepieces of all sizes, makes and kinds and has a special fondness for old French clocks. The workmanship in them, he says, makes them a joy to repair.

However, his marvel how jewelry stores keep their stocks so immaculate and gleaming. Concerning this, the elderly, courtly mannered clerk in one of Montreal's oldest, well-established jewelry stores said:

"Yes—rings and watches are kept bright and scrupulously clean—days by better polishing cream methods and cloths. But the old days of the 'spit and polish' era. Then the members of the staff were expected to remain after hours and polish and shine each piece by the 'thumb-and-palm' method, rubbing them with the thumb against the palm of the hand, a—this is the way. It kept the jewelry gleaming all right, but it took many, long weary unpaid hours to do it. They speak of the 'good old days,' but those days have given away to a much happier life—for us, at least, behind the counter."

Esteem and time-pieces seem to go hand in hand. Mr. Keel can watch means much to his son; anniversary gifts are often made with watches and clocks.

At the entrance to McGill University there are gates and a clock tower, about which the late Lady Roddick was asked, shortly after World War I:

She answered: "Those gates are a memorial to my husband, and it all came about this way. First let me say the doctor, my husband, was a family physician for very few families because his duties as the university and hospital were extremely heavy. For one thing, did you know he took part in petting through the legislation which took twenty years of constant effort, whereby doctors could practice throughout the entire Dominion, instead of in just one province?

"During my married life, I used to drive with him a great deal in our horse and carriage; be it to a patient, the hospital or the university. One day at the drive at McGill where he was to give a lecture, he was worried about the time. We turned into the driveway where the gate of the campus was discovered—and he exclaimed somewhat impatiently, that there was a clock here. Time is too precious to waste by arriving too early or too late.

"Upon our return from the lecture, the gate was alas time unfortunately closed, and I had to get out of the carriage in order to open it that we might pass through, and I said, 'I think there should be a clock erected at least decrease a decent gate!'

"So, it seemed fitting that Clock Tower and Gates should be erected as a memorial to Sir Roddick . . ."

Grandmothers Give Program At W.A. Meet

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. W. Nightingale of Bluff's Island opened her home on June 10 for the June meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute.

The president, Mrs. W. Bennet, presided and opened the meeting.

There was much business to discuss and afterward Mrs. F. Roulth, delegate to the district annual, gave an interesting report of that event. Roll call was answered by producing a baby picture of one's self or paying a five-cent fine.

Mrs. Clifford Barber, district president who is a member of Mountain View Institute, was called upon to present life membership pins and certificates to the three remaining charter members of the Institute. They are Mrs. Arnold Walbridge, Mrs. Will Barber and Miss Lillian Anderson.

This was "Grandmothers' Meeting," with Mrs. G. Neal as convener. Each grandmother contributed a number and an interesting program was enjoyed. Prizes were presented to the oldest grandmother, Mrs. J. Greiner; the youngest, Mrs. J. Roblin; one with most grandchildren, Mrs. J. Wallbridge and one with only one grandchild, Mrs. G. Harns.

Mrs. Fred Mottley arranged a contest which was won by Mrs. C. Watering and Mrs. B. Anderson.

The lunch committee assisted the hostess in serving light refreshments. Mrs. F. Mottley thanked Mrs. Nightingale for her hospitality.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Barber.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

THANK-YOU NOTES FOR ALL SYMPATHY MESSAGES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother-passed on recently. I have written all the thank-you letters for flowers sent to the funeral parlor and to the church. Should all letters or other messages of sympathy telegrams, cards, etc., also be acknowledged? If so, will you please suggest a sample note, a short but sincere one that I might use to thank for all of these? — F. R.

Yes, all messages of sympathy . . . letters, cards, telegrams, etc. . . . should be thanked for by a sincere little note of appreciation of this thoughtfulness. For example:

Dear Mrs. Hall:

Thank you for your very kind message of sympathy. Your warm words of understanding were a deep comfort to us.

— Sincerely,

"WHYS" OF SEATING ARRANGEMENTS AT WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Breckman:

I've often wondered why the groom's family and friends are seated on the right of the church aisle and the bride's family and friends are seated at the left. I should think that actually it should be the other way around, since the bride's family are the hosts of the wedding. Will you please explain the why of this? — Reader

That's just the reason . . . that the bride's family are the hosts of the wedding. Since the groom's parents are the honored guests of the wedding they are seated on the right of the bride's parents, who are the hosts of the wedding.

This is the reason, too, why at the parents' table at the reception, the groom's mother, the woman guest of honor of the wedding, is seated at the right of the bride's father, the host of the wedding; and why the groom's father, the man guest of honor of the wedding, is seated at the right of the bride's mother, the hostess of the wedding.

NURSING CENTRE

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A $2,000,000 nurses' training centre will be built next year at the Royal Columbian Hospital here.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and home economist. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

MAY S. — I want to move you away from his father.

JOHN S. — You can't run away from trouble.

* * *

May S. — I have the most awful problem a woman was ever confronted with.

I made a crazy marriage at 17 and had a son a year later. By the time the boy was born my husband and I had split up. I later learned that my husband had been a homosexual for years.

My second marriage is happy and I have two other children, but I am worried about my first boy, Stan. He is now 12 years old and I am afraid he'll soon begin to ask questions. He loves his stepfather, but he also loves and looks up to his father. In fact he even wants to go to the same schools and follow the same career as his father.

I want to move to a different part of town to take Stan away from his father's influence. My husband says he can't up-root the family on a constant clue, but can anything be more important than saving the boy?

John S. — I keep telling May you can run away from trouble. What's going to be is going to be regardless of where we live or what we do. If the boy has tendencies in that direction, moving won't help. If he hasn't, his father's influence won't hurt him.

It's true that it will probably be a shock to Stan to learn what the score is. But he will have to learn someday, sometime. Even if we live far away, he'll want to get to see his father sometimes. You can't hide things forever.

May is making a nervous wreck of herself about this thing. She keeps asking whether or not I think that certain gestures of Stan's aren't classified. Well, that just can't tell about a kid that age. He'll change a lot in the next two years. But anyway, May has to learn to accept the worst — if it happens.

The Council: May and John should make it their business to learn more about homosexuality. And they should get it straight from a psychiatrist, not from casual opinion or their own idle speculation.

The best medical evidence available today indicates that the need or desire to practice homosexuality as an adult is not inborn and not inherited. Psychiatrists find that the homosexual impulse may be curbed or encouraged, according to various factors in the environment.

The basic factor in producing an emotionally healthy and mature individual, who seeks fulfillment of sexual needs with members of the opposite sex, is the right kind of parental love. The right kind of love does not involve fawning fear that has gripped May; or the "what-do-I-do-like" attitude that John advances. Children certainly can be influenced and guided toward a better life, but not by parental acting out of hysteria.

In this case, we cannot tell whether Stan's father's influence is harmful, but May should discontinue her present course. Either way, if the father is not an obvious homosexual or a poorly-standing homosexual and if he is a fairly responsible person, the contact between him and the boy may be harmless. The fact that the boy now loves him indicates that the relationship so far has been good.

Our guess is that May's worry, her search for "tendencies" and "classified gestures" are doing more harm than contact with the father. It is unlikely that this boy will ask questions about his father's sex life and he should be told nothing about it. If he should learn through an outside source, he should be helped to accept it as an emotional difficulty of his father's which need not concern him any more than some acquired physical handicap of his father's.

Essex Tops In Cricket

LONDON (Reuters) — Though batsmen were favored by hard, true pitches, only three of the six matches in the current county cricket championship list produced definite decisions.

In the top six, the only upward move was made by a team which failed to win, Glamorgan. Though beaten in the last couple of minutes by Kent, Glamorgan gained four bonus points which enabled it to displace Derbyshire from second place.

Essex is top of the table with 24 points followed by Glamorgan 82, Derbyshire 80, Middlesex 78, and Hampshire and Warwickshire 70 each.

Essex and Hampshire did not have matches in the series which ended Friday and Warwickshire and Northonshire were playing outside the championship against the universities. Derbyshire drew with Surrey.

Jim Presdee celebrated his 30th birthday with an unbeaten 107 for Glamorgan, which was beaten by one wicket by Kent. Hitting 13 fours, Presdee took his match figures to 181 for one out.

A hurricane knock of 32 in 34 minutes by John Prettee helped Kent reach its target of 249 for victory in 2¾ hours.

No Private School for Kids Of Tennessee Ernie Ford

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Keep a hold of a boy's hand and he ain't going to hurt nothing," sept maybe snakes."

That's the keynote for Father's Day, offered by a philosopher Ford. Ernie was relaxing between rehearsals for his Thursday night NBC-TV show and talking seriously about his two the boys, Tate, 9, and Brian, 7.

"They're all boy, and I want to keep them that way," he commented. "That's why we're going to pull out of this town in a couple of years."

What's that? Leave Hollywood while he's riding the crest of popularity?

Yes, we've bought us 15 acres up north, back of the Stanford campus," he said. "Come late 1960 or early 1961, we'll start building a house on the property. Then we'll move the whole family up there."

JET TRAVEL HELPS

Ernie argued that with jet travel he can reach Hollywood from San Francisco in less than an hour. The reason for the move, he said, was to give his two sons more of the kind of upbringing he had as a youngster.

"Why, back at my home, I could run out the back door and keep going as far as I could run and it would still be open fields," he said. "It's hard to find that kind of country today, but at least I can get my kids out of the city and keep an eye on them.

Ernie admitted that it was hard to rear children by homely precepts in Hollywood. For instance, he was urged to send his boys to private school.

"They were going to pick the boys up every morning in a seven passenger limousine. Can you imagine that?" he said. "Nosiree. My kids are going to public schools, where they meet all kinds of kids from all kinds of backgrounds."

City Manager System of Govt. Produces Variety of Opinions In Cross-Canada Survey

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The city manager—danger to democratic government or the answer to the prayers of overworked municipal councils?

Does this form of government, as former Ottawa Mayor Charlotte Whitton says, tend to "strangle the democratic process"?

Or does it, as Alderman Evelyn Caldwell of Vancouver says, simply place a city's administration on a "more business-like basis"?

The city manager system and its variations are operating in more than 50 Canadian communities. Some critics of the system say it tends to strangle the democratic process but others say it places civic administration on a more business-like basis. One professional city manager is E. Royden Colter who has helped streamline operations of the Windsor, Ont., city government. Mr. Colter, now 56, has been more than 30 years in the field. (CP Photo)

CITY MANAGER — The city manager system and its variations are operating in more than 50 Canadian communities. Some critics of the system say it tends to strangle the democratic process but others say it places civic administration on a more business-like basis. One professional city manager is E. Royden Colter who has helped streamline operations of the Windsor, Ont., city government. Mr. Colter, now 56, has been more than 30 years in the field. (CP Photo)

Under this city manager system, says its city manager, husky August A. Dellard, 314,104 a year. A native of New York who was formerly a college professor, he went to Halifax from Milford, Conn., where he was assistant commissioner of finance.

He's described as tough in his dealings but is generally credited with getting results. Mayor C. A. Vaughan says the city manager frees him of much of the detailed matters he was formerly required to handle; has led to closer co-operation among city departments and has worked out well in the system.

Another professional is E. Royden Colter, 56-year-old Fredericton-born veteran of more than 30 years in the field. He moved from Halifax to Windsor, Ont., when that city of 125,000 adopted the system at the beginning of this year.

A graduate of the University of New Brunswick who later lectured on municipal administration at the University of Maine, he has learned the importance of not interfering with policy-making. His background and training earns him respect of elected officials who seek facts from him on which to base policy.

With the staunch support of Mayor Michael Patrick, Mr. Colter has helped streamline the operations of the city's government. The budget was ready in record time this year; estimates were reduced by $689,000, and members of city council have been relieved of much time-consuming work by the elimination of standing committees.

Despite such expressed fears, the city manager becoming the recognized political leader, reducing the prestige of elected officials and discouraging the best type of candidate from running for civic office.

Of the board of commissioners arrangement, Mr. Plunkett says an important feature is that the mayor, as elected official, is a participant in the vital stage when problems are being analysed and before recommendations are formulated for presentation to the council.

"Under this arrangement direction and leadership in civic affairs is provided by the city's recognized political leader."

The mayor was left with the responsibility of voicing support for policy recommendations in council, relieving the appointed commissioners of the difficult task of advocating proposals they had helped frame.

OPPOSES SYSTEMS

An absolute opponent of both the commissioner and city manager systems is Miss Whitton who said:

"In my view, commissioner government concentrates terrible power in the hands of three men."

She was referring to the arrangement whereby the mayor and two appointed officials act as commissioners, as is the case in Edmonton.

"It's efficient but is it democratic?" Miss Whitton asked. "Putting a city manager in is to begin to strangle the democratic process. In these types of municipal government you tend to get ill-informed types of elected representatives, a mayor who rides in the boat of the city manager, using his oars, and long tenures of office."

Mr. Plunkett, whose book was published by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, sees both good and bad features in this form of government.

He says it leaves elected councillors free to devote their time exclusively to formulating policy. It can, if a tained, competent manager is appointed, furnish the municipality with a high calibre of professional administrative management; it provides the best possibility of achieving over-all co-ordination of administration, and it can furnish continuity of administration and more effective long-range planning.

"The principal defect in the council-manager plan," he says, "is the general assumption upon which the whole scheme is based —that policy and administration can somehow be separated.

HARD TO SEPARATE

"Few will deny the desirability of separating these functions but it is at least questionable to assume that an elected council of laymen can initiate much in the way of policy without some acquaintanceship with the problems of administration. . . ."

He further cites the danger of

Your Car
Keep Your Car Well Greased At All Times

By EUGENE MILMOE

Without good lubrication, as most drivers know, engines can't run smoothly, economically or for very long.

Cars don't face the same type of job for chassis, suspension, etc. Besides saving wear, it promotes easier steering and softer riding and cushions parts to minimize car noise and bumping on rough roads.

Few service stations will remind you when your car is due (or overdue) for a good greasing. It's up to you to set up a schedule. Most car makers recommend chassis lubrication every 1,000 to 2,000 miles, while some independent experts say you can safely stretch the interval a bit more than that.

Perhaps not, if doesn't really pay, especially when your car is subjected to much vibration it appears that most municipalities operating under the city manager-council system are satisfied with it. One reason may be that in choosing such administrators, municipalities go after experienced and specialized students of civic affairs. Most are well-paid and for the most part have forgotten political ambitions or never had them in the first place.

Halifax, for example, says its city manager, husky August A. Dellard, $14,104 a year. A native of New York who was formerly a college professor, he went to Halifax from Milford, Conn., where he was assistant commissioner of finance.

He's described as tough in his dealings but is generally credited with getting results. Mayor C. A. Silky Sullivan Back at Old Tricks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—They gave Silky Sullivan something less than a standing ovation Friday when he came on to the track.

But when the race was run most of the 26,000 horse racing fans were on their feet cheering.

Silky the unpredictable had done it again. He won with his customary pulse-straining burst of speed down the stretch at Hollywood Park. In two previous races the rascal had flopped.

The event was the $10,000 Monterey Purse at seven furlongs. Aboard was jockey Willie Shoemaker.

As expected, Silky fell back at the start and at one time was some 10 lengths off the pace. Came the turn for home. Silky ran wide, collared the field and won by nearly two lengths over Find. Trailing were Allhi Rise, Bold Bazooka, Nevada, Spinsey and Native Indian.

(B) Here's further evidence that dirt, corrosion or both are the most frequent and elusive troublemaker.

From T. Y.: "My engine won't idle smoothly. I am aware that any one of a hundred reasons could be at fault but would like to learn if it is more apt to be an ignition, fuel or compression trouble."

(A) The fuel system is the most common cause of rough idle, and generally it's because the mixture is a bit too rich.

and wet weather. A car driven approximately 10,000 miles a year, for example, will certainly benefit if chassis lubrication is checked every month.

From D. H.: "When I turn off the engine, my headlights are much dimmer than they were with the engine on. Can you explain why?"

(A) This is most often traced to corroded or loose battery cable connections.

J. O'K. writes: "After only a few thousand miles, my new right front tire grew out. The dealer says I ruined it by either hitting curbstones or keeping air too low. Since the tread itself is hardly worn, and no scrapes show (it's a white-wall), how can he make this claim?"

(A) Continued underinflation or frequent curb-bouncing ruins tires by weakening the sidewalls quickly.

H. W. asks: "For weeks my engine had an irregular miss. After trying many cures, the miss finally disappeared when I cleaned all plug wire terminals in the distributor cap. Perhaps you but I doesn't really pay, especially when your car is subjected to much vibration

Redl Stopped By Fernandez

NEW YORK (AP) — Cuba's Florentino Fernandez stopped Hungarian-born Stefan Redl of Passaic, N.J., in 1:07 of the seventh round Friday night to lead a successful three-match Latin American invasion of Madison Square Garden. Fernandez weighed 144½, Redl 147.

Capt. Felipe Matos, director of sports in Cuba, jumped into the ring and wrapped the Cuban flag around Fernandez after referee Harry Ebbets stopped the bout.

A left hook to the jaw dumped Redl for a count of nine. He was helpless when he rose, so the bout was stopped at once.

It was the 20th straight victory for the unbeaten Fernandez and his 18th victim who failed to go the route. It was the first time Redl has been stopped in his 28-bout pro career.

All three officials had Fernandez well ahead when the end came.

Carlos Hernandez, unbeaten Caracas lightweight now fighting out of Cuba, won a hig nand straight with a unanimous decision over Luke Easter of Pittsburgh in an eight-round bout. Hernandez, 21, weighed 133½. Easter 136 pounds.

Easter was the first of nine opponents to last the distance against Hernandez. But he did it the hard way.

The rangy Cuban dropped Easter for the automatic eight count in the seventh round and rocked him in the eighth round.

Douglas Vaillant, 21 - year - old Cuban import, won a unanimous six-round decision over Jimmy Grove of Lewiston, Idaho. Vaillant weighed 134½, Grove 136.

What do you look for in a STATION WAGON?

Ample load space
Most station wagons have disappointingly little load space. By contrast, the International Travelall has enormous cargo room—96" long and 51" high when rear seats are removed. You can easily lay a sheet of plywood on the floor, with rear doors closed.

Roomy passenger space
Eight big men have plenty of head room and leg room in the spacious Travelall. There's no crouching when you get in and out—a welcome change from ordinary cramped station wagons. An extra curbside door gives convenient access to the rear seats.

Attractive, sensible styling
You'll be proud of the Travelall wherever you go. Twin headlights, chrome bumpers, long lasting body, and two tone styling make it as smart as it's practical. Rest assured, styling is not extreme, it costs less to keep the Travelall looking show-room new.

Sound engineering
The Travelall is a practical station wagon that's built to last! Frame is strong to carry substantial loads. High clearance helps you drive over roads that would damage a passenger-car type station wagon. Steering is easy and positive. Available with 4-wheel drive.

Before you buy any station wagon, see your nearest International Dealer or Branch

JUDD NIGHT AT THE CNRA PARK

Tonight is the night the Ox Point warclubs will attempt to send the jet-propelled missiles of Lakefield's Ray Judd into orbit, and Pal Marsele will persist his rubber arm into enticing the bat-wielding Juddists into veering at his shoots without benefit of contact.

The wily old chief from the happy hunting grounds of Ox Point, Deseronto and other eastern points, has been waiting for this one. He hasn't been saying, nor for that matter, doing too much about it, but word from the tribe has it, he has been saving himself for the big return duel with the crack missile-tosser of the Peterborough Softball League — and tonight's the night.

The Ox Pointers must needs have their batting eyes in proper focus for despatches from up around the Kawarthas have it that Master Judd's fast ball this year could ask a lightning bolt if it wanted a tow. You can take that one for what it is worth.

The mound aces battled to a scoreless tie for nine innings or so in the first bout of the home and home exhibition series. Judd was batting and Marsele started to walk him purposely. The crafty Mormon merely leaned over the plate, stroked the fourth wide one for a double and a runner on second scored to win the game 1-0.

So tonight they hook up again and it should be a thriller of a mound battle. The game gets under way at the CNRA Park at 6.45.

Europeans may have their international hockey rules which differ to those on this side of the pond, but in wrestling the script is the same but with a Gaelic flavor.

They have the good guys and the bad guys and with the Latin people being such volatile folks, the style is sprear and high jinks sometimes top those of their American and Canadian counterparts.

The goodest of the good guys at the moment over there is the White Angel, a roddike hunk of man beautifully proportioned, six feet two inches and 215 pounds. The Angel wears a white hood. The bad guys wear black ones.

The most widely hated bad guy is the Masked Man. He weighs 260, is six feet five inches and is dressed all in black except for his shoes and belt which are a satanic red. His specialty is strangling an opponent.

There are other despised and therefore popular villains. One is a Spaniard called Ironhead whose specialty is rendering his opponents unconscious by clubbing them with his skull.

Another is a German who climbs into the ring with a swastika embossed on his tunic, raises his right arm and screams "Heil Hitler" at the crowd.

But the greatest villain right now is the Masked Man. The only pachyderm capable of bringing him to Justis is the White Angel. The two are embarked on what must be a highly profitable tour.

The script follows the American trend. The Masked man takes on a nice good guy who almost peels off his mask after which the villain jumps out of the ring, snarls, and threatens to take on 100 spectators. He re-enters the ring and applies the strangulation hold and within a minute or two the insensible form of the good guy is lugged away.

On another night the White Angel takes on a loser tough "heel." He wears a white hood, white tights and white satin bathrobe. His opponent is fat, flabby, fortyish and forty pounds lighter, but ah, oh so dirty.

The crowd is in agony for fear the "Angel" will lose. But he bravely eschews all fouls and triumphs in the end.

Then comes the "super-gals" when the Masked Man meets the White Angel. The house was packed and there was a rendarme at almost every elbow. (Shades of Czechoslovakia). The police were worried because the last time the pair met the Masked Man won and the crowd tossed a few all-night riots to round out an unhappy evening.

But on this particular evening the White Angel won after an hour's grim struggle and the packed house went home happy in the knowledge that good had triumphed over evil.

To the police of Europe wrestling is no laughing matter. In Tarbes, France, recently, another villain, the Masked Hangman, from Bethune (that was the place where the vin rouge was so good and you could always find the battery sergeant major either inside or waiting outside No. 7), was so convincing that 100 persons wielding clubs, planks and chairs stormed his dressing room after the bout. They knocked two cops cold and were turned back only by fire hoses.

Yankees Squeak Cleveland, Giants Demote Milwaukee; Tigers, Phils, Dodgers Win

By ED WELES
Associated Press Staff Writer

The old Yankees are back in business, aided by a newcomer who was a long time coming.

Hank Bauer and Yogi Berra, two fellows you think of as members of New York's champions, had the clutch hit Friday night as the Yankees, still fifth, closed to within 2½ games of the top with a 3-2 victory over Cleveland Indians, leaders in the American League.

But it was Jim Coates, a right-hander who spent seven years in the minors, who put it away. The big 26-year-old rookie nailed the opener of a four - game series with one-hit pitching for 3 1-3 shutout innings in relief of injured Whitey Ford.

Coates came on after Ford, who blanked the Indians on four hits for four innings, gave way because of a pulled ankle in a tying, two-run sixth.

MINOOO HAILED

That rally ended with Minnie Minoso's thwarted theft of home and the Indians had their second in a row after winning seven straight. They now have only a one - game lead over Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles, who are in a virtual tie for second.

The White Sox, left idle by rain at Boston, still hold a 1½ percentage point edge over the Orioles, who swept a twilight twinbill, Kansas City Athletics 8-2 and 2-0.

Detroit Tigers retained fourth place, 1½ games off the pace, by beating Washington Senators 6-4 in 13 innings.

The Yankees, only .042 points behind Cleveland, scored in the first clincher with an unlikely run on Bauer's two - out single in the sixth. Bobby Richardson opened the home with the run that put them two games over .500 for the first time since April 23 after leading off with an infield single and reaching second on shortstop Woody Held's second error of the year.

BERRA PLATES RUN

Berra, whose tag on Minoso in a close play set off a rhubarb between the Indians and umpire Charley Berry, hit a two - out single for the first of two runs in the fifth. Enos Slaughter (5-6), after banking the Yankees on one hit for four frames, wild pitched the other run home. Ford was infured sliding as he was forced at second in that inning.

Coates (2-0) gave up only a leadoff single by George Strickland in the ninth.

The Orioles, winning four straight for the first time in more than a month, put away the sweep on a joint shutout by Skinny Brown (4-2) and Billy Loes backed by Gus Triandos's 17th homer — the 100th of his career—and Bob Boyd's single.

Gene Woodling and Billy Gardner each homered and drove in three runs for Baltimore in the opener. Billy O'Dell (4-4), won it, allowing only four hits, one Jerry Lumpe's first home run. Johnny Kucks (1-4) and Rip Coleman (2-3) were the losers for the Athletics.

The Tigers came from three runs back, tying it 4-4 in the ninth and also breaking it up with a pair in the 13th on an error, singles by Cool Veal and Eddie Yost and Larry Osborne's sacrifice fly. Barney Schultz won it with three hit-

If you think Sam Jones is the hero of the hour now than San Francisco has always Milwaukee Braves out of the National League last, forget it. Sad Sam is the Giants' hero of the month.

It took Jackie Brandt's two-run single in the bottom of the 10th to put the Giants .006 percentage points and a half-game ahead with a 4-3 victory over the Braves Friday night, but it figures as the least they could do for Jones.

The big righthander had given up two runs and five hits in the first three innings—then allowed only one hit in the rest of the way. Two of those came in the 10th and two were by Billy Bruton, whose fifth homer gave Milwaukee a 3-2 edge in the top of the 10th.

Then the Giants got busy, chasing Don Nuhl (0-1) and sending Milwaukee's first-place stay 0-bit bed bugun May 13.

TOOK TOUR RAP

Ironically, it was Jones who was the loser when the Giants fell into first place May 5. And it was Jones who was beaten 4-2 by Milwaukee May 18, the day before the Giants put on the game lead over the Giants.

Since then, with the exception of the Giants have won 19—and Sad Sam has figured in more than a few of them. He's virtually 5-0 Jones has won five of six decisions in that span and has added two saves in relief, having a hand in seven of the 19 victories in the Giants' streak.

The third - place Pittsburgh Pirates moved to within two games of the top with a 6-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals. Los Angeles Dodgers rapped Cincinnati Redlegs 6-2 and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Chicago Cubs 8-7.

CARDS CLIPPED

Vern Law (7-4) shut out the seventh-place Cardinals, who had won nine of 11, on four singles, two by Gino Cimoli. The Pirates, winning seven of their last nine, backed him with eight hits, including homers by Ramon Mejias off Sam Jones and Gene Green against rookie Dick Ricketts (0-2).

Duke Snider drove in four runs with a pair of two-run homers, his seventh and eighth, for the Dodgers. His first, with two on, triggered a five-run first inning that handed Brooks Lawrence (3-5) his seventh defeat in a row. Roger Craig, a one-time Dodger farmhand, struck from the misery, was the winner.

The Phils had homers from Harry Anderson and Ed Bouchee while building a 7-2 lead, but Cincinnati mounted a late rally in the seventh to nail it. Gene Conley (6-3) won it, but gave way to reliever Jim Konstanty after Ernie Banks' two-run 19th homer in the sixth inning. Brooks Robinson's 13th homer and Ike Delock (5-4) or Cards (5-4).

Ricki Starr Gives

Large Crowd Ballet-Laugh, Yukon, Hutton Disqualified

By GEO. E. CARTER
Sports Editor

Hutton, Hutton, who's got the Yukon?

Before Joe Gollob sheded his eyes, looked around the enthusiastic arena, failed to see his pair of panting pachyderms, then started his methodical sequence.

Somewhere out there along the ring apron Dick Hutton and Yukon Eric were making like punching bags. The grubby were audible but the groupers were not visible.

So Joe counted as far as he could and decided to call it a day. The Yuke made a half-hearted attempt to get back but it was too late. The whistle had blown and the host went into the records as "No Contest."

Hutton, making his first appearance here this season, was a noticeable "spare tire," but it didn't affect his aforementioned. He was up to his old tricks, but seems to have a greater affection for the mat than before.

He handed the Yuke some terrific punishment in the first 2 before collapsing him with 3 abdominal stretch. However Eric came back after the count, leaving Joe off with a couple of mighty swings, finally connecting the Hutton midriff with his powerful arms and the pressure was on.

The Hutton backbone was almost visible through the fat and much before he willed — and the Yuke ambled to his dressing room the victor.

But the show-stealer from a spectacle and skill view was the handsome ballet-dancing Ricki Starr.

This youngster has the grace and rippling muscular rhythm of a ballerina and he unlike his mastrons giggling, bobby-soxers bubbling and teenagers tonsilling scream of joy.

He even had the males on his side by the remarkable skill, deftness, acrobatic agility, and a cunning that left his villain, one Al Korman wondering whether he was in a ring or the floating star of the dances.

Ricki proved as elusive as a dew worm slithering through a vat of cocktail forks and even Uncle Joe found himself hanging out on the ropes after one weekly swish after he tried to tuff the man that wasn't there.

But he still has a way to go before all the time. Korman nullied him a couple of times, and once nearly died laughing when Ricki's pinkies tickled a furfined underarm.

It was one of the best crowd-pleasing shows seen here since Danny Dunlop swallowed a midget and smuggled him all the way back to Toronto.

The crowd howled when Ricki smacked Joe on the south side the lap. It screamed when he "stiffed" the official's cheek, and it roared when he executed two complete serial somersaults to wrap his ballet-shoed feet around the Korman neck and pin him for the fall.

After it was over the distaff side, from grandmas down to sixth-graders, swarmed around the ring for the twinkling Starr's autograph.

It was a continuous ballet-laugh from start to finish.

Pat Flanagan and Jack Lesbin staged a fast interesting preliminary with both being counted out of the ring after sixteen minutes of clean struggling.

Brings Horses Back to Tracks Just for Thrill

CALGARY (CP) — Jack W. Chattahoochee Smith is a harper with a yen to patch up thoroughbred racehorses slated for discard and bring them back to the races.

"It's the thrill, not the till, that counts," says Smith. But the record shows that he has been handy in collecting from the till, too. In the last five years his horses have won 27 races and $30,000 in purses.

This pay isn't remarkable, and it probably leaves Smith with a deficit in his chosen career of "taking fat legs and making them thin as wieners."

"I've done everything but cut off a leg and put it back on him," Smith says.

SCOUT VETERAN

Born in London, Ont., he has been around the prairie racing circuit for 25 years.

Smith, now 60, has been interested in horses as long as he can remember. He recalls that from the time a mother's apron strings as reins.

In 1911 he moved with his family to Saskatchewan where they settled at Innisfail, Alta. Farm life didn't interest Smith and he began to wander, going to Milwaukee, Chicago, Kansas City, Denver and other places.

In 1930 he moved to Edmonton and spent a year as a jockey before he race business with a horse named Top Lap. Later he acquired a crippled mare named Chattahoochee for $100. He greased and bathed Chattahoochee. On the first day of her racing at Chinook Park in Calgary in 1935 Top Lap won and paid $20 for 2, and on the same day Chattahoochee won and paid $25 for $2.

Smith then was tagged with the nickname Chattahoochee.

BARBER BY TRADE

When he isn't patching up horses, he is a barber in Calgary. He says he learned the barbering trade many years ago after he decided that barbers could travel anywhere and there always seemed to be a job waiting.

On Aug. 8, 1953, Maurice (Rocket) Richard was visiting Regina and a race was named in his honor. Chattahoochee Smith won it with Rhinoa.

The famed Rocket of Montreal Canadiens made the presentation but Chattahoochee Smith stole the show and got an ovation from the crowd.

Chattahoochee was so pleased at winning that he forgot all about his famous guest, pointed to Rhinoa and said on the loudspeaker:

"As lit as human hands can make 'im."

Harness Racing Ills

By Phil Stewart

At present there are fifteen horses training at the Belleville fairgrounds. Starting at the east side of the track we will find "Daisy Baker" a seven-year-old chestnut mare, owned by Dexter Baker and owned by Robert "Sonny" Orr of Belleville. Daisy has been training like a good as in any spring and Sonny thinks she should run good at the fall fairs. Next horse up the line is my four-year-old bay gelding "Dominic Star" by Dominic. The colt paces naturally and I hope should be ready to make his first start some time later this summer.

"Blackjack's Pride" another one that makes a black gelding sired by Blackjack owned and being trained by Larry Zebedee a student at Quinte Secondary School. "Blackie" has had a little tough luck but seems to be coming fine again.

Morley Fleet is training H. H. Billy Allen's pacing mare Dot Duff colt for Bernard Hunt, Tweed a young colt with a own "Mighty Classy" and is also handling "Betty Abigail" by Mac Abigail for Mrs. Jack Jeffery of Belleville. Morley figures on racing Betty Abigail in a couple of weeks. Jack Jeffery is also training a brother to Betty Abigail for Mrs. Jack looks like he should pace petty quick.

Ross Hall of Belleville has three on the go, a four-year-old Colby Hanover trotter called "Hanover Hall" by Colby Hanover, "Lee Mac S" by Dillon Mc Kinney and "Sunshine Sue" a chestnut mare by Who.

Mike Collton of Picton is training a two-year-old colt of their's a good one mare "Rosabelle Lee" the dam of Early Rose C. P.C. Choice, six Time Winner sired by Glen Hanover and looks like a real prospect.

Rod "Buck" Newton still owns "Teddy Grattan Royal" who is training pretty good after having two tough luck seasons.

Ken Weeks is giving "John De Gurgyr" his daily jog-work and Prince McElwyn pacer is stepping nicely.

Ore I missed is "Smithfield Boy" another Prince McElwyn colt owned and being trained by Hermon Lucas. Herm had pretty good luck with this one after buying him in the middle of last summer.

Two colts out of this list who have started so far this year are: Nest' "Lee Mac S" who was first and second at Ballmore last Saturday in the 2.30 class and paced a record of 1 first, 2 seconds and 3 thirds in six starts this year. H. H. Billy Grattan, Jack Mc Carter has started eight times this season having a record of 1 first, 3 second and 2 thirds, was second and third in the 2.15 class at Baltimore. Mc-Carter also started "Mighty Classy" at Baltimore and finished 5th and 6th.

"John De Kuyper" while finishing 7th paced a good mile in the 2.28 class at Baltimore against horses who have started many times times, "John" was 5th at Garanoque in his first and only other start.

Remember the Quinte Club's first race meet at Belleville on Saturday evening, July 4th. If you have a horse, card, sad, or harness will be half price so buy your card today. These cards are still available from any club member. The response has been good so far as over one hundred members have paid their dues. The club is holding another meeting to work on plans for our race meet, at 7 p.m. on Thursday, June 25th at the fairgrounds. Come out and bring a friend. Everyone is welcome and if you have any good ideas we will be pleased to hear them.

Australian Tops 2nd Round, Canadians Well Down List

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GLENEAGLE GOLF CLUB, Mississauga, Ont. (CP)—Australian Bruce Crampton, 25-year-old Australian has been among the North American tournaments carried a one-stroke lead into the third round of the $85,000 Canadian Open today.

Crampton, a big game downunder but almost an unknown on this continent, shot a 67 underclearing plus Friday at the spacious 73 Islesmere course for a two-round total of 136.

Not on his heels were three big money - winners on the United States circuit—Art Wall jr., Bob Rosburg and Dow Finsterwald of the U.S. Open last Sunday, and Dow Finsterwald.

SHOOT 69s

All three shot three-under 69s and they ended with a total of 138, a total of 136, Crampton had a 68 on the first 18 holes Thursday. They strokes back of Crampton. Friday's round to go into today's play with a 141 total. He was one stroke behind Canadian Open conquer's Stan Leonard, who shot a 69 and helped lay an eagle three, after Thursday's 73.

Crampton gave part of the credit to his practice round play, which included five birdies, to the man who broke through during the afternoon.

"I'm glad to see you've got through your bogie jinx around up here," the Sydney policeman's son said as he left the 18th green. "I think you've proved to me that my blood's warmed up," he added.

But he is not counting the $3,500 top money yet. "There are still a great many holes to play over and the course is in such great shape that anyone could go out and shoot a 65 or 64.

He said he has never before been in a Canadian tournament, but has won the Australian Open, the Manila Open and many other far eastern tournaments.

He returns to the Pacific Ocean area now has a record of 1 first, 2 seconds and 3 thirds in six starts this year. H. H. Billy Grattan, Jack Mc Carter has started eight times this season having a record of 1 first, 3 second and 2 thirds, was second and third in the 2.15 class at Baltimore. Vees Shut Out Buffalo 5-0; Royals Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are some who toil hard and reap small rewards. Such is Ben Flowers, pitcher for Richmond in the International League.

Friday night, however, Flowers had a moment of glory.

Making his 12th start, Flowers won his first game of the season, limiting the league-leading Buffalo Bisons to six hits as the Virginians won handily 5-0.

The 25-year - old right-hander's previous labors — 73 innings of work — had netted him three losses. But Flowers' clutch performance pushed him into the spotlight as he moved Richmond to within a half-game of first place.

Third-place Rochester had to go 12 innings before pulling out a 3-1 victory over Columbus and Montreal and Havana split a pair. The Royals won the first 5-4 and dropped the nightcap 7-3. Toronto and Miami were rained out.

Richmond provided Flowers with the run he needed in the fourth inning. Ozzie Alvarez opened the first inning as Ozzie Alvarez singled, took second on a passed ball, moved to third on an infield hit and scored on Deron Johnson's sacrifice fly. Johnson was Warren Hacker who has lost five in a row—four by shutouts.

Back to back home runs by slugshitter Chuck Stanley and Charlie James off tiring Columbus starter Lynn Lovegrath gave the Red Wings their second-inning victory. The Wings had tied it in the ninth on Wes Wiesand's homer. It was the 12th loss in 16 games for the sixth-place Jets since they won their pennant from first on June 3.

Montreal was headed for a sweep as they led 3-2 behind Ed Rakow in the eighth inning of the nightcap. But Borrego drove in two-run homer and a three-run insurance shot by winning pitcher Ted Wieand gave the Sugar Kings the split.

TORONTO WELL

Wieand checked the Royals on four hits—three by Bob Lennon, who had a single and two homers. Tony Gonzalez and Jerry Gonder also hit round trippers for Havana.

Montreal's Tom Lasorda, backed with home runs by Jim Kornada and Sandy Amoros, got the seven-inning opener with a four-hitter. Lasorda's record now is 8-2.

Trenton Sheathes Bobcats' Claws, Cole's Hurling Features 3-2 Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trenton Garrists got tremendous clutch hurling from Howard Cole and timely relief when Bobcats miscues to upset the leading Belleville squad 3-2 in a R. and D. league tilt at CNRA Park last night.

The victory was Trenton's second in nine starts while the Bobcats' loss was their second in the same number of games.

Cole, who has pitched both Trenton victories, gave up eight hits in last night's win but was great in the tough spots. He also received perfect support from his mates in the fielding department and was helped out of trouble twice with double plays.

He allowed only one hit over the first five frames but was touched for a pair of runs-and-one in the sixth. He struck out six and walked five. He whiffed Gonda after the leadoff man had walked in the fifth, Faulkner with two on and one out in the seventh and Hayden following Hull's double to start the eighth.

Meanwhile, Bobby Hull also threw well enough to overcome the errors been on the other side of the fence. He gave up six hits, fanned nine but walked but two, it was his first loss of the season.

Cole broke Hull's no-hit string with two out in the fourth inning when he slammed a bagger off his mound opponent's leg. Wannamaker grounded to first baseman Vern Stroud through Hayden and Cole raced in for a run.

Trenton made it 2-0 in the top of the sixth. Alexander singled to left when Faulkner juggled the ball, raced into second on the error. Stroud then cut out a third-strike bunt with the lead runner going to third. Ausman was out Gonda to Hayden to Stroud but Mitts' fly to centre brought Alexander home after the catch.

Bobcats battled back to knot the score in the top of the frame. Hughes started it with a free ticket to first and Faulkner doubled through the infield with none out. "Wiener" Brown popped to Cole and Trenton's league safety into short centre. Hull lifted out to centre and Brown was doubled off base.

Two were out in the seventh when Russell missed Ralph Defosse's ground ball for a two-base error. Don Smith promptly drove home what proved to be the deciding run with a base hit to right, only his second of the year. That was it.

The Cats kept batting but found Cole to be tough. Lamsande got a pinch-hit single in the ninth when Alexander could not come up with his smash to short but the next two grounded out to wrap it up.

Howard Cole's double was the only extra-base hit for Trenton. Singles were divided among Doug Alexander, Roger Drake, Guy Austin, Don Cole and Don Smith.

Jackie Hughes had a double, Gonda and Drew Wade and Bobcats, Bob Hull and Bert Faulkner doubled with one-baggers for Trenton — Paul Lamirande, Les Smrke, "Wiener" Brown and Denny Hayden.

Lineups — Trenton: Alexander ss, Drake 1b, Austin 3b, Mitts lf, Cole p, Wannamaker c, Defosse rf, Smith 2b.

Bobcats: Hughes 3b, Faulkner 1b, Bromes ss, Hull p, Hayden lb, Smrke rf, Goegan cf, Cousins c, Lamirande 2b, Lamirande (p.h. for Hull).

Umpires — "Shud" Ethier (P) and Tim Williams, time 1.50.

Garden Notes

Delphiniums From Seeds, Plants

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

There are three golden rules to keep if you wish to grow good delphiniums — thin the plants, fight the pests and stake early and firmly.

You can buy the plants in large clumps early in the spring, or small plants in pots through early summer or you can grow them from seed. You can take root cuttings from plants on hand.

Plant the seeds now for next years' plants, and here the choice is great, in seed catalogues you will find listed six or seven types. The Pacific hybrids are the giants with each floret as big as a daisy and fully double. They often have two tones — light blue and lavender or two shades of blue. The stems which with the first are woody and slow proof.

Belladonna

For extra free blooming choose Belladonna. It branches readily and makes a handsome border subject. Blackmore and Langdon strain are from England and world famous. Chinese everblooming hybrids may be used in the tall florist strain or dwarf at one foot high. The Chinese types bloom from June to frost. Another fine type is the Wrexham called also the bollyhock strain.

To grow any of them from seed you must keep them cool before and after germination. They need shade and moisture. Frame on the north side of a wall or thick shrub will do.

A mix of one third each sand, leaf mold or peat moss and soil is good as a growing medium. Blorganic is a good peaty mix for starting seedlings. In hot weather soak the seed for several days. Put the seeds in water in the frige and leave for a week, or freeze the seed; let stand for three to five seeds per cube. Leave frozen for a week and plant cube. After germination is readily, year old seed is slow to germinate. So you are hopeful seed they will be one year old and may take three weeks to germinate. Fresh from the garden they may take two weeks or less. When the plants have their first true leaves the second pair to develop they can be transplant them if they are crowded. Use two inch pots, or a box or flat frame or a shallow row in the garden. Have the plants eight inches apart and one foot between rows.

By the end of the summer the tall blooms may be cut back. Allow one or two to develop to check the color and form. It is not suitable the plant can be discarded at this time. Pinch off the flowering stock and allow one to develop the first year.

In September move the plants to their permanent spot unless the soil is heavy clay or the season unusually cold in that case transplant in spring. This to one make the first year, three the second year and never more than seven spikes in any year.

NEED FULL SUN

Delphiniums need full sun good drainage and rich soil. Dig the soil fifteen inches deep and mix in plenty of humus, rotted manure, peat moss, around corn cobs or leaf mold. Feed generously with liquid manure or plant food before and during blooming season.

Cut back when flowers have faded and you will be rewarded with a second or third round of bloom.

Slugs are sometimes troublesome. There is a powdered poison which contains no arsenic, use this around the plants every two weeks. An garden variety pesticide dusted, or sprayed on every two weeks will discourage red mites which often infest the blossoms and curl the leaves. Be sure to spray, or dust the under side of the leaves.

Stake each spike with a cane or metal spike or use a circle type stake for larger plants.

Two Years in Office Has Not Slowed Pace of Diefenbaker, Still Likes Spot of Fishing

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker approaches his second anniversary as prime minister on Sunday proud of his government's record and confident of the future.

"It seems longer than two years," he said, leaning back at the big desk in his oak-panelled office near the Commons chamber. "I've been very busy."

Two years in office apparently haven't slowed the pace kept by the 63-year-old prime minister, or brought any reduction in his heavy work load.

He frequently puts in a 16-hour day, starting to work on his own before breakfast at his official residence. On June 10, the second anniversary of the election that brought his Progressive Conservative government to office, he was up and working at 5:40 a.m.

HEALTH IS GOOD

He says his health is excellent, though he worries about the fact his weight, 175 pounds, is 12 pounds more than when he was in opposition.

"I have more energy today than I had 10 years ago," he said in an interview.

Stiffening political attacks in recent months, both inside and outside Parliament, have faced the tall Saskatchewan lawyer who in 1957 led the Conservatives to victory after 22 years in opposition.

But Mr. Diefenbaker — who, even his opponents admit, is a highly capable politician — gives as good as he gets in the Commons political warfare. Some critics say he hits harder than a prime minister should when the cross-fire crackles in the chamber.

"I like the House of Commons when it's like that — when it's alive," he said. He left the impression that if he weren't prime minister he would make it even livelier.

TOUGH DECISIONS

His government recently has made some difficult decisions which brought criticism, instead of the praise that greeted the tax cuts, pension increases and other benefits during the early months in office. There was the cancellation of the Arrow jet interceptor, for instance, and the refusal to promise indefinite continuation of special payments to Newfoundland beyond 1962.

However, the prime minister made it clear he is ready to face the tough decisions along with the popular, easy ones.

"Those decisions have to be made, not in accordance with the wishes of some of the people at the moment, but in the context of the common interest of the nation as a whole."

Summing up what he sees as his government's accomplishments, he said: "There's a new feeling of Canadianism in this country — a new realization of Canada's destiny."

The government's national development policy "has advanced farther than I thought it would in two years."

IMPROVED RELATIONS

On the foreign front, there was a more co-operative relationship with the United States in solving problems and Canada's position within the Commonwealth had been advanced.

Mr. Diefenbaker sets a stiff pace for his cabinet colleagues. His office staff says cabinet meetings are far more numerous than under the Liberal government — about 130 last year and more than 75 so far this year, compared with some 90 recorded in the Liberal cabinet in 1956.

Seldom does the prime minister have any free time at the office. Apart from Commons attendance, he faces an almost steady round of callers, the most frequent of whom are cabinet members dropping in for an impromptu discussion of some problem.

There aren't as many casual visitors in his office with whom to swap yarns.

His old Saskatchewan friends never are turned away when they call, but their visits are shorter than they used to be.

BUSY SCHEDULE

As one of his staff puts it: "Of course he doesn't sit around and chew the rag with old friends as much as he used to. He couldn't, and still get through the list of appointments he has every day."

One of the most often - heard criticisms of Mr. Diefenbaker is that he runs a one-man government.

A Liberal MP, in private conversation, put it this way: "A cabinet minister can never call his soul his own—he never knows when he will be over-ruled."

The traditional cabinet secrecy, and the principle of outward cabinet solidarity, don't allow proof of this assertion.

Mr. Diefenbaker says it's his job to know about the major decisions being made in every department of government.

"Every day a prime minister doesn't know what's going on he won't be discharging his responsibility."

ACTIVE IN DEBATE

He spends a good deal of time in the Commons. He is quick to intervene in political argument and he gets into almost every major debate. Inevitably he is contrasted with former Prime Minister St. Laurent, who usually let his ministers carry the ball and who seldom made a sharp retort.

Conservative MPs explain it by saying Mr. Diefenbaker is the type of man who can't sit still long when his government is under fire. For years he was prominent as a courtroom defence lawyer.

"There aren't many debates on our team in the cabinet," one MP said. "Mr. Diefenbaker is carrying a larger load of debate than he will in a few years when his colleagues have found their feet."

He has shown a sure instinct in spotting the political implications of opposition questions and statements, and is quick to launch a counter-attack, usually with obvious enthusiasm.

One experienced Liberal member described it as "a kind of willingness to get into dogfights, even with backbenchers, that is new in my experience." He suggested this doesn't go over well with the public.

A CCF VIEW

A CCF member said: "He campaigns in the House as though he were still leader of the opposition. You ask a proper and sensible question and he'll make a belligerent political attack. The prime minister has not brought the required amount of dignity and decorum to his position."

In two years a large amount of public interest has centred on the prime minister. People tend to have strong views, one way or the other, about him.

PRIME MINISTER RELAXES — Prime Minister Diefenbaker puts in a 16-hour day at his office in Ottawa but once in a while he likes to relax and go fishing. This photo was taken during a fishing trip in the Yukon last September. Last year he used to get away frequently for fishing in the early morning at Harrington Lake in the Gatineau hills north of Ottawa but this spring he had made only two fishing excursions. He told a reporter "You've got to be able to relax. I can do a lot of work, thinking things over and making notes when I'm out there monkeying around fishing." (CP Photo).

Liberal party heads express joy over the latest Gallup poll results, which said public support for the Conservative government has fallen from 60 per cent last July to 50 per cent in May while Liberal support has risen from 26 to 36 per cent. The poll also said public approval for the way Mr. Diefenbaker is handling his job dropped to 52 per cent in May from 64 per cent last August, while disapproval has risen from 11 to 30 per cent.

Conservatives say they aren't worried about this between-election standing.

HAPPY SITUATION

One said it's "cause for jubilation—50 per cent is almost as much as the Liberals had at their peak." He conceded that when the Liberals were in power the polls consistently showed Mr. St. Laurent's personal popularity considerably higher than that of his government. But he said the public always blamed Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet ministers when things went wrong—"Mr. Diefenbaker is getting blamed for everything this government does."

One opposition critic said in conversation that one of the prime minister's weaknesses is an unusual sensitiveness to criticism.

Conservatives who know the PM well agree he is sensitive to attack. But they say it's always hard for a government leader to take criticism of actions when he thinks he is doing the right thing for the country.

Meanwhile the prime minister, whose job inevitably isolates him to some extent from the public, tries to keep in touch with public opinion by reading the mass of mail which comes to him, by steady reading of newspapers, by making frequent speaking trips around the country where he can meet and talk to people.

His secretaries say he gets an average of 100 letters daily, about twice as much as previous prime ministers. Many are from strangers — some starting with a familiar "Dear John" instead of the more proper "Mr. Prime Minister."

His staff says he sees all the letters himself, and all are answered even though replies may be drafted by aides.

As for travelling, undoubtedly Mr. Diefenbaker has covered more milage than any predecessor in the same length of time. His staff says he feels an obligation to accept requests for public engagements. And he won't agree to follow a speech text prepared by others. Indeed it would be difficult for a ghost writer to reproduce the somewhat elaborate oratory that is his trademark.

Frequently his platform for public speeches is at a university convocation in Canada or the United States. He had only a couple of honorary degrees from universities when he took office and now has 20, including two degrees from universities in Pakistan and India received on his world tour.

Those close to him say he has monkeying around fishing."

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retirement in Trailer Is Great Claim Many Veteran Trailerites

By THOMAS COLLINS

Trailers, in my book, have always been pretty gadgets to hook on the back of an automobile and spend your retirement in if you couldn't get a good tent.

But I'm weakening. Too many people are finding their Golden Years under the floorboards.

Mrs. Justine Paris is one of them. "If you want to live," she says, "and want to have some fun out of retirement before you die, a trailer is the thing for you."

Mrs. Paris and her husband are now six years out into retirement. They lived on Long Island for 36 years and owned their home. With retirement they sold it, moved to Ulster County in New York, and bought three acres of land for $1,200. The land did a barn on it.

Then they bought a house trailer and headed off on the land.

"We have a nice garden in the summer," Mrs. Paris says, "and I always can what we grow for use in the winter. It is much cheaper that way. We have our own land than to have it hooked up in a trailer park. We live on $200 a month, putting the rest of our income in the bank, and we have everything we want on that."

Lost none of his sense of humor. He has been described as the first real humorist to become Canadian prime minister, and he uses no opportunity of adding to his noted stock of anecdotes.

STANDS BY DECISIONS

Mr. Diefenbaker said he hasn't lost his ability to make decisions without fretting about them afterwards.

"Once I make the decision, it's final and past and that's all there is to it," he said. "It's my salvation—that, and the fact that I can cover a tremendous amount of reading at a fast rate."

Mr. Diefenbaker is an avid fisherman, and last year used to get away frequently for a couple of days of trout and salmon fishing at secluded Harrington Lake in the Gatineau hills a few miles north of the capital. He used a big summer lodge, owned by the National Capital Commission and put at his disposal when he wanted it.

This spring, because of criticism over this, he made only two fishing visits to the lake. However, general opinion in the Commons is that Canada's prime minister should have an official summer home and legislation now has been introduced to make the Harrington Lake building an official residence.

"You've got to be able to relax," he said. "I can do a lot of work, thinking things over and making notes, when I'm out there monkeying around fishing."

CAN LIVE CHEAPER

"Regarding your recommendation that prospective trailerites have $150 per month to live on, be advised that you're quite off base.

"No single person over 60 (except a hog) needs more than $1.25 per day for food. Call it $40 per month. Rent for the trailer in a decent park near the ocean would be $20. Electricity and kerene for cooking would be about $5. That makes $75 a month. Why $150?..."

Mr. Mack emphasizes that he is pressing that he has lived in a trailer 11 years and knows all the answers.

"There is no way to live more economically than in a trailer," he says. "And folks who once live in a trailer wouldn't go back into a house if the rent was free!"

Mr. Mack keeps his trailer mobile, as contrasted with many people who park them permanently. At the moment he is in Long Beach.

"Our expenses (for two) are: Rent, $35 a month; Electricity $4; Butane, $3; Food, $65; Eating out, $20; Gas and Oil, $20; Newspapers and magazines, $4. This totals $150.

"My car and trailer cost $9,000, but a good used trailer for one person can be bought for $1,000 to $1,500. If I figure interest on my investment at 4 per cent, 360 comes to $360 a year. Added to my $1,800 living expenses, it just adds up to only $2,160 a year."

So there you have it. For my money I'd still take five rooms of brick veneer cemented to the ground. But these trailer folks have a tempting song.

From Old Gaspe Britannia Sails For Saguenay

Queen to See Quebec's New Industrial Region

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip sail up the cliff - lined Saguenay River today for a whirl around Quebec's region of broad-shouldered lumberjacks and mighty industry.

Their 1½-month Canadian tour brings them to the industrial heart of a region with broad, fast - flowing rivers producing enormous electric power, huge forests of evergreens to feed the newsprint industry and a plentiful aluminum plant at nearby Arvida.

Travelling at a leisurely pace in the royal yacht Britannia, accompanied by a destroyer escort, the couple was to reach Port Alfred where ships from South America dump bauxite for the Arvida plant. They were to arrive at 2:30 p.m.

The Britannia sailed just after midnight from Gaspe, where it took Sunday the Queen and her husband watched a brilliant sunset reflect on the calm waters of the St. Lawrence River.

Weather conditions were entirely different when the royal couple arrived at Gaspe Friday after steaming through a misty drizzle, the nearly fog so thick that it could not see the escort vessels.

At the mouth of the Saguenay River the main destroyer escort was left behind. Britannia was accompanied by HMCS Restigouche and St. Croix and HMS Glaitor as she turned up the Saguenay. The other escort vessels dropped another in the St. Lawrence and are to pick up the British ands on her return.

Skies brightened a little as the royal yacht steamed up the Saguenay, giving hope that it might clear for the arrival at Port Alfred.

The Saguenay River is a St. Lawrence tributary, flowing 150 miles from Lake St. John.

QUEBEC CITY NEXT

At Port Alfred, the itinerary called for a 30-mile motor tour of the region before the couple again board the Britannia for Quebec City and a full day's activities including a state dinner.

Sunday the couple went through the historic town of Gaspe where 432 years ago Frenchman explorer Jacques Cartier claimed Canada for France.

Fourteen vessels of the Atlantic fleet were in formation in the natural deep water, mountain-ringed harbor when the blue royal yacht sailed into Gaspe Bay. They fired 21-gun salutes of welcome.

The Britannia ran down the line of ships while navy men stood on the decks and cheered. Later, while the Queen and Philip stood on the verandah deck inspecting the fleet with binoculars.

4,000 IN GASPE

Gaspe, centre of fishing, commerce and farming, was gaily decked out in flags. Some 4,000 persons crossed the 3,000-foot bridge connecting the town with the wharf.

Mayor Russell Keays welcomed them before they motored up from the wharf a few hundred feet to a cross erected in 1934 as a memorial to Cartier. The Queen was presented with a stone 1½-inch model of the memorial. She placed a bouquet of 36 red roses at the foot of the memorial.

Today's Chuckle

Taxpayers: those who don't have to pass a civil service examination to work for the government.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:— On the first night of summer generally cloudy weather prevailed over the province and a few rainshowers were reported from southern and central portions. Some snow occurred in the extreme north. Cooler air will cover the province today and Tuesday as accompanied by occasional cloudiness in most regions.

Queen Makes Unscheduled Stop at Reserve

SEPT - ISLES, Que. (CP)—Mayor Jack Layden of Sept-Isles suggested Saturday that Queen Elizabeth make an unscheduled stop at an Indian reservation on the outskirts of this iron ore port on the St. Lawrence River.

The mayor was taking the Queen and Prince—Philip on a motorcade tour of the area.

"Do you really think I should," she asked.

"Yes, I really do," the mayor said.

So they stopped. There had been no arrangements for police guards or other security measures at the reservation.

Pierre Vachon, a Montagnais Indian chief living on the reservation, presented the royal couple with a pair of "bear paws"—a kind of snowshoe.

36 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA DURING WEEKEND

Traffic Mishaps Have Highest Total"

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic, boating and swimming accidents killed 36 persons in Canada during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

The total does not include 12 fishermen known dead and 22 missing in the gulf of St. Lawrence after the coast of New Brunswick was hit by a fierce storm Saturday.

The 28 traffic fatalities, eight drownings and one accidental death reported between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Sunday may be less than the eventual toll of fishermen.

Ontario led the provinces with 11 deaths—nine of them on the roads. A couple and their daughter were drowned 44 miles north of North Bay when their truck plunged into a river, and two men were drowned near Sault Ste. Marie when their small boat sank.

There were seven traffic fatalities and one drowning in Quebec.

TRIPLE DROWNING

Those reported dead:

Harry Boritsi, 50; his wife Dora Evelyn, 44, and their daughter Joanne, June, 3, were drowned Friday night when their truck plunged into the Montawan River near Burks Falls, 44 miles south of North Bay.

Linda Campbell, 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Campbell of Ottawa, was drowned Friday night when struck by a car.

Robert Gallinger, 48, of Belleville, was killed when his car rolled over several times on Highway 15, near Ottawa.

Gordon Cooper, of Deep River, was killed Saturday night when his car rammed the rear of a CNR diesel train at Pembroke.

Suzanne Jerome, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aurele Jerome, died in hospital Friday night after she was struck by a car near Bourget, 25 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Donna Marie Lewis, 14 months, died Saturday.

Father of 12 Tells of 38-Hour Ordeal in Howling N.B. Gale

Jack Doucet, 43 - year - old father of 12 children, was one of five Escuminac, N.B., fishermen to return home Sunday after surviving the worst Northumberland Strait storm in memory. Here he tells the story of the 38-hour ordeal he underwent with his teen-aged sons.

Written for The Canadian Press by JACK DOUCET

ESCUMINAC, N.B. (CP) — It was 2½ hours (about 25 miles) from Escuminac before I felt the trouble when the storm came. It came up by degrees. It was blowing awful dirty.

At two o'clock in the night our boat, the Jack Doucet, didn't have with it. The boat was making out good and the salmon nets were good.

We got up at 5:30 Saturday morning and we knew it was going rough to haul in our nets so we decided to leave them. We got up we had some trouble with our nets and finally we couldn't find them.

We had to come in because our nets were gone. We came in to about five fathoms (30 feet) of water but couldn't see the shore on account of fog.

We went to another boat and he said he knew where the nets was. We said we'd wait for him and after he got his nets hauled in we started toward shore. Another boat followed us and then another and finally another with its nets aboard.

I looked onto him to bring him in and the breakers came too quick. They lifted the boat right up and it fell right down on the bottom and me and my boys and William Manuel were under it. (Manuel was later found dead in the overturned boat.)

The wound up about 10 yards from the boat. We swam to the boy. The boys climbed up on the wheelhouse and I was on the bow hanging on to the anchor.

We were in the water about 20 minutes. I couldn't swim but somehow I managed to stay up and get to the boat and get the boys. But I was drinking a lot of water. Several veteran fishermen here estimated Saturday that a minute or more in the icy strait waters would cause certain death.

Bernie Jenkins saw us upset. He run over and picked us up. About two minutes after Bernie picked us up the sea filled his boat and put his engine out of commission.

We fixed the engine Saturday night. The next morning we came in under our own power. The other boats we seen out there came in earlier and the men told the city.

Prime Minister Nehru Heads For Kerala to Help End Strife

TRIVANDRUM, India (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru arrived here today to investigate strife and mob violence in Communist-led Kerala state.

Thousands of Indians shouting anti-Communist slogans greeted Nehru at the airport and demonstrators lined the three-mile route to Trivandrum city from the airport.

Anti - Communist citizens trooped into this state capital from miles around to be on hand for Nehru's arrival and provide support for his contention that trouble in Kerala is a "popular upsurge" against Communist government.

There were reports Sunday that Nehru is anxious to avoid involving his party in an open dispute with Communist politicians which could lead to direct Communist action against Congress-run administrations in other states.

The Kerala Congress party 10 days ago joined forces with two other opposition parties, the Praja Socialists, and the Moslem League, to launch their campaign aimed at ousting the Communists.

At least 12 persons have been killed by police gunfire during clashes resulting from anti-government demonstrations in the campaign.

Sixty others have been injured since the start June 12 in fighting among anti - Communist mobs, police and government supporters. About 4,000 have been arrested.

Three Congress party members were reported to have been stabbed to death Sunday in clashes with Communists.

Polymer Corp. Strike at Sarnia Finally Settled

SARNIA (CP)—A strike at the Crown-owned Polymer Corporation was settled today after marathon talks lasting almost 24 hours. The strike was in its 96th day.

Details of the settlement were not announced and it was not expected they would be made public until after the membership of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC), local 16-14, has a chance to ratify the agreement.

The settlement came at 8 a.m. Company and union negotiators were to meet again at 2 p.m. today with federal mediator Eric Dolby to sign the agreement.

Mr. Taylor, appointed by Labor Minister Starr as mediator in the strike, said shortly after midnight that only two of the original 56 items in dispute remained to be settled.

MARATHON SESSIONS

The committees of management and local 16-14 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union met Saturday until after midnight and resumed again Sunday, sitting constantly with brief recesses for food and coffee.

The strike affecting 1,850 men at the government-owned synthetic rubber plant began March 18.

It is estimated each striking employee has lost more than $1,-250 in wages, a loss of more than $2,250,000 to the economy of the city.

CANAL SHIPPING TO BE TIED UP FOR THREE DAYS

Mile-Long Section Will Be Drained

THOROLD (CP)—Shipping on the Welland Canal, plagued with delays since the St. Lawrence Seaway opened two months ago, may be completely halted for three days. A mile-long section was drained Sunday to allow repairs to a broken timber sill at the base of a lock gate.

Prul Ellis, superintendent of the canal's northern division said Sunday that repairs to the sill at Lock 7, one of seven, would take about three days.

Another crew of workmen is laying to close upstream gates in the lock which would permit the up-bound lock channel to be refilled and restore movement in the down-bound channel which is clogged with cement and rubble, have not been used for many years—possibly 25 years.

54 WAITING SHIPS

At least 54 ships were waiting Sunday night. Within three days the U.S. government's part of a 28-ship flotilla scheduled to travel through the Seaway in next 10 days, are expected to enter the canal.

The tie-up already involves inconvenience to many ships as were tied up when the heavy influx of foreign vessels entered the canal after the seaway was opened.

The length of time repairs will take depended on the success workers have overcoming heavy seepage of water from locks above Lock 4. Special pumps brought in from Toronto were having difficulty controlling the seepage.

Damage was believed caused by a heavy pong leader from a foreign vessel which may have fallen into the lock and broken the 18-inch square timber sill when the gate was closed.

LONG DRAWING JOB

It took eight hours to drain the section of canals and locks between Lock 3 and 4 and officials said about six hours to refill the section after repairs are completed.

R. J. Burnside, St. Lawrence Seaway Authority director of canals, and A. A. Luce, the authority's maintenance superintendent, flew from Montreal Sunday to study the disruption.

Although the down-bound channel was affected, a single section of the up-bound channel not be drained. However, a special de-watering gates could be installed.

The royal yacht Britannia is expected to pass through the canal between the Queen Mother and Prince Philip leave it at Toronto on their way to the time they rejoin it at Windsor on July 2.

Two Canadian Soldiers Hurt As Plane Burns

ATHENS, Greece (CP) — Two Canadian soldiers were hurt Sunday when they jumped to safety with a other Canadian servicemen from a burning RCAF North Star transport that had crash-landed at Athens airport while on a United Nations mission.

The four-engined plane was on a Montreal-Egypt run and was on its way back to Canada through Greece when a tire on its landing gear blew out and the plane crash-landed.

RCAF officials said it was the first accident the Royal Canadian Air Force has had in 2½ years of flying United Nations transport duty.

The 19 Canadian soldiers and seven crew members jumped to safety after the plane capsized and burned.

The shaken airmen refused to answer questions. An Athens airport source, however, said the Canadians were members of a United Nations observation team in the Gaza area.

One of the aircrew was Flt.-Lt. W. V. Genge of Trenton.

All Boats Accounted For Start Dragging for Bodies

ESCUMINAC, N.B. (CP) — An unidentified fisherman's body was washed ashore today at Richibucto, about 40 miles down the coast, bringing to 12 the number of known dead in the Northumberland Strait fishing fleet disaster.

Another 21 were listed as missing and presumed to have perished in the churning sea which shattered the fleet.

Meanwhile as a light wind gently stirred the calm straits RCMP at Richibucto announced all boats of the ill-fated fleet have been accounted for.

Salmon net coasts $1,500. Most fishermen caught in the storm lost their nets.

The crew of another boat saw Cook lashed to the mast and threw him a rope. He dived into the water and was pulled to safety.

CLING TO SLIGHT HOPE

Anxious relatives waited out the night, still clinging to a thin thread of hope that more of the men survived.

F. B. Fowlie, Red Cross' relief chairman, said four boats in the fleet were still unaccounted for. At least eight men were believed aboard.

The fleet moved into the threatening weather because the salmon run was the heaviest in 10 years. It had been averaging 30 salmon apiece daily. The fish are worth about 45 each. The average weight of the salmon is 12 pounds. Some boats make $200 in a night's fishing.

Besides the toll of lives, damage to boats and fishing gear is expected to run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. The boats are worth about $2,000 each, a "A big sea came over and However, they were still trying to pinpoint the exact size of the fleet, believed between 50 and 60, which ventured out Friday night in the tangle with a sudden, vicious storm.

At Saspin, 40 miles from Richibucto, a wrecked Escuminac boat belonging to Andrew Martin turned up empty with its hull intact but the superstructure ripped apart.

Martin and his nephew Alcanoo, both of Baie Sic. Anne, were aboard the boat when it hit bore.

RCMP were attempting to compile an accurate list of dead and missing.

The weather over the subdued strait was overcast and cool. One veteran fisherman said it was a "fair sea." Two boats were expected here later in the day to begin dragging Miramichi Bay for bodies.

Ground search patrols along the coast were being maintained by RCMP and the Canadian Army, both the RCMP and the RCAF station at nearby Chatham. RCAF search and rescue in Halifax announced they were cancelling air searches.

Mounties with flashlight probed beach fronts during the night.

The boats carry neither radio nor radar equipment.

The lashing nor'easter with gusts to 75 miles an hour whipped the sea into angry mountains waves which smashed the fleet Friday night and early Saturday causing untold damage.

RCAF search planes sighted the stricken Sunday night along the 30-mile stretch of coastline between Point Escuminac and Richibucto.

Some were washed ashore. Others lay sunken in shallow inshore water. Some drifted upstrait. There was no sign of life.

The storm hit the fishing fleet with little warning. A front it came stories of deadly heroism and terror.

Edward Cook, 60, of Bowater Cove, P.E.I., a fisherman, said it was 7:4, was out with his brother, Ralph, 60. He said in an interview:

"We started to bail when the sea filled the boat. Then another sea stopped the engine. Then another one broke over the boat. She turned over.

"After she came back on her keel I tied myself to the mast. I cut off one or three times from this father's net to lash him to the mast. But he kept working the engine.

Four Florida White Youths Get Life Terms

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP). All four white youths convicted of raping Negro women have been handed life prison sentences today by Circuit Judge W. May White of Jacksonville.

Life sentences are the minimum possible under the June 1 verdicts of guilty with a recommendation of mercy.

Otherwise the judge would have been automatic if the jury had returned a verdict of guilty without a recommendation of mercy. No white man ever has gone to the electric chair in any other state for raping a Negro.

In pronouncing sentence the 5 foot 9 inch judge said: "I have had never imposed less than a life sentence or the jury failed to show no other trace of emotion. Under Florida law the parole in a life sentence is possible after seven years. Until convicted of rape customarily serve at least 10 years before being considered for parole.

Teen-agers Outdid Order of Druids In Greeting Summer at Stonehenge

ANESBURY, England (AP) — Hundreds of teen - agers and college students outdid the Ancient Order of Druids today in welcoming summer at historic Stonehenge.

Some 2,000 boys and girls, fortified by whisky, gin and beer, staged a pagan revel around the great stone slabs in southeast England. Police said they were "amused by sun worshippers about 2,000 strong."

White - robed, solemn - faced druids—members of a fraternal order—quietly greet the sunrise at Stonehenge on June 22, the longest day of the year. But this year the young folk came hours earlier and got a head start.

A glowing full moon rose over the downs while hot and fast rhythmic music provided an accompaniment to the dancing, shouting and laughing students.

Silhouetted by the moon, one pretty blonde whipped off her blouse and danced bare to the waist up, she danced a happy jive amid sprawling young people, many entwined in embraces.

At 4 a.m., 14 druids arrived in the midst of the revel.

At the head of their column was a tall, white - robed man carrying a sword. Behind him a white druid held aloft a banner, Bringing up the rear was the chief druid, holding a shepherd's crooked staff.

Flanked by policemen, they walked solemnly to the circle of 16-foot high stones. Hundreds of youths flocked along.

"I don't think you are going to see a circus," boomed the chief druid, "you are wrong.

"This is a solemn ceremony which you would understand if you had the intelligence to understand."

A boy with black hair stood up and flapped his arms, yelling, "Omo washes whiter," the slogan of a well-known British detergent.

"I ask for reverence," pleaded the chief-druid, "if you've got any reverence in you."

The youngsters obliged toward the youth, who shut up.

Empty bottles littered the place and about 25 youths lay motionless on the ground, sound asleep.

By this time, heavy clouds had darkened the dawn sky, and the druids and everyone else were robbed of the opportunity of seeing the sun rise over Stonehenge's great Heel Stone.

It had been a late night but no arrests were reported. Finally most of the teen-agers and druids drifted off toward Amesbury, some three miles to the east, for breakfast.

Two Miners Asphyxiated, Shift Boss Overcome by Gas

Two miners were asphyxiated, Saturday in the workings at Faraday Uranium Mines Limited, four miles southeast of Bancroft, by unlike gases from the air.

A third man, shift boss Larry McGregor, 22, was partly overcome by carbon monoxide when he discovered the victims. It took him two hours to crawl away from the contaminated area to cry for help.

Dead are Clifford Dubeau, 30, formerly of Campbell's Bay, Que., and Martin Landry, 25, formerly of Duparquet, Que. Dubeau leaves a wife and two children, Landry was single.

The two miners went underpaid and the 150-foot level. Rock had been blasted from the heading by a night crew four hours before they started to work.

The blasting fume burned on an air hose to flush carbon monoxide from the workings but the hose apparently was kinked and had a kink in the rubber line.

The shift boss followed the two miners and found them lying unconscious on the broken rock.

A high-man tractor crew, led by Neil Hickey, brought the men to the surface and artificial respiration was applied for two hours.

An inquest has been ordered.

Alert Jet Pilot Spots Disabled Craft in Lake

RCAF TRENTON — The owner of an aircraft that made a safe today thanks to the alertness of an RCAF T-33 jet fighter pilot who decided to investigate a garbled message received over his aircraft radio equipment.

The Canberra developed motor trouble only ten miles out of Cobourg, Ont. on a trip to the western Great Lakes. After attempting to rig a temporary fuel, the owner spread yellow fire marker over the lake surface around his boat to attract attention to the craft.

The T-33 jet pilot, making an approach for a low level run over Jowasvlew near Toronto, decided to turn off some more fuel by taking a run by the lake and later being alerted by an obscure radio message.

On his first trip the RCAF pilot spotted the drifting launch, then a mile off shore to the west of Port Hope, and alerted the Rescue Co-ordination Centre at Training Command, Trenton, who dispatched a B25 Mitchell bomber to the location. It got a "fix" on the boat, now marked by a smoke flare.

It was only a matter of minutes after the bomber spotting that the Ontario Provincial Police detachment in Cobourg were given the information, and they in turn chartered a private boat and went to the rescue, and towed the craft safely back to port. It is reported that the owner had no radio aboard, and was thus helpless when his outboard motor developed engine trouble. During this period RCAF flying boats were alerted in case it became necessary for the owner to abandon his craft.

Restaurant Fire Checked, Damage Small

TRENTON — The speed and efficiency of Trenton's firemen also off the corners of the Do-Dee restaurant early Saturday morning when fire broke out in the rear of the building.

The people living in the apartment above the eating establishment noticed smoke at about 2.35 a.m. and called the Trenton Police Department who in turn called the Trenton firemen.

When firemen arrived at the scene they discovered the building filled with lung-biting smoke and were forced to use the Scott Air packs to gain entrance to the building and reach the source of the fire.

Besides the smoke, searing heat which created a cook, also removed a hinderance to the firemen until they were able to get doors and windows open to let fresh air in. There was very little flame.

Two trucks and 21 men answered the alarm and were back in the firehall less than an hour after being called out. Estimated damage to the building from water, smoke and heat was around $2,000.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said an ash tray had been dumped into a cardboard garbage container and had smouldered there until the fire broke out.

TRENTON — Mr. and Mrs. Neil Blanchard of 103 Stanley Street had a close brush with death at 3.30 a.m. Saturday morning when Mr. McDonald fell asleep in the chesterfield chair in the living room of his home and setting the chair on fire filled the apartment with smoke.

Both Mr. McDonald and his wife were overcome by the smoke. firemen when they arrived in twelve minutes after it was found they had breathed in too much smoke. It is not certain who called the firemen but it is believed that the fire in the chesterfield chair which was badly burned. Mr. McDonald also had a scorched mark on the back of his shirt but he was not burned.

Firemen were again forced to use Scott Air Packs to get into the smoke-filled apartment to turn off the gas and to help the two young people and their child out of the room.

The house is owned by Clifford Brown and firemen reported that the damage was slight.

Equipment used by the firemen consisted of the Bickle truck, five-gallon pump can, and the resuscitator on two people. The truck, two men and the chief returned to the hall at 4.30 a.m.

At 10.15 a.m. Saturday morning a spark from a passing car hall to tell the firemen her car, parked near the fire hall was afire and she thought it was on fire. Three firemen attended the call and found no fire on two people seat of the car. A pyrene extinguisher was used to douse the smouldering car seat.

SMALL GRASS FIRE

At 4.27 p.m. Saturday the firemen were called to attend a small shack on the Bay Shore which was reported to be on fire. It was two far gone when the call came in and so the building on ground despite the firemen's quick response to the call.

The shack, which was unused at the time, was just south of Sexsmith Lodge and office building on Wragg Street and about 20 feet from the shoreline of the Bay of Quinte.

Firemen returned to the hall at about 5.15 p.m. after using the booster line on the Bickle to contain the fire.

No calls were received Sunday by the firemen and in a statement to the press regarding the weekend fires Chief Cecil Ellis said that all of the fires at least were caused through nothing but carelessness and urged residents to be more careful in preventing fuel where fire is concerned.

"There can be disastrous," said the chief, "and it can happen to you."

HILL — In loving memory of a dear brother, Earl (Eddie) Hill, who passed away June 22nd, 1958.
A loving brother, true and kind,
One we can never find.
For all of us he did his best.
And God gave him eternal rest.
In our hearts his memory lingers,
Sweet memories, fond and dear.
There is not a day, dear brother,
That we do not think of you.
Ever remembered by sister Beryl.

HILL — In loving memory of a dear brother, Earl (Eddie) Hill, who passed away June 22nd, 1958.
Sweet memories are golden,
Memories we hold dear,
The heavenly gates were opened,
And God said, "Come."
I often sit and think of you,
The things you used to say,
I wonder why you had to go,
Without a word or goodbye.
Though one year and eight years have still missed, loved, still mine;
You will live with me in memory,
Until the end of time.
—Lovingly remembered by Mom.

HILL — In loving memory of a dear brother, Earl (Eddie) Hill, who passed away June 22nd, 1958.
Farewell dear brother, we loved you well,
Your memory with our hearts we'll keep,
There are others, true, but no better,
But he was ours, we loved him so,
Dear God, take a message,
To our brother in heaven above,
Tell him we miss him, and love him,
And give him all our love.
—Sadly missed by sister Beulah and husband Bob.

Catholics Angry Over Radio Talk On Birth Control

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Roman Catholics are angry because the Church of England bishop intends to speak on the radio in favor of birth control.

Canon Ted Yeeling, Conservative legislator and Catholic layman, said he will demand in Parliament that the government veto the plan.

The Anglican who favors birth control is Dr. Mervyn Stockwood, 46, Bishop of Southwark, London. He has agreed to appear for funds for the Family Planning Association over the government - sponsored British Broadcasting Corp. next August.

Said Yeeling: "I am not against birth control. This broadcast should be stopped because of the controversy among Christians over contraception. I intend to ask the postmaster - general to ban it."

The Family Planning Association hit back at Yeeling with a statement saying his attempt to ban the broadcast is deplorable.

"It is well known that the planning of families has been responsible for the fall in the mortality of married women during the past 40 years," the statement said.

The bishop's belief in birth control has made headlines before. He once said: "Large families are one of the greatest hindrances to good citizenship."

For himself, family planning is no problem. He is a bachelor.

Belleville Senior Citizens Enjoy Picnic at Cobourg

On Saturday 64 Belleville Senior Citizens journeyed to Cobourg to attend their annual picnic held at Victoria Park. This year all the Senior Citizens from the Central Ontario attended. There were approximately 300 all, from Oshawa, Port Hope, Newmanville, Peterborough, Cobourg, Trenton and Belleville.

The Belleville group left the Recreation Centre at 10.00 a.m. Most of them went on the buses and they sang all the way up and back.

When all the Senior Citizens had arrived, the Recreation Directors started the games and entertainment. There were balloon-blowing races for men and women with almost everyone taking a prize and needle and thread races. Everyone then joined in a sing song. Some of the lively ones started to dance and some everyone was either singing or dancing.

The clubs then relaxed to watch a gentleman step dance, and hear a lady recite a poem.

The happy group sat down to supper and after that they said goodbye to each group they boarded their buses for their journey home.

The happy but tired group arrived home around 7.00 already planning for next year's picnic.

Honor Former City Resident After 25 Years With Firm

MONTREAL — One hundred and fifty employees of the Wawanesa Mutual Insurance Company, from all parts of the province, gathered at dinner in the Queen's Hotel in Montreal recently to honor John Fisher on the occasion of his 25th anniversary with Wawanesa, all of it spent in Quebec province and for the province.

R. C. Holden, managing director of the company, came from the head office in Wawanesa, Manitoba, especially for the occasion and presented Mr. Fisher with the membership in Wawanesa's Twenty-Five Year Club, which includes a cash award. Andre Lucier, president of Wawanesa's Social Club, presented Mr. and Mrs. Fisher with a silver tea service. Geddes Lee, C.A., acted as master of ceremonies.

When Mr. Fisher came from Belleville, Ontario, to assume the provincial managership in 1924 Wawanesa had only one small office with a total staff of three and a premium income for the province of $100,000. Now, twenty-five years later, Wawanesa owns its own provincial head office building on Decarie Boulevard and is property services in Montreal, has a staff of one hundred for sixty and sixteen branches and resident representatives spread throughout the province, from Rimouski on the east, to Hull on the west, and Rouyn and Chicoutimi on the north.

Wawanesa's business in the province has grown steadily from a modest $100,000 to over $1,500,000 in 1958. For several years Wawanesa has been the largest insurer of automobiles in the province.

During this period Mr. Fisher has originated many unusual features, all of which are becoming increasingly popular with the insurance buying public. These include direct selling, and one-point settlement of claims at the company's division branches which are strategically located, many in shopping centres. Other features include merit rating with almost unlimited time-payment plans and night and day service on both sales and claims.

In acknowledging the honor paid him, Mr. Fisher expressed confidence in the continued success of his company in Quebec province.

Mr. Fisher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Fisher, 171 Bridge Street East, Belleville. Prior to leaving for Montreal in 1924, Mr. Fisher was associated with his father in the general insur-

Electric Device Plugged Into Patient's Heart

NEW YORK (AP)—A 67-year-old man—kept alive by a portable electric device plugged into his heart—leaves hospital today to live what a resident surgeon predicts will be a "fairly normal life."

The patient, Herman Nisonoff, a jeweler, entered the hospital last March suffering from an irregularity of the heartbeat.

The two-pound device installed in the hospital preserves that rhythm. Whenever the heart falters, the device gives the heart muscles enough of an electric shock to restore the beat.

Dr. Seymour Furman, who projected a fairly normal life for Nisonoff, said seven patients previously have benefited from the devices but the previous machines the size of a cosmetic case. They were wheeled around and were switched on only when the heart failed.

Furman said Nisonoff's case is the first time a heart-pacing machine will operate automatically at a signal from a faltering heart.

Nisonoff is connected to the battery-powered device by a cable with an electrical stinger at its tip. The cable enters his neck, then dips inside a vein down into the right side of the heart. A green shirt collar can hide the spot where the cable enters the body.

Eight Army Militia Units Participate in CD Exercise

Clear thinking was the order of the day as eight army militia units assembled in Belleville on Sunday to engage in an exercise designed to familiarize their officers and men with the role they would play in the event of simulated attack. Brig. Gen. M. R. Clark, E.D., of Peterborough, commander of the 13 Militia Group, which had overall command of the operation, stated that Civil Defence was one of the most important roles which the militia has ever had. "Exercises such as the one we are conducting . . . will do much to eliminate the thinking of all militia officers on the importance of the Civil Defence role and, as a result, new improved methods for the operation of the militia role in the National Survival Plan should result," commented Col. Clarke.

The exercise commenced on Sunday morning at the Belleville armouries with officers and NCO's of the units represented being formed into syndicates. Major C. H. Stevens (Beatrice) Miller of Cookstown, and Mrs. Albert (Sarah) Walsh of Napanee.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Ave. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

France and NATO

Manchester Guardian

France's demands upon her North Atlantic allies have dominated the Atlantic Congress in London, and are now agitating the member-governments. But this is not a sudden crisis. What has happened is rather that two continuing crises are coming to a head, has to do with the French's feeling that she is being treated as a second-class member of the Atlantic Alliance. Apart from this feeling spring a number of grievances that relate to co-operate, some of them contradictory. The clear crisis — overlaps with the first but also with the political control over the nuclear weapons with which the NATO forces in Europe are increasingly being armed.

The French feeling has come into the open with the French Government's refusal so far to let the NATO command station on its soil, fighter-bombers armed with nuclear weapons. It has already refused to allow French bases for intermediate-range rockets on the usual terms -- that is with control shared between the French and the United States country -- or to join in the integrated air defence system of Western Europe. It is as well for us here to realize that a good deal of what is said in Paris rests on privileged position in the alliance, such as it is.

The French say that in the name of "interdependence", and after Congress had specially amended the law, we are being given valuable American information on the making of nuclear weapons. The British, the French are not also given this information, but the Russians have — but they have not), they are being relegated among the ranks of second and disregarded allies.

To this one could say that Britain has "earned" its privileged position by making no her own an array of nuclear weapons, 3 u what really lies behind French in sense that Britain enjoys a special relationship with the United States in the political as well as the military leadership of the alliance. Of course there is much truth in this, but much (too much) of this relation-ship has need to be read with speci-

Taken one by one, the French Government's claims can be made to look reasonable or unreasonable — as indeed would be similar British claims if we were to take the French seat. On the one hand, France demands that control over the use of American and NATO nuclear weapons stationed on her soil shall be hers alone. Consider how the French embarked because the French fear that America, once she now is to nuclear retaliation at home, might veto the use of nuclear weapons for the defence of France and Western Europe alone.

This is the usual argument for building up a national British or French deterrent, to persuade yet the weapon over which the French and control must be of American manufacture, because her own will not be ready for some time yet. It is inconceivable that the United States Congress would ever agree to such an arrangement — which anyhow would open the way to similar claims from Germany and every other NATO member.

On the other hand, France, which would like political solidification in nuclear weapons, always wants to see the line between United States and Britain in a sort of directorate of the Western Alliance — a line which, if remaining allies are bound to operate. They dislike the idea of such an Anglo-American directorate too far as it exists, which is not very far, because the latter has the substance of an official Anglo-American directorate even more.

Much of this boils down to the frustration of having cut of the "Nuclear Club". If we believe in nuclear deterrent, the remedy might be not just to wait for France to make her own but even for Britain and France to go into the venture together. A better way is to negotiate now for an end to tests and then with Britain taking the lead, perhaps later France as well) for an end to the dangerous spread of nuclear weapons across the world.

The various French claims, for all the confusion of thought that surrounds them, spring from a real and basic discontent within the alliance. But if everyone is not careful, matters of prestige and paper may obscure the real problem. This is the political control over the use of nuclear weapons in NATO hands, in particular the so-called tactical (but in devastation) weapons. So far this political control scarcely exists.

The weapons are there and it appears that in an emergency the NATO command might use them without referring to anybody over the President of the United States. This is disturbing, but a lot of work will have to go into finding an alternative. The notion that France (and inevitably, other countries) should each dispose freely of its own share of weapons would go far to break down the unity which is the principal control to the whole North Atlantic system. The nations would be impossibly cumbersome and uncertain: the council would try to other matters, and might well be asked to lay down in advance conditions in which nuclear weapons could be used, but it is not the body to give an instant decision.

The best hope seems to lie in a delegated body of several members-nations, small council and executive, to exercise this instant political control. But it would be well to be quite clear that this was not designed to give particular members, rather than others, a permanent dominant voice. France's national feeling would be much soothed if they lead the alliance into closer co-operation rather than away from it.

Now Gardens Come Pre-Fab

Peterborough Examiner

Now that most gardeners have done the heavy work entailed in developing a garden and have little to do but cut the grass, water the plants, cultivate the flower beds, spray their roses for aphids, stake the tomatoes and chase dogs and cats out of them, it comes the news that they could have had a colorful flower bed for the entire summer at one dollar and no work.

The Ford Motor Company advertised that come in a handy roll of plastic matting sprayed with 1,800 seeds of 15 different annual flowers. As if this offer were not generous enough, a package of Tree of Heaven seeds is included without charge.

Amazing as this revelation of applied science may seem, it must be pointed out that it is the latest wonder of modern progress. No mulching, no transplanting, no weeding. Merely roll out your 17-foot plastic strip, lay it on a well-cultivated patch of bare earth and sprinkle it with water.

Then watch it zoom" into bright array of asters, marigolds, petunias, poppies, snapdragons, dragons and similar flowers. The Trees of Heaven sound even more amazing. They grow 10 feet high the first year with leaves as big as a dinner-plate, have a veritable forest by July in which to hide from-door-to-door salesmen, avoid your snoopy neighbors or lose your children.

Perhaps progress is not at the rate it is now racing it is obvious that in a few years we will have created an earthly paradise and the only task left to occupy him will be to discover how to live with his neighbors and himself.

BOOK OF LIFE

The Bible has been described as a book which lives in every land and in every age.

The difference between the Bible and other books is that the Bible has life in it. Other books reflect life but the Bible imparts life. And it imparts life because for some unknown reason which is hidden in the mysteries of God, the Bible book is living God on its pages and in its words. Life comes from this book as from no other book. Shakespeare, Milton, the great novelists and playwrights — these make their contribution to the enrichment of life, and an abundant contribution it is, but the Bible goes further than any of these. The Bible actually confers life. There is a supernatural character to the Bible which other books do not possess. All the genius of men can never quite give them this life, but life comes only by the hand and command of God.

So found the Bible lives in every land and in every age. It is marvelous to observe how its influence in no way diminishes if the original is translated into a strange tongue. Furthermore there is a likeness of style which runs through all the books of the Bible. You will not find this style in any other book. It is definitely the Bible style.

What a mysterious book — mysterious because it contains the secret of the most mysterious thing in the universe. And mysterious also in such an extent that when we read the Book, life comes into us.

Youth Rules in Singapore

Ottawa Journal

A dispatch from Singapor tells us that members of the new government in Singapore are in age between 25 and 35. To us in Canada this seems surprisingly young, although ages of our top army and RCAF men are lower than would have been dreamed of prior to the Second World War.

When Rome was at the height of her power, generals of her armies were about 35, according to recent research by Sir Arthur Perhaps she Malayans of Singapore are more advanced than those wisely, and we in Canada might consider following their example somewhat cautiously.

Newcomers Needed

Edmonton Journal

Canada needs immigrants as badly as Australia does. It is short-sighted and unwise for a rich and sparsely country of great resources to gear immigration to economic conditions. Immigrants create employment and wealth by spending up national growth.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Have you ever seen a red golf ball? I have. Back in the days when golf was a manly game, not a technique, the sporting goods stores would put a box of red golf balls in the window along about October. Those were for playing golf in the snow, or in mist after a frost, or for the hard scattered patches of white across the links.

To play golf called for some stamina. You had to take the weather as far as that went, then transfer to the suburban car lines. Or else you went by the railway line and took the local train twenty miles out to Dorking. Not all was enjoyable pure. —

Most of the clubs were close transportation; but the usual thing was to get off the train or the suburban tramline and walk half a mile to the links.

Why they call it golf is confusing as hard to figure out. They should have a daintier name for it, harmonious with all its clear refinements such as little gasoline prams for carrying a man from shot to shot, lovely caddy carts to toddle around with, shooting sticks to sit on, striped umbrellas to shelter under from rain.

Golf!

What a rude four letter word that is for such a pretty, candy-striped-shirted, short-panted, coy-talented recreation. Pitchforkiwinks would be perfect, if it weren't already taken.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

A SITE IS AN INFECTION OF A GLAND AT THE BASE OF AN EYELID

"Dear, Dr. Molner: For the last several months my three-year-old girl has been getting sties on her eyelids. It seems she no sooner gets over one than another starts on the other eye. What is the cause of a sty and is there any way of clearing them up for good and all?—Mrs. G.O."

A single sty—not at all uncommon in childhood—usually takes care of itself.

Technically, it is an infection in a small gland at the base of an eyelash, and as such it usually goes the way of any small infection. Nature conquers it.

As a general thing, a germ of the staphylococcus family is usually the guilty party in setting up the infection.

And since it is a matter of a germ at work, the youngster certainly should be cautioned against rubbing the eye and perhaps transmitting the germ to the other eye.

At the age of three, a youngster isn't going to pay attention to that, so I would say that the best course is to tell her not to rub her eyes. Then wash her hands at frequent intervals.

As a rule, most times the sty will fill, then erupt and drain of its own accord.

GET INDIVIDUAL HELP

On the other hand, when a series of sties occurs, then it is time to get professional help. (And, by the way, if just a single sty becomes unduly swollen and painful, it might be wise to have your doctor drain it, and apply suitable medication to prevent any of the germladen matter from spreading to similar glands at the base of other eyelashes.)

When one sty follows another, it becomes obvious that the germ, instead of being dried off by the natural defenses of the body, has managed to build up certain resistance and strength to become established.

In such a case, there may be some physical disturbance present, or the germ may be of a resistant strain, that requires one of the specialized antibiotics to overcome it. When sties occur in crops, it is time for a doctor, and a time for medical assistance.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can a woman of 51, who has not menstruated for two years, become pregnant?—L.P."

The answer is, for all practical purposes, that pregnancy is unlikely when periods have ceased a year earlier, but it is a rare exception; U.S. vital statistics for 1940 show that there was one birth in 20,000 women over 30 years of age. In another series of over 300,000 hospital cases, there were no births in women over 50.

"Dear Dr. Molner: How important is the test of blood sedimentation rate in the health checkup? Does it point to infection? Are antibiotics effective? Does sedimentation rate of 92 hight?—Mrs. C.D."

The test is a measurement of the speed with which the red cells in a blood sample settle to the bottom when placed in a tube under proper test conditions. The rate of settling is rapid in cases of infection, anemia, or other conditions in which the protein fractions in the blood are altered because of some disease condition. The rate is high in rheumatic fever or during rheumatoid arthritis, for example. Antibiotics may or may not be the answer, depending on the cause of the rapid rate. In any event, yes, 92 is very high and deserves prompt investigation.

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL NOVA SCOTIA

Fort Anne occupied an important place in the early history of Canada, for around Port Royal, as it was originally known, centred the long struggle between the French and English for control of Acadia. The original Port Royal was captured and burned by the English in 1613, but Acadia was returned to France by the treaty of Utrecht. The French governor, de Razilly, built a fort at the mouth of the La Have river, but on his death his successor, d'Aulnay de Charnisay, removed the settlement to Port Royal. The new fort, built about 1635, was located on the present site of Fort Anne several miles east of the present village and on the south shore of the Annapolis river. As the capital of Acadia, Port Royal for the next hundred years experienced a chequered career and changed hands many times before its final capitulation to the French in a New England force under Col. Francis Nicholson in 1710. Nicholson changed the name to Annapolis Royal, in honor of the reigning sovereign of England, Queen Anne.

TODAY'S TALK

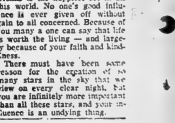
BECAUSE OF YOU

None of us has an accurate knowledge as to the influence we have over others, and how that influence operates without notice. Because of you many people are either made happy or unhappy. The influence works both ways. If we feel we are a good influence over others, then we can bid high to make that influence wide-spreading.



Each day we cover us, time and again, that our little life touches that of others. It does — no matter who you are, where you live, or what your thoughts are. You are important! The world needs your good will, and your influence is needed to make it so.

Because of you many people are made kinder and more adjusted to life and its trials, troubles, and tribulations. Keep this fact in mind.

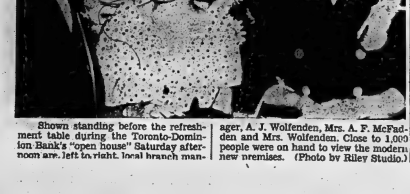
we have long loved do we realize how much they meant to us, but because of you, we have passed away from us can only return to all concerned. Because of you many a one can say that life is worth the living, and made so by because of your faith and kindness.

There must have been some reason for the egotism of so many stars in the sky; but my view on every clear night, but you are infinitely more important to us all than a million stars.

In the end you is the only one in any one day.



Shown at the turn of the century is the old building at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets, in which the Dominion Bank occupied premises on the ground floor at the corner. Next to the bank on Front Street was Robert Orr's jewelry store, next to that, W. B. Deacon's haberdashery and then Arthur McGie's tailor shop. The Ontario Business College occupied the top floor of the premises. Note the dirt road and the horse and buggy.

Pictured is the Dominion Bank during the middle 1930's still occupying the ground floor of the business block, but with modified "modern" exterior. The upper floor housed the offices of A. R. Cameron and Canada Life Insurance Co. Schryver's Pharmacy occupied the building next to the bank.

City Deliverymen Getting Mixed Up In Street Numbers

City deliverymen are getting mixed up when making deliveries in the Wright Ave. district where apparently two sets of street numbers are being used.

Originally the street was numbered forth from the highway and 1st widths considered as being 30 feet. When the area came into the city following annexation a new system of numbering came ,ato vogue but in some instance the former numbers are still being retained.

City officials note that to avoid any chaning and deliveries winding up at the wrong address, owners and tenants on Wright Ave. would make sure that the recent city numbering system is in use on all houses.

Freddine Smith Signs Contract As Entertainer

Well known in Belleville and district entertainment circles for her tap dancing and other dance routines, Miss Freddine Smith, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Smith of 122 Frank Street, has signed a six-month contract with Trans Canada Artists and is scheduled for a series of personal appearances throughout Ontario and Quebec.

Her first job as a professional entertainer will be in a Quebec industrial centre starting on July 11th.

The talented Belleville dancer was spotted by a talent scout from Trans Canada Artists while performing at a recent political rally at Cobourg. Since then she has auditioned in Toronto and has been given her first contract.

Already operating her own dance school in Belleville, Miss Smith was one of the youngest dancing teachers in the province when she started her first class at the age of 14.

'Open House' at New Bank Saw More Than 1,000 Attend

Close to 1,000 people toured the modern new premises of the Toronto-Dominion Bank when the bank held "open house" Saturday afternoon, local branch manager A. J. Wolfenden stated today.

We were delighted with the response, and the many favorable remarks concerning the color scheme, lighting and so forth, that were heard," he said.

Although the "open house" was not scheduled to commence until 2.30 p.m., approximately 100 people were in the bank shortly after 2 p.m., he added.

The bank was packed until around 4.15 p.m., when the crowds started to dwindle," Mr. Wolfenden said.

Members of the bank staff were on hand to show people through the modern, attractively renovated building.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Parish Guild and Contact Club of Christ Church, from a long table set up for the purpose. Those touring the upper floor were given free cokes and between, 400 and 500 were given out during the afternoon.

Head office officials from Toronto and out-of-town branch managers were present for the opening. Head office official included Mr. G. E. Hynes, assistant general manager, and Mrs. Hynes; Mr. N. White, superintendent of business development, and Mrs. White; Mr. J. A. Murphy, supervisor of advertising, and Mr. C. E. Gibbs, assistant supervisor of advertising. Branch managers were present from Kingston, Madoc, Marmora, Toronto and Trenton.

Refreshment conveners were Mrs. F. A. Beeby and Mrs. L. G. Lennox. Those pouring during the afternoon were Mrs. E. Hickey, Mrs. Lewis Watson and Mrs. Ron Godden .

Many Problems For Children In Turkey

EDMONTON (CP) — When she was five weeks old, Catherine Daag Shah travelled to Turkey in a basket. Since then she has lived in Libya and Spain and now, at three years, is back home.

But after the present holiday in Canada the family will be off to see more of the world, possibly South America, says her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Shah.

Catherine was born in Edmonton, and went with her mother to join her father in Ankara where he was posted as a geologist with an oil company.

Mrs. Bush says there were problems for a small baby in Turkey.

"We were using powdered milk as a fresh supply from the city water supply failed for three weeks. We had to go down to the 'old town' and get water in big urns."

NATIVE STYLE

"The native women carried the urns on their heads. It was very picturesque — but a little inconvenient."

Because of the scarcity of meat in Turkey the family ate many salads. There were few reliable types of canned goods, Mrs. Bush said, so most of the food was prepared at home.

Mrs. Bush made a point of learning to cook the favorite foods of the Turkish neighbors, including pilaf, a rice dish dotted with black currants and pine nuts.

From Spain, Mrs. Bush brought back an espresso coffee mill and a churro machine, something like a cookie press, in Libya the family had lemon and orange trees in their garden.

A graduate in home economics of the University of British Columbia, Mrs. Bush first met her husband in Portland, Ore., while doing graduate work.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Karl Beianger are pictured following their recent marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Mary Squier, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Squier, of Trenton. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Belanger, of Belleville.

BELANGER — SQUIER

White gladioli adorned the sanctuary and altar in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel for a recent lovely wedding when Sheila Mary Squier, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Squier of Trenton, became the bride of Joseph Karl Belanger, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Belanger. The Reverend Peter Murphy officiated.

The Reverend Sister Mary Sibbina presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, in his rendition of "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus," and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Hugh Squier, of Toronto, the bride was radiantly lovely in her full-length bridal gown of white nylon chiffon fashioned over taffeta, featuring a fitted pleated bodice with short sleeves, complemented by elbow-length mitts, scooped neckline and plain midriff, in empire style with front bow. The double-pouffed many-crinolined skirt attached to a shirred band, fell gracefully into a chapel train. Her full length veil of double tulle illusion was gathered to a tiara of nylon petals sprinkled with sequins and seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

She was attended by Miss Donna Belanger of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and by Miss Betty Montgomery of Tweed, as bridesmaid. Both were attired alike in turquoise organza over taffeta with fitted bodices having three-quarter length sleeves and Bertha collars curving low on the shoulder with pretty necklines with matching picture hats of shirred organza.

Little Miss Joanne Belanger of Belleville, four-year-old sister of the bridegroom, as flower girl, was demure in her white nylon organza over taffeta frock and carried a bouquet of pink flowers. She wore a white nylon hat with pink and the other attendants, carried white 'mums in a willow basket.

Mr. Roland Belanger of Foxboro, attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Charles DeMille and Mr. Terrance Belanger of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Club Room of Hotel Quinte where the bride's table was centered with white damask, centred by an all-white, three-tiered wedding cake flanked by four white candles in silver candelabra. The bridal bouquets added a lovely nuptial accent.

The bride's cousin, Miss Lou Casaday, of Sioco, received the many guests, wearing a cocoa brown nylon lace jacket dress with stand-away collar, navy and white accessories and corsage of white 'mums.

Holloway St. W.A. Holds Closing Meet

The ladies of Holloway Street Church W.A. met in the church parlor for the June meeting.

The president, Mrs. F. Wilson, opened the meeting, extending a gracious welcome to all, and turned the meeting over to the group leader, Mrs. Moorman.

Mrs. Moorman announced the topic, "Forgiveness" and commented on it. Hymns and Bible readings were in keeping with this topic. Mrs. John read the Scripture, Luke 7:36-50.

Mrs. Coulter gave the meditation, "And He said to her, your sins are forgiven." Luke 7:48.

"The greatest word in the Bible, the greatest word spoken in Heaven or on earth is 'forgiveness' There you have love in action. This word 'forgiveness' includes all the attributes of God, His wisdom, holiness, justice, goodness and truth.

Many stories in the Bible show us that Jesus was a forgiving Master, such as the prodigal son, the story of Jesus in the house of Simon the Pharisee, and again the scene at the Cross, the denial of Christ in His hour of great need; at the morning when Christ met him on the shore and Peter rejoiced in keeping with this topic. Mrs. Moorman read the Scripture, Luke 7:36-50.

Mrs. Moorman closed the meditation with prayer. Mrs. Holden and Mrs. Johns presented a skit on the work of the women of the church, when all women will be united in one organization. We must prepare, study, pray and plan for this new organization, a dedicated movement to build up the work of the church in Christian service. It is hoped this new movement will come into being in 1962.

Mrs. Coulter made an appeal to the W.A. for a donation to help buy prizes for the school children who had made posters and prepared questions for conference education.

Mrs. Masters and Mrs. Jeffery received the offering which was dedicated by Mrs. Moorman.

Mrs. Moorman thanked all her group for helping with this meeting.

Mrs. Wilson took charge of the business period. Reports were given by the various secretaries and treasurers and it was decided to entertain the choir, Sunday School superintendent and the teachers in September.

The W.A. closed for July and August. The September meeting will take the form of a dessert luncheon.

It was decided to purchase a new refrigerator for the church. Doris Dolan donated a basket of candelabars to the church.

Mrs. Alyea gave the report of the W.A. convention held in Bridge Street Church. Mrs. Brown moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Alyea for this fine report.

Mrs. Wilson announced the sectional rally to be held in Grace United Church, Trenton, on September 16th.

The meeting closed with the benediction and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Things Tough For Teachers In Early 1920's

WINNIPEG (CP)—Any female schoolteachers who think things are tough today are fortunate they weren't around Idaho in the early 1920s.

Winnipeg teacher Lionel Orchard, writing in the Manitoba Teacher, organ of the provincial teachers' society, cites a 1920 Idaho teacher's contract that was uncovered recently.

It stated that a teacher might be paid $5 a month providing she met certain conditions. These included:

2. Be home between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m.

LOTT — ROWLAND

Bethel Chapel, Belleville, was the setting on Wednesday, June 3rd, at 2.30 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when Mr. Wilfred Bethel of Belleville, united in marriage, Sandra Carole Rowland of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Rowland, to Wilfred Burl Lott, son of Mrs. Frank (Eva) Lott of Hartamere, Ontario, and the late Mr. Lott, before a background of pink gladioli, white chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns. The guest pews were designated by white satin bows.

Mrs. Welch Belch, pianist, provided the wedding music and accompanied Miss Diane Currie, who sang before the ceremony, "Because" and "Together" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. William G. Rowland, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of Chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with fitted bodice having a scalloped neckline outlined with sequins and long, sheath-like sleeves lily-pointed over the wrists. The full skirt of net was enhanced with seven alternate rows of net and Chantilly lace, with deep front panel of net and scalloped lace. Her shoulder length veil of French tulle illusion was held by a crown-effect headdress studded with seed pearls and sequins, and she carried a crescent bouquet of red Sweetheart roses mingled with lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Patricia Rowland of Belleville, sister of the bride, was the only attendant, wearing a waltz-length gown of blue-orchid lace over taffeta, with matching headdress, and accessories, and carried a crescent bouquet of pink Fuji 'mums.

Mr. Ted Lott of Hartamere, Ontario, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Richard Rowland, brother of the bride, and Arthur Davidson, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Belleville, ushered.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at Bethel Chapel parlors, where the bride's mother received, wearing turquoise and pink linen in sheath style, with matching accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a pale mauve nylon sheer, with matching accessories and corsage of white feathered carnations.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with the traditional white damask, and centred by a tiered all-white wedding cake adorned with pink rosettes, and topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white roses, lily-of-the-valley, and white wedding bell. Misty-white tulle enclosed the base with clusters of pink Sweetheart roses.

For travelling to Lake Placid, the bride wore a coral sheath with white accessories and corsage of white orchids. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Lott will, for the summer months, reside at their summer cottage on Muscote Bay.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a shower held by Mrs. Ted Lott, of Belleville, at a miscellaneous shower held by the bride's co-workers of the Bank of Commerce, Belleville; and at a presentation by the bank staff of a lazy-Susan aluminum tray. The young people of Bethel Chapel also held a miscellaneous shower for her in the chapel parlors.

Following their marriage the young couple were honored at a party at the home of the bridegroom's mother in Hartamere.

Study of Farm Women in Ont. Under Way

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The first sociological study of farm women in Canada is under way in Ontario.

A survey of 350 farm homes and homemakers is being carried out jointly by the federal and provincial departments of agriculture through the province's home economics service.

A representative group from all 54 counties and districts in Ontario will be questioned regarding such diverse matters as health, buying habits and farm responsibility. Each questionnaire consists of 200 questions and takes about two hours to answer.

SEEK BROAD PICTURE

Half of the 350 women are members of Women's Institute meetings, the other half are their nearest non-member neighbors.

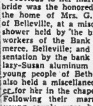
Miss Claudia Black, a specialist in foods and nutrition for the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will obtain a broader picture of the needs and interests of farm women and their families.

The result will naturally have a direct influence on home economics programs, but not immediately. Miss Black and her workers will have to be carefully scrutinized before any conclusions are reached.

Dr. Helen Abell, supervisor of the sociological unit, of the nine federal department of agriculture is directing the study with the cooperation of Miss Black. The questionnaire, mainly the work of Miss Black, is the result of seven months of preparation. A pilot questionnaire was found too long and was condensed in the present version.

TYPICAL PROGRAM

The department of agriculture has offered some form of assistance to rural homemakers since the inception of the Women's Institutes more than 60 years ago. Miss Graham explained the program started with a summer series of lectures and has grown to the extensive service given today. The survey is aimed at keeping the program up to date.



The field work, being carried out by 22 county and district home economists, will continue until the end of July.

The director of the province's home economics service, Helen M. McKinnon, said, "We are hoping to get the answers which will give us practical guidance in planning the best possible extension service program in foods and nutrition, clothing and textiles, home furnishings, health, money management and probably other fields which have not yet been explored."

Give Allowances Early To Children Says Expert

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal expert on family life says children should be given regular allowances as soon as they are old enough to count figures.

That's the word of Mrs. Kay Crowe, mother of two and director of the family life and parent-education department of the Mental Hygiene Institute here.

She said in an interview that a regular allowance is the best teaching experience possible" in routing a child to responsible maturity.

But she said she has found the vast majority of parents are reluctant to grant allowances.

NEED UNDERSTANDING

"Parents are afraid that children won't be able to handle the responsibility," she said. "This is not through lack of love, but through lack of understanding of the counties and duties of growing up."

Mrs. Crowe said there is another element, too.

"The most difficult thing in raising children is to see them growing away from you and becoming independent. But the most successful parents make themselves less and less necessary to their children. They win a better relationship."

There is no such thing as a standard allowance in relation to age, she said. Amounts should be realistically based on the family circumstances and child's needs.

Nor should any precise budget for children be attempted, she said. "With a budget, it's not a learning experience for the child at all."

Mrs. Crowe said there were more ordinary measures than depriving a child of the allowance.

The child with an allowance learns to think ahead, to save money for items wanted. If, for example, a week's allowance is taken away, this pattern is destroyed.

The children should always be told that the family's financial situation, and how the family income is spent, she added.

WOMAN GEOLOGIST — Dr. Helen Belyea, shown here at work in her Calgary office, is one of Canada's few women geologists. Dr. Belyea has worked for the last 14 years with the Geological Survey of Canada. She says geology and the oil and gas industries make promising careers for women. A native of Saint John, N.B., Dr. Belyea studied at Dalhousie University in Halifax and received her doctorate at Northern Northwestern University in Chicago. (CP Photo).

WHITE'S W.A.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. W. Borton opened her home for the June meeting of White's W.A. on Thursday. The president, Mrs. Jim Gilpin, presided and opened the meeting.

Mrs. A. Ketcheson was in charge of the devotional service, opening with a reading on the Fifth Commandment. All joined in singing, "He Leadeth Me."

The roll call was answered by eight members.

Mrs. Jeffery gave a report of finances showing $33 was raised at the pie social.

Mrs. Glydon attended the executive meeting of the W.A. Presbyterial at the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon. The W.A. rally is to be held at Grace United Church, Trenton, Wednesday, September 10th, with registration at 10 o'clock and a box lunch served at noon. Grace Church ladies will serve tea and coffee. White's W.A. is to take up the offering and dedicate it. The report will be given in the morning and devotional services in the morning and afternoon.

It was decided to have July and August meetings. Mrs. Eric Jones offered her home for the July meeting at 8 p.m. with Mrs. Borton in charge of the program and Mrs. Frank Sandercock the devotional service.

Mrs. Eric Jones was in charge of the program. Each lady wrote a household hint, with Mrs. A. Ketcheson winning a prize for the best hint. Mrs. Glydon was the winner of a spelling contest and Mrs. C. Stickle was the winner of a bean-guessing contest.

Mrs. Glydon moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, who served refreshments.

NEIGHBORS' AID

2ND THURLOW — The June meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Mitchell on Wednesday afternoon.

Over 30 members and visitors were present.

The president, Mrs. J. Chumbley, was in charge of the meeting.

After singing "N.A. Ode" and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, the president thanked Mrs. Mitchell for opening her home for the meeting. The secretary, Mrs. W. Lazaruk, read correspondence. Mrs. Charles Kleri expressed her sincere appreciation for fruit, cards and inquiries while in hospital. Several items of business were tabled until the July meeting including a picnic to be held later.

Members and families are requested to think over the above matter and come prepared with suggestions or answers.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Grills on the regular day, Mrs. F. Doxtator will arrange the program and baking committee will be Mesdames J. Milne, J. Craig, H. Grills and William Lazaruk.

Shannonville United Church is holding a strawberry and ice cream social next week. Everybody is welcome.

A vote was taken as to which school is to be used for the Neighbors' Aid meetings, with S.S. No. 4 (Spencers) receiving the most votes. It will be used in the future for community activities, meetings, etc. The secretary is to write a letter to the Geology Fine Career Says Dr. H. Belyea

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Helen M. Belyea has described her childhood interest in rocks into a career as a geologist, a field she considers is well - suited to women.

A native of Saint John, N.B., she has worked in Calgary for the last 14 years with the Geological Survey of Canada.

Petite and quiet-spoken, she was interviewed here while in Montreal for the conference of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. At this meeting she was awarded a special medal for producing the leading paper on economic geology produced by the Institute in the last year, believed the first woman so honored.

PROMISING FIELD

Geology and the oil and natural gas industries hold fine prospects for women interested in careers, says Dr. Belyea.

Wage scales are excellent, and much of the work can be done in the office rather than in the field.

"Women have already built up a tradition in this line, and there is absolutely no discrimination against them.

"There is no question of 'male' versus female—we are all simply geologists."

Dr. Belyea said that as a child she was always interested in rocks, "and like so many children I used to collect them." She graduated from Dalhousie University in Halifax and obtained her doctor of geology degree at Northwestern University in Chicago.

South Thurlow School Area Board in appreciation of the gift.

A committee of the Neighbors' Aid executive will meet later in the summer to draw up rules and regulations regarding the use of the hall.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and Mesdames Harry Grills, R. Boldrick, F. Doxtator and Mr. Mitchell, and a social hour was enjoyed.

SAFETY NOTE

LONDON (CP) — The British Medical Journal says small children should not be allowed to play with plastic bags. "It seems that the bags become electrically charged and, if placed over a child's head, they cling tenaciously and resist removal," it said.

NEW GIFT LIST FOR ANNIVERSARIES

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

I have been told — and I have been very much interested to hear — that in the past few years there have been several changes in the list for Wedding Anniversary Presents. Is this true? If so, why? And if there is a new list, will you print it, please?

Thank you.

B. R.

For many years there has been the traditional list of wedding anniversaries with suggestions for presents made of specific materials for certain anniversaries. Paper, for example, for the first anniversary; bronze, for the eighth; tin, for the tenth. These traditional materials are still included in the list . . . but because of changing times and today's new materials and new products and new usages, the list has been expanded to include many of these. For example for the first anniversary, plastics have been added to paper; for the eighth, electrical appliances have been added to bronze; for the tenth, aluminum has been added to tin.

Here is the suggested new list:

1st—paper, plastics
2nd—cotton
3rd—leather, leatherette.
4th—fruit, flowers (like material)
4th—silk or linen, nylon or other synthetic silk
5th—wood
6th—iron
7th—wool, copper, or brass
8th—bronze or electrical appliances
9th—pottery or china
10th—tin or aluminum
11th—steel
12th—linen, silk, or synthetics
13th—lace
14th—ivory or agate
15th—crystal or glass
20th—china
25th—silver
30th—pearl
35th—coral or jade
40th—ruby or garnets
45th—sapphire or tourmaline
50th—gold
55th—emerald or turquoise
60th—diamond or gold
75th—diamond or gold

Note: It should be emphasized that it is not at all necessary to follow any list of suggestions for the gifts of wedding anniversary. Today, and increasingly in these practical times, not very much attention is paid to these listed-suggested-materials, and relatives and friends give articles they think the couple will particularly welcome. And the idea makes sense. Very often, too, the color or design of the suggested gift is carried out in the heavy metallic gift-wrapping paper, and/or in a decoration attached to the wrapping (for example, a small spray of silver'd or gilded leaves or plastic flowers).

INVITATIONS SHOULD SHOW TASTE, DISCRIMINATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning to celebrate our twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary. We are going to invite about 40 couples, relatives and friends, to a buffet supper in his home at 6:30 o'clock, with dancing afterward, at a private club we have rented for the evening. While this is to be a very informal occasion, we do want to do things right.

1. If the invitations, are printed, as we are planning, will you please give your opinion of the following form:

Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Smith request the pleasure of your company at their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Friday, October 2, 1959, 6:30 o'clock

(name and address of club)

The above to be printed on a single paneled card.

Also, because of the early hour given in the invitation, I think people will take supper for granted — but perhaps we advise mentioning it in the invitation? — Reader

The form of the invitation you are considering is certainly confused . . . some of it formally worded; some of it informally worded; the informal names used with the formal phrase "request the pleasure of your company"; and no mention of the fact that you are inviting the guests to a buffet supper. And since, as you say, "do want to do things right," you should not have your invitations printed . . . nothing "right" about this. Also since, as you say, "this is to be a very informal occasion" the kind of invitations you send should be informal, too. Also most appropriate, in best taste for the kind of party you are planning, would be friendly notes of invitation written by you on semi-sole paper, or on thin inside pages of your informals. Or for the very informal occasion" it would be entirely correct for you to invite verbally, or by telephone, members of your family and closest relatives, and write notes of invitation to others.

Your notes of invitation might read something like this:

Dear Katherine:

Bob and I are to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our marriage on Friday, October, second, and we are hoping you and Bill will be able to join us that occasion by being with us. It is to be an informal party at give place, and if necessary, address, buffet supper at 6:30, and dancing afterward. Do tell us

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible parents and counsellors.

Regina B. — I don't feel loved.

Bernard B. — I don't know how to prove it to her.

* * *

Regina B. — My husband and I have been married eight years and have three children. I guess my marriage would be considered a happy one. We never quarrel or anything, but I don't feel really loved.

The sad part of it is that this is the way things have been for me all my life. My parents were most affectionate people. They fed and clothed us and cared for us, but there was never any cuddling or fondling. I was starved for affection.

I have seldom spoken of this to my husband, but once when I did quite recently he got very angry and said I have no right to feel like that. Can I help it if I don't feel loved?

* * *

Bernard B. — How is a man supposed to prove his love anyway? I think I'm as affectionate as the next fellow with my wife. I never enter or leave the house without kissing her.

Aside from that, I think I prove my love by my faithfulness and how hard I work for her and the children. Last year I put in more overtime than any other man in my department so that I could give my family a little more.

I realize Regina has had an unhappy childhood and I have tried to make it up to her in many ways, but I don't know what more to do to prove my love for her.

The Council: It is possible that Bernard is a little matter-of-fact and unromantic about his lovemaking, but we suspect that Regina is at least as responsible as he is for whatever coldness enters in this marriage.

Regina appears to be a rather self-pitying person who is determined to see herself as starving for something others ought to give. She does not say that her parents are a little confused or neglectful. Instead, she chooses to suffer in silence — always hoping that her husband will turn into an ardent, demonstrative wooer, and always blaming him for falling short of her own desires.

Many individuals who believe they did not get affection from parents are a little confused on the subject. It is really unusual for parents to withhold affection. But the child resented the affection shown to brothers or sisters, or the close tie between the mother and father, thinks of himself as outcast and unloved. He remembers his lonely, left-out feelings, but forgets the times he may have withdrawn from a parent's embrace because he felt angry and resentful at not being loved only in that parent's way.

From the account given by husband and wife, we gather that Regina has carried over some such pattern into her married life. Instead of feeling sorry for herself, we would suggest that she try to come out of her own emotional freeze. She should see what she can do to give of herself to the utmost to her husband and children.

"Yes, we'll be there!"

The cordial greetings to you both from both of us.

Affectionately,

Summer Dressing

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

How helpful it is that so many manufacturers have concentrated on excellent separates that together make up into a nice outfit and separates go so well on their own. Here is one such. The silk print blouse is available in various multi-color pastels on a white ground. The sleeves and open - throated neckline are good for summer dressing. The silk-linen blend comes in solid colors that match shades in the blouse print. It is double box-pleated all around. The part-print sash may be discarded, of course, in favor of a plain belt, but it does give cohesion to the twosome.

At Home in the Clouds

Bridge Building Mohawks

"Anywhere a bird will land, a Mohawk Indian will climb." So goes one of the legends known to the building trade throughout Canada and the United States where stories concerning the daring and fleet-footedness of Mohawk Indians from the Iroquoian tribe are legion. At ease on the dizziest heights, Mohawks helped build New York's 1472-foot Empire State Building as well as numerous sky-scrapers and towering bridges throughout the length and breadth of North America. A tightly knit band of a few thousand in an 85,000-man group of daredevils who make high steel their profession, these Indians seem to possess a built-in sense of balance which makes them as much at home in the clouds as on the ground; their cat-like agility and audacity oft have become legendary.

Mohawks have been fascinated by high steel for almost 70 years, dating back to 1886 when they first became interested in a bridge spanning the St. Lawrence from Montreal, whose northern abutment was to rest on Mohawk land. To obtain land rights for the abutment, the builder agreed to hire Mohawks on the construction job.

Mohawks from the Six Nation Indian Reservation near Brantford, Ontario, helped construct the $17 million Burlington Skyway Bridge (above) now nearing completion. Designed to eliminate Canada's worst traffic bottle-neck and provide free-flow traffic on the Queen Elizabeth Way between Toronto and the U.S. border at Fort Erie, the Skyway will handle heavy tourist traffic this summer.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Two soft-spoken Oklahomans were practically the whole show in the Lakefield Chautauqua Point Anne softball spectacular here Saturday night.

Seven other guys were around just in case the enemy artillery might blast off, but in the main they were merely a rooting section in uniform urging the mighty mound master on to what lacked by inches the first perfect softball game played in this city. They helped him too with a couple of runs.

You cannot distinguish Ray Judd from cousin Johnny, a beardless 18-year-old bukaroo fresh from a junior college in the state Broadway way named a musical show by their southern accent.

They do not speak in the Johnny Reb manner with its "po' lil me" and "you-all." They have soft well-modulated voices that soothe you with a velvety sound, vastly different to the gravel-throated rasp common to northern ears.

But Ray's nine-year advantage in age gives him the benefit of maturity. Blonde Johnny reminds one of Bobby Hull. Both are built along the lines of one of Chic Sales' famous outside contemplation adages.

But Ray has a physical feature that Johnny does not possess. His right "pitching" arm is shorter than the left, has developed to a half size larger from shoulder to wrist, than the one which lifts the fork.

This development comes from the fact that Ray is strictly an "arm" pitcher. He doesn't have to stand on the mound for a second or so like a guard at Buckingham Palace, then a quick arm motion releases a softball rocket that almost leaves a smoke trail in its wake.

It took fifteen years to develop that extra muscular poundage in Ray's blast-off propeller. He first discovered he could put wings on a ball when he was twelve years of age in his Oklahoma home town.

At that time, a bystander told me Saturday night in a pre-game chat, Ray fired a softball at a tin-pan target. The ball went clear through the bottom of the pan and cracked a board in a fence twenty-feet beyond.

Ray raid playing football with Uncle Sam's army for two years in Germany also helped the flipper development. "They play a lot of soccer over there," he said. "They didn't think too much of American football with its crashing tackles and other hard physical contact."

The Lakefield wag quipped again. "Ray put the first American football in orbit in Europe," he quipped. "He pitched a forward pass from his ten-yard line that was caught by a player of a team playing in another game ten miles away. They haven't figured out yet how the second football got into their game."

The elder Judd is a baseball player too, but not from a pitching standpoint. He played for some four years at second base, then decided the cantaloupe-size ball on pitching was more to his liking, so he returned to give full time to his first diamond love.

Lakefield's big problem when they heard Ray was returning from R.F. parades and drill with the American G.I.'s was the clashing department. They had no immovable objects in softball uniforms in the town nor was one available. But Ray put them at ease. He had a cousin who an armor-plated left hand and whip-like throw in the right.

So 190-pound Johnny left the soft balmy breezes of Oklahoma and came north of the Mason-Dixon line for the first time. He arrived in Peterborough in the dead of last winter, and as fate would have it, in the middle of a blizzard.

Snow was drifted across the highway in knife-crested banks. Johnny had never seen snow before. "What do you folks do with all that white stuff," he asked innocently.

Later in the season he saw his first hockey game, a blood-letting tilt between the Peterborough and Toronto Marlboro Junior "A" clubs. After the fourth fight and the fifth casualty, Johnny was asked what he thought of hockey and if he would like to play it.

The young veteran of many a hard-fought junior college football game shuddered, scratched his blonde noggin and said in that soft Oklahoman drawl, "Man, that game is all too rough for me. No thank you."

Both Judds appear to be fine clean cut American youths. The more mature Ray is easily one of the best if not the best softball pitchers to show his wares here. His unoonny control and blinding-speed marks him as such.

As things turned out, it does seem a shame that a slight bobble on his part Saturday evening robbed him of a pitcher's dream — the perfect game.

Indians, Yanks Split Series; Braves Back On Top

McLish, Grant Stop Champs In Sunday's Double Sweep; Aaron Clouts Three Homers

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

All's well again with the Milwaukee Braves. Henry Aaron is hitting again.

For a full week Aaron's bat was stilled as his average dropped from .408 to .389. The Braves went right down with him, losing first place to San Francisco after holding the lead for more than a month.

Aaron got only a single Saturday as the Braves defeated the Giants to regain first place. But it was different Sunday. Hammering Hank blasted three home runs, each with a man on base, and the Braves pummelled the Giants 13-3 to open up a game-and-a-half lead.

EASY FOR SPAHN

The three home runs raised Aaron's batting average to .391, boosted his home run output to 19 and his runs-batted-in total to 61. Del Crandall and Johnny Logan also homered to make it easy for Warren Spahn to register his 200th victory against eight losses. Johnny Antonelli, victim of a first inning homer in the first inning, was charged with his fourth defeat. He was won 10.

Pittsburgh's third-place Pirates split with St. Louis, winning idol after the Cardinals had taken the opener 5-1. Cincinnati swamped the Los Angeles Dodgers 12-3 and Chicago's Cubs shut out the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 behind Johnny Buzhardt's one-hit pitching.

On Saturday Milwaukee defeated San Francisco 4-2 on the five-hit pitching of Lew Burdette after Juan Marichal had five defeats. Joe Adcock hit his fifth homer for the Braves.

NINE-HITTER

Philadelphia's Robin Roberts had a go-hitter going against Chicago before Ernie Banks connected with one on with 6-3.

Wilmer Mizell, with help from Lindy McDaniel won his ninth as St. Louis whipped Pittsburgh 9-2.

Don Drysdale hurled a six-hitter and drove in three runs with a homer and triple as the Dodgers beat Cincinnati 9-2 in a night game at Los Angeles.

Don Newcombe got on quite a show in Los Angeles Sunday. The big Cub pitcher, a 11 righthander, traded by the Dodgers last June, registered his eighth victory and seventh in succession. He was just as effective at the plate, getting four hits in four times at bat, driving in four runs and scoring three.

KRAVITZ HOT

Catcher Danny Kravitz had 5-for-5, including three doubles, in the second game for the Pirates. Twelve doubles were hit, seven by the Cards. Three Redbird homers, by Bill White, Hal Smith and Alex Grammas, helped Larry Jackson gain his 11th victory in the opener. Stan Musial walloped a double, the 62nd of his career, for a National League record. He had been tied with hall-of-fame Jimmy Wagner.

A third-inning single by catcher Cori Sawatski was the only hit off Bunhardt. The 22 - year - old righthander allowed only one other batter to reach base, on a walk. Sammy Taylor's two-run homer, off loser Ruben Gomez, provided Bunhardt with more runs than he needed.

HALE RECONSIDERS

BALTIMORE (AP) — First baseman Bob Hale informed the Baltimore Orioles Sunday he has reconsidered an intention to retire baseball and will report to Charleston, W.Va., of the American Association. He had earlier rejected Baltimore's offers to send him to Vancouver and then to Charleston.

Cleveland Indians have their biggest lead in the American League since May 28 and they owe it to the determination and the strong right arms of pitchers Herb McLish and Jim Grant.

It was McLish and Grant who plowed up the onrushing New York Yankees Sunday by pitching the Indians to a doubleheader sweep, 4-2 and 5-4 in 14 innings. The victories boosted the Indians' first-place margin to two games over Chicago and showed the defending champion Yanks back into the second division.

The largest crowd of the major league season — 68,680 Yankee Stadium spectators — sat through seven hours and 14 minutes and saw McLish and Grant go all the way although giving up 25 hits between them.

McLish restistered his seventh victory despite allowing 11 hits in the opener. He left in trouble, stranded Grant hurled all 14 innings in the nightcap, winning his fifth as he yielded 14 hits. He fell 12 on base.

PIERCE TOPS BOSOX

Billy Pierce pitched the White Sox into second place with a 3-2 triumph over Boston as Chicago and the Red Sox into the cellar, two percentage points behind Washington. Grant tied the game in the third inning, then scored the winning run in the Sox seventh off Ike Delock, who suffered his seventh defeat.

Saturday, the Yanks walloped Cleveland 11-3. Thirsty Don Larsen of Washington 7-4, Boston downed Chicago 8-3 and Kansas City won 6-2 over Baltimore.

Rocky Colavito and Vic Power paced the hitting Indians over the Yankees Sunday. Each hit two homers, one in each game. Colavito's circuit blows were a homer, with a man on base in the third inning, and one with the winning blow. Power's second homer came in the 14th inning of the nightcap and scored a 4-4 tie. The blow came off Jim Coates, third Yankee hurler of the game.

The double defeat dropped the Yankees into fifth place, 3½ games off the pace.

ALL-AROUND FINE JOB

Pierce won his 6th game with a six-hitter against the Red Sox, got a hit and drove in what proved to be the winning run with a force play in the fourth. Home runs by Harry Simpson and Sammy Esposito accounted for Chicago's first two runs.

Simpson's double was the first hit of the season. The second came in the 3-0 defeat in Baltimore as Simpson scored the winning run in the ninth when Detroit's Jim Bunning balked to Harmon Killebrew's two - out grounder with the bases full go ing to first.

A home run by rookie Bob Allen, his 18th, featured Washington's six-run blast in the fourth inning of the nightcap. The Senators also homered in Washington's 20th of his career.

Veteran Sad Sam Jones not only pitched a three-hit shutout for Kansas City, but hit a home run double and triple as the Athletics swept Boston Saturday has been released from hospital but won't play for a few days. The accident occurred as Bolin returned to the bench after flying out.

Cannifton Scores in Bottom of 9th To Edge Belleville By 3-2 Count

A ninth-inning long fly with two out sent a runner stamp-ering across the plate to break a two-all stalemate and give Cannifton a 3-2 victory over the Belleville Juniors on Saturday night.

It was Cuffer Noakes' young-sters second defeat in South Hastings Baseball League competition. They now have a 5-3-1 record.

Lyle Bradshaw, Cannifton sandpaper, handcuffed the city sluggers with a fine five-hit effort going all the way with nine strikeouts and a walk.

Glen Dalnard started on the mound for Belleville and gave up three hits for two runs before he was relieved in the sixth by Gordie St. Louis. Dainard whiffed four and walked one while St. Louis was nicked for two hits and issued four free passes. He put two runners on in the ninth when Forsythe lowered his long fly to score the winner.

The teams battled on scoreless terms for four innings. The city crew sent a runner across the plate in their half of the fifth, holding Cannifton scoreless, and added another in the top of the sixth.

The village crew roared back in their half of the frame, scoring a brace of runs to knot the count.

Bradshaw set the Juniors down scoreless for the next three innings. Cannifton got two runners aboard in the last to win the game.

The game was one of the better ones of the season with Bradshaw hurling being a feature. Both teams played well afield, errors being limited to one each.

Dutty Folkell and Billy Monsin sparked the Juniors offensive with two singles each. Glen Clarke collected the other. Mon. Hunter, one of the teams best batters went hitless for the first time this season.

Harry Cole touched the Belleville hurling for two singles with Hugh Petrie and Clapp getting doubles. Ricky Lott, Forsythe and Dainard Oxner each contributed a blast.

The teams hook up again at the CNRA Park here Wednesday night starting at 6.30. Coach Noakes will likely send Larry Sodon to the mound in an effort to avenge Saturday night's set back.

Judd's First-Batter Error Robs Him of Perfect Game

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Lakefield Charlton's sensational mound ace Ray Judd literally tossed away a perfect game here Saturday night.

The smoking fireballer struck out twenty batters, should out a home run and eared once in Charlton's 3-0 exhibition victory over Point Anne.

He robbed himself of a perfect effort with the first Pointer to come to bat. Claude Carr laid down a bunt which Judd fielded but tossed wildly to first base. Carr was the only Pointer to lay foot on a bag. .

Only 28 Ox Pointers faced the Oklahoma flash. He struck out twelve in a row—and the side four times. Only two of his pitches were hit to the outfield.

Latecomer Pat Maracle was charged with the loss. The chief, delayed by car trouble, took over from big Al Carkner in the sixth and was tabbed for both runs by some of the fine hits credited to the Charlton.

He struck out six, fooled five with a third-strike slow-ball, and issued one walk. He clustered pairs of hits in the seventh, one Judd's homer, and the eighth when the Lakefields scored their second marker.

Carkner deserved a better fate. He pitched masterfully for five innings he worked, allowing one transgressor, by striking two and whiffing one. On two occasions with the first batter on base he bore down to retire the side. For three innings he set down the visitors in order.

Carkner and Judd were dueling beautifully when Maracle took over in the sixth. He set down the side and had two out in the seventh when Judd connected for a looping hit which fell beside centre field in left field and rolled almost to the fence. Judd galloped the circuit for the run.

Harry Heffernan, the next batter, fanned a single to centre field which the fielder juggled sending Judd to third. Then Maracle stuck out Judd's cousin, eighteen-year-old catcher John, to end the inning.

Lakefield's Bert Jones bunted safely in the first inning and Maracle started when plate umpire Al Kelleher sent the next batter, Johnny Foley, to third when he said he was hit by a pitched ball. Maracle and the pointer argued the ball struck the bat first, to no avail.

Maracle, apparently shaken by the incident, heaved a wild pitch passing the runners on second and third after retiring one batter. Len Padgett drove a clean single to centre scoring Jones for the second run but that was all. Maracle settled the next two batters to pop to second baseman Johnny Batchelor.

The Ox Point hurler issued his only walk in the ninth but retired the side with no damage done.

Claude Carr had the honor of being the only Ox Pointer to reach Judd pitch from a second base point of vantage. The first batter up, he bunted between the mound and the first base line which Judd picked up and tossed wild. Carr went to second on a subsequent infield out. He "died" there.

After that Judd was complete master. The next 24 Pointers swung mercilessly but futilely at streaking white balls that eluded their bats just lazy times. Johnny Batchelor and Jack Elliott jr. were the only batters to hoist the Judd shots into the gloves of Lakefield outfielders.

The score:

Lakefield	000 000 110	2 5 1
